SUB FOR EDDIE BRADLEY SOUGHT

Providence, R. I., Sept. 9.—Coach Hugh Devore of the Providence College Friars was still looking today for a capable substitute for Ed Bradley, promising sophomore half-back from Waterbury who was injured in a scrimmage last week. Several candidates were busy vying for his position in the pony backfield.

Judging from the expression on Devore's face, the young coach would feel a great deal better if the former Crosby star were around to take over relief duty as the season rolls along. Bradley would, too, but a double fracture of the left leg doesn't heal in a week and the blond back will have to play the role of a spectator this year.

Always a hard worker, the Connecticut plugger was in the midst of a foray when a pileup took place during scrimmage. Emerging hurt, he was removed to the hospital where he was told the sad news about football for this season, but doctors indicated that he would be able to resume classes when the college opens late this month.

Bradley would doubtless have seen action as the Fighting Friars opened their schedule with R. I. State on Sept. 22, and was counted upon to play an increasingly heavy part in the backfield as Providence rolled through its nine game schedule. The plucky back will be in there again at spring practice, though; he said so at the hospital this morning.

...Mario Tonelli, Notre Dame's 1938 fullback and the only consistent gainer against the Giants in Friday night's charity game at Cranston, R. I., has signed with the Providence Steam Rollers. ...As such he will be available to help Hugh Devore, another South Bend product, and his Providence College backfield.

TACKLE AND END FIRST TO SHARE GRID LEADERSHIP

Pawtucket and Warren Stars
Outstanding During Past Season.

Charles Avedisian, star tackle, and Casimir Potera, end, have been elected the first co-captains of football at Providence College and will jointly lead the 1940 Friar football team, Rev. Edward H. Schmidt, O. P., acting director of athletics, announced this afternoon. Both are Juniors.

Avedisian, whose home is in Pawtucket, was the outstanding lineman on the Providence team the past season. In the Niagara game he blocked a punt and carried the ball nearly 80 yards for a touchdown.

Potera, a Warren resident, has been one of four first-string ends during the past two seasons, having played 60 minutes in several games during his Sophomore year.

Avedisian, who lives at 171 Japonica street, Pawtucket, was captain of football and track at Pawtucket senior high school and is a candidate for the Bachelor of Philosophy degree at Providence College. Potera is a graduate of LaSalle Academy and a general science student at Providence College. He lives at 43 Arlington avenue, Warren.

R. I. STATE-P. C. TO PLAY OPENER HERE

This city will get its first touch of Intercollegiate football on September 22 when Providence College meets the Rams from Rhode Island State College at the Cranston Stadium, according to authorities at Providence College.

Forty-five players who answered the call of Coach Hugh Devore, football mentor at the Providence Institution, were put through the first practice session in a broiling sun Tuesday while Monday the players were equipped with practice uniforms and spent most of the day in checking in on weights, heights and undergoing medical examinations prior to the actual workouts which started Tuesday.

Devore, together with assistant coaches, Ed Crotty, Joe Dulkie and Gig Pariseau, looked over the squad tanned by the summer's sun. Because of the intense August heat, limbering up exercises and light drills were all that was scheduled for the group throughout the week.

One of the most likely looking linemen, according to Devore, is "Rosey" Dunn, a tackle who formerly played with Cranston High School and the City Hall A. C.

Plans call for two practice sessions each day with skull sessions held after lunch and in the evening. After a word of greeting to the players Devore outlined the program for the coming season and told of the work that would have to be accomplished before the opening game here.

Players will have but one month of practice before the State game, the first of an eight game schedule. Prospects are bright for a good eleven at Providence College this year, inasmuch as only three varsity men from last year's eleven were lost by graduation, and several likely looking candidates have moved up from the freshman ranks.

P. C. Preps for Niagara Game

The touchdown hungry Fighting Friars of Providence College were run through a holiday full of football practice today as Coach Hugh Devore made ready for the invasion of the Purple Eagles of Niagara at Hendricken Field Sunday. Having scored only once in three contests, the Friars will be drilled in climax plays in anticipation of one of its objective games.

Assistant Coach Joe Dulkie who Word brought from Niagara by scouted the Eagles in their Canis game Sunday is that the Friars will have to be prepared for a diversified attack. Danny DeSantis, the Niagara halfback who showed Providence a thing or two at the College by the Falls last year, is back and will bear a lot of appear to have reached psychological stalemates. On paper, the Eagles have one of the best teams in history, with many seasoned veterans, yet their record shows them winning but one and losing two thus far. Providence, with exactly the same record, is still a potentially great small college eleven, but so far has failed to have the amounts of running, passing, and kicking in exactly the right proportions. Sunday's game will likely be the turning point in the season for both teams.

During the early part of the without the services of five stellar men. Ray Kowalski was recuperating from the grippe; Sam Iorio, sophomore back, had an infected foot; John Yockers, who performed so capably in the Long Island game at the halfback spot, nursed an infected arm; and quarterback Frank Franco and guard Teddie Alexakos were given extra days of rest to recuperate from hard playing in last week's game.

Friars Ready For Air Game

Rams Expected to Resort
To Forward Passes
Tomorrow Night.

PROVIDENCE, Sept. 21—When the Providence College Friars meet the Rhode Island State Rams in the opening tussle of the football season tomorrow night at the Cranston Stadium, the fans should see a Providence eleven well drilled in pass defense.

Wary of Coach Frank Keaney's Rhode Island razzle-dazzle, Hughie Devore has drilled his Friars in perfecting a backfield combination that will be on its toes all the way.

The boys from Kingston usually play a wide open game that appeals to the spectators, and makes for many sensational plays. The Friars have been drilling in the art of knocking down any projected aeriels, and if Keaney takes to the air as has been promised, there should be plenty of fireworks.

Two backfields for Providence have had constant practice in defensive pass work. One combination has had Larry Shattuck at fullback, Iorio and Kowalski, halfbacks, and Ed Quegan, quarter. The starting backfield, which has become adept not only at smothering aeriels, but at intercepting them as well, includes Quarterback Jim Pettine, Halfbacks Bill Carter and Vinny Nugent and Fullback Dan McKinnon.

The Providence team will probably play a more conservative type of football, using mostly line plays and end around sweeps, but if the going gets too tough, both Nugent and Carter can be called upon to fill the air with passes.

Friars, Rams Meet Tonight

First Game of New England Football Season At Cranston Field.

PROVIDENCE, Sept. 22—The football season in New England will open tonight when the Providence College Friars meet the Rhode Island State Rams in a floodlight game at the Cranston Stadium at 8. By reason of their 19-7 victory over State last year the Providence gridsters are favorites.

Coach Hugh Devore of Providence will field a squad of almost 40 men. On the sidelines because of injuries will be Joe Byron, flashy halfback, who is nursing a bruised knee; Bill Reilly, burly tackle, who is hoping an eye infection will clear up early so he may participate in the second game, and Ed Bradley, promising back who has been lost for the remainder of the season because of a broken leg.

Devore will use a veteran eleven at the start, but has capable replacements in all positions except the tackle post, where he has spent some time trying to develop second stringers. Jimmy Leo will begin the game at right end, and will be flanked by tackle Charley Avedisian. Captain Stanley Esielonis will be in the right guard position.

Slip Barnini, sparkling center, will hold down the pivot post, and Ted Alexakos will be left guard. Paul Sweeney will be the left tackle and Joe Sullivan, although only a sophomore, has rated the nod to begin at left end.

The quarterbacks will be led by quarterback Jim Pettine, with Bill Carter and Vin Nugent halfbacks. Dan McKinnon will be the starting fullback.

Friars In Rare Form for State

7/20/39
After a rigorous drill today the Providence College Friars will taper off tomorrow in preparation for their opening game of the season on Friday night against the Rhode Island State Rams. The game will be played at the Cranston Stadium.

