Eagles Hold 30-26 Margin After Half of Rough Contest

52 Fouls Called as Teams

Schlimm Nets 17

By JOE McHENRY

Boston, Jan. 24.—The Boston College Eagles played one of their best games of the season, handing the Providence College Friars their fourth straight defeat, 67 to 50, tonight at the B. C. gym on the Newton campus.

Capt. Tom O'Brien, All-New England last season, paced the Eagles with some fine pass work and setting-up. The B. C. team contributed a well-knit team game, with Tom Deegan's shooting sparking their attack.

The Friars played well in spots but were inconsistent at times when they might have closed the scoring gap.

Play Gets Rough

It was a rough game with 52 fouls, and the play got somewhat out of hand with loose officiating. Both the Eagles and the Friars played a crowding game defensively which made for a lot of body contact.

Boston College was brilliant, pulling ahead from five points to 15 at 53-38 in the second half.

It was a happy victory for Al "General" McLellan, who coached some of the Friars greatest teams, but the lax officiating took some edge off a fine performance.

Jim Schlimm, scoring 17 points, was the top Friar. Ray Korbusiski, Jerry Lembo and Sam Nissel at times fired up the Friars.

Tom O'Toole and Tim O'Connell stymied the Friars' work around the backboards with good rebounding.

First Half Close

Providence more or less matched Boston College in the first half, which was about as good a half of smart basketball as you'd want to see.

Deegan led the Eagles' early drive, B. C. leading, 14-13, at the 10-minute mark. Art Weinstock, a Newton boy playing before his home crowd, did a fine job for the Friars. B. C. went nine points ahead, 24-15, but the Friars tied it up with nine straight points.

Foul shots by O'Brien and O'Connell and a basket by Mort Stagoff made it 28-24 with two minutes left in the half. Jerry Lembo sank a long shot for the Friars but Fran Dugan's basket with eight seconds left made it 30-26.

The Eagles started fast in the second half, leading 37-30, but the Friars cut it down to 37-33 and again to 39-34. After that the closest the Friars came was 43-37 after about seven minutes of the second half. Deegan and Jim Gaffney paced a rally which shot the Eagles into a 15-point advantage, 53-38, about 10 minutes along in the half.

Shortly thereafter the Friars counter-railed but the closest they came was 10 points.

The Boston College Freshmen, after leading 32-16 at the half, defeated the P.C. Freshmen, 58-46. Tom Mullen scored 18 points.

BOSTON COLLEGE DEALS P. C. 4TH

James 'Vin' Cuddy, College Basketball Coach At 28

One of the great athletes to come out of Naugatuck, a man who now is making his mark as one of the youngest college coaches in the country James "Vin" Cuddy is a man whom you should know.

"Vin" first won recognition as a member of Naugatuck's "Iron Man" basketball team which was runner-up to Manchester's state champions and a semi-finalist in the New England Tournament in 1938. He continued to gain fame while a student at the University of Connecticut and later as a member of the 82nd Airborne Division during World War II.

Now head coach of the Providence College basketball team at the age of 28, Vin is still blazing his name in the annals of the sporting world. In his freshman year as mentor of the Friars, he has taken a team which last year won seven and lost 19 games—and has already compiled five victories without a loss.

Vin won his spurs, and the whole-hearted support of all Providence students and Alumni last week, when his Friars upset a favored Rhode Island State Quintet, 59-57. The win over State was

"VIN" CUDDY

J. Cuddy. He was brought up in the Cuddy homestead, 130 Cherry street, where his father was born and where his mother still resides.

He received his elementary education in the St. Francis' parochial and Naugatuck High school. At St. Francis' he played first base on the baseball team and as a guard with the basketball team for two years, graduating in 1935.

At Naugy high, Vin took part in the three major sports. He played basketball and baseball for three years and football one year, his senior, as an end. That year the local gridders were conceded to be the State Class B champions, winning six, losing but one and tying Ansonia.

He was a member of the 1938 State Championship baseball team, which was sparked by Frank "Spec" Shea, now of the New York Yankees. The locals defeated Manchester in the finals of the state tournament at New Haven.

Victory for the locals in the baseball tournament was sweet, for they had lost to Manchester in the finals of the state basketball tourney a few short months before. Naugatuck had whipped Stamford and Bristol to gain the finals, only to bow to Manchester, 32-25.

Iron Men

The team was dubbed the "Iron Men" quintet because the starting five saw almost full-time service during all the games. Members of the team were Vin, Gene Czaplicki, Bill Cross, John "Lefty" Farrar and Bob Mariano. They ran out of steam against the Manchester aggregation, which was then using a "two platoon" system, alternating two teams, after giving them a battle all the way. The same fate befell them in the semi-finals of the New England tourney when they again bowed to Manchester.

Vin took part in few other school activities, filling in his off-hours by working part time at Donnelly's Store.

After graduating from High school in 1939, Vin enrolled in the University of Connecticut, receiving his diploma and Bachelor of Science degree in physical education in 1943. He played football, baseball and basketball all four years at the university and became one of two men ever to win nine letters in the three major sports. The other is Walt Dropo, now a Boston Red Sox farm hand and candidate for the Sox's first base post.

Team Captain

He captained the basketball team during 1942-43 season and was a member of the football team which won the Yankee Conference title that year. His court squad also won the conference title in the 1941-42 season. In 1943 he was voted the university's award for the most outstanding athlete and citizen. He also served as president of his class as a sophomore and was vice-president of his fraternity, Sigma Nu.

Immediately after graduating from UConn, Vin entered the Army as a Corporal. A member of the R. O. T. C., at the university, he was assigned to officer's candidate school at Fort Benning, Ga., and graduated in November of 1943 with a second lieutenant's commission.

Vin did duty in the United States until the spring of 1944 when he was shipped overseas to England, there volunteering for service with the 82nd Airborne Division. He was with the Division when it landed in Holland, helped it make history in the Battle of the Bulge and stayed with it as it swept across the Rhine into Germany and to the Elbe river. At the little chance of snapping that streak in last week's meeting. The game started off as if it would be defeat number 13 in a row for the Cuddy-coached quintet. At one time, the Friars were 18 points behind. But, displaying the spirit and stamina which was typical of their coach during his playing days, the Providence boys fought back to tie the score and then edge ahead, winning by a two point margin. If the team fails to win another game all season, they will still not consider it a bad year, for they have recorded State among their victims.

Borough Native

Vin is a Naugatuck native, born here August 23, 1921, the son and only child of Mrs. Grace E. and the late Police Lieut. James Elbe, just before the end of the war, the division made contact with the Russians. Following the war Vin did occupation duty in Berlin for five months and then returned to the states.

Capt. Cuddy

It was in January of 1946 that Vin returned home, coming back with the Division when it was returned to take part in a huge victory parade in New York. The Division was sent to Fort Bragg where Vin stayed until June, when he was discharged as a captain.

In March, 1946, while stationed at Bragg, Vin took as his bride Jane S. Washburn, of West Haven, climaxing a romance which had begun while both were students at UConn. The couple now have one child, James T., 28 months old.

Vin spent little time becoming readjusted and in September of 1946 enrolled in Columbia University to study for his Master's Degree in physical education, which he ultimately obtained in June of the following year.

Head Coach

He was immediately signed as head football, basketball and baseball coach at the Fort Trumbull branch of the University of Connecticut. It was there that he gained the recognition which resulted in his being named head basketball coach at Providence.

His teams raised hob with prep schools and college junior varsities. During his two years, the Trumbull football teams compiled records of 6-2 and 4-3. His basketball teams had records of 16-6 and 15-5, while the baseball team had an 11-4 record the first year, breaking about even the next.

During the summer of this year, Vin was signed as head coach at Providence and began his duties immediately. He had a fair nucleus of veterans with which to work, plus a crop of very promising sophomores. Outstanding among the sophomores are Ray Korbusieski, of Waterbury; Jerry Lembo, of New Haven, and Jim Schlimm, of Pennsylvania. Korbusieski and Lembo were rivals only two years ago, Ray playing for Leavenworth High's New England champions and Jerry for Hillhouse, which defeated Tech in the finals of the state tourney.

Only Two Seniors

Vin worked out with the squad all during the fall, finally cutting the candidates to the number he planned to carry through the season. The final count found him with only two seniors, his varsity guards and co-captains. The remainder of the squad is made up of juniors and sophomores.

The team opened its season early this month against Assumption last Saturday, marked the end of competition for the Cuddymen until Jan. 8.

The squad swings into what Vin feels is the toughest part of its 22-game schedule after the holidays. St. Anselm's College and American International are the first two opponents and then come the big ones. The Friars must face Springfield College twice, Holy Cross, Brooklyn College, Iona College, Boston College, Brown, Rensselaer and Rhode Island State, not to mention several others, before the season draws to a close March 11.

Vin feels that if his boys can split even for the season they will have had a good year. He realizes that in tackling teams like Holy Cross, Brooklyn College and the others, it is like a welterweight going after a heavyweight, but he is sure that his team will be in there punching all the time.

Good Prospects

Next season is looked forward to as even better than this year. Vin will lose only his two seniors and will have his veterans bolstered by several promising freshmen. One of the frosh on whom Vin is keeping an eye is Bobby Paul, of Naugatuck, center on last year's Sacred Heart High School's Class B state champions.

During the off season, Vin expects to assist with the Friars' baseball team and during the summer will do camp work. The fall will find him back at work with his cagers, prepping them for the next season.

The Friars may, as Vin predicts, only split even for the season, but none can deny that the local native has done a remarkable job in his freshman year as coach of the Rhode Island College. Vin will go on devoting his efforts toward turning out winning teams at Providence, showing the world that Naugatuck's offspring will hold their own among all men.

TO ADVISE COLLEGE SPORTS' ACTIVITIES

James F. Sullivan Is Elected Student Representative

Formation of a seven-member Advisory Athletic Council comprised of faculty, alumni and students was announced today by the Very Reverend Robert J. Slavin, O.P., S.T.Lr., Ph.D., president of Providence College.

Simultaneously with Father Slavin's announcement, Alumni President Frank J. Lowrey, '26, made known that the Alumni Board of Governors had elected William J. Iovanna, '31, of New Haven, and Charles F. Reynolds, '26, of Pawtucket, and Joseph P. McGee, '24, of this city, both former Friar athletic luminaries of a quarter of a century ago, to serve on the council.

Reynolds won fame pitching Providence College to a 1 to 0 victory over Brown University in a 20-inning baseball game in 1924, and McGee was the first football captain and a former coach of football at the Dominican College. Iovanna has long been interested in interscholastic sports and athletics.

James F. Sullivan, of Fall River, a senior, was elected to represent the student body on the panel. The Rev. Edwin H. Schmidt, O.P., adviser to the Student Congress, announced after a special meeting of the student governing group that a supplement to the by-laws will provide for the annual election of a senior by the Student Congress. Sullivan will serve the rest of the academic year.

The Rev. A. B. Begley, O.P., director of athletics, will be chairman of the new council, and the Rev. Vincent C. Dore, O.P., LL.D., dean of studies, will be faculty representative on the panel. Father Slavin will be an ex-officio member of the group and does not plan to take an active part in its proceedings, preferring to have the advisory council's recommendations reach him after deliberation.

The council will advise the athletic department and college authorities on schedules, intercollegiate activities and intramural sports, physical education and health, and may be called upon for important decisions during the construction of the college's proposed gymnasium when plans for that structure are drawn.

McGee was an outstanding Friar athlete during his student days in football, baseball, basketball and track. He was an all-State quarterback at Woonsocket High School in the days of the old Interscholastic League. After his graduation in 1924, McGee attended Harvard Business School and entered the garage business in downtown Providence.

He returned to Providence College as assistant football coach and later was named freshman coach. He was head coach of football for four years, resigning to devote more time to his private business. His football teams were the first Providence College squads in Friar history to defeat Boston College.

McGee is general manager of the Providence Steam Roller Football team, a vice president of the Providence Gridiron Club, president of the Metropolitan Garage and Parking Lot Association and a member of the Town Criers. He is married to the former Claire Norton and they are parents of four children, the eldest, Joseph, Jr., a student at Providence College.

Reynolds, who is chief of the State Division of Athletics, and a graduate of La Salle Academy, joined the Boston Braves Baseball Club as a pitcher following his graduation in 1926. He was farmed out to the Providence Grays and remained with the local professional team for two seasons before entering the tire business. He formed his own company in 1938 and has continued as its president and treasurer. He is married to the former Sarah J. Salisbury and they are parents of 10 children, seven boys and three girls. He is a member of the Providence Chamber of Commerce and the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick. He was chairman of the first Providence College Alumni Advisory Board.

Iovanna, who will represent the alumni territorial clubs on the council, attended Yale Graduate School for a Master's degree in science after his graduation from Providence College in 1931. He is a teacher of science in Troup Junior High School, New Haven, and teacher of psychology at New Haven evening school. He has had wide experience as a boys' camp counselor and director of boys' groups. He is assistant director of the West Haven Community House, vice president of St. John's Evangeline Holy Name Society, member of the Connecticut Educational Association, the New Haven Teachers' League and the New Haven Boys' Club. He is married and father of two children, a boy and a girl.

Sullivan, quite active in collegiate affairs, is treasurer of the Monogram Club. He is a member of the Fall River Club of Providence College, and is chairman of the Ways and Means Committee of the Student Congress. He has put three years in on the college baseball team.

COMBO OF PENLER AND McGURKIN, KALLMAN AND CASSEDY TOP FOES

By Jack Shea
Contest 25-50

Perseverance finally bestowed its long sought after reward last Saturday night at the Boston Garden, when after two years of grinding training the Providence College 1 mile relay team scored its first major victory in the Massachusetts K. of C. Meet. No team was ever more determined to win, or no coach was ever more desirous of victory than Harry Coates, for neither could accept the idea of another consolation prize.

There was to be no consolation prize for the Friars Saturday. The team of Jim Penler, Gerald McGurkin, Jerry Kallman, and Jack Cassedy were not to be denied the evasive prize of victory again. Penler led off for the Friars in their race with R. I. State, Springfield, and Tufts. He slipped to third at the start but this was to prove a blessing in disguise, for the speedy redhead has proven time and again that he runs best when forced to come from behind. True to form he exploded into the lead in the last lap and passed the baton to McGurkin with a 3-yard lead.

McGurkin, the fiery P. C. captain, drew a roar from the crowd with the opening burst of speed he displayed as he took the pass. Running what was perhaps the fastest quarter mile of his career McGurkin kept up his blistering pace throughout and stretched the lead to 12 yards. Kallman took over as the next link in the victory chain as this point. The big New Jersey runner maintained a consistently good pace throughout but his lead was cut to about 5 yards.

Jack Cassedy was now called upon to perform his all important duties as anchor man. Any thought to the effect that Cassedy would be able to coast to an easy win was quickly dispelled as Frank Dwyer of R. I. State rocketed from 3rd place to overtake the tiny Friar speed merchant with a lap to go. For a moment it looked as if victory was once again to evade Providence's grasp, but Cassedy rose to the occasion, fought off Dwyer's challenge, and in the finish that had the crowd of about 11,000 on its feet and screaming, broke the tape with about a yard to spare. The time was 3:28.2,

Not yet two years old as a sport at the College, track is now becoming one of the most talked about sports here, and not only by P. C. students. You see wherever the name of Harry Coates is associated with track its just a natural tendency to become aware of that institution. P. C. track teams are running in all the outstanding meets now. In a few years P. C. teams won't only be running in all the meets, but the Friars will be running and winning. Harry Coates only knows how to build champions, perhaps because he is a champion himself. He's the greatest track coach in the United States, and that's more than a personal opinion. Its down in the record books in black and white.

Baseball at P. C. since the war has also had a rocky road but flashes of brilliance have ignited along the way and Hal Martin has been giving Holy Cross and Jack Barry, the perennial collegiate baseball champions, a pretty good idea over the last few years of how P. C. baseball is coming back to the tops.

Boxing is still on an intramural basis, but Pete Louthis is doing a remarkable job with the students interested in the ring and perhaps this sport will be added in the future to the other major sports at the College.

It seems pretty definite now that Providence College is going to have a new gym and that is going to make a big difference to the overall athletic fortunes of P. C. teams. It makes the winning road a much easier one to find.

In the many columns that have been written on this page in the last

P.C. RELAY TEAM SCORES SMASHING VICTORY

SPORTS PANORAMA

By Dave Connors, Jr.

FINALE . . .

Just three years ago this month this column made its appearance on these pages for the first time. It being a time honored custom that seniors cease contributions at the end of the first semester, today's column will be the last.

I've often wondered during the many weeks, what it would have been like to have written a sports column in one of the big college newspapers where tremendous football teams, superior basketball teams, and crack baseball nines are the rule rather than the exception. It must be nice, because it is tough at times to write about losing teams. And this winter, until the current basketball season, I had been associated only with losing teams. But for as many losing teams as Providence College has had in the last few years, just as many winning teams rolled forth from here in the past, and just as many winning teams and more will pour forth in the future.

The past war which took such a tremendous toll in every endeavor of life also took its toll on Providence College athletics. Sports at the College were just about wiped out. But like everybody and everything else that is affected by war, the College athletic authorities had to buckle down and go to work building what had been destroyed. It hasn't been an easy job. It is far from completed, but things are picking up in momentum and in the not too distant future P. C. teams will be storming the heights again. Notre Dame was founded in 1841 but it was 1913 before anyone knew the Irish played football. Kentucky was in business for years, but until ten years ago Wildcat basketball teams seldom went past their state line. It takes a long time to construct, just a few minutes to break down.

Already P. C. teams are making advances in their respective fields. The basketball five is currently boasting an 8-3 record. Its going to lose some more games before the year is over but likewise it will win more than it loses. Vin Cuddy doesn't like to lose. His players, having tasted the sweets of major victories, want more.

The college's other entrants were not as successful, but they all turned in creditable performances. The Varsity 2 mile relay team, consisting of Bill Keenan, Bob Aldrich, John McMullen, and Bill Sherry, placed 4th in a field of seven. The Friars fell behind early in the race and were unable to catch the leaders. Brown won the event in 7:58.4. Tufts placed second with M. I. T. third. Providence was followed by Boston University, Holy Cross, and Harvard.

The Freshman 1 mile relay team placed second to Colby in their races. Joe Tetreault started off for the Friars, followed by Jim Gannon, Bob Tiernan, and Dick Johnson. The yearlings were about 7 yards behind the winner at the finish. Following P. C. were R. I. State and Springfield. The winning time was 3:30.1.

Larry Marra and John Shanley completed for Providence in the high hurdles and pole vault. Marra, running against the nation's finest, placed in his heat but was eliminated in the semi-final. Gehardes of Penn State went on to win in :5.7. Shanley also completed against top flight opposition in his event. The diminutive Friar ace cleared 12 feet but fouled out at 12'6".

All in all it was by far the best showing Providence College has made in a major meet since the establishment of track here at the Dominican institution. Although it is quite evident that P. C. still has a long way to go before they can threaten such teams as Seton Hall, N. Y. U. or Villanova, the Friars are definitely on their way.

Cuddymen Lose To Brooklyn and Iona

By Francis S. Kane

In the final week of normal athletic activity for the semester, the Providence College basketball team will for the second successive week, engage in two weekend games. The first of these two contests will be played against Fairfield University on Friday evening in Bridgeport, Conn. This game will be the second meeting of the season for the Friars against Cross, Brooklyn and Iona. The best of the team will as usual be made up of Co-Captains Walter Beski and Art Weinstock at the forward, and Frank Pelligrino and his Nissel up front in the forward position. In last week's encounters with Brooklyn and Iona, the Cuddymen had the strange experience of playing light basketball and at the same time losing both games. However, in the Friars were not disgraced in any way because they more than made up for the fact with the manner in which they played the games. In the game against Brooklyn College, P. C. was able to stay in the ball game until the opening minutes of the second half. At this time, Brooklyn pulled for a margin of 16 points and this proved to be the margin in the end, 81-65. In the game against Iona, Jim Pelligrino and Jim Schlimn contributed some exceptional performances which aided the Black and White cause immeasurably. In the Iona game, it was much the same story. Providence trailed 49-42 in the first half and Iona was only able to ease this lead slightly by the final whistle, 81-70. This time it was Jim Schlimn and Walt Lososki who carried the major share of the scoring weight. For Schlimn, this was the first occasion within a week that he was able to break into two figures. Jim Schlimn, a young Pennsylvanian should develop into one of the best basketball players in present day college circles. Having played Boston College last week, it is hoped that the Friars will have, at week's end, countered as many reverses of last week with many wins during this one. Cuddymen Lose To Brooklyn and Iona

By Francis S. Kane

In the final week of normal athletic activity for the semester, the Providence College basketball team will for the second successive week, engage in two weekend games.

The first of these two contests will be played against Fairfield University on Friday evening in Bridgeport, Conn. This game will be the second meeting of the season for the Friars and Fairfield, and, if the first contest played here at Mount Pleasant can be used as a standard, it should be a very close and exciting ball game.

It will be remembered that on this occasion the Fairfielders put on a dazzling display of outside shooting, the equal of which is seldom seen in college basketball circles. The Cuddymen were forced to battle tenaciously right down to the wire in order to win, 60-59.

However, barring the unforeseen and improbable, the Black and White should once again prove to be the superior team and tuck this one safely away in the win column.

On Saturday, at 8:30 p. m., in the Mount Pleasant High School Gymnasium, the Friars return home for another return contest. This opponent will be the Hawks of St. Anselms College from Manchester, N. H. The earlier meeting of this series also proved to be a close call for the Cuddymen as they were only able to win by a 63-61 margin. Uniquely, this victory came after a dogged uphill fight by the P. C. forces late in the second half.

As St. Anselm's team features a fast and wide open style of basketball, this game promises to be a wild and free scoring affair. Once again however, it appears as though the charges of Coach Vin Cuddy will have a little too much class for the Hawks from the north country and should emerge from this contest with another victory.

The starting lineup for these games is expected to be the same, with one exception, as that has started throughout the season. The new addition to the first group is Jim Schlimn. He has received the bid over the able Ray Garcia as a natural result of his excellent shooting performances against

Holy Cross, Brooklyn and Iona. The rest of the team will as usual be made up of Co-Captains Walter Lososki and Art Weinstock at the guards, and Frank Pelligrino and Sam Nissel up front in the forward posts.

In last week's encounters with Brooklyn and Iona, the Cuddymen had the strange experience of playing top-flight basketball and at the same time losing both games. However, in losing the Friars were not disgraced in any way because they more than made up for the fact with the manner in which they played the games.

Against Brooklyn College, P. C. was able to stay in the ball game until the opening minutes of the second half. At this time, Brooklyn pulled ahead by 16 points and this proved to be the margin in the end, 81-65. In this game Frank Pelligrino and Jim Schlimn contributed some exceptional shooting performances which aided the Black and White cause immeasurably.

In the Iona game, it was much the same story. Providence trailed 49-42 at the half and Iona was only able to increase this lead slightly by the final whistle, 81-70. This time it was Jim Schlimn and Walt Lososki who carried the major share of the scoring burden. For Schlimn, this was the third occasion within a week that he was able to break into two figures. With improvement at the present rate, this young Pennsylvanian should easily develop into one of the best basketball players in present day collegiate circles.

Having played Boston College last evening, it is hoped that the Friars will have, at week's end, countered the three reverses of last week with three wins during this one.

Outlook for Boxing Show Is Promising

Carol 7-25-50

Encouraged by the signing of four new candidates for his intramural boxing squad, Coach Pete Louthis is working hard with his boys, trying to get them into shape for the forthcoming ring show. Coach Louthis feels that although the prospects for the boxing night have been brightened by the addition of the four newcomers, he would still like a few more candidates, even if they can only start working out after exams. He stressed the point that fellows need not worry about head injuries, because regulation headgear will be used for the bouts.

Art Alcares, Vin Callahan, Gerry Hanrahan, and Stan Hiotas are the fellows who signed up last week. Among those who have been working out regularly, several have been showing up well. John Izzi, Dick Duignan, Art Daglis, Dick McAllister, Paul Flanigan, and Vin DeNiocola, none of whom had had any fistic experience before reporting, are some of the boys who have come a long way under the expert guidance of Coach Louthis.

An added inducement for fellows to become interested in the boxing team is the prospect of a trip to Hanover, New Hampshire, for the winners of the intramural bouts. At Hanover, they will swap punches with the Dartmouth boxing squad, also operating on an informal basis.

By DICK BOULET

Tickets for the Brown vs. Providence College basketball game at the Marvel Gymnasium Feb. 11 will go on sale at 9 o'clock Wednesday morning, Feb. 1st. These tickets will be sold for 1.20 each.

As this is P. C.'s home game, there will be no charge for Providence College students, but all students must obtain a special ticket from the athletic office for this game. Students can obtain this ticket on or after Feb. 1st and in order to do the student must present his athletic book. The student ticket sale will close at 5 p. m. on Feb. 8th. No student books will be honored at the gate the night of the game. Tickets must be procured at the P. C. Athletic Office.

Intramurals

Once again, action in the intramural hoop leagues was limited to three games. In a close, hard-fought contest the Clippers staved off a closing drive by the Cranston Club to register a 29-27 win. The well-organized Froshmore quintet swamped the Cranston Green five, 39-20. A smooth working Senior Arts team whipped La Salle I, 43-29.

