Dear Mr. Moore:

I do find my carbon copy of the notes attached to the photo of the Hull & Sanderson tankard which you have. Omitted in the brief was the author's comment in the text of "John Hull, Builder of the Bay Colony", p.126:

"The tankard included in the twenty-seven objects of silver from the workshop of Hull and Sanderson has plain, straight, tapering sides, but unfortunately its cover has been lost during the past years and an accurate description is, therefore, impossible. This is to be regretted because it was probably one of the earliest tankards made in New England".

Very truly yours,

GEBELEIN SILVERSMITHS, INC.