Final drills show Coach Hugh Devore's men shaping up into condition to be proclaimed slight pre-game favorites. Having lost only three regulars by graduation, Devore has a wealth of sophomore material to draw upon, and has the 19-7 victory over State in the closing game of last year's schedule in his favor.

The Friars have been at practice one week longer than the Rams, which is important at this season of the year. Still, Devore refuses to go out on a limb and prognosticate a victory, stating that if Armand Cure, State sophomore sensation should return to college, the Providence chances for a victory would be greatly lessened. Cure, who ran roughshod over the Providence freshman last year, quit college after returning for one week of practice, and his loss is felt greatly by Coach Keaney and the rest of the R. I. State team.

No serious injuries are apparent at this time and despite many stiff scrimmages during the season, Devore should have on hand his full squad of 40 men when the whistle is blown opening the fall football season in New England.

Providence Team Loses Best Tackle

Misfortune Dogs Coach Devore as Crusaders Loom

Special to the Transcript

PROVIDENCE, Nov. 2—Up until today Coach Hugh Devore thought all the bad luck possible had struck his Providence College team this fall. Miserable breaks played large parts in the losses to St. Bonaventure and Long Island, and a foolish decision to receive the kickoff in a gale against Springfield probably meant that ball game, in which a touchdown pass was nullified when the Friar receiver edged out of the end zone as he caught it.

Off the field the breaks were even worse. Captain Stan Esielonis was off form in early games with sinus trouble, halfback Ed Bradley broke a leg, and then came the typhoid epidemic which proved fatal to the squad's beloved trainer, Malcolm Brown, and put two players out of action for the season.

One of them was the mighty Greek, 190-pound Ted Alexakos, who was by far the best left guard on the squad. The other was Ray Kowalski, chunky sophomore halfback whose speed and blocking ability made him a contender for starting honors.

On top of all this, it is a headache for any coach to meet mighty Holy Cross these days, and that is the assignment which faces Coach Devore's boys on Saturday.

Sweeney Back to Punt

It is certainly a tribute to Devore, one of those personable Notre Dame products, that he has been able to keep that bright smile of his through all these tribulations. The smile came even harder today with the news that his best tackle, 205-pound Charley Avedisian, was definitely out of the Holy Cross game with an attack of tonsillitis.

Steppngi into Avedisian's job will be a sophomore, 200-pound Horace Marone of New Haven, while Alexakos's guard position is filled by another sophomore, Nick Carcieri.

After the 13-0 loss to Springfield, the Friars were sent back to fundamentals, with tackling dummies and blocking bags dragged out again. They were tagged "Cahill" and "Osmanski" and "Giardi," as the Providence boys banged them with a spirit that showed they are far from considering Saturday's task hopeless.

"Louisiana State showed that Holy Cross can be beaten," the Fighting Friars repeat to themselves. The Southerners did it with passes, and Coach Devore will have a trio of good throwers in Joe Juges, a Worcester boy, Vin "Slugger" Nugent, and left-handed Bill Carter.

Juges will also do some of the punting, although when the long boots are needed Paul Sweeney will drop back from his right tackle post to kick. The starting backfield is still uncertain today, with Nugent and John Yockers rated even for the right halfback job, while Larry Shattuck and Ed Haponik alternate at fullback.

The line is definite, with Joe Sullivan and Jim Leo at ends, Marone and Sweeney at tackles, Esielonis and Carcieri at guards, and 60-minute performer John "Slip" Barnini at center. Jim Pettine will call signals, and 185-pound Dan McKinnon will do the heavy-duty ball carrying at fullback.

Head Coach Devore of Providence College Driving Squad for Ram Game

Head Coach Hugh Devore the Wizard of Oz of the Providence College Friars, put his charges through their paces today as preparations were made for the opening game with Rhode Island State College on Friday night. A signal, passing and punting drill was held with some 35 men in uniform.

With the exception of three men laid up with minor physical ailments, the squad appeared in fine shape and began tapering off for the season's opener. Devore plans to hold only one scrimmage during the week in order to get a look at the work of Stonkus at end and Ed Haponik in the backfield.

John Stonkus, former Stoughton stalwart, has been on the sidelines for the past few days, recovering from the effects of a tetanus injection and Hughie wants to get him in top condition for the opener with the Rams. Ed Haponik, the Taunton terrier, although only a sophomore, has looked very good in practice sessions, and Hughie wants to give him the once-over again in scrimmage to determine whether Larry Shattuck, veteran fullback, will get the starting nod in preference to the soph.

Punting practice today disclosed that Handsome Paul Sweeney is probably the best kicker on the squad. The big good looking tackle from Pittsfield will be pulled out of the line to do the booting. He got good height in his kicks but Devore was dissatisfied with the distance and spent a long time with Paul pointing out how to get greater distance in his boots. At the end of the session Sweeney had improved considerably, and Devore indicated he would be called on for most of the kicking work against State.

P. C. Meets St. Bonaventure College Friday Night

With a 6-0 victory over R. I. State College under their belts, the Providence College Friars enjoyed a weekend of rest before starting intensive work for the game with St. Bonaventure College at the Cranston Stadium on next Friday night. Coach Hugh Devore was pleased with the playing of his squad, although he intends to do a lot of polishing up on the offensive work of the club during the coming week.

The 18 men who saw action came out of the game with only a few minor injuries. Capt. Stan Esielonis has a bruised hip which doctors say will not keep him out of practice, and end Joe Sullivan, who scored the only touchdown on an end around play, has a strained tendon which is expected to clear with another day's rest.

The game with the Rams uncovered several sophomore luminaries in the backfield. Happy Haponik, the Taunton fullback, had the best average of the ballplayers, lugging the ball 10 times for an average of 7.3 yards per carry. Ray Kowalski, sophomore half-pint halfback from Adams, Mass., made 67 yards from the line scrimmage and carried the pigskin 12 times, giving him an average yardage of a little over five and one half yards.

The all around play of Slip Barnini, a senior center from Pittsfield, Mass., and one of the most colorful ball players in the East, was outstanding.

Providence College to Face Real Test Friday Nite at Cranston Stadium

Word has reached Hugh Devore, coach of the Providence College Friars, of the strength of St. Bonaventure Indians who are journeying here from Olean, N. Y., for a night game on Friday at the Cranston Stadium. Although the Friars have a 6-0 victory over R.I. State to their credit, Devore is working his boys hard in an attempt to iron out the rough spots before meeting the Indians.

Mike Reilly, coach of the Oleanders, has been working with three full teams, and his boys have been pointing for a victory in their opening encounter. He has lost only five lettermen from last year and 16 of his best players have returned.

Coach Reilly indicates that he will start a veteran backfield with Joe Eagan at quarter, Walt Carew and Steve Hryczyn at the halves and Cornelius, "Morton" Downey, at the fullback post. In the line he will have three regulars with Ed Narbis at center, Johnny Wegerski at end and Al Kaporch at tackle.

In an endeavor to have suitable replacements in case he is called upon to play his reserves, Coach Devore plans three scrimmages during the week between his second and third terms. Yesterday afternoon, Larry Shattuck, fullback on the second team and evidently irked because he didn't play against State, was hitting the line with the power of a demon, and threatens to give plenty of competition to Ed Haponik, the sophomore luminary now holding down the fullback post.

The first team ran through signals constantly, with two coaches Joe Dulkie and Ed Crotty, keeping an eye on them to see that the blocking assignments were being carried out as they should be.

Providence College Friars Primed for Tonight's Game at Cranston Stadium

The Providence College Friars had their final drill yesterday in preparation for their second game of the season tonight when they meet the Brown Indians of St. Bonaventure in a floodlight game at the Cranston Stadium. No injuries on the squad are apparent and Coach Devore has three teams ready for action.

The teams which opened the season for the Friars will probably be called upon for starting duty tonight. Jimmy Leo at right end and Joe Sullivan, who scored the winning touchdown against R. I. State College will get the call for the wing posts. Alexakos and Captain Tsielonis will be at guard, and Paul Sweeney and Avedisian will be the tackles. Slip Barnini will resume at the center post.