Racing to a 16-1 half time lead and building it up to 20-11 at the start of the second, the Clippers almost fell victims to a belated Cranston Club rally. With Thuline rebounding effectively and pacing the scorers with thirteen points, the Clippers experienced little difficulty through the early portion of the game. Ability to hold league high scorer McAllister to eight points also contributed to the winner's cause.

A strong offense, paced by the scoring efforts of Iamy and Friel with fourteen and twelve points respectively, enabled the Froshmores to score a convincing 39-20 decision over the Cranston Green. Although this was mainly a team victory, Friel was especially effective under the boards. Penza was high man for the losers with six points.

The well balanced Senior Arts five scored a surprisingly easy 43-29 win over the La Salle I quintet. The excellent all-around play of Boyle sparked the winners, who held a 20-12 half time lead. Maisano and Fagan were high scorers for the victors, as they registered twelve and ten markers respectively. Lonergan, the losers top scorer with eleven, helped keep his mates in the game with his good offensive play, while teammate Davey did an excellent job of rebounding.

The Intramural Council has submitted a letter to the Student Congress seeking permission to use the auditorium on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday for intramural basketball.

Woonsocket, Seniors Arts, Pawtucket, and La Salle II, have two win apiece, and are tied for first place in the standings.

In the free throw contest Flynn, Dalton, Deroche, Lonergan, and Toole have qualified for the finals from a group of sixty contestants. Because of the interest shown in this contest, the intramural department will sponsor a contest of the game of "twenty-one". More information will be published about it after exams.

High scorers in the basketball loops are: McAllister, 40 points, Dwyer, 35, Thuline, 33, and Kaveny and Duignan 32.

In the finals of the table tennis tournament, Pete Razza scored a hard fought upset over Paul Duchaine, 21-13, 18-21, and 23-21, thus winning the P. C. championship.

FRIARS MEETING FAIRFIELD TEAM

Streak in Game Tonight at Bridgeport

By JOE McHENRY

The Providence College Friars, who have dropped their last four games on the road, hope to get back to their winning ways tonight when they face the Fairfield College basketball team at the Bridgeport Armory in Bridgeport, Conn.

On form the Friars should win, although they had a tough struggle with the Fairfield team in their first meeting at the Mount Pleasant gym before edging out a 60-59 victory in the last four minutes of a nip-and-tuck game.

Fairfield, a Jesuit school located about six miles outside of Bridgeport, is coached by Bob Noonan, a former William & Mary athlete who coached five state-championship teams in Connecticut Boys' Club competition. Jack Sullivan of Bridgeport, captain and best shot on the team, has scored 167 points to date.

Providence, which won eight in a row before the Holy Cross setback, ran into a hot-shooting team when Fairfield played here. On their record of four victories and eight defeats, the Friars shouldn't have as much trouble, for the victories came over Danbury Teachers, Hilliard, New Haven Teachers and N.Y.U. Dental. Fairfield played some fairly good games in losing to St. Anselms, Brooklyn, Brooklyn Poly and Iona among others.

Coach Vin Cuddy of the Friars will start Sam Nissel and Jim Schlimm at forwards, Frank Pelligrino at center, and Co-captains Art Weinstock and Walt Lozoski at guards. At times the Friars played a fine passing and team game against the Boston College Eagles in their last start but couldn't meet the B.C. pressure in a rough second half.

Fairfield is a running team, but doesn't have the strength of some of the foes the Friars have been tackling lately.

The Providence Freshmen have temporarily lost the services of Bob Prendergast, their lanky center, who suffered an injured ankle against the Boston College Freshmen. He's been X-rayed for a minor break and will be out for two weeks at least.

RAY KORBUSIESKI, sophomore guard with the Providence College varsity basketball team, will be seen in action with the Friars against Fairfield University Friday night at the Bridgeport Armory. Korbusieski was the playmaker of the Leavenworth High New England championship quintet in 1947. Many Waterburians plan to attend the Park City game.

Friars Maintain Fast Pace As They Collect 9th Victory

P.C. Battles Into 31-25 Lead at Half Then Outruns
Fading Homesters

By JOE McHENRY

Bridgeport, Conn., Jan. 27.—Showing a decided improvement over their play against Boston College the Providence College Friars ran away from the Fairfield College basketball forces here tonight, scoring an 83-to-55 victory over the Stags at the Bridgeport Armory.

It was the ninth victory of the season for the Friars, who return home tomorrow night to meet a dangerous St. Anselm College quintet at Mount Pleasant High gym, after cracking a four-game losing string here tonight.

The Friars displayed the form that carried them through their first eight games without a setback and as one Bridgeport rooster pointed out, "Those guys just can't miss." He was referring to their fine shooting but their passwork and hustle was of an equally high calibre.

Schlimm Stars

Slim Jim Schlimm, the St. Mary's Pa., boy who may yet be the Friars' greatest hook-shot specialist if he keeps dropping them in at his present pace, led the attack tonight. He sank some of his hoops in the clutch when the Providence team was trying to shake off its fast-moving rivals.

Fairfield, a running team but one which ran out of gas under the pressure exerted by the Friars who did some flying themselves, kept in the game in the first half. At times the game looked like their first meeting when the Friars managed to get a one-point victory.

After six minutes, the Stags held an 8-7 lead and were ahead, 14 to 13 after 10 minutes. The Friars went ahead, 17-14 and 19-16, but Fairfield jumped into a 20-19 lead about 13 minutes along.

Put on Pressure

That's the spot where Schlimm did some of his best work. He scored three hoops on passes from Walt Lozoski and Art Weinstock as the Friars went seven points up, 27-20. It was 31-25 at the half with Fairfield still in there with their fast-breaking.

In the first three minutes of the second half, the Friars put on the pressure. Three baskets by Lozoski, Frank Pellingrino and Schlimm boosted them into an 11-point margin, 37-26, and they ran it up to 15.

By the 10-minute point in the second half, the Friars had a 52-37 lead and the game was practically sewed up.

Providence College Wallops

P.C. is 83-55 Winner At Fairfield; St. Anselm To Play Here Tonight

By JOE McHENRY

Bridgeport, Conn., Jan. 28.—The Providence College Friars had one of their best halves of the season here last night, scoring 52 points after intermission in turning a fairly close ball game into an 83-to-55 victory over the Fairfield College Stags at the Bridgeport Armory.

"You can see we've come a long way in some respects," Coach Vin Cuddy of the Friars said later. "We had a lot of trouble beating these fellows by just one point in our second game of the season. The boys have improved a lot when you figure they're working on a new system but I thought we looked real good there in the second half."

"Fifty-two points is a lot of points for one half when you figure that many teams don't hit 60 in a full game, even these days. But our shooting and passwork was fairly good and our second combine (Jerry Lembo, Ray Korbusieski, E. Mooney, Ray Garcia and Al Becker) did a fine job.

Close Before

The Friars will meet St. Anselm tonight at the Mount Pleasant High gym in their last game before they temporarily call a halt to their basketball activity to concentrate on their mid-year examinations. Coached by Al Grenert, a former New York University athlete, the Hawks led the Friars and lost out, 63-61, in the final minute at Manchester in their first meeting.

Jim Schlimm, the 6-foot-3 sophomore from St. Mary's, Pa., had another good night here against Fairfield, scoring 18 points and sparking a drive which put the Friars in the lead. But it was a case of Providence clicking in good style all around. Frank Pellingrino, Walt Lozoski, Sam Nissel, Art Weinstock, and Tom Orr all had a hand in the victory, playing fine ball at various times.

Back in Stride

The Friars' offensive play was reminiscent of their work as they ran up their 8-game winning string which was finally broken by Holy Cross. But they could have plenty of trouble tonight against St. Anselm which has several Rhode Islanders in its lineup, including Bill O'Connor from Newport and Gene Wecal from Woonsocket.

Fairfield, a running team but one which ran out of gas under the pressure exerted by the Friars who did some flying themselves, kept in the game in the first half. At times the game looked like their first meeting when the Friars managed to get a one-point victory.

PROVIDENCE COLLEGE OUTSHOOT

Fairfield U. to Oppose Providence Here Tonight

By BILL KROSKY

After a week-long drought of activity, college basketball returns to the Bridgeport area with a bang tonight when Fairfield University renews its colorful rivalry with the Providence College Friars in an Armory test slated for an 8:30 start.

Another equally interesting tussle is on the books just 24 hours later, when the Purple Knights of the University of Bridgeport travel to New London for an inaugural engagement with the U. S. Coast Guard Academy in the Academy Field House.

From a prestige standpoint, both contests loom as two of the most important tilts on the slates of the local schools. But a victory for either must come in an upset role. Pre-game form has established Providence a strong favorite over Fairfield and the Guardsmen almost likewise over the UB's.

Veteran Squad

Boasting seven returning lettermen and nine victories in the first 13 games of their usually strong schedule, the Friars invade Bridgeport seeking to duplicate last year's stunt of using the Stags as a medium of cracking a four game losing streak.

But if Coach Bobby Noonan's Stags have the makings of coming up with a major upset within themselves, there's nobody they would like to cream more than the perennial favorites from the Rhode Island capitol.

Thus far the two-year old series between the two Catholic schools stands at a 3-0 edge for the Friars. However, with the exception of their first meeting, a 56-38 victory for Providence at home, the series has been marked by closely contested battles.

Last season after dropping four straight road games, to Yale, St. Peter's, St. Francis and Seton Hall, the Friars came to town and barely scraped out a 48-44 victory. And even then they were forced to overcome a 10 point deficit in the last 12 minutes to do it.

Stags Lost in Thriller

Again this season at Providence back in December, the Friars trimmed the Connecticut combine. But once again, Fairfield came up with one of its best efforts before finally dropping a 60-59 thriller that experienced 25 score changes and 11 deadlocks.

Up until early last week the 1949-50 Friars were in the unbeaten ranks. Since that time they have absorbed successive setbacks at the hands of top-seeded Holy Cross, once-beaten Iona, Boston College and Brooklyn to set a stage similar to the show they successfully completed here last year.

However, Fairfield's victory hopes, admittedly outside ones, were considerably brightened last night when it was reported that Jack Sullivan, Jack Moffett, Ed Sisk and Davie Roach, all of whom have been on the disabled list, are considered to be likely starters tonight.

A prelim, involving the Fairfield U. Junior Varsity, is slated to open tonight's action at 7:15.

William J. Iovanna Named To P.C. Advisory Athletic Council

William J. Iovanna, 31, of New Haven, was one of three persons elected by the Board of Governors of the Providence College Alumni Association to serve on the newly-formed seven-member Advisory Athletic Council of Providence College.

The council will advise the athletic department and college authorities on schedules, intercollegiate activities and intramural sports, physical education and health, and may be called upon for important decisions during the construction of the college's proposed gymnasium when plans for that structure are drawn.

Mr. Iovanna, who will represent the alumni territorial clubs on the council, attended Yale Graduate School for a Master's degree in science after his graduation from Providence in 1931. He is a teacher of science in Troup Junior High School, New Haven, and has had wide experience as a boys' camp counselor and director of boy groups. He is married and the father of two children.

FRIARS GAIN 10TH VICTORY AS STAGS FAIL IN 2ND HALF

Jim Schlim Leads Visitors' Smashing Rally with 21 Points

By BILL KROSKY

The well-balanced Providence College Friars cracked their four-game losing streak by leveling a strong second half scoring outburst to gain a convincing 83 to 55 triumph over Fairfield University's Red Stags in the State Armory last night.

In posting their 10th victory in 15 starts, the Friars started slowly and were hard-pressed to enjoy a six point advantage at halftime. But once play was resumed they jammed 52 points into the final 20 minutes to cop a decisive win going away.

Stags Start Fast

With nothing to lose and everything to gain, the Stags packed most of their best playing into the first 15 minutes in a vain effort to spring an upset. But in the end it all went for naught as Providence stormed its way to its fourth straight conquest in the two-year-old series.

Boasting an ample supply of first-rate reserves, the Friars quickly expanded their 31-25 half-time lead as play opened in the second half. With rangy Jim Schlimm doing most of the scoring, Providence commanded a 41-26 bulge in the first three minutes and breached a 60-39 gap at the 10 minute mark.

Schlimm, a smooth-working six-footer who knocked in 21 points against Iona a week ago, emerged from the tilt with individual honors on a harvest of 18 points. Sammy Nissell, who scored 16 points against the Stags earlier in the season, was Providence's only other double figure scorer with an even 10.

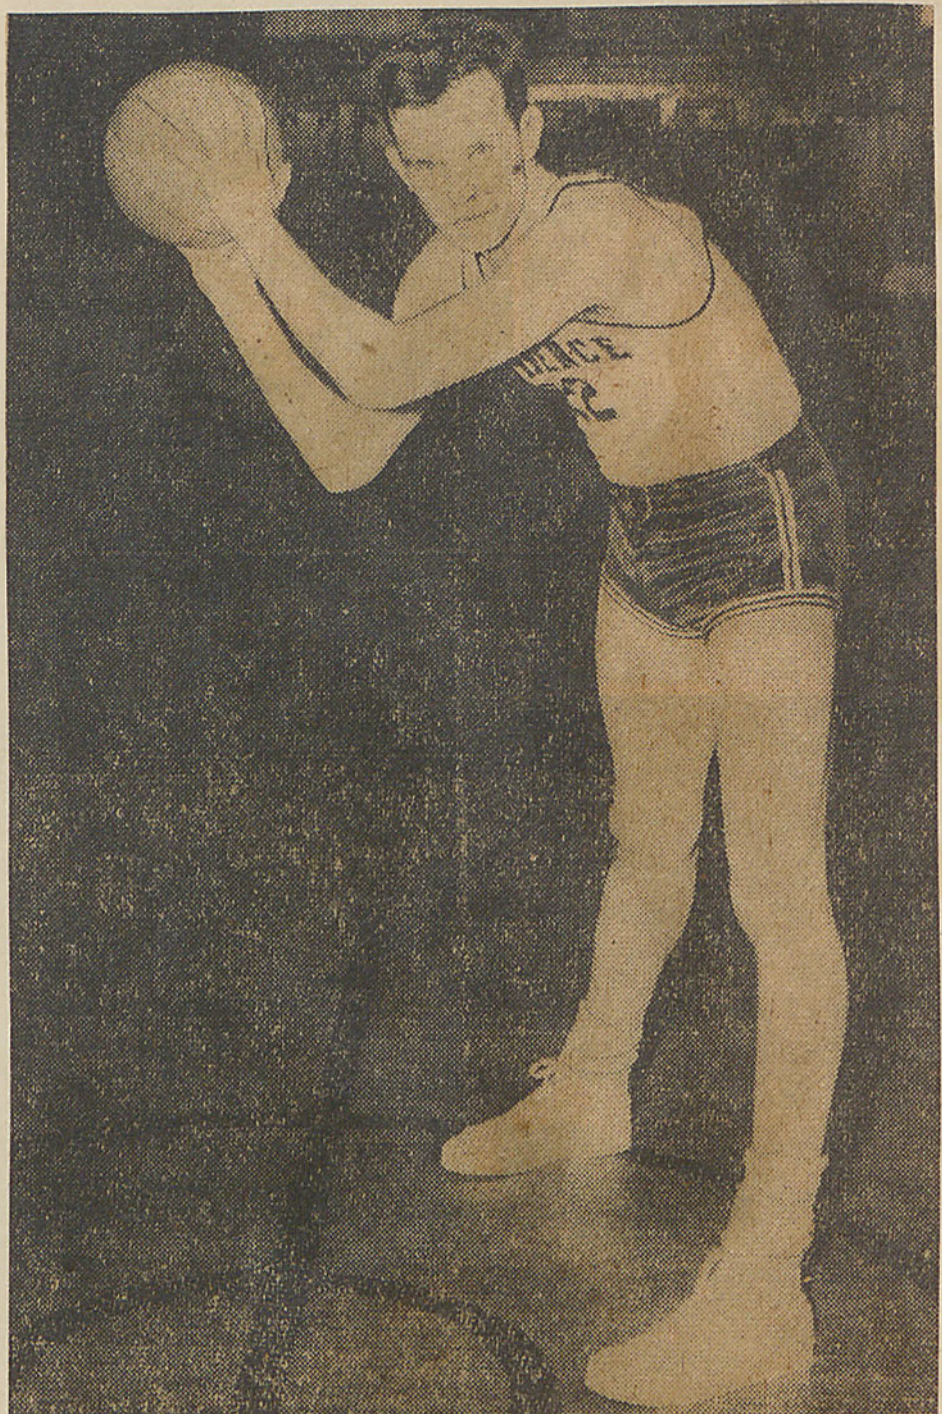

Fairfield's attack, which profited greatly from the foul lines where the Stags converted 22 out of 35 chances, was led by Captain Jack Sullivan, Joe Miko and Joe Kehoe. Sullivan, returning to action for the first time in two weeks, counted 16 points and Miko and Kehoe evenly divided 24 more.

The Friars trailed steadily throughout the early portion of the first half, although never by more than four points. At 15:20, Fairfield led 20-19, for the last time. Then in quick succession, Schlimm sank a pair of field goals and Art Weinstock added a short set and the Friars were off winging, never again to be seriously threatened.

Providence Holds Off Rally by

Hawks in Second Half,

Wins by 91-81

By JOE McHENRY

Providence College's Friars put on one of their best shooting exhibitions in years, but had all they could do to hold off St. Anselm's Hawks and score a 91-to-81 victory last night before a packed house at Mount Pleasant High School.

The Friars, hitting at a pace of 45 per cent over the route, were brilliant as they piled up a 21-point lead in the first half. However, the Hawks caught fire in the second half, whittled down the Providence margin and forced the Friars to the limit in the stretch.

Providence has had few games in recent years in which they passed the ball around and worked setups as well as they did in the first half last night. That 20 minutes was their second 52-point half in two nights and also their second victory, but they were about as sharp as they have been all season and much more consistent than before.

Second-Half Drive

The Friars had a 52-31 lead at intermission. The Hawks, with Newport's Bill O'Connor and Nick Bastin as the chief threats, dropped in 50 points during the second 20 minutes. Providence scored 19 hoops in 41 shots, just a little below 50 per cent in the first half and also counted 14 free throws in 19 tries.

Bastin, a 6-foot 7-inch center, accounted for 26 points. O'Connor, the De La Salle alumnus, put in 24.

The Friars, who are enjoying one of their best years since the early 40's, could do little wrong in the first half, when many figured they'd salted the game away. Some cooling off on their part and fine shooting by the Hawks made it a ball game in the second half. Although St. Anselm's didn't quite close the gap, the Hawks made the Friars hustle for their victory.

The Leaders

Sam Nissel and Jim Schlimm led the Friars with 20 and 18 points, respectively, and Frank Pelligrino turned in one of his best jobs since he joined the Friars. Pelly has been getting the rebounds with the best of them for the last couple of nights and made some fine passoffs to his running mates, Schlimm and Nissel. Walt Lozoski also was right up there.

Providence's fast-breaking attack broke the game open in the first half. The Hawks went into an 8-3 lead and finally the Friars overhauled them at 14-11 on three points by Schlimm after Pelligrino's alertness had set up the tie-breaking basket.

The Friars had a 10-point margin, 24-14, after 10 minutes. In addition to their other activities, the Friars were taking the rebounds and the Hawks had little chance to set up any defense. Providence was ahead, 31-18, after 12 minutes and later at 41-25. The Friars sunk 10 out of their first 12 free throws, with much contact on both sides. It was 52-29 just before the half, with Jack La Marre scoring for the Hawks.

Big Hand

The Rhode Islanders, Bill O'Connor from Newport, Mike Hession from Melville, and Gene Wecal from Woonsocket, had a big hand in the Hawks' second-half comeback. Chuck Tobin, another Newporter, fouled out in the early minutes.

In less than four minutes of the second half, the Friars were 26 points ahead, 66-40, and later 23 at 69-46 after seven minutes of action. However a spurt sparked by Wecal, Bastin and O'Connor pulled the Hawks up to 13 points, 71-58, near the 10-minute mark.

The Friars lost Art Weinstock, Ray Korbusieski and Pelligrino on fouls during the next few minutes, but the hot Hawks were sensing a kill and twice cut the lead down to eight points, finally at 78-70.

Lozoski, Nissel, Ray Garcia and Ronnie Gagnon put in some key tosses in the closing minutes and kept the Friars safely on the way to victory. St. Anselm's came up to 81-88 as O'Connor scored eight straight points, but there was less than a minute to go and Gagnon's hoop and Lozoski's free throw made it sure. There were 51 fouls called.

The Providence College Frosh defeated Edgewood Junior College, 52 to 52, after leading, 27-19, at the hal-

NAMED TO P. C. ATHLETIC COUNCIL

William J. Iovanna

Charles F. Reynolds

Joseph P. McGee

Providence College Forms New Council On Athletics

Formation of a seven-member advisory athletic council comprised of faculty, alumni and students was announced today by Very Rev. Robert J. Slavin, O.P., S.T.Lr., Ph.D., president of Providence College.

Simultaneously with Father Slavin's announcement, Alumni President Frank J. Lowrey, '26, made known that the Alumni Board of Governors had elected William J. Iovanna, '31, of New Haven; and Charles F. Reynolds, '26, of Pawtucket, and Joseph P. McGee, '24, of this city, both former Friar athletic luminaries of a quarter of a century ago, to serve on the council.

Reynolds won fame pitching Providence College to a 1 to 0 victory over Brown University in a 20-inning baseball game in 1924, and McGee was the first football captain and a former coach of football at the Dominican College. Iovanna has long been interested in interscholastic sports and athletics.

James F. Sullivan, of Fall River, a senior, was elected to represent the student body on the panel. Rev. Edwin H. Schmidt, O.P., adviser to the Student Congress, announced after a special meeting of the student governing group that a supplement to the by-laws will provide for the annual election of a senior by the Student Congress. Sullivan will serve the rest of the academic year.

Rev. A. B. Begley, O.P., director of athletics, will be chairman of the new council and Rev. Vincent C. Dore, O.P., LL.D., dean of studies, will be the faculty representative on the panel. Father Slavin will be an ex-officio member of the group and does not plan to take an active part in its proceedings, preferring to have the advisory council's recommendations reach him after deliberation.

The council will advise the athletic department and college authorities on schedules, intercollegiate activities and intramural sports, physical education and health, and may be called upon for important decisions during the construction of the college's proposed gymnasium when plans for that structure are drawn.

McGee was an outstanding Friar athlete during his student days in football, baseball, basketball and track. He was an all-State quarterback at Woonsocket High School in the days of the old Interscholastic League. After his graduation in 1924, McGee attended Harvard Business School and entered the garage business in downtown Providence.

He returned to Providence College as assistant football coach and later was named freshman coach. He was head coach of football for four years, resigning to devote more time to his private business. His football teams were the first Providence College squads in Friar history to defeat Boston College.

McGee is general manager of the Providence Steam Roller football team, a vice president of the Providence Gridiron Club, president of the Metropolitan Garage and Parking Lot Association and a member of the Town Criers. He is married to the former Claire Norton and they are parents of four children, the eldest, Joseph, Jr., a student at Providence College.

Reynolds, who is chief of the State Division of Athletes, and a graduate of La Salle Academy, joined the Boston Braves Baseball Club as a pitcher following his graduation in 1926. He was farmed out to the Providence Grays and remained with the local professional team for two seasons before entering the tire business. He formed his own company in 1938 and has continued as its president and treasurer. He is married to the former Sarah J. Salisbury and they are parents of 10 children, seven boys and three girls. He is a member of the Providence Chamber of Commerce and the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick. He was chairman of the first Providence College Alumni Advisory Board.

Iovanna, who will represent the alumni territorial clubs on the council, attended Yale Graduate School for a Master's degree in science after his graduation from Providence in 1931. He is a teacher of science in Troup junior high school, New Haven, and teacher of

Friar Quintet Seeking 8th Straight

PROVIDENCE — The Providence College basketball team goes after its eighth straight victory tonight when it meets Springfield College at the Mount Pleasant gym. The freshman teams from the two schools will meet in the preliminary at 7 o'clock.

This is one game the Friars really want to win, since a victory would leave them undefeated going into the game with Holy Cross at Worcester next Tuesday night.

Coach Vin Cuddy will open with the same line-up that started against A. I. C. Wednesday night. Art Weinstock Co-Capt. and guard will be back at his old post. He showed in the A. I. C. game that he is back in good form after his recent tonsilectomy. Jerry Lembo, who was hurt in the St. Anselm's game will be out of action again for Saturday's contest. He is improving rapidly and may be ready for the Holy Cross encounter.

Along with Weinstock, the Friar cast will have Walt Lozski, the other Co-Capt., at a guard post, Frank Pelligrino at center and Sam Nissel and Ray Garcia at the forward.

Pelligrino played his finest game against A. I. C. He controlled both backboards and was high scorer with sixteen points.

Coach John Bunn of Springfield will start Capt. 'Tif' Barker and John Burke at the forward posts and John Donahue at center. Bob Barnett and Bill Countaway will be at the guard position.

Springfield and P. C. will be meeting for the 36th time with Springfield holding a slim margin of eighteen victories against seventeen defeats. Last season the Gymnasts defeated the Friars twice.

Maroons Are No Match For Undefeated Friars

Providence Wipes Out Early Springfield Lead and Rolls to Eighth Straight Victory of Season With High Scoring Attack, 70-48

Providence, R. I., Jan. 14—The Providence College Friars posted their eighth straight victory of the cage season here at the Mt. Pleasant High court tonight, defeating visiting Springfield College by a 70-48 margin before a turn-away crowd of 950 and remained along with Holy Cross, as the only undefeated collegiate teams in New England. Taking the lead for the first time just after the 10-minute mark in the opening half, the local forces pulled away to a 35-25 margin at the intermission and then won going away as Jim Schlimm led the Providence offensive.