Devore may use the all-Polish backfield for part of the game. Joe Juges at fullback proved he was a capable player despite his being only a sophomore. Ray Kowalski, the half-pint half-standing player on the field in the first game, and Ed Haponik proved himself a back, was the outstanding player on the field in the first game, and Ed Haponik proved himself a potent threat in the backfield. Either Ed Quegan or Jim Pettine will bark the signals.

Tonight will be the first game of the season for the Bonnies, but reports reaching Providence indicate that they are primed for battle. A large, veteran squad has returned, and Coach Mike Reilly is set to pin back the ears of the Friars.

FRIARS ALL SET FOR NIAGARA U.

After a weekend of rest the Providence College Friars began preparations today for their next game with Niagara University. The contest will be staged at Hendricken field on Sunday, October 15.

Coach Hugh Devore was well pleased with the playing of the Friars at Long Island last Friday night despite the 7-0 defeat pinned on the Providence team by the Blackhawks. The work of the line had improved over the St. Bonaventure game, and the blocking was much more satisfactory than was apparent in previous contests.

The butterfinger backfield which threw away three chances to score in the Long Island game came in for a good deal of attention from Devore today as he strove to develop back who could carry the ball in the pinches.

"Sophomore-itis" was the way the coach described the play of Providence in the clutches, but he is convinced that with the additional experience the youthful backfield will really begin to click. No one was injured in the Friday tussle, and provided Ray Kowalski, who is ill with the grippe, responds to treatment, the squad should be in top condition for the game with the Purple Eagles of Niagara.

FIGHTING FRIARS IN FLOOD-LIGHT GAME FRIDAY NITE

10/16/39
With an offensive finally clicking, the Providence College Fighting Friars, who defeated a strong Niagara University eleven yesterday afternoon 14-6, prepared today for the invasion of the Aces of American International College of Springfield, American International, which defeated the highly touted St. Anselm eleven last Friday night, 7-6, comes to Providence on Friday for a floodlight game at the Cranston Stadium. The Aces are coached by Russ Peterson, who has as his assistant Bill Moge, former Providence College gridiron and basketball luminary.

Sunday's game uncovered several stellar Friar performers. Charley Avedisian, burly tackle, proved that he can outspeed even the fastest backfield man as he tore off on a 77 yard run down the field chased by virtually the entire aggregation of Purple Eagles. Dan McInnon, performing for the first time in at the halfback post, carried the ball 23 times and averaged over five yards for every carry. Both guards, Captain and Stan Esielonis and Nick Carcieri, withstood 60 minutes of rugged football.

No one on the Providence squad was injured in the Niagara fray and light practice was the order of business for today to ready the team for the Springfield invasion. Coach Hugh Devore expressed keen satisfaction with the improved offensive of the team and said that although few passes were used in the Niagara game, that angle of the offensive will be stressed for the coming tilt with the Aces.

Coach Hugh Devore Pushing His Squad for Their Tussle Friday Nite

Determined to get back into the win column, after suffering a 6-0 defeat at the hands of a strong St. Bonaventure eleven on Friday night, the Providence College Friars were sent through their paces yesterday afternoon by Coach Hugh Devore in preparation for the game on next Friday with Long Island University at Ebbets Field in Brooklyn.

When what would have been apparent victory, was turned into defeat by costly fumbles in "pay territory," Devore had backs handling the ball all afternoon in an endeavor to obviate fumbles in future contests. Practice sessions will be held every afternoon until Thursday when the squad entrains for New York City.

By reason of their 20-0 victory over Benny Friedman's City College eleven in New York on Friday night, Coach Clair Bee's Blackbirds will enter the next contest as a pre-game favorite. The Friars however, are out to make the game a real objective and much work will be spent during the week improving the defensive work of the Providence College line.

With the exception of the play of "Slip" Barnini, the Friars' colorful pivot man who was in on three out of every five tackles, the work of the line bogged down considerably. Blocking was not up to par, and this phase of the work will be stressed during the coming drills. Most of the players have shaken the colds that were bothering them during the past week, and except for Ray Knowalski, who is bothered by a charley-horse, the entire squad is in good physical condition.

Fighting Friars Confident of Win Tonight at N. Y.

The Providence College Fighting Friars are camped today in New York City anxiously awaiting tonight's game with Long Island University at Ebbets Field. Coach Hugh Devore took thirty-three men along on the trip.

Plans called for a practice late yesterday afternoon in Brooklyn, and a day of rest broken only by a signal drill today. The team will return to Providence on Saturday.

After losing to St. Bonaventure last Friday night, the Friars will enter the L. I. U. game as the underdogs. The Blackbirds have two wins to their credit, having defeated both Brooklyn and C. C. N. Y.

Practice sessions during the week have been hampered by rain and Devore has not been able to give the attention to his linemen that he would like. The work of his tackles and guards did not come up to expectations, although he expressed satisfaction with the work of ends Joe Sullivan, John Stonkus, Jimmie Leo, and Cas Potera.

FIGHTING FRIARS MEET NIAGARA HERE ON SUNDAY

The touchdown hungry Fighting Friars of Providence College were promised a holiday full of football practice tomorrow as Coach Hugh Devore made ready for the invasion of the Purple Eagles of Niagara here on Sunday. Having scored only once in three contests, Providence gridsters will be drilled in climax in anticipation of one of their objective games.

Word brought from Niagara by Assistant Coach Joe Dulkie who scouted the Eagles in their Canisie game last Sunday is that the Friars will have to be prepared for a diversified attack. Danny DeSantis, the Niagara halfback who showed Providence a thing or two at the College-by-the-Falls last year, is back and will bear a lot of watching.

Both Providence and Niagara appear to have reached psychological stalemates. On paper, the Eagles have one of the best teams in history, with many seasoned veterans, yet their record shows them winning but one and losing two thus far. Providence, with exactly the same record, is still a potentially great small college eleven, but so far has failed to have the amounts of running, passing, and kicking in exactly the right proportions. Sunday's game will likely be the turning point in the season for both teams.

During the early part of the week the Friars were practicing without the services of five stellar men. Ray Kowalski was recuperating from the grippe; Sam Iorio, sophomore back, had an infected foot; John Yockers, who performed so capably in the Long Island game at the half-back spot, nursed an infected arm; and quarterback Frank Franco and guard Teddie Alexakes were given extra days of rest to recuperate from the hard playing in last week's game.

Niagara, which defeated Providence last season 20-7, is anxious to duplicate the win again this year. The seven-year series of the two teams shows the Eagles have won four, with Providence taking three. Only 10 points separates the scores of the two teams over this period.

The game will be played at Hendricken Field on Sunday afternoon, the only game to be played on the field near the campus this season.

Friars - Rams Game at Cranston

Stadium Opens Football Season

The football season in New England will open tomorrow night when the Providence College Friars meet the R. I. State College Rams in a floodlight game at the Cranston Stadium. By reason of their 19-7 victory over State last year the Providence gridsters are favorites to take their rivals into camp.

Coach Hugh Devore of Providence will field a squad of almost 40 men. On the sidelines, because of injuries, will be senior Joe Byron, flashy halfback, who is nursing a bruised knee, sophomore Bill Reilly, burly tackle, who is hoping an eye infection will clear up pearly so he may participate in the second game, and sophomore Ed Bradley, a very promising back who has been lost for the remainder of the season because of a broken leg.

Devore will field a veteran eleven for the start of the game, but he has capable replacements in all positions except the tackle post where he has spent some time trying to develop some good second stringers. Jimmie Leo, senior from Fitchburg, will begin the game at right end, and will be flanked by tackle Charlie Avedisian, Pawtucket junior. Captain Stanley Esielonis will be in the right guard position.