Face Crusaders Tuesday

The Friars, who meet unbeaten Holy Cross at the Worcester Auditorium Tuesday night, trailed Springfield, which lost to Rhode Island State Friday night, during the first 10 minutes. In the early moments, the Maroons from Massachusetts sped to a 6-0 command only to have Providence come back and tie the count at 10-all. Schlimm dropped a set shot from the side which gave the Friars a lead which they never lost and from that time on, Springfield continued to fall behind.

The Friars maintained control of both backboards and showed impressive bits of ball handling while scoring almost at will, both from the bucket and from the outside. Helping Schlimm with the scoring were Nissel and McGurkin while two of the Maroon cagers, John Burke and Tiff Barker, reached double figures with 12 and 11 points, respectively.

In the preliminary game, the Springfield College Frosh tacked a 52-47 setback on the Providence Frosh in a spirited contest which was not decided until the closing moments of play. The lineups:

P. C. Streak Is Extended to 8

Providence, Jan. 15—The Friars of Providence College made it eight in a row last night, thumping Springfield College 70 to 48 at the Mount Pleasant High School Gymnasium before a sellout crowd.

Francis "Skanky" Pellegrino and Jim Schlimm were the P. C. pace setters, with 10 and 12 points respectively, but Coach Vin Cuddy, who scouted the Maroon against Rhode Island Friday night, gave his entire squad a chance to play.

The Friars started off slowly, trailing the traveling Gymnasts 6 to 0 in the early minutes of the opening half. However, once they pushed their scoring machine into motion, the Friars were hard to stop and at one time in the second half had a 27 point bulge.

Providence had a 35 to 23 lead at the half, and Springfield shaved this down to 35 to 28 before the Friars broke the contest wide open.

The Providence shooting was hot in the second half, hitting on 12 out of 32 tries. In addition, the Friars were equally as good from the foul line, pumping in 22 out of 28 shots.

With eight straight wins behind them, the Providence quintet faces its toughest assignment of the season Tuesday when it meets the mighty and unbeaten Crusaders of Holy Cross, who use not two platoons of players, but three.

HOLY CROSS TAKES ON PROVIDENCE TOMORROW

Both Teams Unbeaten, But Purple Heavy Choice; Tech Visits M. I. T.

By PAUL N. JOHNSON

This week finds the annual mid-January lull setting in for the city's collegiate quintets. Only six games are carded, including just two on the generally crowded Saturday night.

Holy Cross, all-winning and picking up more and more momentum with each excursion, takes on likewise undefeated Providence College tomorrow night at the Auditorium before dropping the basketballs in favor of the text books for the mid-year exams.

Three games are listed Wednesday, Worcester Tech battling M. I. T. at Cambridge, Assumption tackling Curry College's outstanding little club at Boston and Becker moving to Manchester, N. H., for a game with St. Anselm.

On Saturday, Tech plays host to Arnold College and Becker opposes Keene, N. H. Teachers before the layoff for all teams really sets in.

Clark has already swung into the examination lull, the Scarlets having temporarily halted activities with last Wednesday's 54-43 defeat at the hands of Springfield College.

Game Sold Out

Getting back to tomorrow night's Holy Cross-Providence game, the contest is another sell-out. That goes without saying these days.

Providence is seemingly coming up in the New England cage world. The Friars have won all eight starts thus far, including a 59-57 decision over Rhode Island State.

Among their other victims are Assumption, Fairfield University, American International College (twice), Bates, St. Anselm and Springfield College.

Naturally, they haven't bumped into the opposition Holy Cross has been tackling. Nor is anyone anticipating an upset in this one.

The Crusaders would seem to be much too powerful for the Friars, and consequently will rule some 20 points better when the action gets under way.

REBOUNDS

Providence may set up a shifting zone defense in the hopes of bothering the Crusaders in-close work. The Friars, it is known, have worked some on this defense. On a night when the Crusaders' outside shooting is on the cold side, a zone perhaps would be troublesome . . . But it doesn't figure that the Purple will be off form in this department, since the squad has so many top shooters from outside. . . Fellows like Bob Cousy, Frank Ofring, Bob McMullan, Andy Laska, Matty Formon, Bob McLarnon, Russ Dieffenbach, Wally Baird and so on are all adept at pitching home baskets from afar . . .

Francis (Buddy) O'Grady, Georgetown's coach, visited the Holy Cross dressing room following Saturday night's Crusader-Hoya tussle and was quite strong in his praise of the Crusaders, who won with ease, 77-51 . . . O'Grady remarked as he entered the dressing room, "Fellas, I just want to tell you one thing — whatever it might mean to you. You're 20 points better than St. John's (Brooklyn). The best of luck to you." Some boost, this, in view of the fact that St. John's No. 1 in the Associated Press poll the past two weeks, had just nosed out Georgetown, 67-66, the night before.

Greyhounds Crippled

Assumption, hard-pressed now that Armand (Buts) Bonvouloir and Gene (Lefty) Brassard have decided to forego the sport, will run smack into one of the top small college teams in New England in stacking up against Curry College on Wednesday . . . Curry has dropped only one game and although a comparative unknown makes no bones about the fact that it expects to go big-time . . .

Bill Mehalick, durable guard, and George Darna, reserve guard, were instrumental in helping Tech rally for its 64-61 triumph over American International last Saturday . . . Mehalick has been a mainstay all year, but Barna has been relegated to the sidelines for the most part . . . However, he turned in a tremendous performance, particularly off the boards in the late stages of the game with the Aces, making Tech's rally possible . . . Consequently, the veteran is expected to see much more service henceforth. . . It could be that he will move one of the regulars out of his job . . .

Meantime, in the college scoring locally, H. C.'s Cousy pegged 36 points in two games last week to up his total for the year to 261 . . . He has 94 floor goals and 73 free throw conversions . . . Seven other city shooters are over the century mark . . . Ofring of H. C. has 113; Paul Shiminski of Clark has 107; Jackie Swan and Joe McMahon of Becker have 120 and 113; Roger Pontbriand and Bonvouloir of Assumption have 140 and 105, and John (Wingsie) O'Leary has 136 . . .

HC, Top Ranked in Country, Plays Providence Tonight

Undefeated New England Rivals Clash at Worcester With Crusaders Odds-On Favorites to Cop 14th Straight; Two-Week Layoff After Tonight

Worcester, Jan. 17—At long last top-ranked in the country in the weekly polling, the undefeated Holy Cross basketball ballers take on likewise unbeaten Providence College tonight at 8.30 o'clock in the Auditorium. The Purple, aiming for its 14th straight victory, will be an odds-on choice to continue its brilliant unbeaten skein against the Friars. The point-makers have established Holy Cross a prohibitive favorite, many bookmakers actually refusing to recognize the game.

In other words, H. C. is supposed to be able to win by whatever score it desires. The Crusaders have finally established themselves as that good.

It's been no easy task for coach Buster Sheary's three-platoon H. C. squad to move right to the top in the nation's elite.

Can't Afford Letdown

Now they're on top, and barring an unlooked-for mishap somewhere along the line, they should be able to retain their lofty position, a place that even H. C.'s great 1946-47 NCAA championship team couldn't attain.

However, the H. C. smoothies can afford no letdown. They cannot be too blase, else they may find some unheralded opponent pinning their ears back. That happens every day in basketball.

Yet, it's not likely to occur tonight. The Crusaders have too much of everything for the Friars. Actually, H. C. should win with ease—provided the Crusaders do have their minds on the business at hand and are not too elated over the new honors.

Friars Good N. E. Team

Providence is a good New England team. The Friars have rolled up eight victories without defeat. They have turned back Assumption College, Fairfield University, American International (twice), Rhode Island State, St. Anselm and Springfield College.

That certainly can't compare with the Crusaders tremendous record but it indicates the Friars do have a winning complex.

Coach for the first time by Jim Cuddy, former University of Connecticut star, the Friars boast a fast-breaking unit. The P. C. players, many of whom are veterans and so were unfamiliar with Cuddy's attacking patterns, have absorbed the new system readily.

Included among the old hands are co-captains Walt Lozoski and Art Weinstock, both of whom have shown to advantage in each P. C. victory thus far. In addition, Cuddy uses a number of last year's freshman stand-outs, including free-scoring Ray Korbusieski, a terror typographical or otherwise, and Ronnie G'ynon.

H. C. Regulars Ready

H. C. coach Buster Sheary hasn't divulged his game strategy but since this will be the Crusaders' finale before the mid-year examination lull, it is expected that he will go along with his first team at the start.

Heretofore, Sheary has surprised off and on by starting his second or third unit, holding his varsity back. However, the boys are well rested and will have no basketball now for another two weeks. Thus, Sheary will not have to worry about keeping his top-flighters fresh for anything upcoming.

The game will be another sellout, upwards of 3100 fans sitting in on the affair.

The freshman teams of both schools will collide in the preliminary at 7 like the varsity, are undefeated and will be looking for their sixth victory.

Unbeaten Crusaders Play Tough Providence

WORCESTER, Jan. 17.—(UP)—Holy Cross' fabulous five, undefeated in 13 basketball battles this season, was heavily favored to-day to break Providence College's undefeated record when they meet at the auditorium to-night.

The auditorium's 3100 seats were sold out days ago to fans eager to see the three-platoon Crusaders clash with Providence. The visitors recently had a narrow victory over Rhode Island State and an easy victory over a good Springfield squad.

Bill Reidy Forward With Friar Freshmen

When Providence College comes to the Auditorium tonight, one of the members of the freshman team that will oppose the Crusader Cubs will be Bill Reidy, a forward with the young Friars. Bill graduated from St. John's Prep at Danvers, where he was prominent in athletics. He is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Enas W. Reidy, 81 Morningside road.

Friars Next Net Foe For Unbeaten Crusader

Having disposed of St. Louis and Georgetown in the last two encounters, Holy Cross wings back into its important New England competition tomorrow night at the Auditorium.

The Providence College Friars, a team that could be dangerous, come here to try conclusions with the Crusaders. The invaders are the type of team that could upset the Purple if they caught Holy Cross on an off-night or over-confident.

The Friars have some impressive wins in keeping their record unsullied. They edged R. I. State 59 to 57, and include St. Anselm's, Springfield, Bates, A. I. C. among their victims.

The way that Buster Sheary's boys took care of Georgetown, you would not get the impression that the Hoyas had nearly upset St. John's at New York the night before. So it could be with Providence.

Holy Cross Meets Unbeaten Friars Tonight

WORCESTER, Jan. 17 (UP)—Holy Cross' fabulous five, undefeated in 13 basketball battles this season, was heavily favored today to break Providence college's undefeated record when they meet at the auditorium tonight.

The auditorium's 3100 seats were sold out days ago to fans eager to see the three-platoned Crusaders clash with Providence. The visitors recently had a narrow victory over Rhode Island State and an easy victory over a good Springfield squad.

Favor H. C. Over Friars

Holy Cross goes after its 14th win of the basketball season at the Auditorium tonight and there's a chance that Bob Cousy, star forward, may see no action.

Bob has been hit with a severe cold, spent the night in the infirmary and his status for the game tonight is problematical.

With or without Cousy, the Crusaders are favored to win. But the Providence College team that furnishes the opposition is a dangerous foe if the Crusaders should experience a letdown. They have beaten the R. I. State Rams and handed Springfield a stiff setback.

The Friars are a fast moving team that stresses speed, so that the Crusaders may have trouble running them into the boards as they have some of their other foes. However, Holy Cross is better prepared with capable reserves and may wear down the invaders.

This will be the final game before examinations. The next Holy Cross appearance is against Springfield College at Springfield on January 31.

The Crusaders will go into the game a favorite and once again there will be a sellout crowd to see them in action. After a slow start, the tickets went like hot cakes yesterday, leaving the Holy Cross A. A. ticket cupboard bare once more.

Friars' Streak Broken As Holy Cross Romps, 84-56

Providence College Fve Outclassed As Crusaders Win 14th Straight Game

By HENRY J. SHERLOCK

The classy Holy Cross Crusaders, currently ranked as the No. 1 team in the nation, played without All-American Bob Cousy but still had too much for Providence College last night as they drubbed the previously unbeaten Friars, 84-56, before a capacity crowd of 3400 at the Worcester Memorial Auditorium.

Cousy was confined to the college infirmary with a slight case of grippe. But the other Crusaders, particularly Matt Formon, Frank Oftring and Andy Laska, operated expertly without their top star and had little trouble racking up their 14th straight victory.

VICTORS CONTROL BOARDS

Holy Cross had almost complete control of the backboards. Its rugged guards, Formon and Bob McMullen, outplayed the hustling but inadequate Friars throughout. Formon, 6-5, and McMullen, 6-3, were too tall and rugged for PC's Frank Pelligrino, Jim Schlimm and Sam Nissell.

The Crusaders were also superior in other departments. They "switched off" perfectly at times on defense to keep PC players from breaking through for lay-ups. They did not shoot very well from in close during the first half, when they missed numerous easy shots, but had uncanny accuracy from outside and during the early stages of the second half also made good on the close-up shots.

Holy Cross was expected to win easily, and it did just that. The issue was never in doubt. The Crusaders, with Formon and Laska doing the scoring, held a 10-2 lead after four minutes of play.

CRUSADERS ROLL EARLY

Providence Coach Vin Cuddy called a time out at that point and tried a different combination but it didn't matter when the Crusaders continued to roll.

McMullen tossed in two baskets, one on a long push shot, to offset a PC score by Schlimm and give Holy Cross a 14-4 lead. After eight minutes of play, Holy Cross extended its leading margin to 23-8.

Laska then hit a hot streak and enabled the Crusaders to maintain a 15-point lead despite a rally by the Friars. Laska tossed in three baskets to offset three connections by Schlimm and give Holy Cross a 36-20 advantage.

Schlimm, a sophomore and expert shot from in close, scored three more points and Pelligrino got a basket for PC to keep the Friars within range of the Crusaders at half time. At the rest period Holy Cross led, 45-28.

The Crusaders looked sharp only periodically during the first half. But at the start of the second-half they performed at their best and within 10 minutes moved to a 40-point lead at 75-35.

Holy Cross guarded expertly during that rush. The Purple repeatedly broke up Providence plays. Once in possession the Crusaders were deadly. Dilling, Laska, Formon and Oftring all took part in that third period scoring. Laska and Formon were the leaders, although the fans were apparently more pleased with Oftring's amazing set-shooting. The steady guard, one of the holdovers from the 1947 NCAA championship team, dropped in three long set shots during the third stanza. He made five in all. His final basket was scored on a lay-up.

Holy Cross Coach Buster Sheary paid Providence College a tribute by leaving his first team in action much longer than usual. He finally lifted them after they had built up the 40-point bulge. He used each of his second and third teams for five minutes, but neither was impressive.

FRIARS SHOOT POORLY

Unfortunately Providence College was experiencing one of its poorer shooting nights. The Friars hit on only 19 of 71 shots from the floor. Their inaccuracy can be partly explained by the fact that many of the shots weren't "percentage" shots. Providence was kept outside much of the time and even there was rushed by the taller Crusaders.

The game was rough throughout and was climaxed by a brief brawl with Art Weinstock and Walt Lazoski of PC squaring off against Jim O'Neil and Russ Dieffenbach.

The officials allowed the game to get out of control. Providence Coach Cuddy and his players were very displeased with the officiating and with good cause. O'Neil of Holy Cross incited the fight at the end. He was in the game only four and one-half minutes and committed five fouls. The summaries:

It's another win in the Purple and White boys bag, for in a contest last night that I would not want to pay to see, Holy Cross defeated Providence College by a score of 84-56, with Cousy out of the lineup. Matt Forman was high man with 20 points.

Cousy Out with Cold, Formon Sets Pace in 14th Consecutive Triumph

By JOE LOONEY

WORCESTER, Jan. 17—Even without Co-Capt. Bob Cousy, the Holy Cross Crusaders celebrated their elevation to the rank as the nation's No. 1 collegiate basketball team by burying Providence College, 84-56, tonight before the customary sellout crowd of 3100 at the Memorial Auditorium.

HIGH-SCORING STAR MISSES FIRST GAME

The Crusaders' great scoring star was confined to the college infirmary with a cold and missed his first game in four years. He had a temperature of 102 yesterday afternoon.

Cousy's absence forced a shift in the usual Holy Cross tactics. Instead of operating with three platoons, Coach Buster Sheary kept the first team in the game until the 10-minute mark of the second half when the Crusaders were in front, 70-35.

Sophomore Jim Dilling replaced Cousy in the starting lineup and performed ably. His unit played the first 30 minutes except for two brief changes.

Bob McLarnon replaced Dilling for the last nine minutes of the first half and Greg Hammill took over for Matt Formon for a two-minute span just before the 15-minute mark in the first session.

Formon turned out to be the game's high scorer with 16 points.

The Crusaders wasted no time in setting up their 14th straight win. With the score 2-2, they rolled in nine straight points for an 11-2 edge in the first four minutes and just before the halfway mark in the opening period another spurt of eight straight points lifted the tally to 23-8 for the Purple.

MILD FLAREUP NEAR FINISH

Starting the second half with a 45-28 margin, the Crusaders really began to humiliate the Friars, who were unbeaten in eight games before tonight's debacle. In the first eight minutes after intermission, Holy Cross outscored Providence by 21-4 to boost the count to 68-32. Right after that, Sheary derricked the varsity and turned the game over to the second and third platoons, which shared the last 10 minutes.

The final 10 minutes were uneventful except for a mild flareup just before the last buzzer. The subs made a few threatening fistic gestures, but no punches were thrown and the Providence rooters made use of the occasion to shower the floor with confetti which had been brought along just in case the Friars should spring an upset.

Providence College's basketball team, defeated only by Holy Cross this season, is on the road this weekend, meeting Brooklyn tonight and Iona tomorrow night. The Friars, one of New England's surprise packages, did as well as could be expected against the Crusaders, the nation's top team. In fact, they took great delight from the score, since they managed to score more points against the Purple than several of the high-ranking quintets did.

P. C. officials were very philosophical about the defeat in Worcester, giving a one sentence explanation that covered the situation to a nicety. "Just a case of the men against the boys" was the Friar version.

After this week there will be a lull on college athletics around here. The boys will be busy, to be sure, but it will be academically rather than athletically. The mid-years are just ahead. 1-20-50 E. B.

Providence Easy For Holy Cross

WORCESTER, Jan. 18, (INS) — The Holy Cross basketball team recorded win number 16 today after burying Providence College, 84-56, before a sellout crowd at Memorial Auditorium.

The Crusaders played without the services of their high scoring captain, Bob Cousy, who was in the college infirmary with a cold and a 102 degree temperature. It was the first game he had missed in four years.

Matt Forman took over the pace-setting duties for Cousy, coming up with 20 points as the game's high scorer.

The Crusaders wasted no time trampling the Providence team. The Purple led 45-28 at halftime. With ten minutes to go in the final period, the Providence lads trailed, 70-35.

Coach Buster Sheary of Holy Cross sent in a team of reserves to finish out the game.

B. C. Basket Ball Lineup to Be Revamped for Providence Game

After a 10-day layoff the Boston College basket ball team swings back into action against Providence next Tuesday afternoon at the new college gym at University Heights. This is the first of two games scheduled to be played at the Heights this season.

In nine games thus far the Eagles have been hot and cold and currently hold a 5-4 record. They won their first two games, dropped the next two, defeated the following three opponents handily and lost to Holy Cross and DePaul University by wide margins.

Providence offers no consolation to the sophomore-studded Eagles for the visitors have been beaten only once this year and have all the markings of a well-coached team. Holy Cross, the nation's No. 1 quintet, knocked the Friars from the unbeaten ranks last week.

Coach Al McClellan of Boston College isn't too optimistic about the outcome of this contest. "I've seen this Providence team play and they are very good," said the B. C. mentor. "And we'll be fortunate if we beat them."

As a result of injuries, the B. C. lineup has been revamped and four sophomores will start with team's captain Tom O'Brien, the only veteran from last year's squad. Tom O'Toole, third highest scorer, is sidelined with a sprained ankle and Frank Higgins is also nursing injuries.

After this game the Eagles travel to New York to meet the New York A. C. on the 27th and St. Francis College the following night. Then they return to Boston to oppose City College of New York at the Garden Feb. 2.

The record compiled by the Eagles hasn't been too impressive, but by the same token they have been playing against some of the best college quintets in the circuit. Three of the five games in which B. C. was considered underdogs, they managed to win. They defeated Rhode Island State, Loyola (LA), and Yale, all upset victories. Yale was a 16-point pre-game favorite.

B. C. Five Meets Providence at Heights Tomorrow

The Boston College basket ball team plays host to once-beaten Providence College tomorrow afternoon at the Heights. The game starts at 4:30 p. m., and is the first of two frays scheduled at the Boston College gym this season.

To date, the Eagles have compiled a 5-4 record. Providence was one of the few unbeaten quintets in New England until losing to Holy Cross last week.

B. C. has looked impressive in practice and will be meeting the Friars on their home court, which affords a psychological advantage.

Two players are on the disabled list at B. C. Tom O'Toole, sophomore forward, has a sprained ankle and Frank Higgins will miss the Providence game because of a leg injury, which may possibly sideline him the rest of the season.

Coach Al McClellan, who scouted Providence himself, says: "This Providence team is really good, and plays heads up ball," said McClellan. "We'll have to be on our toes to get by them."

PC Quintet In New York, Track Team At Boston

PROVIDENCE — Providence College athletic teams will be on foreign fronts in two different sports this week end. The basketball team will be in New York where the Friars will face Brooklyn College Friday night in Brooklyn and then Saturday the basketeers will invade New Rochelle, NY, where Iona will be the opposition. Saturday night, in the Knights of Columbus Meet at the Boston Garden, Harry Coates, the track coach, has three relay teams entered and two men in individual events.

The Friar two-mile relay team of Bob Aldrich, Bill Sherry, John MacMullen, and Bill Keenan will face Harvard, Brown, Tufts, Boston University, MIT and Holy Cross. Jim Penler, Capt. Jerry McGurkin, Dan Walsh, and John Cassidy compose the one mile relay team that will face Rhode Island State, Tufts, and Springfield. In the Freshmen mile relay, Coates has entered a team of Joe Tetrault, Jim Gannon, Bob Tierman, and Dick Johnson. The Frosh will meet Rhode Island State, Colby, and Springfield.

Larry Marra will run in the 45 yard high hurdles and John Shanley will compete in the pole vault event.

The Boston Garden again will be the center of winter track activity tonight when more than 500 athletes compete in the 61st annual Boston A.A. track meet.

The individual events will draw most of the outstanding performers of the country and 16 college relay races will match the leading collegiate powers in the East.

Brown, Providence College and Rhode Island State will be represented in both individual and relay events. Brown has entered Dick Phillips in the high jump, Hank Barksdale and Jerry Zeoli in the 50-yard dash, a varsity mile and two-mile relay and a freshman mile relay.

Providence College will have three individual entrants—Dan Walsh in the dash, Larry Marra in the high hurdles and John Shanley in the pole vault as well as varsity mile and two-mile relay teams and a freshman mile relay unit. State's individual entries include Art Sherman, Bob Linne and Bill Goodwin in the pole vault, Al Wylie and Bob Sarni in the sprint, Jack Bulleit in the hurdles and high jump and Bob Black in the two mile.

Tough Assignment

The Friars' and the Bruins' one-mile quartets are matched in the same race with Holy Cross, Boston College and Gil Dodds' Wheaton College team. The Rams' mile team will run against Connecticut, Massachusetts and Maine for the Yankee Conference championship. The Brown two-milers will face New York University, Fordham, Seton Hall and Manhattan—a tough assignment. P.C.'s two-mile unit will oppose M.I.T., Holy Cross, Boston University, Harvard and Tufts.

The three freshman relay teams from Rhode Island will run in the same race along with Yale and M.I.T.

Providence College Council Includes Two New Haveners

Providence, Jan. 25—Formation of a seven-member Advisory Athletic Council comprised of faculty, alumni and students was announced today by the Very Rev. Robert J. Slavin, O. P., S. T. Lr., Ph. D., president of Providence College.

Simultaneously with Father Slavin's announcement, Alumni President Frank J. Lowrey, '26, made known that the Alumni Board of Governors had elected William J. Iovanna, '31, of New Haven; Charles F. Reynolds, '26, of Pawtucket, and Joseph P. McGee, '24 of this city, both former Friar athletic luminaries of a quarter of a century ago, to serve on the council.

Iovanna, who will represent the alumni territorial clubs on the council, has long been interested in interscholastic sports. He attended Yale Graduate School for a Master's degree in science after his graduation from Providence. He is a teacher of science in Troup Junior High School, New Haven, and teacher of psychology at New Haven Evening High School. Iovanna has had wide experience as a boys' camp counselor and director of boys groups and is assistant director of the West Haven Community House, vice president of St. John The Evangelist Holy Name Society, member of the Connecticut Educational Association, the New Haven Teachers' League and the New Haven Boys' Club. He is married and father of two children, a boy and a girl.

Reynolds won fame pitching Providence College to a 1 to 0 victory over Brown University in a 20-inning baseball game in 1924, and McGee was the first football captain and a former coach of football at the Dominican College.