Slip Barnini, sparkling center from Pittsfield, will hold down the pivot post, and Ted Alexakos from Dracut will be at left guard. Handsome Paul Sweeney, Pittsfield senior, will be the left tackle and Joe Sullivan, although only a sophomore, has rated the nod to start at left end. The quarterbacks will be led by quarterback Jim Pettine, and Bill Carter and Vin Nugent will start as halfbacks. Dan McKinnon of Pawtucket, will be the starting fullback.

In their sixth game of the season, the Providence College Fighting Friars will tangle with the Indians of Springfield College tomorrow afternoon at Hendricken field. Originally scheduled for tonight, the date of the game was changed to Saturday afternoon because of the better playing conditions available on the home gridiron.

Providence will go into the game with almost the entire squad at full strength. John Yockers, who has had an infected arm, has entirely recuperated, and head coach Hugh Devore indicated that he would start him at the halfback post. The classy Dan McKinnon, who began the season as a fullback, and subsequently acquitted himself well at right halfback, has been given a new assignment at left half.

Springfield, handicapped by injuries in its previous contests, has rounded into shape during the week, and Saturday's encounter will probably see Ben Hargraves, shifty negro quarterback, Cracker Chase, stalwart guard, and Dave Grinnell, hard hitting fullback, break into the lineup. These three have been watching the past two contests from the sidelines because of injuries.

Season's records for the two teams show the Friars winning three and losing two, while the Indians have won one, tied one, and lost two. A new found Providence offensive will be out to a genuine test by the defensively strong Springfield eleven. Only one touchdown has been scored against the Indians this year. In last year's contest, a close game played at Springfield, the Friars emerged victorious, 7-3.

elevens in the Philadelphia district.

La Salle has progressed steadily in football the past few years under the tutelage of that former Notre Dam ace, Marty Brill, one of the most brilliant blocking backs developed by Knute Rockne. La Salle and Providence have met in sports only once, having played basketball two years ago at Philadelphia.

Marty Brill's Team Makes
First Appearance Here;

Canisius and the Friars have met three times on the gridiron, in 1922, 1929 and 1930. Canisius won the first game, 15 to 6, at Buffalo, while the next two ended in scoreless ties.

The Rhode Island-Providence College date is not definitely set, plans calling for a Wednesday or Friday night meeting. A conflict with a schoolboy game is the cause of the uncertainty.

The program calls for four games away from Providence, three at home and the eighth, with the Rams, is set for Cranston Stadium and will be State's home game.

Ends Highly Satisfactory, Tackles Big, Fast at P. C.

Coach Devore Has 35 Men Out
Daily for Spring Grid

With 35 men working out daily, and about 10 more expected to swell the squad in the fall, the Providence College football outlook for next season, based on what is happening in spring drills, isn't exactly dismal.

"Several of the boys are showing improvement," Coach Hugh Devore said, yesterday, "and we may click pretty well. We have made several changes in positions, the freshmen should help considerably and if the backfield brightens up a bit we might have a lot of fun, come September."

A discussion of the squad with Devore brings to light that the end squad, at least, is highly satisfactory. At the moment seven big and able-bodied young men are contesting for starting berths and an eighth, Johnny Werbicki, will be among those present in the fall. At the moment Werbicki is a catcher on the ball team.

The tackles are sizeable and fast, but inexperienced. As a matter of fact, only two of the squad of nine are juniors, the others being sophomores. The juniors, Horace Marone and Walter Scanlon, however, saw plenty of service last season and will give the other candidates something to shoot at. Marone came along very fast a year ago and is improving in spring work so that he is a standout right now while Scanlon, shifted from guard, is catching on to his new duties fast and should prove an able running mate for Marone.

Another line shift has moved the versatile Co-captain Charley Avedisian from tackle, where he was a regular last year, to running guard—where he is very apt to be a regular next year. Charley has played quarterback, halfback, fullback, tackle and centre at Providence and now returns to his first love, guard, at which position he gained his high school reputation. In his spare time Charley does crayon sketches and plays the piano.

Nick Carcieri, a junior, who played most of every game last fall, is back at the old stand with plenty of speed and a penchant for blocking that makes him very valuable. Tony Ditri, Pete Mogayzel, Leo Murphy, Joe Pariseau and Ed Roth are other guards with fine possibilities. The veteran Ted Alexakos, stricken ill last fall, isn't working with the team as a player, but is keeping his hand in by helping with the coaching. He is likely to be in the bloom of health again next fall.

Offering stern opposition to Marone and Scanlon at the tackles are Louie Cimini and Joe Pliska, a converted end who starred for the freshmen. The ends have their hands full all around, for in addition to Jim Sullivan, sophomore star of last fall, and Werbicki, there are such notables as Nick Budnowski, Tom Burpee, Jim Larkin, Co-Capt. Cas Potera, James (Red) Rafferty and Joe Vaghi. They run to size and speed and most of them are clever pass receivers.

Bob Karshner and Dom DiLuglio have impressed with their blocking as the centres vie for the job vacated by Slip Barnini. George Sarris, an experienced centre, needs only to improve his blocking to be right up there.

Jimmy Coyle and Jim Pettine are the experienced quarterbacks, but Coyle currently is playing baseball. Frank Franco, a good blocker, needs a little more speed and Tom Moore, a fleet performer, is catching the public fancy around Hendricken Field.

Bill Jugés, brother of Joe, looks good as a fullback. He is heavy and fast, while Ed Haponik, hurt last season, is showing to advantage. He cuts especially well. John Stonkus, a lineman a year back, is now with the fullbacks and catching on. Joe Buzidragis and John Edack, the other fullback aspirants, have speed and power.

Ed Bradley, Joe Jugés, Ray Kowalski No. 1, Ray Kowalski No. 2, John Yockers and Ray Roy are halfback candidates who are out for one reason or another. Bradley and Jugés are nursing leg injuries, Kowalski No. 2 is nursing a sore elbow and Kowalski No. 1, Yockers and Roy are with the ball team. The Kowalskis are not related, despite the names. One Ray is a junior, the other Ray a sophomore.

Sam Iorio, who began to click in the closing games last fall, is running and passing better this spring and Ed Queegan, a converted quarterback, seems right at home in the halfback slot.

CROSS-FRIAR NOVEMBER DATE A BREAK FOR DEVORE'S BOYS

Notre Dame B Team One of Three New P. C. Football Foes

RIP 11-25-39

The Fighting Friars of Providence College, now scrimmaging on the practice field, will play an eight-game schedule next fall, according to the slate announced today by Rev. Robert G. Quinn, O. P., athletic director.

Three new opponents are listed, and will match wits with the Friar gridiron stalwarts for the first time. They are the Notre Dame "B" team, Long Island University, better known for its nationally recognized basketball teams, and American International College.

Old standbys that will oppose the Friars are Rhode Island State, Holy Cross, Niagara, Springfield and St. Anselm.

The schedule is quite an innovation from the type that the Providence elevens have been playing of recent years. One thing that immediately strikes you is that the game with Holy Cross is listed for the first week of November, rather than the last part of September, when the proteges of Hugh Devore will be better able to handle the steam roller from Mount St. James, with fair chance of victory.

For the past few seasons, the Friars have been knocked back on their heels by the Cross, despite the low scores for the most part, and they've been a long time recovering. Providence has always primed a strong defence for the Crusaders, but offensively have had little opportunity.

For one of the few times in the long history of intercollegiate football, a climax game of one season becomes the opener of another. Providence and State played to a near capacity crowd last November out at Cranston Stadium, but they're down for a meeting on Sept. 22. It's a night game, and it will be a dog fight, whether played in January or June. It's the one ball game that the Friars really want, and early or late it is a welcome dish for the Rhode Island fan.

Of the newcomers, two are bound to be tough. The Notre Dame "B" team, while B in name, plays a rugged brand of high class football and so too may Long Island. At Notre Dame, everybody that can walk, aspires to play football, and many of the best freshman players spend their sophomore year with the "B" team to gain additional experience before moving up to the varsity.

The Notre Dame Varsity was composed mainly of seniors last fall, but of the next four teams, most of the players are returning next season. Playing schools like Niagara, the "B" team has compiled a good record down through the years. This will mark the farthest point East the Fighting Irish "B" squad has ever come, and the scheduling of the Friars is a tribute to the high regard the N. D. authorities have for Coach Devore, and his first assistant, Ed Crotty, both graduates.

Long Island U. is starting out next fall, but Clair Bee, the genius behind the school's strong baseball and basketball teams, isn't one to go half way. He goes the route, and has never yet had a real poor club in any sport. With Ken Strong to help, the Long Islanders will be a match for any of the strong smaller schools, for they'll have manpower and plenty of it.

Niagara, coached by Notre Damer Joe Bach, comes to Providence this season, as does Springfield, where Paul Stagg, a disciple of another famous gridiron school, that of Amos Alonzo Stagg, of Chicago U. fame, holds forth. Tough St. Anselm, one of the country's best, in its class, closes out the campaign on Nov. 18, while American International will meet up with the Smith Hillers for the first time in any sport on Saturday, Oct. 21, at Hendricken Field.

You can get a good line on the prospects for the campaign, which are good, tomorrow afternoon, on the Dominican campus, when Hugh Devore, Ed Crotty, Joe Dulkie and Gig Pariseau wind up the spring season with a game scrimmage between the up and coming sophomores of next fall and the holdovers from '38.

Friars Add Catholic U. To Football Schedule

Game Will Be Played in Washington, Nov. 23; Nine Tilts on P. C. Card.

5/16/40
Catholic University of Washington, a team that has been clicking nicely in the past few years, has been added to the Providence College football schedule for next fall, it was announced last night by Rev. Vincent C. Dore, O. P., Friar athletic director.

The game with the Cardinals extends the Providence College season until Nov. 23, brings the total of games listed to nine and rounds out a rigorous program.

The game with Catholic University, to be played at Washington, gives the Friars six games away from Hendricken Field and four at home.

The Friars and Cardinals have played three times, Providence winning 7 to 0 in the opener in 1923 and dropping 13 to 7 and 6 to 0 verdicts to Catholic U., in 1931 and 1932. The game will be a battle of "Notre Dame" teams, Dutch Bergman, the C. U. coach, being, like Hugh Devore of the Friars, a graduate of the South Bend institution.

In addition to announcing the Catholic U. skirmish, Fr. Dore disclosed that the date for the Long Island-P. C. game at Brooklyn had been shifted from Friday, Oct. 4, to Sunday, Oct. 6.

Providence will play five Sunday games and one Wednesday game, the Wednesday date being with Rhode Island State, Oct. 23. It will be staged at Cranston Stadium and will be State's home game.

The completed schedule:

- Sept. 28—Holy Cross at Worcester.
- *Oct. 6—Long Island at Brooklyn.
- *Oct. 13—Niagara at Niagara.
- *Oct. 20—Canisius at Hendricken Field.

Wanted at P. C.—New Cheers in the Rah!

Wanted—A College Cheer for Friars' Grid Season

And a Season Ticket Awaits Winner of Contest.—Students Tired of Shopworn and Borrowed Yells

If you have any rah-rah's in your system, give them a fresh twist, plenty of oomph and swing them right up to Providence College, which needs them for the oncoming football season.

Last week the Friars' Club announced a contest for the round-up of an original cheer to carry the team to victory next year. The college isn't worried about the players; it's the past brand of cheer—an unoriginal combination of skyrocketers, whistles and rah-rah's—that's gone sour with the students.

According to Cheerleader Edward Dupras, Providence College cheers up to now have been largely a matter of borrowing, or "stealing," to use the songwriter's terminology. All of them worked successfully at other colleges, where they were practically hoary with age and tradition.

Students Complain

Most of these borrowed cheers have been in use since the college began to play football, around 1922.

But the Providence College students recently began to complain. In a poll conducted by the Cowl, undergraduate weekly, they threw such adjectives as "impossible" and "spiritless" at the present batch of cheers. One Friar student went so far as to declare P. C. didn't have a real cheer in stock.

While the cheer leaders defended their rah-rah's—saying the cheers sounded spiritless simply because there wasn't any spirit to the shouting—the Friars' Club finally got down to business with this contest.

Prize is Season Ticket

The prize will be a season ticket to all Providence College home games next year. But no one has sent in a cheer yet, and the contest is due to close May 5.

A canvass of a few prospective writers revealed that nobody knows just where to begin in composing a good college cheer.

The president of the club is Edward J. Burke, '39, from Jersey City. The cheerleaders are doubling as judges of the contest: Edward Dupras, '40, of Providence; T. Milton Farley, '39, Pawtucket, and Douglas Ferraro, '39, Pittsfield.

They'll be very glad to hear from you.

15-10-4-6-39
Despite all that acrobatic enthusiasm shown above by Edward Dupras and Douglas Ferraro, cheerleaders at Providence College, the Friars are dissatisfied. A college poll showed that the students didn't think the yells were up to snuff. And now the Friars' Club has announced a contest to find new cheers. Below some of the young men get together for a little conference to see if they can discover any new cheers in the rah. Left to right: Charles McConnell, Bert Marr, Ray Nixon, Joseph Lennon.

OFFICIALS ASSERT TYPHOID STOPPED

Dr. Smith and Father Dillon Say Danger of Further Infection Is Past.

GAME WILL BE PLAYED

9 10 19 39
American International College to Send Football Team Tomorrow;
Father Quinn Has Fever

Definite assurances that the typhoid situation at Providence College is under control and that there is no danger of further infection were given yesterday by Dr. Joseph Smith, deputy superintendent of health, and by Very Rev. John J. Dillon, O. P., president of the college.

Russell H. Peterson, athletic director of American International College of Springfield, said last night his team would play the scheduled football game with Providence College at Cranston Stadium tomorrow night, upon receipt of written assurance that his athletes were in no danger.

Sends Letter

This assurance was given in a letter sent to him yesterday by Dr. Smith, as follows:

"This is to inform you that there is no danger that any members of your football squad will be infected with typhoid fever or subject to quarantine during your stay in Providence. For your information, the situation is entirely under control and all cases, carriers and suspects, have been isolated and will not be in contact with any member of your squad."

Father Dillon announced yesterday that Rev. Robert G. Quinn, O. P., athletic director at the college, has been pronounced a typhoid patient. Father Quinn, son of Bob Quinn, president of the Boston Bees, will remain at St. Joseph's Hospital. His condition was said last night to be "good."

Brown Seriously Ill

Laboratory tests at Charles V. Chapin Hospital disclosed yesterday that a kitchen employe, suspected of being the carrier of the typhoid germ, is infected and may have had the disease for some time. He is ill at the hospital.

Malcolm Brown, who has been trainer of all teams at the college since his graduation in 1933, remained the most seriously ill of the six cases reported. At Chapin Hospital last night doctors said "he is very sick, but he is holding his own."

In addition to typhoid, Brown is afflicted with lumbar pneumonia, and has been given four blood transfusions.

Also at Chapin Hospital are Raymond Kowalski, sophomore halfback, and Theodore Alexakos, junior guard, but they are not critically ill. In Fall River, Paul Dunne of 93 Stafford road, that city, an aide to Father Quinn and a senior at the college, is ill with typhoid, but not in critical condition.

Official Statement

Father Dillon's official statement on the situation is as follows:

"I have been advised this morning by the college physicians, Drs. Burns and O'Reilly, that Fr. Quinn's case has been diagnosed as typhoid fever. The doctors have assured me that there is no cause for alarm among the student body.

"From the time when the first case was suspected, a very complete investigation has been carried out as to the origin of the disease, and every precaution was taken to prevent a spread of the disease.

"The investigation consisted in culturing all kitchens, and other places where food might have been contaminated, the drinking fountains, milk supply, sinks and lavatories. All these investigations proved there to be no further infection present.