James F. Sullivan, of Fall River, a senior, was elected to represent the student body on the panel. The Rev. Edwin H. Schmidt, O. P., adviser to the Student Congress, announced after a special meeting of the student governing group that a supplement to the by-laws will provide for the annual election of a senior by the Student Congress.

B. C.-Providence Hoop Game Put Over Until Tonight

The basket ball game between Boston College and Providence, originally scheduled for this afternoon at the Heights, has been postponed until tonight at 8:15. B. C. and Providence freshmen will tangle at 7.

While Providence has been getting a steady diet of action, B. C. has been recuperating since their set-back by DePaul more than a week ago. Yet, the lull was welcomed because of mounting injuries.

Frank Higgins, B. C. senior from St. Albans, N. Y., has been bothered with a dislocated knee and probably is out for the season. Capt. Tom O'Brien has a sprained wrist, Bill Deegan, six-foot-four center, is nursing an infected foot and sophomore forward Tom O'Toole is favoring a weak ankle.

Because of the casualties, Coach McClellan has declined to name a starting lineup until game time. Sophomore Timmy O'Connell, the Eagles' high scorer, and Dick Fitzgerald are the only two top men definitely ready for action.

Providence, defeated only by Holy Cross, should prove a rugged opponent. With veterans like co-captains Walter Lozowski and Art Weinstock still around, plus Ray Garcia and Sam Nissel, high scorer last year, the Friars are loaded with power.

Friars Still In Slump, Lose Third Straight

NEW ROCHELLE, N.Y.—Still in the throes of a shooting slump, the Providence College basketballers dropped their third straight game Saturday night when they were tripped, 81-70, by Iona. The Friars trailed by five points at halftime and could never catch up.

Jim Schlimm had 21 points and Walt Lozowski, 14, for the Friars who play Boston College tomorrow night at Boston.

Providence College Beaten by Iona

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Jan. 21 (AP)—Iona's basketball team, held in check for 10 minutes, broke away from Providence College tonight for an 81-70 victory.

After six ties, Frank O'Shea put Iona ahead to stay, 22-20, at 9:40. O'Shea, with 16 points, paced the Gaels to their 12th triumph in 13 games.

Providence College to Meet B. C. Five Tonight

Providence College basketball team, defeated in its last three starts will face Boston College at Boston tonight.

The Friars, hoping to get back into the swing, will rule slight favorites over the Eagles. Both teams have conquered Rhode Island State this season, and both have been beaten by Holy Cross.

The Crusaders started the Friars on the down trail last Tuesday after the Cuddymen had won eight games in a row. Since losing to the Cross, the Friars also were upended by Brooklyn College and Iona College.

FRIAR STAR: Frank Pelligrino, Providence College center, has been one of the chief reasons for the Friars' undefeated record thus far this season. He will be in the starting lineup tonight when P.C. plays Holy Cross, top-ranking team in the country, at Worcester tonight.

P.C. Favored Over Eagles; H.C. Tops Poll

Friars Play Tonight At Newton; Crusaders Rated Best in Nation

Providence College, loser of its last three basketball games, will rate as a slight favorite against Boston College tonight at Newton. The Eagles have won five and lost three.

But the big commotion in New England hoop circles today was the Holy Cross Crusaders' ranking, by a landslide margin, as the No. 1 basketball team in the nation. In the weekly poll by the Associated Press, the Worcester Wizards, undefeated in 14 games, took 118 of a possible 166 first-place votes.

The Friars, winners of eight in a row before they met these same Crusaders, have not won since. The other defeats were at the hands of Brooklyn and Iona during their brief road trip last weekend.

B. C. Record

But, against the Eagles, Providence will be playing a team that does not have the ability and agility of the last three opponents. The Bostonians have defeated R. I. State, Yale, Tufts, St. Anselm's and Loyola of Los Angeles and have been downed twice by Holy Cross and once by DePaul.

One of the highlights on the Friar's tour was the play of Jim Schlimm, who paced the scorers. In all, he collected 38 points and with it a starting berth as a forward. Previously, he had been spelling Frank Pelligrino at center. Other starters probably will be Walt Lozoski and Art Weinstock, guards, and Sam Nissel, forward.

There was no question of Holy Cross' high mark in the national ratings this time. Last week, the Crusaders took over the top by a slim margin from St. John's of Brooklyn. This week, however, they collected 1600 points in the rankings, a wide lead over second-place Duquesne (13-0), the only other major team with a clean record.

Friar Five Plays Eagles Tonight At Newton

PROVIDENCE—The Providence College basketball team will be out to regain the win column when it takes on Boston College tonight at Newton. The freshman teams from the two schools will meet in the preliminary at 7 o'clock.

Off to a great start this season, the Friars hit the skids last week losing to Holy Cross, Brooklyn and Iona in three away games. The Eagles have a record of five and three and have dropped their last two starts, to Holy Cross and De Paul of Chicago.

The Friars will open with a line-up of Jim Schlimm and Sam Nissel at the forwards, Frank Pelligrino at center and Walt Lozoski and Art Weinstock at the guards.

Eagles Check Friars, 67-50; Tempers Flare

Boston College's basketball team took off on a second-half scoring spree last night at University Heights to defeat Providence College, 67-50. The Eagles led at half-time, 30-26, in a rough game. Center Tom Deegan sparked the post-intermission splurge that made the Friars' fourth seasonal setback decisive.

The Eagles' half-time margin was 30-26, mostly on the shooting of big Deegan, who went out on fouls midway in the second half. Capt. Tommy O'Brien and Fran Duggan then took up the slack until they too, were banished, but by then the Eagles had enough margin to coast in.

INJURY SIDELINES VISITORS' CENTER

Providence Center Joe Pelligrino suffered a leg injury in an under-the-basket scrimmage in the early second half, and had to leave the game. This board action was rough and several times players squared off, but nothing came of it.

Deegan's 17 points led the Eagles, with O'Brien and Mort Stagoff next with 11 apiece. Duggan and Tim O'Connell looped in nine each. Left forward Jim Schlimm led the Friars with 16 markers.

The freshmen won their fourth game in five starts, beating the young Friars, 58-46, with Jim Mullin leading the way.

Schlimm of P.C. Five Tops All Scorers but
Host B.C. Is Winner

By JOHN HANLON

Basketball fortunes, like elevators and New England weather, are unpredictable and always going up and down.

The handiest illustration is Providence College. After winning eight games in a row, the Friars presently have lost four straight. The last of the four came last evening at Newton, Mass., where Boston College downed the Friars, 67-50. The P.C. Frosh also lost at B.C., 58-46.

"It is enough to give a coach thin hair," a fellow remarked this morning.

The Friars' Vin Cuddy could say, in rebuttal, "Who wnat's fat hair? Just let my club win again."

Not Alone

Cuddy is not the only local coach troubled with contrasts in winning and losing. Brown's Bob Morris is another.

His Bruins were off like speed boys in the first third of their schedule. They won four in a row and looked promising. In the middle four, however, they lost three of them—all during their tour of New York. They were close ones and not worth brooding about.

But the same thing happened in the last four before knocking off for mid-year exams. As a result, the Bruins went at their books with a 6-6 record for half a season's efforts.

Rhode Island State's Rams—to give this thing the proper twist—have done it in reverse. They started off like lambs and present are playing like the Rams of other days.

Seven Straight

In the beginning, they lost three of their first five games. It had all appearances of a dull year. Then the Rams got hot. Before they took time out for exams, they had won seven straight, or 10 out of 14 games.

For the Friars, the next installment in the saga comes Friday night. They play Fairfield at Connecticut. On Saturday they entertain St. Anselm's at Providence. State gets back in action on Feb. 3 against Rutgers in New Jersey; Brown goes again on Feb. 4 against Holy Cross at Worcester.

Against Boston College last night, the Friars kept chipping away at the Eagles' leads, but never quite made it. For example, they tied the count at 24-all late in the first half, but went off at intermission with a four-point deficit, 30-26.

In the second period, they closed the gap to 37-33 and, later, 39-34. But a mid-period spurt put the Eagles in front, 53-38, and that was too much for the Friars.

Schlimm High

Jim Schlimm, who has been the Friars' scoring leader of late, did it again. He collected 17 points, high for the evening. Tom Deegan was the top marksman for B. C. with 15.

Speaking of scorers, the national leaders were posted today—and you'd never recognize a name among them. If you do, you're some basketball fan, or you were graduated from River Falls Teachers College in Wisconsin.

That happens to be the school for which the nation's top scorer plays. His name is Nate DeLong and he has scored 480 points in 19 games. His mark is such that every time he scores a point he sets a new collegiate individual scoring record. He has netted 174 field goals and 132 free throws.

The first names on the list that mean anything in this particular observer's list are Charley Share of Bowling Green (fourth with 385 points) and Sherm White of Long Island (well down with 278 points).

In the East, White is fourth man on the sectional chart. Another of note is John Rockwell, Harvard's towering forward, who has scored 264 points. He is seventh in his area.

Next man is a fellow named Cousy—Bob Cousy. He plays for Holy Cross and is eighth with 261 points. Ever hear of him?

PUGILISTS PREPARE

Carol 2-4-50
Boxing Coach Pete Louthis has announced that this week will be the final opportunity for fellows to sign up at the equipment room for boxing instructions. The line-up for the boxing show will be chosen from these candidates who have worked and trained under his guidance. If enough aspirants report, Louthis plans to stage two shows instead of the originally proposed one.

P.C. Meets Fairfield in Bridgeport

By JOE McHENRY

The Providence College Friars, who have dropped their last four games on the road, hope to get back to their winning ways tonight when they face the Fairfield College basketball team at the Bridgeport Armory in Bridgeport, Conn.

On form the Friars should win, although they had a tough struggle with the Fairfield team in their first meeting at the Mount Pleasant gym before edging out a 60-59 victory in the last four minutes of a nip-and-tuck game.

Fairfield, a Jesuit school located about six miles outside of Bridgeport, is coached by Bob Noonan, a former William & Mary athlete who coached five state-championship teams in Connecticut Boys' Club competition. Jack Sullivan of Bridgeport, captain and best shot on the team, has scored 167 points to date.

Providence, which won eight in a row before the Holy Cross setback, ran into a hot-shooting team when Fairfield played here. On their record of four victories and eight defeats, the Friars shouldn't have as much trouble, for the victories came over Danbury Teachers, Hilliard, New Haven Teachers and N.Y.U. Dental. Fairfield played some fairly good games in losing to St. Anselms, Brooklyn, Brooklyn Poly and Iona among others.

Coach Vin Cuddy of the Friars will start Sam Nissel and Jim Schlimm at forwards, Frank Pelligrino at center, and Co-captains Art Weinstock and Walt Lozoski at guards. At times the Friars played a fine passing and team game against the Boston College Eagles in their last start but couldn't meet the B.C. pressure in a rough second half.

Fairfield is a running team, but doesn't have the strength of some of the foes the Friars have been tackling lately.

Frosh End Semester With 66-52 Victory

Carol 2-7-50
A week ago Saturday night, the Friar Frosh rolled over the Edgewood Junior College quintet, 66-52, before a packed house at the Mount Pleasant High School Gym.

Continued improvement of team play in basic fundamentals was the cause for the P. C. victory. Hal Martin was able to clear the bench in each half and, as a result, the subs were able to gather much needed experience.

Keating, a boy who started slowly, came into his own in this game. His defensive work, especially that under the boards, was greatly improved. Other standouts who were also the high scorers for the Martin-men were Kirby (18) and Clegg (15).

This week, the Frosh quintet moves back into action after a lay-off of nearly two weeks. They play Attleboro High at Attleboro this Thursday night. Saturday night, they will travel over to Marvel gym to meet the Bruin Frosh in the first game of a double-header with the Friar varsity playing the Bear's varsity in the nightcap.

THREE MUSKETEERS

Carol 2-7-50
Few college basketball teams in the United States can claim three performers on their squad that have played ball on the same high school club. Providence College, however, has that distinction. Sam Nissel, Jim Schlimm, and Tom Bauer all hail from the small Pennsylvania town of St. Mary's where they performed for the local sport fans on the high school club. Sam is a junior at P.C. while Tom and Jim are sophomores.

The "acid test" for a good ball club is its ability to make a recovery after one or more serious setbacks. Vin Cuddy and his hoopsters are in the process of doing just that.

With the season about half over, it might be a good idea to look back and consider what the Friars have done to compile their enviable 10-4 record. Before they felt the sting of defeat, the Cuddymen racked up eight straight victories. On the evening of January 17, the most powerful basketball in the country, Holy Cross, put a sharp end to that winning streak with a fashionable 83-55 triumph.

Three more strong teams, Brooklyn College, Iona, and Boston College, followed on the P. C. basketball schedule, and three times the Friars fell before a high-scoring outfit. Lack of defensive strength was, perhaps, the most important factor in each of these three losses. Their offensive rolled on, however, as they averaged more than 70 points in the three contests. Gloom filled the hearts of P. C. fans, replacing the spirit of optimism. But the team proved that it was more than equal to the task of comeback, and went on to finish up the semester with two one-sided wins over Fairfield University and St. Anselm College.

Saturday evening, Marvel Gym will be the site of the clash between Providence College and the Bruins of Brown, their traditional cross-town rivals. Let's take in that game and watch the Friars prove that they are on the comeback trail. Let's show our basketball players that we are behind them in spirit, and have regained, also, that proud feeling which comes with a top-flight ball team representing our school.

With a quick glance into the future we find that baseball and outdoor track are not far away. The major league teams go into spring training in about three weeks. It won't be long before Hal Martin will be calling out his potential Williamses, DiMaggios, and Fellers. Track coach Harry Coates is now preparing for the outdoor season, and especially the second annual Providence College Invitation Outdoor Board Track Meet. This event is one of the grand highlights of the athletic calendar of the College, and the sport fans of Rhode Island call it a must.

The newly formed Athletic Advisory Council should be a definite power in College athletic policy. It will not be too long before it is one of the strongest organizations attached to the College. Aiding the athletic department in such matters as schedules, coaches, varsity sports, intramurals, and the newly proposed gymnasium will be among the topics acted upon by this group.

In a Rhode Island college publication, we recently ran across the following little caption: "Lest We Forget", Providence College 59, R. I. State 57, and the box score of that famous game. With investigation we learned that this newspaper features this item in every edition as a solemn reminder of a basketball defeat. An answer to that expression might be, "How Can We Forget!" We wonder what they will write after the second meeting of the two clubs.

A week ago Monday evening Walt Lozoski, co-captain of the Friars, and Frank Pelligrino, star center, attended a testimonial dinner at the Crown Hotel of two Rhode Island athletes, sponsored by an Armenian-American society of this state. Among the other sport luminaries representing athletic organizations in the neighborhood were: Rip Engle, football coach at Brown; Ivan Fuqut, track mentor of the Bruins; Moe Mahoney, ex-basketball star of Brown; Vin Cuddy, basketball coach of Providence College; Shirley May France, swimmer of English Channel fame, and her coach, Harry Boudakin. This may be a society note, but it is rumored that Frank Pelligrino asked Shirley May to the Junion Prom, but the result showed that Pelly's talents are definitely restricted to the basketball court.

It will be the policy of the sports department of the COWL to report the athletic activities of Providence College in a full and comprehensive manner. Ideas and suggestions will be gratefully accepted. Please drop a line and place it in the COWL Mail Box in the rotunda. Beginning with this issue a column devoted to Dorm League Intramurals will appear on the sports page, giving a little publicity to a much neglected group.

PROVIDENCE COLLEGE has formed a seven-member Advisory Athletic Council, composed of faculty, alumni and students. Alumni members are, left to right: William J. Iovanna, '31, of New Haven; Charles F. Iovanna, a teacher at Troop Junior High School, New Haven, is vice-president of St. John the Evangelist Holy Name Society, in that city. McGee is a former head football coach at Providence College. P. C. TO AVENGE TWO 1949 DEFEATS BRUINS MINUS MAHONEY WEAKENED

By Dick Boulet

Saturday night at Marvel gym the high-flying Providence College Friars will be favored to knock off a weakened Brown University quintet. The Friars, sporting a ten win and four loss record, will be playing their first game in two weeks, but this may serve as an advantage, since they were in need of a rest. Brown, on the other hand, has been greatly weakened by the loss of their ace, "Moe" Mahoney, who was declared ineligible last week.

Coach Vin Cuddy is planning to start the same five which has opened the last four games. The lineup will be Sam Nissel and Jim Schlimm, forwards, Frank Pelligrino at center, and Co-Captains Walt Lozoski and Art Weinstock at the guard posts. The shock troops, the second-string first team, Ray Korbusieski, Jerry Lembo, Ray Garcia, Tom Bauer, and "Skippy" McGuirkin, is expected to see a lot of service. The Bruins will probably counter with a lineup of Zeke Creswell, Ken Provoste, Freddie Kozak, Ned Corcoran, and Marty Badoian.

This game will be the 28th meeting of the schools' quintets, and the P. C.'ers will be out to notch their 17th win. The series between the two institutions started back in the 1921-22 season. The Friars won 11 of the first twelve played, but Brown has had the better of the going since the 1937-38 season, copping ten of fifteen. Last year, the Friars dropped both contests by scores of 59-51 and 75-51.

Winning this game would move the Friars one notch closer to the State College basketball championship, a crown which they haven't won in several years. Certainly, the Friars should be ready for this contest, having had two weeks to prime themselves for it. The layoff, however, could also have an adverse effect.

During the weekend before exams, the Friars played some of their best ball of the campaign. In the Fairfield game at Bridgeport they broke up a close battle with a sensational 52 point scoring splurge in the second half, winning out 83-55. This tilt is indicative of the progress the team has made since the start of the season. For, in their second game of year, a home contest at that, the Friars had difficulty registering a 60-59 decision over this same Fairfield squad which they walloped by 28 points a week ago last Friday. Jim Schlimm, whose accurate marksmanship has added some sorely needed scoring punches to the offence, paced the scorers with eighteen points.

On the Saturday night before exams, the Friars scored their tenth win of the year, defeating St. Anselm's in a high scoring tilt, 91-81. They duplicated their scoring feats of the previous night by racking up 52 points, as they built up a 21 point half-time margin. Hitting on 19 of 45 shots in the first half, the Friars put on one of the best offensive displays exhibited by a Providence College quintet. All the plays worked to perfection as every man played adequately. Frank Pelligrino did tremendous work under the boards, in addition to scoring fourteen points and covering St. Anselm's big man. Sam Nissel and Jim Schlimm were high point men with 20 and 18, respectively.

Coach Cuddy has expressed satisfaction with the general all-around play of his club. Especially encouraging have been their offensive showing, and their scrappy determination to win. Surprisingly, the best percentage shooting and field goal total for a half were recorded in a losing game. In the first half of the game against Brooklyn, the Friars scored 22 pointers in 29 attempts—a sensational 69 per cent.

The team has averaged 67.4 points a contest, a strong indication of their offensive mindedness. They have twice broken 90, racking up 93 against Bates and 91 in the St. Anselm's tilt.

On the individual side of the ledger, the vast improvement of high scoring sophomore Jim Schlimm has been a highlight of the season. His work has been especially pleasing to Coach Cuddy. Starting the season on the second team, his scoring efforts enabled him to break into the top five. The hustling hard-driving work of Sam Nissel has also been very satisfactory, while the rebounding and scoring of Frank Pelligrino has been little short of superlative.

High scorer for the first half of the season is Jim Schlimm with 186 points, followed by Frank Pelligrino, 156, Sam Nissel, 152, Walt Lozoski, 82, Ray Korbusieski, 75, Ray Garcia, 70, and Art Weinstock, 69. Sophomore Jerry Lembo, out of several games because of a shoulder injury, has scored only 24 points, but they have certainly been big ones, helping to win the State and St. Anselm's games.

Dormuralites

By Joe Laughlin

Although the dorm basketball league is reaching its final stages, there still remains many more thrilling games to be played. So far, the dorm league has provided fast entertainment for those students who, not only enjoy watching the game but who also like to participate in it. It is nothing out of the ordinary to go over to Harkins gym at the time one of these contests are being played and see a large number of the students relaxing from their studies in the enjoyment of this sport. Not only is it of entertainment value but it is a strong factor in introducing the different students and binding them with the bond of friendship.

Each year it remains for some person to fulfill the tasks of getting the teams together, preparing the schedules, seeing that competent referees are on the job, and many other details that are concerned with the dorm league. This year it is through the tireless efforts of Joe Beatrice that we are able to appreciate and enjoy the league.

Due to the retreat there will be no games played this week until Thursday, when the Metropolitan 1 will face the boys from Western Massachusetts for the first game of the evening. The second game which starts at seven will feature the Boston Club against the Freshmen Business. The final contest of the evening brings together Waterbury and Donnelly. Games played on Friday are as follows: Heidelberg and the Kigmies (this should prove to be a winner); Western Mass. and Donnelly, Met. 2 and the Scientists. On Saturday, Guzman will meet New Haven, Heidelberg versus Met 1, the Kigmies (fulfilling their appellation) will go against Donnelly, finally the Eagles will tackle the Met. Club 2.

As the league stands now, top honors go to the snappy quintet from Newport. Included in this aggregation are such court notables as Backborad Beatrice, Layup Lynch, Joe Lalli, Goose Caputi, Bob Flaherty, Swish MacKinnon, Lou Murphy, Warren Dobson, and last but not least, Pete Razza the dazzler. It is well known that the Newport club is a crowd pleaser. Their games not only furnish excitement but a great deal of fine basketball is displayed.

A dormitory tennis league is in the making. Further information concerning this league will be in the forthcoming issue of the COWL.

FRIARS FACE BROWN IN QUEST

Runners Meet With Ill Fate At Boston In 3 Relay Races

Crabtree 50
By John Salesses

Lady Luck did not smile upon Providence College as its track team invaded Boston Garden for the B.A.A. games last Saturday night.

The 2 mile varsity relay team, composed of John McMullen, Frank Lusier, Bill Sherry and Bill Keenan, was pitted against Tufts, Harvard, Holy Cross, Boston University, and M.I.T. They placed fourth behind Tufts, M.I.T., and B.U.

McMullen was unable to make up the deficit of 15 yards gained by the leaders. The distance was cut a few yards by Sherry. Then Keenan, as anchorman, turned on a terrific burst of speed. Coming into the back stretch the leaders bunched up. However, Lady Luck was not with the Friars as the Tufts anchorman stumbled across the finish line with M.I.T. an eyelash later. Keenan, running as great a race as he did, could not make up the final 2 yards of the 15 yards deficit that he had acquired.

In the next event in which P.C. was entered, Jack Cassidy, Jim Penler, Jerry Kallman and Gerry McGurkin represented the 1 mile relay team. Harry Coates had planned to use Bob Aldrich as his lead off man, but a spike wound in the ankle received by Aldrich during practice last Friday prevented him from running. As a result Cassidy was moved from his anchor position to the lead off spot.

Kallman, as third man, turned in a fine race. He came from 9 yards behind the leaders as he handed the baton to McGurkin. However, P.C.'s anchorman, try as he would, was not able to keep up the blistering pace and placed 4th behind Holy Cross, Boston College and Brown.

The Freshman 1 mile relay team with Joe Tetrault, Jim Gannon, Dick Johnson and Bob Tiernan placed second behind Brown. Other teams in the same event were R. I. State, Yale and M.I.T.

Brown led by 4 yards at the start of the fourth leg. After receiving the baton from Johnson, Tiernan had a little trouble getting started and as a result, he lost valuable yardage. His opponent was George Malineaux of Brown. After losing about 2 more yards, Tiernan put on a burst of speed and passed the Brown man before the start of the last bank. But all to no avail, as Malineaux saved his kick till the end of the bank and won the race by a yard.

In the other events Larry Marra failed to place in running against a strong field in his heat of the 45 yard high hurdles. Dan Walsh did not have a chance to run as he was disqualified after two false starts. John Shanley bowed out of the pole vault failing to clear 12'6".

Tomorrow night, the Providence College track team under the guidance of Harry Coates enters the running events of the N.E.A.A.U. There should be plenty of backing from the students of this school for the meet as it takes place at the Cranston Street Armory in Providence.

RHODE ISLANDERS TAKE TWO FIRSTS IN MEDFORD MEET

Sherman Wins N.E. Pole Vault and Borgeson the Weight in Tufts Competition

Special to The Providence Journal
Medford, Mass., Feb. 6.—Rhode Island trackmen captured two of the three field events held here today as part of the annual New England A.A.A.U. indoor championships which will be completed Wednesday night at the Cranston Street Armory in Providence.

Art Sherman of R.I. State won the pole vault with a clearance of 12 feet, 6 inches and Gil Borgeson of Brown took first-place honors in the 35-pound weight with a toss of 55 feet, 9 inches. He beat out Tom Bane of Tufts by $8\frac{1}{8}$ inches.

John Shanley of Providence College tied for second place in the pole vault with Peter Harwood of the B.A.A. at 12 feet. Bob Linne of State placed fourth.

Rudy Fobert of Tufts won the closely contested broad jump with a leap of 22 feet, $3\frac{1}{8}$ inches. The first three men bettered 22 feet and the fourth just missed by three-quarters of an inch.

Tufts took the lead in the team point-scoring with 10 points, followed by R.I. State, 6, Brown 5, P.C. $3\frac{1}{2}$, B. A. $2\frac{1}{2}$, Medford H. S. 2, and Northeastern 1.