"All cases of the illness were among the football players and staff resident at Guzman Hall prior to the opening of College. With the opening of the fall term, the student body resided in Aquinas Hall, the new dormitory on the campus, where entirely new kitchen was installed, and a new staff employed to handle the food.

"The football players, and those closely associated with them, have had their blood examined and been inoculated at the student health service. Because of the assurance of the doctors and the laboratory findings, I feel confident that there is not only no cause for alarm, but there is absolutely no danger of the disease spreading."

Malcolm Brown, Popular Trainer At Providence College, is Dead

VICTIM OF TYPHOID FEVER AND PNEUMONIA

10/20/39
Paid Stirring Tribute By
Fr. Dillon; Funeral Planned Tomorrow

The outbreak of typhoid fever among players and others connected with the Providence College football squad yesterday claimed in death Malcolm Hollis ("Mal") Brown, class of '33, popular colored trainer of athletic teams at the college. He died yesterday at 1:15 p. m. at the Charles V. Chapin Hospital, where he was being treated with five others for the disease.

Brown's case became critical when it was complicated with pneumonia. A solemn high mass of requiem will be celebrated at St. Pius Church tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock. Burial will be in the family plot at Amherst, Mass.

Rev. Robert G. Quinn, director of athletics at Providence College, two members of the football team, a student assistant to Fr. Quinn, and a football training table kitchen employe are the other sufferers from typhoid. Laboratory tests at Chapin Hospital Wednesday supported the suspicion that the kitchen employe was the carrier.

Very Rev. John J. Dillon, O. P., president of the college, issued the following statement:

"We at Providence College are deeply grieved over Malcolm Brown's death. Providence College has lost a loyal alumnus, a devoted friend and a capable trainer. He has been at Providence College for 12 years and proved himself of exemplary moral character, a solidly pious Christian gentleman, possessing the virtues of the highest type of manhood. Without question he was the most popular man on the campus.

"It is indeed unfortunate that the ravages of pneumonia complicated his illness, for as doctors have indicated to me, his chances otherwise would have been better for a successful fight.

"In the name of the administration and faculty, and in my own name, I extend sincere sympathy to his family and assure them that Malcolm was well prepared for his eternal reward, for he was daily communicant at the college chapel, and was prepared for death by Rev. F. A. Howley, O.P."

Malcolm Brown

and basketball squads, and in the off season helped keep Hendricken Field in shape. At football games "Mal" was a familiar figure, his inevitable black derby hat cocked on one side of his head, running onto the field to minister to a player. When the late Jack Flynn was coach of baseball, "Mal" was his right-hand man in more ways than one. To fool the opponents, Flynn had "Mal" give the signals from the bench, instead of himself.

Even in his undergraduate days Brown attained more than ordinary popularity at the college. No senior ever received a more rousing ovation than he did on his commencement day. While a student he became a convert to Catholicism. He was a fixture at all Providence College gatherings.

Brown was unmarried. He roomed at 17 Eaton street, near the college, but took his meals at the college.

In addition to typhoid fever, Brown was afflicted with lumbar pneumonia and had received four blood transfusions.

"Mal" Brown entered Providence College in 1927.

Played Football

"Mal," also known as "M. Hollis," depending on the amount of dignity athletes and students wished to confer on him at any particular moment, hailed from Amherst, Mass., where he was voted the greatest all-around athlete in the history of the local high school. He was born Aug. 21, 1905.

He attended Connecticut State College for a while and then transferred to Providence College. He was a member of the varsity football team under former Coach Archie Golembeski, being a dependable halfback.

"Mal" helped in the athletic department in his last year at college, and after his graduation stayed on as trainer. His disposition was sunny and fun-loving, just the cure for an athlete who came in bruised or battered from the field of play. He was a master psychologist. Many an athlete who was on the point of packing his duds and going home, for some supposed grievance, forgot his troubles after a talk with "Mal."

His death was attributed to typhoid fever complicated by pneumonia. Five others identified with athletics at the college, including Rev. Robert G. Quinn, O. P., director of athletics, are suffering from typhoid.

The church was filled with students, faculty, friends of the college and parishioners of St. Pius Church.

A procession led by alumni and students was conducted from Harkins Hall, where the body had lain in the main parlor near the rotunda since Friday noon, to the church. As the cortege approached the church, the line divided and formed a guard of honor for the hearse.

Floral tributes which had been placed near the bier in the main parlor were placed in the hearse alongside the casket. The tributes were from Rhode Island State College Athletic Association, George Tebbetts, catcher on the Detroit American League baseball team, an alumnus; John E. Farrell, former graduate manager; Dr. Daniel J. O'Neill, secretary-treasurer of the alumni association; Henry (Hank) Soar, former football luminary at the college and now of the New York Giants Professional football team; Rev. Paul J. Redmond, director of the Holy Name Journal in New York and a member of the first Friar football squad.

Tributes and spiritual bouquets were given also by members of Mal Brown's family, the faculty and students.

Rev. Leo S. Cannon, O. P., of the college faculty, played the organ and led the college choir of priests and students, in a special musical program.

Prominent Alumni Return

Prominent alumni who returned to attend the mass included United States District Attorney J. Howard McGrath, Joseph O. McGee, former head football coach; Representative Justin P. McCarthy, president; Charles Shea, vice president, and Dr. O'Neill, secretary-treasurer of the Providence College Athletic Association; Dr. Arthur L. Quirk, baseball coach; Thomas H. Bride, Jr., former assistant football coach; Joseph L. Breen, Dr. Francis Holland and John E. Farrell, former graduate manager.

Hugh Devore, head football coach; Edward Crotty, basketball coach; Albert (the General) McClellan, former basketball coach of Salem, Mass.; Jack Eagan, former baseball coach, and the following who also acted as honorary bearers:

Joseph L. McAndrew, John Keating, Charles Verde, Silvio Batastini, Robert Schiffman, Joseph Nugent, Joseph McHenry, Thomas Trainor, Edward Plunkett and William Robinson.

Others present were Jack Cronin, football coach at La Salle Academy, Barney Madden, sports writer for the Evening Bulletin, and Raymond P. McElroy, former Providence City Clerk.

Ushers were James Clifford, Charles Bree, Ambrose Reynolds,

George Terrace, Paul Oates, William Murphy and Joseph Reynolds. Bearers, all members of the varsity football team and close associates of "Mal" Brown, were John B. Barnini, James Leo, Paul D. Sweeney, William Carter, Laurence Shattuck, Capt. Stanley Esielonis, Vincent Nugent and Joseph Kwasniewski.

As the funeral left the church, the choir sang "Alma Mater," Sergt. John Lucy and Patrolman R. M. Hickey accompanied the funeral cortege to the city line on its way to Amherst, Mass., for burial in the family plot. Capt. Joseph L. Burnes of Precinct 2 directed a large group of traffic officers.

ATTACK OF RAMS

Fumbles, Penalties Hurt Providence Offence; State Completes Six of 29 Passes

By JOE NUTTER

A silver-spangled Providence College eleven opened the college football season in New England last night by defeating a scrappy, tenacious Rhode Island State College team, 6 to 0, before a crowd of 9000 persons in Cranston Stadium.

Providence marched 75 yards midway through the third period and flashed Sophomore Joe Sullivan, 185-pound Providence wing, on an end-around for a 14-yard dash to a touchdown. Paul Sweeney's attempt of the conversion by a placement was low and into the dirt, and to all intents and purposes that was the major part of the ball game.

FUMBLES, PENALTIES CLIP FRIAR ATTACK

From a Providence College viewpoint the game was marked by a series of disappointments as four fumbles on passes from centre that were hard to handle and a series of penalties cut sharply into the attack when it was beginning to grind out yardage.

The blocking was mediocre in the initial half for the Friar, but the team came back with a crisper brand of blocking in the second half, and at times, the Devore-coached team looked like the football team that it is shortly expected to be. But sizing it all up, it was a great game to win, and the size of the score should have a tempering effect on a squad that never quite caught its stride.

Rhode Island State had nothing orthodox except the kick-off formation, running almost all of its plays from a spread that necessitated a series of improvised defences. The capitulation shows that Warner Keaney, the 260-pound son of the Ram head coach, alone threw 18 passes and kicked the ball 10 times.

In all, Rhode Island made 29 passes of which six were completed for 75 yards and three were intercepted. State gained 75 yards on the ground from 16 running plays. Keaney's kicking average from the line of scrimmage was 39 yards, exceptionally good.

FRIARS GAINED 258 YARDS ALTOGETHER

Providence College gained 218 yards from scrimmage on 40 running plays, and added 40 more yards on two completions of the nine aerials thrown. Providence picked up 131 yards on runbacks and State gained 48 by that route. Providence gathered nine first downs to State's six, and Providence was penalized 45 yards to State's 35. The Friar kickers booted the ball nine times for an average of 32.3.

So, noting that the ball was passed 38 times and kicked 19, you'll realize that it was in the air much of the time. The teams played with a regulation brown ball of regular day-time use, and that doubtless figured in the small number of completions and interceptions of the many aerials.

Providence flashed a big, fine-looking team that ran all of its plays from the orthodox Notre Dame formation, although Ray Kowalski, the Adams Express, picked up 10 yards and a first down in the initial period by running from the T formation before the backs had hopped into the Z. That caught State flat-footed, but was not used again.

On defence, the Friar used a four-man line, dropping the ends back to cover the flat zone on passes, and most of the game was played with a 4-4-2-1 defence. State used a seven man line.

ABBRUZZI STATE'S LEADING GAINER

State's spread covered less territory than the usual Ram spread. Most of the time it had Keaney back in deep kicking formation and he passed and kicked with little or no protection. Keaney's passes were alternated with side flips of the ball from centre to Duke Abbruzzi, and the Duke did a great amount of lateral running to account for the 52 yards that he picked up in the direction of the Friar goal.

In many respects it was a typical first game. The crowd was tense under the heat of the rivalry and State drew down one costly penalty for a mild melee as a play was run into the State bench, which was heavily loaded with men not in players' uniforms. State had only 20 men in uniform on the field and most of the regulars played all or virtually full time.

A high point of the game was the courage and tenacity of that crowd of Ram regulars who took the brunt of the Providence College power and still managed to keep on going. The game was hard-fought all the way and there was no quarter asked given at any stage of the game.

BY TOM DOHERTY

Coming to life after being on the short end of a 7-6 count at the end of the first half, the Providence College freshman football team roared through the third and fourth quarters to chalk up a 24-7 victory over the Rhode Island State College freshmen at Kingston yesterday afternoon.

In handing the Ramlets their first setback, the visitors presented a hard charging unit that improved tremendously as the game went on. Eager but crude at the start, the young Friars, making their first game appearance, settled down in the second half and with big Frank Turbert setting the pace, pounded out the victory.

Turbert accounted for two of the Providence scores with runs of 14 and 40 yards respectively while the others were made by Dick Vitale and Frank Reale. Vitale outdistanced State's secondary after scooping up a blocked punt on the Rhode Island 37 for a third period touchdown while Reale made the visitors final tally on a 34-yard end run in the fourth quarter.

The Ramlets' lone touchdown came in the second period after a Providence punt from the end zone went only to the 10-yard line before it was blown out of bounds. Ralph Narducci, former Classical high star turned the trick two plays later when he slid off tackle on a reverse to score standing up. How French's placement kick gave Ramlets a lead they were unable to hold.

With the wind at their backs, the visitors forced the Ramlets toward their goal-line in the opening minutes of play and took possession of the ball on the Rhode Island 21-yard line when Rudnowski broke through to block Bob Coates' punt with Roth recovering. Bill Juges, former Worcester Commerce standout, picked up seven yards in two plunges through centre before Turbert, on his first try at ball carrying, reversed around his own right end to score. Bobby Fox, the Ramlets centre, smothered Turbert's attempted placement for the extra point.

With the teams changing positions at the period, it was the Ramlets who took advantage of the wind to set up their score. Coates drove the visitors back with a 50-yard punt to the Providence 12 and when Turbert was nailed for a 10-yard loss by Bob Engle, the Friars were forced to kick. The attempt carried only to the 22-yard line but as a State lineman ran into the kicker, the ball was brought back for a penalty. The second try was weaker than the first with the ball barely going beyond the line of scrimmage.

Engle, who played a great game both as a defensive end and an offensive fullback, plowed through the Providence defence to the six and Narducci completed the distance on the reverse through tackle to tie the score. French then added the point to put the Ramlets in front.

With the start of the third period, the Providence frosh lost no time in recapturing the lead. A Reale-to-Turbert lateral caught the Rams flat-footed and the latter encountered no opposition in his dash to the goal. In attempting to rush the point, Turbert was stopped behind the line.

The Friars picked up their third touchdown when Rafferty blocked Dave Thissen's punt and Vitale scooped up the ball and ran 37 yards for the score. Edack's drop kick was wide of its mark.

Reale eliminated all doubts as to the outcome when he circled wide around State's right end for 34 yards and the final score. Edack's drop kick again failed.

Headed For Friar Frosh's Fourth Touchdown

Here's Franny Reale of the Providence College Frosh starting out on a 34 yard run yesterday at Kingston against the Rhode Island State first year team. Reale didn't stop until he was over the goal line for his team's fourth touchdown. The action took place in the final period, with Friars a 24 to 7 victor over the Ramlets' in their first start of the season.

Charley Avedisian, the busy tackle who blocked a kick and ran for a touchdown with the retrieved ball last Sunday, is a bit on the ailing side, with a bone cracked in his finger. Charley is ready to play, however, and a cast will adorn the injured member.

Sam Iorio is likely to be among those present tonight, having fully recovered from the ankle injury he received early in the season.

American International Rates
as Dangerous Team Since
Upsetting St. Anselm

By BARNEY MADDEN

American International, the team that turned an error of its own making into the New England season's choicest upset thus far, opposes Providence College tonight at Cranston Stadium—and the Friars expect almost anything to happen. Things start happening at 8:15 o'clock.

Ordinarily the Friars might look upon this outing with the Aces as a soft touch, but apparently St. Anselm, unbeaten since 1937, figured the same way a week ago—and wound up defeated. Moreover, the young man who engineered that upset, Joe O'Grady, is ready to go against the Friars, encouraged no little by his recent success.

O'Grady planned to punt in the dying minutes of the game with St. Anselm but the pass from centre was low and he dropped it, so, instead of kicking, he darted between the onrushing Hawks and threaded his way 67 yards for a touchdown, which tied the score. The extra point was then added and the Hawks were shoved off the seat of the undefeated.

team, was invited to go home during pre-season practice because he looked like anything but a football player, although his prep school record was of sufficient lustre. He is one of those boys whose uniforms always seem to be falling off, or as if the regimentals belonged to a big brother who bequeathed them to Joe.

Although light, O'Grady is very fast and is a distance kicker in the bargain. His boots average around 50 yards and he is regarded as one of the fastest in New England in getting the ball away.

O'Grady and Al Chappius bear the brunt of the backfield work while Henry Butova, Ed Kuczynski and Novak are able running mates. Rip Ropulewis is heralded as a distinct threat because of his speed in executing reverses and his ability to catch forward passes, a phase of the game that the Aces feature.

They have a good line, headed by Capt. Frank Hurley at tackle and Ray Hart, end and tackle.

Coach Hugh Devore has shaken up his starting eleven for tonight's engagement, the principal alteration being the debut of Dom DiLuglio as centre, replacing the brilliant Slip Barnini. DiLuglio has been going especially well in practice and Devore wants to give him the benefit of starting experience and plans to leave him in action for a good part of the fray.