These points will count toward the N. E. team championship which is being defended by Brown. Wednesday's program will consist of 10 events for men and nine for women. A field of 307 men and 46 women will compete and performances in the meet will be used as a basis of qualification to represent this section in the National A.A.U. meet in New York on Feb. 18.

New England colleges entered include Brown, R.I., P.C., Bryant, Massachusetts, Dartmouth, Northeastern, Tufts, Williams, Amherst, Springfield, Worcester Tech, Boston University and Boston College. Club entries include the B.A.A., North Medford, Eagle A.C., Boston, Scandinavian-American Club of Worcester, and the R.I. Track Officials Association.

The Little Rhody A.C., Bancroft A.C. of Arlington, Mass., Red Diamond A.C. of Medford, and a team of Barrington High School girls will compete for the women's relay title.

Competition in the shot put will get the meet under way at 7 p.m. Trials in the first running events will start at 7:30 o'clock.

The summary:
Broad jump—won by Rudy Fobert, Tufts, 22:3 $\frac{1}{8}$; 2, Cort Ellis, Boston U., 22:2 $\frac{1}{4}$; 3, Peter Terry, Medford H.S., 22:2 $\frac{1}{8}$; 4, Saul Mazzacca, Northeastern, 21:11 $\frac{1}{4}$.
35-pound weight—won by Gil Borgeson, Brown, 55:9; 2, Tom Bane, Tufts, 55:3 $\frac{1}{4}$; 3, Robert Backus, Tufts, 50:1 $\frac{1}{2}$; 4, Rocco DiFalco, P.C., 48:7 $\frac{1}{4}$.
Pole vault—won by Art Sherman, R.I. State, 12:6; 2, tie between John Shanley, P.C. and Peter Harwood, B.A.A., 12 feet; 4, Bob Linne, R.I. State, 11:6.

Brown University's track team successfully defended its team title in the annual New England AAAU indoor championships before 1000 fans last night at the Cranston Street Armory.

On the strength of six first places the Bruins rolled up 33 points and beat out their closest rival, Tufts College, by five. Providence College finished third with 12½, R.I. State fourth with 11, Boston University fifth with 7½.

The Williams College team of Al Bacharach, Jim Haskell, W. Zeigenthal and Kevin Delaney won the mile relay title in 3:42.7. The finish was practically a triple dead-heat with Providence College's No. 1 and 2

Brown, State Fives Resume Play As Friars Pause for Mid-Years

By JOE McHENRY

The Providence College Friars, who provided most of the college basketball activity for the Rhode Island area last week while Brown and Rhode Island State busied themselves with exams and such, will be on the sidelines themselves this week while the Bruins and the Rams swing back into action.

The Friars wound up their pre-exam activity with victories over Fairfield and St. Anselm's and in one section of each game the Friars have seldom played better. In the second half against Fairfield and the first against the Hawks, the Friars played some of their best basketball of the season.

This was a much better sign against the Hawks for the Friars pulled their first game out of the fire in the last minute of play at Manchester. Saturday night they were whipping the ball around in fine style, shooting efficiently (about 45 per cent) and hustling as well. In addition, they have been doing better in their rebounding, with Frank Pelligrino much more help around the boards.

Fine Job

Coach Vin Cuddy has done a fine job with the Providence team. The development of slim Jim Schlimm into a more valuable cog, the comeback of Sam Nissel after his head injury and the general lift of the entire squad, have all been factors in Providence's fine play this season. They have a 10-4 record at the moment, although practically every game is a tough one from here on.

The Friars will have examinations, followed by a retreat and a short vacation before returning to the court to meet Coach Bob Morris'

Providence College Quintet Wins, 91-81

PROVIDENCE, Jan. 28 (AP)— Dropping their shots at a 45 per cent pace, the Providence College Friars scored a 91 to 81 victory over St. Anselm for their 10th victory in 14 starts here tonight. Sam Nissel, Jim Schlimm and Fran Pelligrino led the Friars, although scoring honors went to Nick Bastin and Bill O'Connor of the Hawks, who scored 26 and 24 points respectively. The Friars led 52-31 at the half.

PC Friars Defeated By BC Eagles, 67-50

BOSTON — Coach Vin Cuddy's Providence College Friars dropped their fourth straight basketball decision last night when they bowed to Boston College, 67-50, at the Eagles' gymnasium. It was a rough game, and the officials called 52 fouls. BC led at the halfway mark, 30-26. Deegan had 15 points, Stagoff and O'Brien 11 apiece for BC, while Schlimm tossed in 17 for the Friars. In the prelim, BC's Frosh defeated the Providence first yearmen, 58-46.

3 R.I. Colleges Enter Men in BAA Meet

By PETE McCARTHY

The Boston Garden again will be the center of winter track activity tonight when more than 500 athletes compete in the 61st annual Boston A.A. track meet.

The individual events will draw most of the outstanding performers of the country and 16 college relay races will match the leading collegiate powers in the East.

Brown, Providence College and Rhode Island State will be represented in both individual and relay events. Brown has entered Dick Phillips in the high jump, Hank Barksdale and Jerry Zeoli in the 50-yard dash, a varsity mile and two-mile relay and a freshman mile relay.

Providence College will have three individual entrants—Dan Walsh in the dash, Larry Marra in the high hurdles and John Shanley in the pole vault as well as varsity mile and two-mile relay teams and a freshman mile relay unit. State's individual entries include Art Sherman, Bob Linne and Bill Goodwin in the pole vault, Al Wylie and Bob Sarni in the sprint, Jack Bulleit in the hurdles and high jump and Bob Black in the two mile.

Relay Setup

The 'Friars' and the Bruins' one-mile quartets are matched in the same race with Holy Cross, Boston College and Gil Dodds' Wheaton College team. The Rams' mile team will run against Connecticut, Massachusetts and Maine for the Yankee Conference championship. The Brown two-milers will face New York University, Fordham, Seton Hall and Manhattan—a tough assignment. P.C.'s two-mile unit will oppose

M.I.T., Holy Cross, Boston University, Harvard and Tufts.

The three freshman relay teams from Rhode Island will run in the same race along with Yale and M.I.T.

Andy Stanfield of Seton Hall, Millrose winner, Jim Fielding of Georgetown, Boston K. of C. meet victor, and Ira Kaplan of N.Y.U. will be the favorites in the dash field.

Phillips expects to improve on his performance in New York, where he placed second with a jump of 6-foot-5 last week. It was his first start of the season and the result was gratifying in view of his enforced absence from competition because of a broken blood vessel in his right foot.

More Work—Better

He remarked after the Millrose meet that he felt confident he would do better this week with a little more work behind him.

Sherman again will have to face the nation's three top pole vaulters in Bob Richards, Don Laz of the University of Illinois, and Bobby Smith of San Diego State.

Fred Wilt, the FBI agent running for the New York A.C. who came out second best after a judges' dilemma in the Wanamaker Mile, will return to his favorite distance—the two mile—tonight, in which race Viljo Heino, Finnish Olympian will make his American debut.

A field of six will battle it out in the Hunter Mile with Dublin's John Joe Barry, Yale's George Wade, Sweden's Alf Holmberg and John Twomey of the Illinois A.C. all conceded a chance of winning.

Other headliners entered are Harrison Dillard in the hurdles, Frank Fox in the 600, and Phil Thigpen of Seton Hall in the 1000. These three are expected to prevail over top-notch opposition in their specialties

Former St. Bonaventure Chief To Pick Own Violet Assistants

New Job Puts Onetime Notre Dame Interim Mentor Within Commuting Distance of Jersey Home

By Jesse Abramson

Hugh John Devore, who knows his way around the Bronx, is returning to that borough as New York University's football coach. His appointment to the post which Hook Mylin gave up as a bad job was disclosed yesterday after Devore agreed to terms in a conference with Professor John F. Sullivan, chairman of N. Y. U.'s badgered Board of Athletic Control.

Only the day before Devore had resigned as coach of St. Bonaventure College, where, in the last four years, his teams won twenty-five games, lost nine and tied one.

The length and salary of Devore's contract were not revealed, but Sullivan said that the new coach would name his own assistants, subject to the approval of the athletic board.

Devore left the Bonnies partly because Olean, N. Y., is not within commuting distance of his home at 3 Yale Terrace, West Orange, N. J., where he lives with his wife and five children, one of whom had a birthday yesterday.

Once Notre Dame Coach

Thirty-nine years old, Hughie has coached at five colleges, and in 1945 he was the interim head coach of Notre Dame, filling in for Frank Leahy, and winning seven, losing two (to Army and Great Lakes) and tying Navy.

The black-haired, quiet-spoken Devore has worked under and with some of the game's outstanding figures. A Newark boy, he was Notre Dame's regular end at 180 pounds through three varsity seasons, captaining his team in 1933. As a sophomore he played on Knute Rockne's last team. He coached Notre Dame's freshmen in 1934 under Elmer Layden, then moved to Fordham as assistant to Jimmy Crowley in 1935-'36-'37. During those three years of Fordham glory the Maroon and Pitt played its famous three scoreless ties. Devore was chief scout for Crowley.

He had his own team as coach at Providence College from 1938 to 1941, then the school gave up football. He was assistant to Ank Scanlan at Holy Cross in 1942 and the scout credited with doing the spade work for the celebrated 55-to-12 upset of unbeatable Boston College.

Succeeded McKeever

He went back to Notre Dame as aid to Leahy in 1943, and took over as head coach after Ed McKeever went to Cornell. At St. Bonaventure he turned out good teams, beating William and Mary in an upset and tying Boston College in 1948, upsetting Boston University's ambitious eleven last year.

There's no doubt Devore can coach, but it remains to be seen what he'll have to coach at N. Y. U., whose paucity of material and lack of quality bedeviled Hook Mylin in his unhappy three-year tenure.

Devore probably came to some understanding with the bewildered N. Y. U. leaders, whose policy, or lack of it, is subjected to repeated alumni complaints.

On Jan. 10 the university's top-echelon council appointed a committee of five, headed by Paul Hudson, to study the entire athletic set-up at N. Y. U. Hudson declined to say yesterday if any report has been made or when it will be made.

Chancellor Harry W. Chase, at the time he appointed the council committee, stated that in the meantime "football will be continued on as favorable a basis as possible without departing widely from existing budgets and practices."

No Interim Job

Some alumni seemed to think that, until the council came up with a statement of policy, only an interim coach would be named. It is doubted, however, that Hughie Devore, eager though he is to get within commuting distance of West Orange, N. J., accepted a one-year contract or an interim job. It's more likely he got assurances that N. Y. U. would support him with material up to the limit and within the limits of the Sanity Code—if there is still a Sanity Code.

N. Y. U. hardly operates on a big-league basis these days, on or off the football field. Devore was not available when his appointment was announced. Professor Sullivan thought he might arrange a press conference if the school wanted to meet Devore. Well, back, Hughie.

Devore Resigns Coaching Job at St. Bonaventure

OLEAN, N. Y., Feb. 1 (AP)—St. Bonaventure College tonight accepted "with regret" the resignation of Hugh Devore, head football coach for the past four years.

Devore's future plans were not made clear in a letter to college officials, which said:

"Conditions relative to my own family and the necessity that I be near them caused me to tender my resignation at this time with my deepest regret."

Very Rev. Juvenal Lalor, O. F. M., president of the college, said the college committee on athletics agreed at a special session that Devore's "request was sufficiently grave to grant his relief from his contract, which had two more years to run."

Devore was on the campus today, but was believed to have left by train for his home in West Orange, N. J.

The 39-year-old Devore was head coach at Notre Dame in 1945 and assistant coach there the two previous years.

Previously he was assistant coach at Holy Cross, head coach at Providence (R. I.) College, assistant coach at Fordham and freshman coach at Notre Dame.

His St. Bonaventure salary was understood unofficially to be about $10,000 a year.

Devore Indefinite On Football Future

OLEAN, N. Y., Feb. 2 (AP)—Hugh Devore's plans were anybody's guess today after his resignation as football coach at St. Bonaventure College.

Devore's outstanding four-year record here and his previous experience at Notre Dame, Fordham, Providence and Holy Cross made him rumored a possibility for several major coaching vacancies. But he gave no hint of his plans before going home to West Orange, N. J.

Brown, P.C. Quintets Meet Tomorrow Night

Brown and Providence College square off in the first of their two-game series tomorrow night at the Marvel Gymnasium, with the Friars slight favorites. It will be the first start in two weeks for the Friars, who have been idle with midyear exams and a retreat, while the Bruins lost their last start to Connecticut on Wednesday at Storrs.

Providence won its only start in the state series, beating Rhode Island at the Auditorium, and has a 10-4 record for the season. Brown swept the two games last year but the Friars hold a 16-11 edge in the series.

Coach Vin Cuddy of the Friars will start Jim Schlimm and Sam Nissel as the forwards, Fran Pelligrino at center and co-captains Walt Lozoski and Art Weinstock at guards. They have opened the last six games with Schlimm now the team's leading scorer and chief threat.

Moe Mahoney will again lead the Bruins, who are under .500 with six victories in 14 games. Coach Bob Morris may or may not have Ed Corcoran available for the Newporter has had an ankle injury. If Corcoran is not ready, Ben Patrick or Ken Provost may start along with Fred Kozak, Zeke Creswell, Chuck Whelan and Mahoney.

Sports Council At P.C. Holds First Meeting

The Athletic Advisory Council of Providence College met for the first time since its recent appointment at an organization meeting yesterday at Harkins Hall. The Very Rev. Robert J. Slavin, O.P., president of Providence College, talked briefly on the function of the group and the sports picture at P.C. in particular.

It is the purpose of this newly-formed group to make recommendations on sports, physical education and student health to the administration of the college.

The council includes three alumni—Joseph P. McGee, former Friar football coach; Charles Reynolds, one of the Friars' greatest pitchers and presently deputy commissioner of athletics for the state in charge of boxing and William Iovana of New Haven, Conn., a representative of the territorial groups outside Rhode Island.

James Sullivan, a senior who played shortstop on the Friars' baseball team last season, represents the student body and the Student Council, on the committee. The faculty representation includes the Rev. Vincent C. Dore, O.P., dean; the Rev. A. B. Begley, O.P., faculty moderator of athletics, and Father Slavin, ex-officio.

The committee plans to meet three times a year, with special sessions to be called at other times. The next regular meeting is scheduled for Alumni Day, June 10 at the college.

PROVOST SPARKS HUSTLING BRUINS IN RUGGED GAME

Ken Pegs 16 Points Through Hoop; Mahoney, Kozak
Steady Performers

By JOE McHENRY

The Brown basketball team, which had dropped its last three games, shook off its slump and scored a hard fought 62-to-48 victory over the Providence College Friars before over 2000 fans last night at the Marvel Gym.

The Bears turned in one of their best jobs in recent weeks, although the favored Friars showed the effects of their two-week layoff for mid-year exams and recess.

It wasn't a particularly brilliant game as far as outstanding basketball was concerned but it was a rugged struggle with the Bruins out-hustling the Friars. There was a lot of contact, with the resulting fouls. Brown made much better use of its chances from the free throw line, dropping in 22 points in 33 tries, although they had only a three basket margin, 20-17, from the floor.

Brown's top man was Ken Provost, the New Haven senior, who got the Bears off on the right foot in the early going and took down scoring honors with 16 points, sinking six for six in free throws. It was Provost's best job of the season and his early play proved to be the spark which started the Bruins on their way.

Corcoran Contributes

The dependables, Moe Mahoney and Fred Kozak, were close up. Mahoney did a good job on the boards. Kozak played driving game and his style proved a nuisance value in the stretch. Ned Corcoran came in to throw in some timely hoops when it appeared that the Friars might come up level with the Bruins.

The Friars, back in action after midyear exams and recess, were rusty against Brown. But they should have fairly easy going this week. St. Peter's, relatively unknown in this area, has no victories of consequence. Springfield, one of the Friars' early-season victims, has developed into quite a club. Its most recent feat was losing out to Long Island by a single point, 59-58. The Gymnasts might not be so easy, at that.

Providence College Meets St. Peter's Quintet Tonight

Teams Clash at Mt. Pleasant
High Gym; Friar Frosh Play Nichols J.C.

Providence College's Friars will meet St. Peter's College, one of basketball's "spoilers," at Mount Pleasant High School gym tonight. Game time is 8:30 o'clock.

In the preliminary, at 7 o'clock, the Friars' Freshman team will take on Nichols Junior College.

St. Peter's, located in Jersey City, N.J., is one of those teams that is hard to figure. You don't hear too much about the Peacocks—that's the team's label—in their routine games. But once or twice a season they break into the news with an upset victory over one of the "important" teams in the East. That's why they are "spoilers."

Played Tie Game

This season is no exception. They have downed Fordham and Seton Hall—no minor-league teams—and, in the season's oddity, held strong Manhattan to a 69-69 tie. That's the game in which one of the officials was injured and, rather than continue play with just one man calling them, the contest was not played to a finish. So the Peacock's took a tie—when they were not rated an outside chance.

In all, their record for the year is well on the plus side. Last year's club compiled a slate of 16-5. They are coached by Pete Caruso, up with the club for his first year after a successful stint as a high school coach.

The Friars, whose record is 10-5, lost their first start after mid-year exams and recess last Saturday. Brown was the victor in a game in which neither team was at its best. Coach Vin Cuddy said last night that his Friars since have "looked a little sharper" in practice, and he looks for a better showing by the club.

Need to Be Sharp

"We had better be sharper," he said, "because we have a rough stretch ahead. Our next one, after St. Peter's, is Springfield Saturday night—and there is an improved team."

Cuddy probably will go along with his usual lineup, which includes Co-Captains Art Weinstock and Walt Lozoski, Frank Pelligrino, Sam Nissel and Ray Garcia. Jim Schlimm and Tom Orr will see considerable action.

CATHOLIC COLLEGIATE LEAGUE A REALITY!

THE Eastern Catholic Intercollegiate Basketball Conference is now a reality. Twelve Catholic colleges are readying their 1950-51 basketball schedules, working each other into plans for the newly formed Conference.

Iona (Irish Christian Brothers), Le Moyne (Jesuit), St. Francis of Brooklyn (Franciscan Brothers), St. Francis of Loretto, Pa. (Franciscan T.O.R.), Loyola (Jesuit), Providence (Dominican), Seton Hall (secular clergy), St. Peter (Jesuit), Scranton (Jesuit), St. Bonaventure (Franciscan), Kings (Holy Cross Fathers), and Siena (Franciscan) are the charter schools entered in this Conference.

The Conference will be guided by a board of directors composed of Father Carey of Seton Hall, Father Grady of St. Peter's, Father Begley of Providence and Bill McGuire of St. Francis. When we approached McGuire on the story he stated, "St. Francis is trying to schedule every team in the Conference for next season. Most of the schools are regulars with us but we would like to have all of them. The Conference must click, even if we have to play 30 games in the season."

Asa Bushnell, commissioner of the Eastern College A.C., told this bureau that informal talks were made with his office about this new Conference being affiliated with the ECAC. It may have been on the agenda of the special meeting of the group Wednesday, Feb. 8. This indicates that the new Catholic loop is after complete recognition and plans to have things up to all rules.

Jack Butler

Information on... it is safe to predict that applications for membership will be accepted in the future. The missing schools from the Conference are: Boston College, Holy Cross, St. Michael's, St. Anselm's, Niagara, Canisius, St. Vincent's, Catholic U., Mt. St. Mary's, Fordham, Manhattan, St. John's, Villanova, La Salle, St. Joseph's and Georgetown. One or two others may be included like Duquesne, Fannon, Fairfield, and Assumption. The Conference could be run in sections and would add to the competitive relations in sports that each school has enjoyed.

For over five years this reporter has suggested the formation of a Catholic College Athletic Conference. The proposal was met in many quarters as impossible but we would not believe it. Encouragement from scholastic editors and the clergy to keep on with the suggestion was rewarded. Father Carey of Seton Hall College carried the ball with meetings and action. His dynamic personality and desire to make this Conference a reality, instead of words on paper, is one of the reasons the Conference will succeed.

It is understood that member schools will continue to play schools which are not members of the Conference. It is not a league to close competition from others but a Conference to knit sports relations closer.

Congratulations to all for a job well done.

back, Provost dropping in a pretty hot. The game was tied up at 2-all, but then the Bruins pulled away and although the lead fluctuated, Providence never was out front.

Brown Keeps Control

Brown built up a seven-point lead about 8½ minutes along, 15-8, but the Friar rooters thought that was but a temporary thing and matters would right themselves. The P.C. adherents lived on that hope for the rest of the game for although Providence made spurts, they faltered and Brown kept control of play.

The Bruins led by 8, 9, 10, and 11 points at various stages of the first half, with Providence trailing 26-16 at the 15-minute mark and 29-20 with about two minutes left in the half. Brown led 31-23 at intermission.

The second half was about five minutes old when the Bears built up a 15-point margin, 42-27, and the way the fortunes of the game were rolling, Brown even at that time had too much of a lead to overcome. Providence cut it down to 48-40, with Orr and Garcia sparking the rally, but Brown was still eight points up, 50-42, with five minutes to go.

Brown played a delaying game from about the 11th minute of the second half, making the Friars come to them and Providence couldn't get the ball without fouling. Providence was within eight points, 53-45, with three minutes left, but the Bears lengthened their lead in the closing moments.

Mahoney fouled out with 3:35 left while Pete Tyrrell of Brown and Sam Nissel of the Friars also went out on fouls.

Friars, Bruins List Hoop Action Tonight

By JOE McHENRY

The Providence College Friars and the Brown Bruins swing into action tonight against a couple of toughies, with the Friars facing St. Peter's at Mount Pleasant High and Brown tackling the Elis at New Haven.

The Friars have the better chance of victory although the Peacocks come well rated in Jersey basketball. Yale, after a slow start, is playing a sound game and off its smashing victory over Cornell looms as too much for Brown.

Coach Vin Cuddy of the Friars says his club has looked a lot better in the workouts this week and apparently is ready to shake off the "layoffitis," which was evident in the defeat by Brown. He'll go along with much the same starting lineup although Ray Garcia has moved back into the top five by his outstanding play against Brown and will fit in somewhere.

Passes 1000 Mark

St. Peter's has a top notch scorer in Wally Sheil, who recently went over the 1000-point mark in the Peacocks' last start against John Marshall. The Lawmakers won that one, 76 to 74, although it was nip and tuck all the way. St. Peter's lost to Villanova, split with Seton Hall, beat Fordham, tied Manhattan, and lost to Iona, so they have a pretty good club this season.

Providence and St. Peter's have met only once on the basketball court, with St. Peter's winning 70 to 60 last season. They used to meet in baseball. Pete Caruso, who had outstanding scholastic success, is in his first year as coach of the Peacocks, who had a 16 and 5 record last year as well as a good Frosh team coming up.

Providence didn't play its best ball against Brown, with perhaps only Garcia, Walt Lozoski and Ray Korbusieski doing a real hustling job over the route and Tom Orr contributing some fine spot work. However Coach Cuddy's lineup will be Lozoski and Art Weinstock at guards, Fran Pelligrino at center and Sam Nissel and either Jim Schlimm or Garcia at forwards.

Issue Settled in Last Minute As St. Peter's Bows, 69-68

Basket by Nissel Gives P.C.
Its Edge With Only 40

Seconds to Go

By PETE McCARTHY

After enjoying leads of 10 points four times in the second half, Providence College's basketball team had to settle for a 69-68 victory over St. Peter's College of Jersey City last night at Mount Pleasant High School.

With the exception of the opening and closing minutes, the Friars were front runners, but the visiting Peacocks stole a lot of the Friars' thunder going down the stretch and came within a whisker of handing P.C. its sixth defeat of the season.

Paced by Tom Smith, Walt Shiel and Jim Bradley, the visitors pecked away at the Friars' lead and finally tied the score at 55-all at 11:25 of the second period. Aroused by that challenge, the Friars went on the march again and puled away to a 65-58 advantage at the 14-minute mark.

Winning Basket

But then the Friars again showed their disdain for prosperity. They grew careless with their passing and were slow to drop back on the Peacocks' fast breaks with the result that St. Peter's overtook them at 66-65 in two minutes time.

Joe McMahon hit twice with one-handers, Smith dropped in a set from the side and Shiel made it 66-65 by sinking a brace of foul shots. The clock showed four minutes and 40 seconds left.

Jim Schlimm, the Friars' outstanding performer with 27 points, tied it vantage of the gift throws and managed to hang on to their precarious one-point lead.

St. Peter's led twice briefly in the opening minutes of the game, but after Nissel had put the Friars ahead, 9-8, with a set shot from the side at the five-minute mark, they held the lead for the rest of the half. Nissel and Schlimm accounted for 29 points between them as P.C. prevailed by 35-27 at the half.

Providence dominated the early action of the second half and built up a 43-33 lead in three minutes before the visitors caught fire.

The Friars, away off on their marksmanship from the foul line, sank only 15 out of 29. St. Peter's converted 16 in 22 attempts.

Friar Frosh Win

P.C. lost only one man on fouls. Ray Garcia departed with eight minutes to go. Smith and Shiel fouled out in the closing seconds.

Two technical fouls were called on St. Peter's, one for repeated heckling by one of the players on the visitors' bench and the other for failing to throw the ball to the official on an out-of-bounds call. Pete Caruso, the visitors' coach, acknowledged the referee's displeasure by sending the bench jockey to an early shower.

In addition to Schlimm and Nissel, Co-Captains Walt Lozoski and Art Weinstock, Frank Pelligrino and Ray Garcia all had a big share in the Friars' 11th victory in 16 starts. St. Peter's now has a record of 10 triumphs, six defeats and one tie, the latter and unfinished game with Manhattan which was halted by an injury to the referee.

Jim Prendergast paced the Providence College Freshmen to an 80-72 victory over Nichols Junior College in the preliminary game.

up again at the 17-minute mark with a foul conversion. Smith, on a driving layup shot, restored the lead to St. Peter's about a minute later and Sam Nissel closed the gap to one point by sinking a free throw with a minute remaining.

The Friars took the ball out of bounds after the successful shot and seconds later Nissel drove in from the corner and sank a layup for what proved to be the winning basket. There were about 40 seconds remaining at this point and the Friars were saved when a jump ball was called shortly thereafter near the St. Peter's basket.

Pressure

The ball went out of bounds on the tap and P.C. was given possession. This put the pressure on the visitors and they fouled three times in an attempt to get the ball. However, the Friars failed to take ad-

Nissel Stars As St. Peter's Bows to P.C.

Sam's 3 Clutch Points
Bring 69-68 Victory;
Elis Jolt Bears, 74-54

By JOE McHENRY

They didn't carry Sam Nissel off the court on their shoulders but if Coach Vin Cuddy of the Friars had rushed over and kissed him you couldn't have blamed him. The Friars pulled out a 69-68 victory over St. Peter's of Jersey City last night at the Mount Pleasant gym and the game was about as tight as the handicappers figured.

Nissel scored the three clutch points after the Peacocks had taken a 68-66 lead with less than two minutes left. His foul shot brought it up to 67-68 and he threw in the winning basket, with the help of Ray Korbusieski, out of scramble, in the final minute. It was the third time the Friars have managed to get the odd point to win one-point victories this year.

The Friars, after leading by 10 points at several stages, were ahead, 65-58, with about six minutes left. Joe McMahon, Smith and Sheil led a rally which put St. Peter's ahead. Smith's long set from the side and two free throws by Sheil, who was a bearcat in the second half after being "rested" for his first half activity, put the Peacocks in front, 66-65, with less than four minutes remaining.

Schlimm's foul shot tied the score but Smith dribbled down the left and scored to make it 68-66. That's where Nissel took over, getting a free throw at 1:10 and a basket a few seconds later. Then the play was frantic on both sides. The Friars got three free throws as St. Peter's fouled trying to get the ball but couldn't sink any one of them. And in the process Smith and Sheil both fouled out for St. Peter's.

The Friars, although scoring practically 70 points, were not as sharp as they were before the exams. St. Peter's played good ball, although a couple of technical fouls against them, which were converted into points by Lozoski, hurt them definitely in the long run. Art Weinstock, Joe Blain and Korbusieski did some good work in spots.

St. Peter's and Providence put on a thriller, with the Peacocks coming strong in the second half and all but winning the ball game. Tom Smith, unorthodox but effective in his foul shooting and real driver, was the St. Peter's pace maker, although Wally Sheil, who has 375 points this year, was a big factor in the second half.

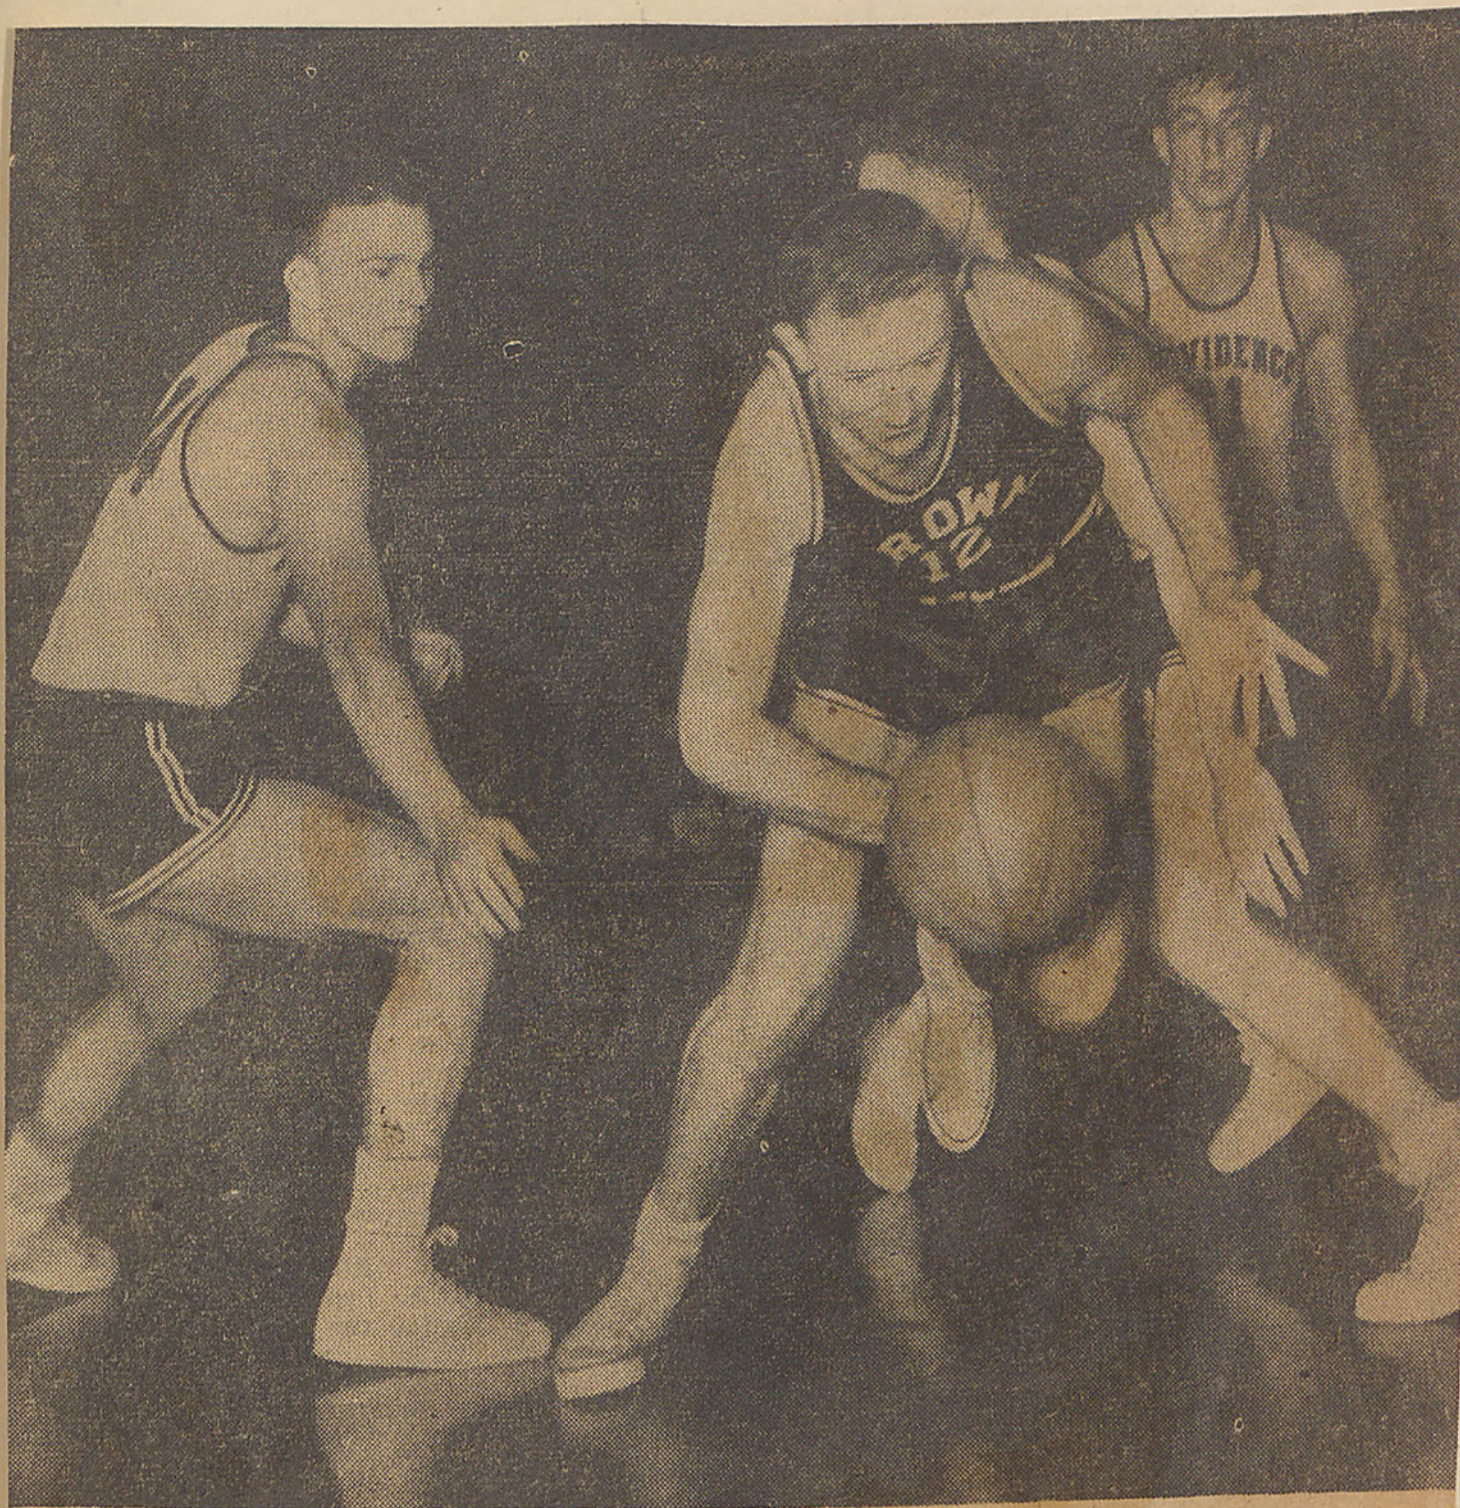

Providence, which played a fine floor game at times but had bad luck on its first half shooting, led almost throughout, with the lead fluctuating from 10 points to practically nothing. In the second half, St. Peter's put on a flashy offensive, overhauled the Friars but were unable to hold their slim leads.

Other Friars Good

Jim Schlimm scored 27 points for the Friars, while Walt Lozeski's set shooting was very helpful. Nissel played one of his better games, scoring 20 points and doing a fine all around job as well. Frank Pelligrino did some good rebounding at times, while Ray "Ga Ga" Garcia turned in his second outstanding game. Garcia, not prominent in the scoring, was a factor in getting the ball and setting up hoops for others.

Providence College

Frosh took the Nichols Junior College into camp, 80 to 72. Bob Prendergast, with 26 points, Johnny Clegg and John Power led the Friar Frosh.

Hitting the Line: Chuck Whelan of Brown made like football on this play during the second half of the basketball game between the Bruins and Providence College at Marvel Gymnasium last night. He dribbled between Friars Ronnie Gagnon (14 at left) and Skip McGurkin (behind Whelan). Ray Garcia (21) of P.C. is player in right background. Brown won, 62-48.

TRACK . . .

Application blanks have been distributed to the many track organizations in the East for the Second Annual Providence College Outdoor Board Track Meet. Harry Coates has sent the invitations to the various outstanding individual athletes and teams of athletes of this area. As was the system of procedure last March, relay teams of CYO, high school, and colleges will compete. Also, tracksters from the leading colleges of the East will be entered in special races. Last year this event attracted a host of track fans to Hendriken Field, and the turnout exceeded all expectations despite rainy weather.

Such great spike and shoe men as Herb McKinley, Phil Thigpen, Carl Joyce, and Bill Dwyer, displayed their wares on the P. C. boards last March. Make a date for March 15, a Saturday afternoon, to witness many sport thrills. One might consider that the middle of February a bit early to write of this affair, but the Friar track coach and team deserves all the credit and glory that can be bestowed upon them for their unexcelled spirit and enthusiasm.

For the first time in fourteen years, Providence, Rhode Island played host to the New England A. A. U. Track Championships. The meet was held last Wednesday evening at the Cranston Armory before a gathering of 1000 fans. Of the scores of college teams entered, Providence College took a very commendable third place, behind Brown and Tufts, two perennial track powers.

However, there is one sore spot in this meet for the Providence trackmen. The one-mile relay team, pride of Coach Harry Coates, was upset. And "upset" is the word. On the second leg, Capt. Gerry McGurkin tripped over a girl who wandered onto the track. He lost his balance and fell, losing a 15-yard lead. Recovering, he passed the baton to Gerry Kallman, who valiantly tried to pick up some of the lost ground. John Cassedy, anchorman, ran an incredible race to pick up about 20 yards and cop third place. If that race were 30 yards longer, P. C. would have taken that victory despite the setback of McGurkin. This is not a "sour grapes" story, it is a story of a game group of runners.

The sports department of the COWL wishes to apologize to Harry Coates and the track team for an error in last week's edition. It was stated that the two-mile relay team took fourth place in the B. A. A. Games behind Tufts, B. U., and M. I. T. Actually the two-mile relay team finished third behind Tufts and B. U.

Congratulations are in order for Jake Powell, assistant track coach of Providence College. Jake has accepted a position as instructor and assistant in the department of physical education at La Salle Academy. Having the distinction of being the first track captain of P. C., Jake returned to his Alma Mater last fall to aid Harry Coates in the track program. He is a graduate of La Salle where he was outstanding as member of the track team. Good luck, Jake Powell, your hard-working spirit will put you on top.

BASKETBALL . . .

Of the seven remaining basketball games on the Friar schedule, it seems that the toughest one will be with Springfield College Saturday evening. The Gymnasts are currently one of the hottest ball clubs in the East. Recently, they lost to Holy Cross by the comparatively slim margin of 11 points, and fell victim to Long Island University, (rated sixth in the nation) by a 51-49 score. In the last meeting of the two clubs, Providence walloped the boys from Springfield, but the Gymnasts have come a long way since then.

The Rhode Island State contest, March 1, at Rodman Hall, looms as another thriller for Friar fans. Besides being more effective on their home court, the Rams have strengthened themselves and have a very good season record. Their well publicized 5-point beating by Holy Cross carries a lot of weight in basketball circles. There are only two more home games for the Friars this season. Tonight St. Peters invades the Mount Pleasant Gym and March 4, Boston College comes to Providence for its return game with P. C. On March 11, Brown will close the Friar basketball season with a return contest at the Marvel Gym.

Trackmen Third In NEAAU 1 Mile Relay Team Upset

By JOHN SALESSES

After two years of preparation, the Providence College track team made its presence known in track circles as it gave an excellent showing in placing third in the point totals at the New England Association of the Amateur Athletic Union Indoor track and field championships held at the Cranston Street Armory last Wednesday night.

The other team entries were from colleges and universities where track has been a recognized sport for a period of time longer than Providence College is old. Nevertheless, the track Friars under the coaching of Harry Coates were ahead of such schools as R. I. State, Boston University and Springfield when the final tabulations were made. Brown successfully defended its N.E.A.-A.A. indoor track crown. Tufts College came in second.

For their fine efforts in the meet, Rocco DiFalco and Dan Walsh were entered into the Junior National AAU meet in New York. DiFalco turned in the most points for P.C. as he placed third in the 16 pound shot put and 35 pound weight events. It took Dan Walsh three races to qualify for the Nationals. He ran in two heats before qualifying for the finals of the 50 yard dash in which he ran third, after coming from behind, to Bill Dwyer of the R. I. track officials and Rudy Fobert of Tufts College. The time of the event was 5.6s. Rocco's 39 foot heave with the 35 pound weight qualified him for the New York in that event.

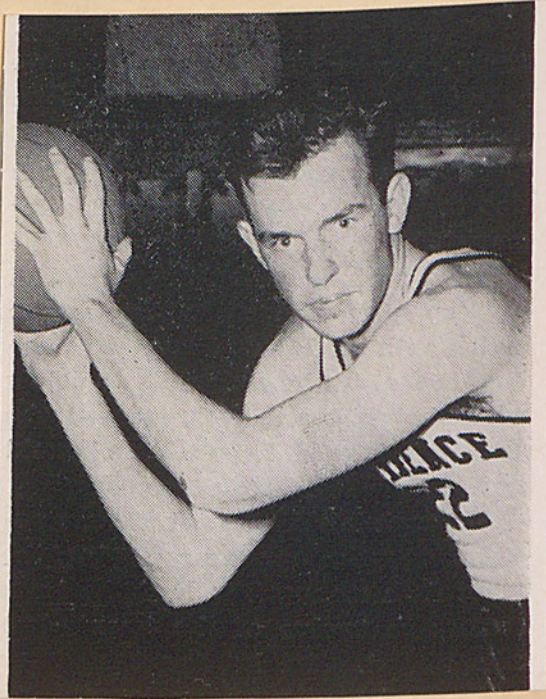

While many may say the times were a little slow, those who were there know that the opposite is true because of the conditions under which the events were run. The runners ran without benefit of a regular indoor board track with banks on the curves and also without spike shoes. This necessitated the slowing down of the runners on the turns.

Because of the large number of entries, heats were also held for the 1 mile relay, the 1,000 yard run and the 600-yard run. Such men as Bill Sherry and Frank Lussier in the 1,000 and Jim Penler in the 600 after placing in their respective heats did not gather points as they were run out in the trials.

Both the freshman and varsity mile relays entered the finals of that event along with Brown and Williams. The frosh relay with Dick Tiernan, Gannon, Bob Tiernan and Joe Tetrault lost the lead temporarily at the end of the first leg as the varsity which had McMullen, McGurkin, Kallman and Cassedy started to move. McGurkin fell for a girl as he was rounding the curve before the back stretch.

It happened that a little girl who had apparently paid no heed to instruction received in school about crossing streets, walked out onto the track in front of McGurkin. Gerry swung to the inside to avoid a collision. The girl did the same. Result: disaster. By the time McGurkin picked himself up and finished his leg, the varsity relay was about 40 yards back of the leaders in last place. Kallman turned in a fine job as he cut the distance to the leaders. Then Jack Cassedy ran an exceptional quarter mile as he shot up to the front. The frosh anchor man also ran a good quarter only to be nipped in what was practically a triple dead heat at the finish by Delaney of Williams College. Cassedy came in three inches behind Delaney and Tetrault.

John Shanley brought home points with his successful 12 foot clearance in the pole vault. This gave him a tie for second.

Sherry Comes Into Port

Bill Sherry wins his heat in the 1000-yd. dash. Frank Lussier of Providence takes third place. Both qualified for the finals but did not place.

Louthis Names Team Of 23 Friar Boxers

Card 2-15-50

The date for the Monogram Club sponsored Boxing Smoker has been definitely set for March 15. On that Wednesday evening, Boxing Coach Pete Louthis will present from six to ten bouts. He is not sure as to the exact number of fights because weights must be met, conditioning programs kept up, and candidates chosen from the hard-working group.

With the closing of entries to applicants a 23-man squad has been formed and trained.

In the featherweight division, John Uzzi, Richard McAllister, Walter Chiefo, Vincent DeNicola, and Michael Bolvin are in preparation for the two bouts tentatively scheduled in this group.

Anthony Alcarey, Arthur Dalgis, Alfred Friorli, and Jim Fisher are the lightweights. In the welterweight class, Paul Flanigan, Bill Magee, James Cote, Oscar Peters, and Robert Ford are in training. Magee and Peters are veterans of last season's squad.

The three middleweights are Bernard Mellon, Harvey Lupien, and Gerald Hanrahan. Armando Armunziato, Dick Duigran, and Vincent Callahan represent the lighth heavies. In the unlimited class, Francis Keane and Leo McCarthy are the only entrants. Coach Louthis would like to have one or possibly two more candidates to round out this division.

The Providence College Friars, seeking to get back on the win trail after a dismal performance against Brown Saturday, will take on a strong St. Peter's of New Jersey quintet tonight at the Mt. Pleasant gym. This is only the second game ever played between the two schools. Last year at New Jersey, the Friars dropped a 70-60 decision.

Although their complete record is not available, it is known that they are a very strong team. They outscored Iona by ten points on the latter's home court. (The Friars dropped an eleven point decision to this same Iona club while on their road trip.) St. Peter's has split in two games with a dangerous Seton Hall five, and can boast of a 76-76 tie with a very capable Manhattan quintet. They are expected to start with a lineup of Walt Shiel and Dennis Barry, forwards, Tom Smith, center, and James Fox and Joe McMahon at the guards.

Saturday night, the Friars take on their second difficult foe of the week, highly-improved Springfield College, at Springfield. Coach Cuddy's charges will be out to make it two straight over the Gymnasts. They scored a resounding 70-48 win at home.

Catholic Basketball Conference Planned

Cowl 2-15-50

On Monday afternoon the athletic department released a bulletin stating that Providence College is one of the charter members of the newly formed Eastern Catholic Intercollegiate Basketball Conference. Recently, at the New York Athletic Club, final plans were completed for the much desired league of Eastern Catholic collegiate basketball teams.

The purpose of the organization to bring a closer union among the Eastern Catholic Colleges. In the by-laws of its constitution the league rules that each member team play a majority of the other members of the league so that a champion can be chosen each season. This does not mean that Providence will play only these league games, but the other colleges will remain on the Friar schedule.

It happens that P.C. is the only Dominican College now enrolled in the group, but several more colleges are expected to join the organization. As the situation now stands, there are twelve charter members. They are: Siena, Loyola, St. Peter's, Iona, St. Francis of Brooklyn, Scranton, Le Moyne, St. Francis of Loretto, Pa., Kings College, St. Bonaventure, Seton Hall, and Providence College. Other Catholic schools in the East expected to join the loop soon are: Holy Cross, Boston College, Fairfield, St. Anselm's, Assumption, and several more.

The Rev. A. B. Begley, O.P., athletic faculty manager, has been honored by the conference by being chosen as one of the three members of the board of directors. Application for recognition from the ECAC has been made. Asa Bushnell, of the Eastern A.A.U., has already made formal recognition of this group.

One of the staunchest supporters for the formation of this Catholic League is Jack Butler, sports editor for the Brooklyn Tablet. For the last five years he has advocated such an organization for Catholic colleges and recently his dream came true.

The spirit of the new-born conference lies in the words of a spokesman of St. Francis College. He declared that St. Francis would make every attempt possible to schedule every team in the league even if the College were forced to play 30 games a year.

More details and plans of Providence College in the league will appear in future editions of the COWL.

Poor Offense Power Lost Brown Game

By Dick Boulet

Showing the effects of their two week layoff, the Friars put on their poorest offensive display of the season in losing to an aroused Brown quintet on Saturday night, 62-48. It was just one of those games in which the Friar basket seemed about the size of a hat band. Shots which they had sunk with almost monotonous regularity in previous tilts were rimming and popping out.

Individually, two of the Friars, Ray Garcia and big Tom Orr, played their best games of the season, and possibly of their careers. Garcia did a tremendous job throughout the contest. He rebounded very effectively, was high man for P. C. with 11 points, and held fabulous Moe Mahoney to seven points. Mahoney garnered four others, but they were not registered against Garcia's close guarding. Orr, though playing a much shorter time than Garcia, sparked a second half drive which carried the P. C.'ers to within seven points of Brown, 42-35, midway through the half.

The Friars stayed with the Bruins during the first part of the tilt, but were victimized by their own poor shooting. Two baskets by Schlimn, who incidentally was held to nine points by the close guarding of Mahoney, helped tie the score at 6-6. Seconds later, Art Weinstock dribbled the length of the floor to knot the count at 8-8, after this superior shooting by the Bruins enabled them to build up a 26-12 lead. At this point, foul shots by Ray Korbusieski and Schlimn, and a basket by Garcia cut the lead to six points, but the Bears stretched it to 31-22 at half-time.

The Friars started the second half very slowly, and that is where they lost the game. Brown built up a 42-27 lead before Tom Orr entered the contest at the 6:35 mark. Upon his entrance, the P. C.'ers seemed to find themselves. Successive hoops by Weinstock, Orr, and Garcia, and then two free tosses by Garcia, cut the margin to seven, 42-35, but the Bears were not to be denied. The teams traded baskets for the few minutes, but the Bruins started to work the ball much more deliberately than before, forcing the Friars into committing fouls to gain possession. In the final two minutes, the Bruins maintained control of the ball, and were aided by the two-minute rule in building up their fourteen point margin, 62-48.

Friars Facing Springfield; Brown Five Meeting Navy

Connecticut in Only

Local Action

By PETE McCARTHY

A general exodus from their home bases marks the sports calendar for Rhode Island college teams today. The lone exception is the Brown swimming team, which entertains Connecticut this afternoon at the Colgate-Hoyt Pool.

Four other Brown winter teams are competing on the road. Providence College has two teams and R.I. State one operating away from home.

Brown's basketball squad is at Navy and the wrestling team is at M.I.T., both afternoon contests. The hockey team plays Yale at New Haven and members of the track team will compete in the National A.A.U. meet in New York tonight.

The P.C. five is making its annual visit to Springfield this afternoon and its two-mile relay team is entered in the A.A.U. meet. State will have Bob Black in the three-mile run and Art Sherman in the pole vault at New York.

Bruins Favored

Coach Joe Watmough's Bruin swimmers will be favored to take their sixth meet of the season at the expense of the Uconns. They have lost three. The freshman meet will start at 2 o'clock and the varsity at 3 o'clock.