With DiLuglio starting, the Friars' opening eleven will include six sophomores, four in the line and two in the backfield. Joe Sullivan, Horse Marone and Nick Carcieri will be on DiLuglio's left in the line—and have a little contest scheduled with the seniors on the other side—Capt. Stan Esielonis, Paul Sweeney and Jimmy Leo—to see which side will make the most tackles.

P. C. TEAM CLICKS IN FINAL PERIOD FOR 27-0 VICTORY

Coyle Sparks Reserves in
50-Yard March to Last Touchdown.

Nov. Bull. Oct. 21, '39

BY MICHAEL J. THOMAS

Providence College's football forces crowded all of their scoring in the second half as they defeated American International College of Springfield, 27 to 0, before a slim crowd of 2000 at Cranston Stadium last night.

Buoyed and encouraged by their success against St. Anselm in their last start, the Aces matched all Providence had to offer in the first half, but their defence sagged as the battle progressed and at the end they were a badly beaten team.

TAKE ADVANTAGE OF A. I. MISTAKES

Capitalizing enemy mistakes, the Friars reached their offensive peak in the final period when they pushed over three of their four touchdowns, the last being the result of a spectacular 50-yard march by reserves, who were directed in great style by Jim Coyle, former St. Raphael Academy liminary.

Coyle's generalship during this scoring drive was one of the bright spots. He handled the team with the poise of the veteran, hit the enemy weak spots and called the best assortment of plays flashed by the Friars in any scoring march this season.

The Aces, who had an excellent punter in Joe O'Grady and a stalwart lineman in Capt. Frank Hurley, opened with a spectacular aerial attack in the early minutes and for awhile it appeared they would sweep their way to a touchdown. After Ed Kuczynski had danced the opening kick-off back 23 yards to his 42, the Aces staged a 45-yard drive that carried to the Providence 12.

Here their aerials suddenly misfired and they finally attempted a field goal from the 17-yard line, which Henry Butova, rushed into the game for this task, missed.

O'GRADY KICKS

80-YARD PUNT

The remainder of the first period was marked by a punting duel between Joe Juges of the Friars and O'Grady and all of their kicks, one by O'Grady travelling 80 yards, were booted to order.

Providence began to show more of a drive in the second period, and twice reached scoring position, but it lacked a final punch. Shortly before half-time, Butova intercepted a Vin Nugent pass and ran to his 40. The Aces were marching toward the enemy goal when time ran out.

O'Grady's excellent punting kept the Aces out of serious trouble through most of the third period, but near the end, the Friars finally crashed through for a touchdown. Nugent paved the way for this score with a coffin-corner punt to the enemy seven. O'Grady made a fine kick back to the 43, but this time the Friars started to go places.

A Bill Carter to Joe Sullivan pass netted 15 yards and then Nugent and Juges, two of the game's outstanding ball carriers, began to hit the enemy tackles for consistent gains and the drive ended with Juges scoring from the two-yard line.

Soon after the final period opened, Cas Potera recovered a loose ball on the Aces' one-yard line and Dan McKinnon rushed the ball over in one play. A bad pass from centre was responsible for this break against the Aces.

Soon afterwards the Friars capitalized another break for a third touchdown. Capt. Stan Esielones recovered a fumble by Kuczynski on the enemy 12, and in two plays, Juges was over the goal line.

Friars rushed reserves into the battle at this point, and soon the subs were on their way to a fourth touchdown. A pass that Coyle intercepted on his 42 and ran back to mid-field started the reserves on the best march of the game. Joe Byron, Larry Shattuck and Sam Irio did the heavy carrying on this drive, which was featured by a brilliant deep reverse play on which Byron made 10 yards and set up Shattuck's scoring run.

Providence second reserves now entered the battle, and for the first time since the early stages, the Aces began to make headway. Time ran out on them again, however, as they appeared touchdown-bound.

Between the halves the crowd paid tribute to the memory of Mal Brown, Providence College trainer, who died Thursday. The crowd stood in silence for a minute as the band played "Taps."

The victory was the third in five starts for the Friars, who next meet Springfield College at Hendricken Field a week from today. Springfield conquered New Hampshire, 3 to 2, last night and will come here with a record of two victories, one tie and one defeat. A usual feature of the Maroons' record is that all of their games have been decided by field goals.

Third and Fourth Periods Find P. C. Completely in Com- mand at Cranston

By BARNEY MADDEN

Suddenly coming to life midway through the third quarter, Providence College drove 42 yards to a touchdown and then leaped avidly at fourth period opportunities, cracked over three more touchdowns and wound up victorious over scrappy American International, 27 to 0, at Cranston Stadium last night.

Mechanically precise but lacking their characteristic fire in the first half, the Friars could make little headway but they uncovered irresistible offensives in the last half and were so completely in command that every man on the squad saw service.

Joe Juges and Vinny Nugent tried valiantly to spark the Friars in the opening periods, turning in sparkling individual performances, but it wasn't until after the intermission, during which the Friars and the crowd of 2000 stood in silent tribute to the memory of Mal Brown, P. C. trainer who died Thursday, that the Friars really went to town.

Nugent launched the first touchdown drive, wheeling back 14 yards to the Aces' 42 with one of Joe O'Grady's grand punts, but Bill Carter was spilled for a small loss. Carter, however, passed to Joe Sullivan on the next play for a 14-yard gain, then added four on a plunge. Nugent was stopped.

Then he spun for six yards but an offside set the Friars back to the 22. Zanchi spilled Nugent for a three-yard loss but that only served to put more fire into Vinny's running. He cut back off his own left tackle and sped 12 yards, then Juges and McKinnon added six and with Nugent as the decoy on a spin, Juges sliced over for the first touchdown. Alex Wasilewski rushed in and converted, via placement.

After that the Aces could do nothing right and the Friars nothing wrong. The fourth period had hardly started when the parade was on. Nugent punted beautifully to the nine where Charley Avedisian smeared the receiver and then the breaks started. A pass from center floated between Hanna and Butova and like a flash Cas Potera was in the air, recovering on the one-yard pass.

Dan McKinnon, used principally as a blocker last night, slashed across on the first play but Nugent's attempted conversion missed fire when Pettine dropped a low pass. Nugent tried to run it, but was snowed under.

Sweeney kicked off and the Aces came back only two yards, despite a lateral, Butova to Hanna, and on the first play the Aces fumbled again, Capt. Stan Esielonis recovering on the 12. Juges, on a spinner, raced to the one and on the next play drove across behind admirable blocking. Nugent converted. Once again the Friars kicked off, Riley spilling the receiver pronto on the A. I. C. 39. Hanna's long pass missed and his next was intercepted by little Jimmy Coyle, quarterback of this, the third final team Coach Hugh Devore employed. Coyle darted back to the Aces' 48 from his own 42 and then marshalled a swift, deadly march that wound up in touchdown number four.

Sophomores were the principal performers now and they went all-out in an effort to prove their worth. At the start a five-yard penalty for offside obliterated a good gain by Larry Shattuck, but the boys were undaunted. Sam Iorio carried five times and Joe Byron once, and they were up to the 22, whence Byron sped to the 14 on a reverse.

Then Shattuck, who had been blocking well for this group, smashed over the middle, shook off several tacklers and roared to a touchdown. Joe Pariseau, sophomore brother of last year's captain, Gig Pariseau, booted the extra point, via placement.

More reserves were rushed in then and in the dying moments Hanna to Jenkins passes, aided by a Jenkins to Almquist lateral, brought the Aces to the Friar 23, where the game ended.

Paul Sweeney and Charley Avedisian did the best work in the Friar line, the former's raging play putting an end to the Aces' only touchdown bid, when they marched 46 yards after getting the opening kickoff. Leo again played a fine game at end, but Coach Devore used so many players that only the backs had opportunity for sustained stardom.

For the Aces O'Grady's superb punting stood out, one of his boots carrying 83 yards. Chappius and Jenkins proved fine pass receivers and Voranka, Zanchi and Capt. Hurley featured their line play and Jenkins sparkled on defence.