Brown basketball followers hereabouts will get a chance to see today's Navy game as it is being televised over channel seven. Coach Bob Morris will be banking on Capt. Moe Mahoney, Ken Provost, Chuck Whelan, Ned Corcoran and Zeke Creswell to get past the Middies.

Coach Ivan Fuqua will have a four-man entry in tonight's Madison Square Garden meet. Dick Phillips, who hasn't been able to match his form of last year because of a foot injury that sidelined him for this season's early meets, will be defending his A.A.U. title in the high jump. He cleared 6 feet, 7 inches a year ago. The others are Josh Tobey in the mile, his twin brother, Jon, in the 1000-yard run and Gil Borgeson in the shot put and 35-pound weight.

Close Call

The Friars' two-mile relay quartet includes Jim McMullen, Frank Lusier, Bill Sherry and Bill Keenan.

The P.C. cagers are expected to have their hands full against the Gymnasts this afternoon despite the fact that they had little difficulty winning their first game with Springfield here last month. The Bay Staters have come a long way since then whereas the Friars haven't been as effective in the two games played since resuming play after mid-year exams. Also P.C. has lost the services of Sam Nissel, regular starter, who has a fractured finger.

Coach Vin Cuddy's charges had a close call Wednesday night but managed to take a 69-68 decision over St. Peter's. Springfield recently dropped a one-pointer to the strong Long Island University five and walloped Norwich, 65-21, earlier this week. The varsity game will start at 4 o'clock, being preceded by the freshman contest.

Friars Push Into 16-Point Edge

Early, Then Check Late
Gymnast Drive

By JOE McHENRY

Springfield, Mass., Feb. 18.—The Providence College Friars scored a notable 62-to-59 basketball victory over the Springfield College Gymnasts in a rough, exciting game before 3200 homecoming fans this afternoon.

The Friars, who once led by 16 points, had to fight off the home forces in the stretch, with Frank Pelligrino and Ray Garcia leading Providence to its second victory over the Maroons this season. The Gymnasts have been poison on their home court, beating Manhattan, and bothering some of the nation's top teams including Holy Cross, Kansas and L.I.U., and were confident of squaring the season's series today.

It was a bitter ball game with much rough contact. The Friars actually won the game from the free throw line, dropping in 20 points via that medium.

Springfield played a hustling type of game but the Friars came up with an extra good performance. Pelligrino was far and away better than most recent performances, doing a great job on the backboards, setting up scores and pitching in 14 points. Garcia, who has been a top hand in each of the Friars' last three games, was again a staunch floorman.

Providence was minus the talented Sam Nissel, who broke his right index finger in Friday's practice drill, but Pelly, Garcia, Jim Schlimm and Walt Lozoski took up much of the slack caused by the absence of their 20-point man from St. Mary's, Pa.

Although the Friars were well out front in the first half, they had to battle for the victory as Springfield came with a rush in the second 20 minutes. In the opening half, the Gymnasts held a 7-6 lead after five minutes but were down 20-12 at the 10-minute point. With three quarters of the first half gone, the Friars were 12 points ahead, 30-18, and they had that margin at intermission, leading, 39-27.

John Barker, John Burke and Bob Lake led a Springfield drive which cut the Friars lead to 43-38, about seven minutes along in the second half. Two baskets by Pelligrino and Korbusieski enabled the Friars to hold a 9-point margin with 10 minutes to go. They were but five points up shortly after the 12th minute.

Barker's trick shot and Ed Redmond's one hander made it, 54-50, with five minutes left but the Friars always managed to stay in the driver's seat.

Al Schutts scored 27 points in pacing the Springfield College Frosh to a 67-to-49 victory over the Providence College Frosh in the opener.

Hub Meet Proves Unprofitable For Most R.I. College Entrants

By PETE McCARTHY

Last Saturday's B. A. A. meet in Boston proved exceedingly unprofitable so far as most Rhode Island trackmen were concerned.

Only R.I. State's varsity mile and Brown's freshman mile-relay teams landed first places in the fourth of the season's weekly indoor track carnivals. The Rams' quartet of Bob Squadrito, Larry McLay, Al Johnson and Ray Dwyer captured the Yankee Conference championship against teams from Maine, Massachusetts and Connecticut, and the Bruins' unit of Mel Holland, Phil Palamaintain, Harry Wood and Walt Malineaux won its race against Yale, Massachusetts, Providence College and R.I. State.

Dick Phillips, Brown's defending national champion in the high jump, was unable to attain the form he had reached the week before in New York and met with early elimination which earned him only a four-way tie for fourth place. He failed to clear 6 feet, 3 inches. Art Sherman, State's pole vaulter, also took his leave long before the event was completed when he couldn't negotiate the height of 13-6.

Billy Dwyer, who was a surprise starter in the 50-yard dash after he had reported the withdrawal of his entry because of a leg injury, failed to reach the final. He, like a great many observers, thought he had made the grade in the second semi-final heat, but the judges placed him fourth behind Jim Conaway of Colby.

This Saturday the bulk of the spiked-shoe caravan moves on to Madison Square Garden for the New York A. C. meet, but the Rhode Islanders will be concentrating on the annual New England AAAU championships, which will be held Wednesday night at the Cranston Street Armory.

Competition in the N.E. meet actually gets under way today with three field events scheduled to be run off at the Tufts College cage in Medford. All three R.I. colleges are represented in these events, which are the pole vault, broad jump and 35-pound weight.

Brown's delegation consists of Ted Gibson, Jerry Bearer and Gil Borgeson, 35-pound weight; Alan Boyer, pole vault, and Jim Hiney, broad jump. P.C. has entered John Shanley and Bill Keenan in the pole vault and broad jump, Jerry Alexander in the broad jump, and Rocco DiFalco and Tony Fratantuono in the 35-pound weight.

State has Sherman and Bob Linne in the pole vault and Bill Benesch in the broad jump.

Wednesday's program will consist of 10 events for men and nine for women. The N.E. registration committee will use performances in this meet as the basis for selection of this area's representatives for the National championships in New York on Feb. 18.

Harry Devoe, meet director, announced last night that he had received more than 300 male entries and 40 women's entries for Wednesday's events. Thirteen N.E. colleges will be represented.

N. E. Meet

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Feb. 7 (AP)—A field of 307 men and 46 women will compete tomorrow night in the annual New England A. A. U. indoor track championships at the Cranston street armory. The sectional title meet is being held here for the first time in 14 years.

Thirteen N. E. colleges and five amateur clubs will be seeking the team crown which was won last year by Brown University at Boston.

Coach Ivan Fuzua's Bruins, who took the title a year ago with 23 points, will be defending against teams from Rhode Island State, Providence College, Bryant, Boston University, Boston College, University of Massachusetts, Dartmouth, Northeastern, Tufts, Williams, Amherst, Springfield, Worcester Tech, the Boston A. A., North Medford club, Eagle A. C., Boston Scandinavian-American club of Worcester and the R. I. Track Officials Associations.

Tufts In Lead In Field Events

Three events in the New England A.A.U. annual indoor track and field championships, the latter scheduled for tomorrow night in Providence, were held yesterday at Tufts College Oval, with Tufts coming out on top in temporary standings with a tally of 10 points.

Rhode Island State is now in second place with six and Brown holds third spot with five. Providence College has 3½, Boston University 3, B.A.A. 2½, Medford high 2, and Northeastern University 1.

Over sixty entrants participated in the broad jump yesterday as well as the pole vault and the 35-pound weight throw.

Broad Jump — Won by Rudy Fobert, Tufts; 2, Courtland Ellis, B.U.; 3, Pete Terry, Medford high; 4, Saul Mazzoca, N.U.. Distance, 22ft. 3¼ in.

Pole Vault—Won by Art Sherman, R.I.; tie for second between Pete Harwood, BAA, and John Sheaney, Providence. Height, 12ft. 6 in.

35-pound weight — Won by Gil Borgeson, Brown; 2, Tom Bane, Tufts; 3, Bob Backus, Tufts. Distance, 55ft. 9 in.

3 National Champs In Providence Meet

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Feb. 8 (AP)—Three hundred and forty-three athletes, 46 of them from the distaff side, have been entered by 13 New England colleges and five clubs in tonight's sectional AAU track championships at Cranston armory.

Brown University's forces will defend the team title they won a year ago in Boston.

Among those entered are three national champions, Billy Dwyer of Providence, in the sprint, Browns Dick Phillips in the high jump and Miss Amelia Bert of Providence in the women's eight pound shot put.

The program consists of 10 events for men and nine for women, the special Jesse Beers quarter for schoolboys, and the R. I. National Guard relay championship.

The field includes three national champions, Billy Dwyer of Providence in the dash, Dick Phillips of Brown in the high jump and Amelia Bert of Providence in the eight-pound shot put. Miss Bert won her title at the outdoor A. A. U. meet last Summer at Odessa, Tex.

In addition to Phillips and Dwyer, other 1949 titlists expected to defend their crowns are Ray Leeth of Brown in the hurdles, Jon Tobey, Brown, in the 1000, and Maurice Matteodo of Providence in the 16-pound shot put.

Competition in the shot put will get under way at 7 and in the running events at 7:30.

BROWN TRACK TEAM DEFENDS TEAM TITLE

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Feb. 9—Brown University's track team successfully defended its team title in the annual New England AAU Indoor Championships before 1000 fans last night at the Cranston Street Armory. On the strength of six first places the Bruins rolled up 33 points and beat out their closest rival, Tufts College, by five. Providence College finished third with 12½, Rhode Island State fourth with 11, Boston University fifth with 7½.

Attleboro Defeats P.C. Frosh Quintet

Attleboro High School's Tech Tournament-bound basketball team rolled to a 50-38 victory over the Providence College Freshmen last night at the Attleboro State Armory.

The triumph was Attleboro's 15th straight and its 16th in 17 games this season. Don Briggs and Ed Whyte did most of the point-getting for the winners.

Track Champs at Cranston Armory

PROVIDENCE, Feb. 8, (AP) — Three hundred and forty-three athletes, 46 of them from the distaff side, have been entered by 13 New England colleges and five clubs in tonight's sectional AAU track championships at Cranston Armory.

Brown University's forces will defend the team title they won a year ago in Boston against groups from Rhode Island State College, Providence College, Bryant College, Boston College, Boston University, Dartmouth, Northeastern, Tufts, Massachusetts, Williams, Amherst, Springfield, Worcester Tech, Boston A. ATTLEBORO—The fast Providence College Freshman basketball team will play Attleboro High at the State Armory tonight. The second game will be an intersquad game which will start at 7 o'clock.

The main attraction should be a fast game. Attleboro has a fine team and the visitors are rated highly in college circles. Providence has lost but few games to date. Attleboro will be after its 16th win.

Brown Trackmen Retain N.E. Title

By PETE McCARTHY

Brown University's track team successfully defended its team title in the annual New England AAAU indoor championships before 1000 fans last night at the Cranston Street Armory.

On the strength of six first places the Bruins rolled up 33 points and beat out their closest rival, Tufts College, by five. Providence College finished third with 12½, R.I. State fourth with 11, Boston University fifth with 7½.

The Little Rhody A.C. easily captured the women's team trophy by scoring 52 points. The Red Diamond A.C. of Boston was far behind with only five.

Bob Black of R.I. State heralded his return to championship form by winning the three-mile run in the record time of 14 minutes, 46.8 seconds. That clocking beat the old record of 15:05 held by Leslie Pawson of Pawtucket.

Billy Dwyer of Providence, the national A.A.U. 60-yard dash champion, captured the 50-yard dash in 5.6 seconds. He won both his trial and semi-final heats but was pressed by Rudy Fobert of Tufts in the final.

Brown's Tobey twins, Jon and Josh, came through with victories in the 1000-yard run and the mile, respectively. Jon beat out Milton Craig of Tufts in the 1000 with a clocking of 2:22.8. Josh lapped the field and enjoyed a substantial margin over Ed O'Connell of Tufts. His time was 4:26.9, four-tenths of a second off the N.E. record. Josh's quarter times were 59 seconds, 2:06, and 3:17.

Bruce Graham in the high hurdles, Dick Phillips in the high jump, and Gil Borgeson in the 35-pound weight and shot put provided the champion Bruins with their other first places. Borgeson won the shot last night and the 35-pound weight on Monday in one of the three field events held at the Tufts College cage in Medford.

Amelia Bert of the Little Rhody A.C. national women's outdoor shot put champion, won both the 8-pound shot put and the basketball throw. Her winning distance in the shot was 37 feet, 3½ inches and in the basketball throw, 90 feet, 2 inches.

The Williams College team of Al Bacharach, Jim Haskell, W. Zeigantals and Kevin Delaney won the mile relay title in 3:42.7. The finish was practically a triple dead-heat with Providence College's No. 1 and 2 teams hitting the tape a split second behind the winners.

2. Milton Craig, Tufts; 3. Harry Wood, Brown; 4. Dick Fitzgerald, Boston University. Time—2 minutes, 22.8 seconds.

50-yard high hurdles—won by Graham Ford, Brown; 2. Harry Kubick, Northeastern; 3. Richard Palmieri, Boston University. Time—6.8 seconds.

50-yard dash—won by Billy Dwyer, R.I. Track Officials; 2. Rudy Fobert, Tufts; 3. Dan Walsh, Providence College; 4. Clyde Crawford, Eagles A.A. Time—5.6 seconds.

N. E. A. A. U. MEET TONIGHT

PROVIDENCE, Feb. 8 (P)—

Three hundred and forty three athletes, 46 of them from the distaff side, have been entered by 13 New England colleges and five clubs in tonight's sectional AAU track championships at the Cranston Street Armory.

Brown University will defend the team title it won a year ago in Boston.

Among those entered are three national champions, Billy Dwyer of Providence College, in the sprint, Brown's Dick Phillips, in the high jump and Miss Amelia Bert of Providence in the women's eight pound shotput.

Friars Outlast Jersey College Team, 69-68

Providence, Feb. 15—Providence College's basketball team outlasted St. Peter's College of Jersey City by one point, 69 to 68, here last night.

The Friars, in spite of the close call, were in command most of the way. They held margins which ranged as high as ten points, leading at the half 43 to 33.

The Saints, staying in contention, however, finally overtook the Friars in the final seconds, 66 to 65. The Friars won on a layup by Sam Nissel just before time ran out.

Fran Pelligrino, big Friar center, former Westerly High ace, still in a scoring slump, registered only one point. The winners' big gunner was Jim Schlimm with 27 counters.

Providence Wins in Final Seconds

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Feb. 15—Sam Nissel of Providence College scored with 15 seconds remaining to give his team its 11th win of the season here tonight, 69-68, over St. Peter's College of New Jersey. The winning basket was Nissel's 20th point of the evening. Jim Schlimm was high scorer with 27.

Fifth of College Twin Bill Hockey Programs Tonight

Undefeated Providence College will meet the Springfield College Hockey club and Tufts College will oppose American International College in the fifth of a series of college hockey double-headers at the Eastern States Coliseum tonight. The Springfield game will be the curtain raiser, starting at 7.30 p. m.

Army With Friars

The Friars of Providence College boast of a bunch of All-Staters on their roster, headed by Tom Army, first line center and son of the well known trainer of the Rhode Island Reds, George Army. He teams up with George Ducharme, a member of the 1948 Burrillville team that was a finalist in the New England Scholastic Tourney in Boston.

Springfield College has come a long way since the inauguration of the sport there a year ago and now claims a record of two wins and one tie against a single loss. Coach George P. Henderson has done some shifting on his sextet in order to give scoring punch to the forward line and to steady the defense. Principals in this shift are Capt. Red Waldron, who has been placed at right defense, and Angus Gillis, who will start on the line. Jack Overlock is replacing Pappy Frink, regular Springfield goalie who is sidelined due to injuries.

In the feature, the Jumbos and the Aces will battle it out in a New England Intercollegiate Hockey League game. This will be the first time in the college double-header programs that a league game was a part of the bill.

Coach Bill Turner of the Aces did some shifting of his own in the past few games but is expected to revert to his "iron-men," Capt. Fred Zannetti and Joe Buckholz to protect Joe Percy in the nets, Frank Ferranti to play center and Andy Poggi and Dick Clason, wingers.

AIC is yet to be defeated in college double-header competition at the Coliseum.

Brown Quintet Entertains PC At Marvel Gym

PROVIDENCE—Brown University will have two teams in action tonight as the basketball team plays Providence College at Marvel Gymnasium and the hockey sextet faces off against Princeton at RI Auditorium. The varsity and freshman wrestling teams start off the action packed day with Wesleyan at Marvel Gymnasium this afternoon, and Track Coach Ivan Fuqua has a two mile relay team and high jumper Dick Phillips entered in the NYAC meet at New York tonight.

Sparked by the brilliant play of "Git" Priestley and Don Sennott, Brown University's hockey team will be looking for its fourth straight win against Princeton on the Auditorium ice. Last Tuesday night the Bruins played their best game of the year when they defeated Yale, 5-1, and Brown's great goalie, Don Whiston, missed a shut-out when Ted Shay of Yale tallied in 19:49 of the third period. Larry Copeland and Don Rawson led the scoring parade for the Bruins with two tallies apiece, and the team's passing and back checking left nothing to be desired. Princeton, on the other hand, is a strong contender for Pentagonal League honors, and with a veteran line composed of Bill Schluter, Cab Woodward and Wilbur Danforth, and their defense bolstered by sophomores Alex Mills and John Hoffman, there is a good chance that the Tigers might claw the Bear.

Brown's basketball team, considerably bolstered by the return of Captain Frank Mahoney to the lineup shares the evening spotlight when it takes on its cross town rival Providence College, at Marvel Gymnasium. Coach Bob Morris' team has made a fair showing this year, and although it has suffered defeat at the hands of top-flight opposition, should be able to make a good showing once it can regain its early season shooting form. Providence College, before losing to a great Holy Cross team, was undefeated. After losing three games following the Cross tilt, the PC cagers started to roll again, and defeated Fairfield and St. Anselm's by decisive margins. PC will probably start Jim Schlimm, Sam Nissel and Frank Pelligrino in the forecourt while co-captains Walt Ozoski and Art Weinstock will share the guard spots. For Brown Captain Frank Mahoney and Fred Kozak will be at the forward and Zeke Creswell will hold the center berth. Chuck [unclear], along with Ned Corcoran, will play in the back-court.

Friar Quintet Visits Brown; State at Home

Bucknell Five Plays
At Kingston; Bears,
Rams in N.Y. Meet

By JOE McHENRY

The Providence College Friars meet Brown at Marvel Gym and the Rhode Island State Rams entertain Bucknell at Rodman Hall in Kingston in the state's basketball features tonight. The Friars and the Rams are favored.

Providence swings back into action after a layoff for midwinter exams. The Bruins have dropped two games since completing their mid-years, to Holy Cross and Connecticut. The Friars have a 10-4 record and one of the state's best young players in slim Jim Schlimm.

Brown may be up for the game. The Bears swept the series last year but to date have a 6-8 record for the season, although playing pretty much of a major-game schedule. Moe Mahoney is Brown's hope, although his return to the lineup against Connecticut didn't lift the Bruins to victory.

Bruins Due

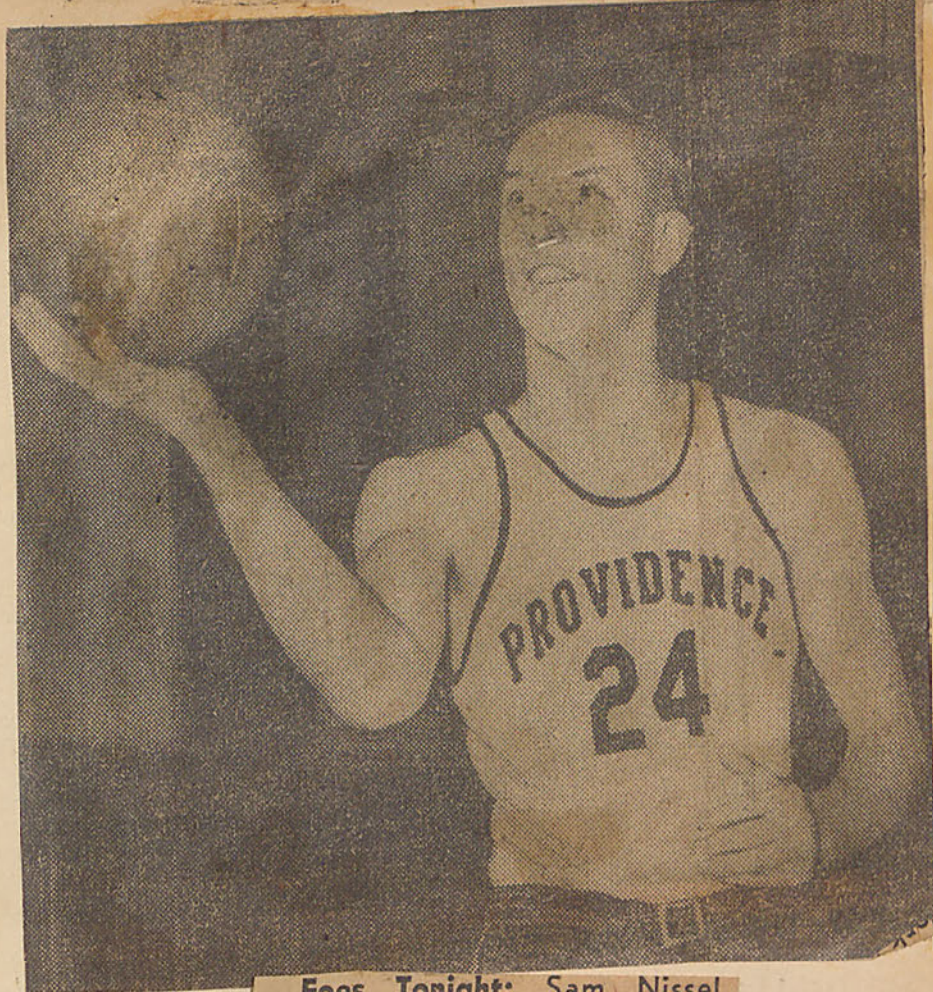

Coach Vin Cuddy will start a team of Sam Nissel and Jim Schlimm at forwards, Frank Pelligrino at center and Walt Lozoski and Art Weinstock at guards. This combination has done the bulk of the Friar work, with the help of some sophomores such as Jerry Lembo, Ray Korbuskieski, Tom Bauer and junior Ray Garcia.

Brown is expected to open with Zeke Creswell at center, Pete Tyrrell and Fred Kozak at forwards and Mahoney and either Chuck Whelan or Ken Provost at the guards. Ned Corcoran is out with an injured ankle.

Brown is about due to come out of its slump, although the Providence-Brown series has been productive of some fine basketball over the years, regardless of favorites.

The Rams shouldn't have too much trouble with Bucknell's sophomore team, which bowed to American University (79-62) and Navy (71-54) in its last two starts. There may be, however, a natural letdown on the part of the Rams after their sensational game with Holy Cross.

The Rams will open with Bruce Blount, Chuck Stewart, Don Shannon, Johnny Mitchell and Leon Golembiewski. These fellows all played well against the highly rated Crusaders.

Foes Tonight: Sam Nissel, left, will be sharpshooting from one of the Providence College forward positions when the Friar and Brown basketball teams clash at Marvel Gymnasium tonight. Chuck Whelan, right, will share in the guard duties for Brown with Capt. Moe Mahoney and Ken Provost. E. 12/1/50

Key Man

Bucknell's key man is Joe Gallagher, a 6-foot-1 athlete from Newark, who has averaged about 14 points a game. The Bucks' starters are all more than 6 feet tall and nine sophomores are included on the squad. The team has won three games (Juniata and Lehigh twice) in 12 starts.

The Friars have no track representation in the New York A.C. games tonight at Madison Square Garden but both Brown and State will be well represented. The Bruins will include Dick Phillips in the high jump and a relay team of Jon and Josh Tobey, Dave Midgley and Ed Richards.

Bob Black will run the two-mile and Art Sherman will compete in the pole vault for the Rams. Coach Fred Tootell has nominated a relay team of Ray Dwyer, Alden Johnson, Bob Squadrito and Alton Wylie, with Larry McLay, Black and Art Votalato as alternates.

Colleges Busy This Weekend

Brown Has 5 Teams
In Action; State, P.C.
Compete Out of State

By PETE McCARTHY

Brown University's winter sport teams will dominate the collegiate athletic activity this weekend with five teams scheduled for action tomorrow. Providence College will be represented in basketball and track and R.I. State will send Bob Black and Art Sherman to the National A.A.U. track meet in New York.

The Brown basketball team will play twice on the road, meeting the New York Athletic Club tonight and Navy at Annapolis tomorrow afternoon. The varsity and freshman wrestling teams will visit M.I.T. in the afternoon and the hockey team, currently leading the Ivy League, will be shooting for a sweep of its series with Yale at New Haven tomorrow night.

In the only home action, the Bruin swimmers will entertain the University of Connecticut's varsity and freshman squads tomorrow afternoon at the Colgate-Hoyt Pool.

To Springfield

The P.C. cagers travel to Springfield for afternoon contests with the Gymnasts' varsity and freshman quintets. The Friars defeated Springfield handily here last month but since then the Gymnasts have improved considerably. It has been nine years since P.C. has taken two games in a season from Springfield. The Friars will be seeking their 12th victory in 17 games.

Coach Harry Coates is sending his P.C. two-mile relay team to the A.A.U. meet. The quartet includes Jim McMullen, Frank Lussier, Bill Sherry and Bill Keenan.

Providence College Wins In Final Seconds, 69-68

PROVIDENCE—Sam Nissel's successful layup 40 seconds before the end provided the winning margin as Providence College squeezed by St. Peter's College of Jersey City last night at the Mount Pleasant High School gym.

Nissel's shot climaxed a furious late-game rally which saw St. Peter's twice take the lead after the Friars had led most of the way. At four different points in the second half, the Friars were 10 points in front, but Tom Smith, Walt Shiel and Jim Bradley combined to hoist the visitors to a tie at 55-all after 11:25 in the half.

The Friars then stretched out to a 65-58 lead in the next 2½ minutes but again the Peacocks rallied until, with one minute remaining, they had a one-point lead. Nissel then drove in for the winning counter.

Jim Schlimm was the outstanding performer for the Friars with 27 points, but Co-Captains Art Weinstock and Walt Lozoski, Ray Garcia and Frank Pelligrino and, of course, Nissel, all played prominent parts in the victory. It was the 11th win in 16 starts for the Friars.

The Providence College Freshmen scored an 80-72 victory over Nichols Junior College in the preliminary.

Providence Five Tops Springfield, 62 to 59

SPRINGFIELD, Feb. 18 (AP)—The Providence College basket ball team took over the lead early in the first half today and hung on the rest of the way to defeat Springfield, 62-59, before a turnaway 3000 home-coming day crowd.

Springfield led only for the first few minutes, never by more than a few points. After the Friars passed the local club, they extended their advantage to as much as 12 points at one time. Springfield rallied late in the second half, but three long one-handers by Frank Pelligrino clinched the game for Providence.

With 30 seconds to go Springfield Capt. Tiff Barker dropped in a long set shot to pull Springfield to 59-61, but a successful free throw by the visitors prevented any further rallying by the losers.

RPI '5' Host To Providence;

Tech Bids For Tenth Victory

Troy basketball fans who like fast and furious action are in for a treat tonight as Rensselaer Poly's strong five plays host to the greatest Providence College quintet in the history of that school.

Both teams are exponents of the fast break, run hard, shoot often and generally wind up in the high figures. Rensselaer with a total of 733 points has racked up a 61.1 average in 12 games. Providence has blistered the hoops for 1,073 points in 17 games. That's 63.6 per outing.

High Scorers.

RPI's two high marks of the year were 76 scored against Steven's and 73 against Clarkson. Providence has twice hit the 90 mark, trouncing hapless Bates 93-67, and outlasting St. Anselm's 91-81 in a point collecting duel that had the score in mild hysterics.

Tonight's battle will see Ed Jucker's Rensselaer crew try to break into the circle of ten game winners. But to do it they'll have to get by what Jucker calls the toughest foe he's faced this year, Providence has rambled to 12 victories in 17 outings.

Point for RPI.

Word filtering in from Providence indicates that the Friars are serious and purposeful about tonight's game. Providence has received larrupings at the hands of the Poly courtmen two years in a row. Tonight they are determined to make amends.

Jucker has indicated that he'll start Bill Morse and Bill Schroeder at guards along with Capt. Ed Zeno and Bill Halloran at forwards. Frank Murphy will handle the pivot chores. Game time at 8:30 tonight in the Feld House.

'Vliet, Troy Boys Play Key Roles In Poly 58-53 Triumph

Rensselaer Poly's crack basketball team had to come from behind in a thrilling nip and tuck battle in the last five minutes to down Providence, 58-53, last night at the Field House before 4,000 fans.

Bruce Cardell, former Water-vliet High School star, and Bob Halloran, former Catholic High star, played key roles in the Engineers' 10th victory.

Cardell came through with an all important pass interception of Jim Pellegrino's pass, went the length of the court and passed to Captain Ed Zeno who tossed in an easy layup to wrest the lead from the Rhode Island quint for good, 48-47. It was Halloran, Frank Murphy and Cardell who took over from here in to insure Poly's victory.

Murphy tossed in 18 points, Zeno 16, Halloran 9 and Cardell 8 to lead the Trojans' victory, while Slim Jim Schlimm with 16 and Pellegrino with 10 were best for Providence.

RPI started out strong by jumping into a 3-0 lead on Zeno's foul shot and Murphy's field, but Schlimm came back with a foul and Walt Lozoski with a set to tie. The lead changed hands time and again until finally the Rhode Islanders took a five point bulge with two minutes left for the first half, 27-22.

A three-point play by Halloran closed to 27-25 before Murphy and Mooney traded hoops to make the score 29-27 at half.

Providence kept the lead throughout the second half until the fatal last five minutes when Cardell, Halloran and Murphy came through with their winning performances.

Both teams were ragged at the foul stripe where the game was won. RPI converted 16 of 30, while Providence hit 11 of 23. Both had 21 field goals.

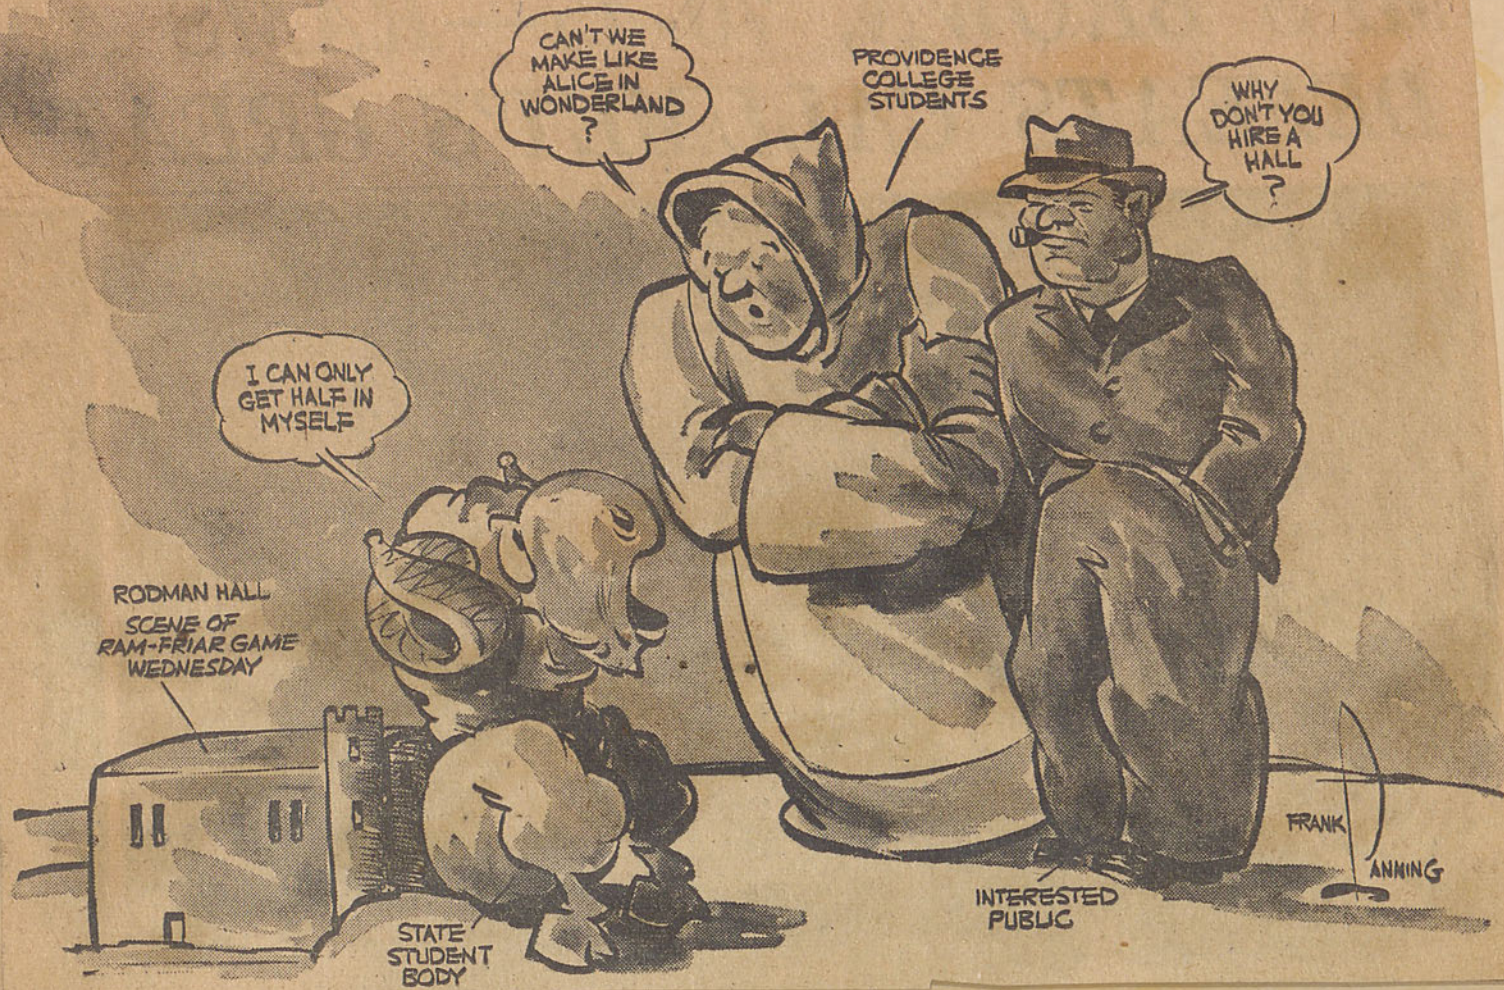

RPI plays its next game against arch-rival Union Wednesday night at the Field House. The Engineers will seek to avenge an earlier defeat. The summary:

RAMS VS. FRIARS FEATURES LOCAL COURT PROGRAM

Kingston; Brown Plays
B.U. Tomorrow

By JOHN HANLON

After an active, if unsuccessful, weekend, the local college basketball teams move into the final stages of their seasons this week. The leading game is Providence College's return match with Rhode Island State College on Wednesday.

Brown leads off the doings by meeting Boston University at Boston Garden tomorrow night. In the other contest on the card, Harvard tussles with Princeton.

All clubs will be busy Saturday night. The Friars will entertain Boston College at Mt. Pleasant High School, Brown will meet Hampton Institute at Marvel Gym and State will journey to Springfield for a game with Springfield College.

Set for Kingston

Despite a few hale voices calling for a switch of the P.C.-State game to bigger quarters, the contest is set for Kingston.

It would be simple to say that the Rams, red hot in their recent games with Holy Cross, will take this meeting with relative ease.

But that was what the wiseheimers said about the first game at the auditorium. And for one period it looked like they were right. State looked great and had a 39-29 lead at the half. Then, you'll recall, the Friars started pecking away at that lead, whittled it to 43-41 early in the second half and finally pulled out a victory in the last few seconds. Walt Lozoski's 20-footer with 16 seconds left gave the Friars a 59-57 triumph.

Since then, the Rams have been hot and the Friars about lukewarm. And both lost Saturday night in a couple of close ones. State dropped its game in the final five seconds to Connecticut by a 74-71 count and the Friars lost to Rensselaer, 59-53, the latter's margin being forged in the last three minutes.

Break Tie

The greatly improved Uconns broke out of a 71-71 tie on a foul shot with five seconds left. Vin Yakabaskas of Connecticut was high scorer with 27 points. Leon Golembiewski led the Rams with 21 points. State had to make up a 16-point deficit in the second half.

The Friars' game was even-up for about three-fourths of the distance. Providence led by two points (29-27) at the half and held an edge for 17 minutes of the second half. Then came three straight baskets by the New Yorkers and that was it.

As for the State-Friars game, then, take your pick. One thing, the Rams are hard to beat at Kingston and, for that reason, should be slight favorites.

Struggle Seesaws Until the Last 3 Minutes, Then
R.P.I. Moves Out

(Special to The Providence Sunday Journal)

Troy, N.Y., Feb. 25.—The Providence College Friars battled the Rensselaer Poly Tech basketball team on even terms for more than three quarters here tonight, but fell behind in the final three minutes of play and lost, 58 to 53, before 2000 spectators at the R.P.I. Fieldhouse.

The struggle nip and tuck until that final few minutes, with each team exchanging the lead during the first half. Providence held a 29-27 halftime margin.

In the second half, the Rhode Islanders managed to maintain their edge until the 16-minute mark, when a basket by Bruce Cardell sent the home forces into the lead for the first time since midway in the opening half. Ed Zeno followed with another basket for Tech and RPI never relinquished the lead thereafter.

Frank Murphy and Zeno were the top gunners for Tech. Murphy registered 18 and Zeno 16. Big Jim Schlimm was outstanding for the Friars with 16.

All in the Game

By Jerry Prior

Suggestion . . .

SO here I go, poking my hand in where I'll probably get my fingers stepped on, but may I politely suggest to the athletic authorities at Rhode Island State and Providence College that they transfer their forthcoming basketball game from Rodman Hall in Kingston to the Auditorium in Providence?

Jerry Prior

In making the suggestion, I think I'm speaking for the thousands of fans who saw Rhode Island State give the current Holy Cross team the scare of its brilliant existence and who'd like another chance to watch the Rams in action, but who aren't going to get it under the present setup.

Few of them certainly will be able to wedge their way into little Rodman Hall for the Friar-Ram game, as now scheduled for next Wednesday. Even the students at Kingston have a hard time finding room there. The Rams do make another visit to Providence, to Marvel Gymnasium to meet Brown on Mar. 8, but the capacity of the Bruin athletic plant is well less than half of the 6384 who saw State force undefeated Holy Cross to the limit before losing in overtime, 70-62, a week ago tonight.

As a matter of fact, that crowd of 6384 probably would have been topped by a thousand had the Auditorium been large enough to take care of that many. It is almost safe to say that the demand would run as high for a Providence College-State match.

Providence College isn't Holy Cross by a long shot, but the fact remains that the Friars did score a last-minute victory over State earlier in the season. That fact isn't being overlooked by basketball enthusiasts, even though the more discerning must realize that the Ram team which had Holy Cross hanging on the ropes last week was notches and notches improved over the club that suffered a late-game lapse against the Friars in mid-December.

Objections . . .

Well, anyhow, so much for the reasons why, purely from a spectator standpoint, it would be an excellent thing to transfer the game from Rodman Hall to Providence. However, these are college teams of which we are speaking and it must be remembered that theoretically, at least, college sports aren't conducted primarily to please the spectators or to provide opportunity for large crowds to witness the games. Let us remember the theory, anyway, though in practice nowadays it is ignored rather widely.

In the theory lies a complication in the way of the game transfer, for to move the contest to Providence would mean that State would have to prolong its schedule beyond its regular limits. It isn't a simple matter of moving the game next Wednesday night from Kingston to Providence. You see, the Ice Follies—the regular Ice Follies, that is, not the follies the R.I. Reds seemed to be engaging in on occasion when they were playing eight games at home without a victory—are at the Auditorium for seven days, starting next Monday, so that there's no opening for the game there next week.

The other night at the hockey game I queried Lou Pieri, the Auditorium proprietor, about when his hall would be available for an evening of basketball. At the time, he seemed much more concerned about whether his Reds were going to stretch their winning streak to two by beating Cincinnati, but he did say he thought either Mar. 9 or 10 was open. Either of those dates would mean that the game would be a post-season clash for the Rams, whose regular season ends against Brown Mar. 8.

However, the college has sanctioned postseason appearances of the Rams in national tourneys in the past and I think their performing in Providence, before a Rhode Island crowd which points to them proudly as the state's standout team of the indoor season, well might be considered as a postseason tourney.

At Home . . .

The emphasis is laid upon the Rams' willingness to make the move, both from the postseason angle and the fact that in transferring the game they would be sacrificing home-floor advantage. The Friars' season doesn't end until Mar. 11. The Auditorium contest in December, was their "home" game, so presumably they would have no serious objections to the change. I hereby file that last as my entry for prize understatement of the year, considering what little "serious objection" any team could have to a contest with the Rams being moved away from the Kingston court.

Actually, though, I doubt if the home-floor advantage, even the home floor in cozy Rodman Hall, means much to this widely traveled State team. Red Haire's rambling Rams have performed brilliantly this season on courts all the way from Raleigh, N.C., to Orono, Me., with stops at Philadelphia, New Brunswick, New York and Boston. They are the kind of team that seems to be at home any place and the hope here is that they will be "at home" to the Friars in the Auditorium some time next month.

Poly Rally Beats Providence Five

TROY, Feb. 25.—Rensselaer Poly's basketball team rallied in the last five minutes to edge Providence college, 58-53, tonight in a thriller. The Friars matched the hosts point for point in the first half and held a rest-period margin of 29-27.

Providence led, 48-47, with five minutes left, but Ed Zeno's fielder put RPI ahead to stay and Frank Murphy, the Engineers' big scorer with 18 points, clinched it with a set shot near the finish.

3 St. Mary's Alumni Help P.C. Five Greatly; Visit State Tomorrow

By JOE McHENRY

Things were looking up for the St. Mary's Alumni at Providence College but then Tom Bauer took sick and Sam Nissel broke a finger. Only slim Jim Schlimm has been able to carry the load and he has been doing a fine job with Coach Vin Cuddy's Friars, who tackle the Rhode Island State Rams tomorrow night in Kingston.

Schlimm is one of the finest offensive players the Friars have had in years and yet he's completely unorthodox in most everything he does on the basketball court.

Just give Jim the ball around the hoop and he'll manage to get it up there. His hook shots have bothered almost every team the Friars have run up against, although Brown's Moe Mahoney solved them better than anybody else. Mahoney used much the same defense against Schlimm that he worked successfully against Yale's Tony Lavelli last year, although Schlimm isn't yet in Lavelli's class by a long ways, good as he is.

Near Pittsburgh

St. Mary's, Pa., (population just under 8000) is a suburb of Pittsburgh and the names of Bauer, Schlimm and Nissel were quite prominent in the sporting activities of St. Mary's Catholic High, especially in basketball. The three of them played together at one time, although Nissel is a year ahead at Providence.

Nissel led the Friar Frosh scorers in his freshman year, and Schlimm did it last season. So far Schlimm has paced the Friars, with Nissel second despite a bad bump on the head and now a broken finger. Sam looks something like Joe DiMaggio and is quite an outfielder, while Schlimm aspires to be a southpaw pitcher. St. Mary's was famed in years gone by as the habitat of the late and great Rube Waddell, one of baseball's best.

Schlimm scored more than 1500 points as a schoolboy. He and Sam hold the school record at 37 points in a single game. Sam hit 27 with the Friars last season while Schlimm has been in double figures in all but one game since he took over a starting berth. He has averaged better than 15 points per game but most of his shots are flashy and spectacular and frequently thrown while off balance.

Not By Book

"He doesn't do anything according to the book," says Coach Vin Cuddy, comparing him to Connecticut's Vin Yokabaskas, both fine shots but not well rounded. Jim is a good rebounder and helped out in fine style since Nissel has been sidelined. Schlimm, Fran Pelligrino and Ray Garcia are the Friars' pacemakers, with Walt Lozoski, Art Weinstock, Ray Korbusieski and Jerry Lembo as drivers and steadiers.

St. Mary's with Jim, Sam and Tom, went to the National Catholic tournament in Chicago and lost to a team from Indiana. They were runners-up for the Pennsylvania Catholic and Class B crowns. They lost to Pittsburgh Central Catholic in a close one for the parochial title and had a 50-foot shot beat them by one point in the last five seconds for the Class B laurels.

Quite a Family

The Schlimms could very easily go into that family basketball tournament they have down in the Carolinas. For when Coach Jim Goetz of St. Mary's looks down the bench and calls for Schlimm—Johnny, Harold, Harrison or Greg can answer. One of them is a regular, the other three are substitutes. There are 13 children in all—seven boys and six girls, with Jim, the third eldest.

The Friars will miss Nissel for now it doesn't look at though he'll be able to get into any of their remaining games with State, Boston College, Clark and Brown. Against Rensselaer, Schlimm and Pelligrino did a good job, with Pelly featuring in the second half. Newport's Ed Mooney also did some good spot work.

Larry Drew, who coached the Friars last season, predicted big things for both Nissel and Schlimm and the St. Mary's boys have delivered. The Friars will have their work cut out in trying to repeat over State tomorrow night at Kingston for it's 14 games back and several college generations in between before you find another Providence victory there. And Rhody has always been poison to the Friars in Rodman Hall.

P.C. Visits State Wednesday; H.C. Shows Its Class

New York, Feb. 27.—(UP)—Bradley, Duquesne and St. John's today accepted invitations to play in the National Invitation Basketball tournament here beginning Mar. 11.

By JOE McHENRY

The Holy Cross Crusaders may be the No. 1 or the No. 2 team in the country, depending on your leanings, but there's not much doubt that they're undisputed champions of the R.I. college contingent. They've posted a 5-and-0 record in five games with Brown, R.I. State and Providence College, with only the Rams able to give them a rub.

All three Rhode Island teams were beaten on Saturday night. Brown lost by the widest margin to the competent Crusaders, but the Friars and the Rams came very close to victory.

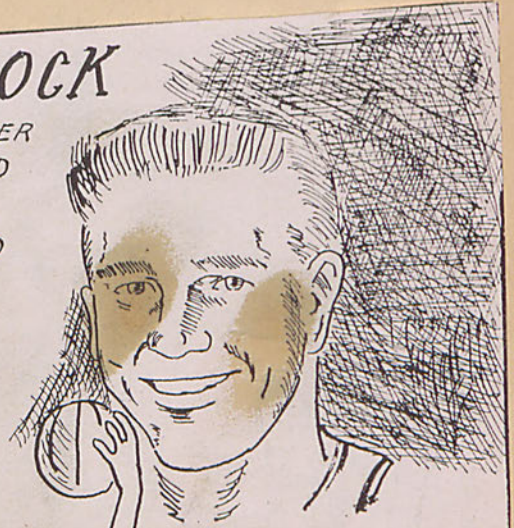

This week's schedule features the meeting between the Rams and the Friars on Wednesday night at Rodman Hall in Kingston. On any other court, the Friars would have a fair chance of repeating their earlier victory over the Rams at the Auditorium but not in the lair of the Rams, where Rhody rules supreme.

Rensselaer edged the Friars, 58-53, at Troy, although Coach Vin Cuddy's team did a fairly good job against the Engineers, who pulled out the decision in the last few minutes. Jim Schlimm and Frank Pelligrino are clicking but the Friars will miss Sam Nissel against the Rams at Kingston and on Saturday night when they play that return game with the Boston College Eagles at the Mount Pleasant High gym.

Five State Regulars Will Be Playing Their Last Game

at Rodman Hall

By JOE McHENRY

The Rhode Island State Rams will be in a revengeful mood tonight when they meet the Providence College Friars at Rodman Hall in Kingston. The Friars won the opener at the Auditorium with a thrilling finish but the Rams are favored to take the game tonight on their home surface.

Since the first game in December, both the Friars and the Rams have played some fine basketball, but the Rams have been the more successful of the two, with some brilliant performances, especially against the Holy Cross Crusaders, then ranked as the top team in the country.

The Friars haven't been too successful against the Rams down through the years, winning only seven games in the 30-game series and they had gone 12 games without a victory when they put over an upset at the Auditorium. The Rams last hit 100 points against the Friars and missed by one last year, showing that the Providence club has been rather easy for Rhody in chummy Rodman Hall.

However, it isn't well to count the Friars out for they are one of the most aggressive teams to represent Providence in a long time and won't give up without a scrap. They pushed the Rams off stride in the first meeting but Rhody is much improved over its early play.

Coach Vin Cuddy of the Friars looks for a good game at Kingston but knows just how rough the Rams can be on their home surface as he played against them while a collegian at Connecticut. The Friars are a bit handicapped, although not offering any alibi, by the absence of Sam Nissel, who broke his finger about 10 days ago and has missed the last two games.

Providence played spotty ball against R.P.I. at Troy but still could have won the game. The Rams, on the other hand, made a fine comeback against the Uconns after trailing by 16 points and dropped a tough 74-to-71 decision at Storrs in their last outing.

This is the final home game for several of the Ram stars and naturally they want to bow out with a victory. Bruce Blount and Leo Golembiewski, co-captains and backbone of the team's defense as well as offensive cogs, will be playing their final game before the home folks as will Walt Basler and Don and Bill Shannon. All have played well for the Rams who are closing out a fine season after a slow start.

The Friars will open with Fran Pelligrino at center, Ray Garcia and Jim Schlimm at forwards and co-captains Walt Lozoski and Art Weinstock at the guards. Lozoski was the hero of the Friars' victory, sinking a long shot for the clincher, although substitute guard Jerry Lembo also was a factor with his clutch foul shooting.

The Providence and Rhode Island freshman teams will meet in a preliminary contest at 6 o'clock, with the Ramlets favored to repeat.

CLASH TONIGHT AT KINGSTON
R.I. STATE AND P.C. QUINTETS

TONIGHT . . .

Crowd 3-1-50
The Friars of Providence College, now sporting a 12-6 record, meet for the second time this season the Rams of Rhode Island State. There is no need for anyone to be reminded of the contest between these two clubs earlier in the season. P. C. emerged on the long end of a 59-57 score and made basketball history. The game tonight should find two good teams pitted against each other. Rhode Island has come a long way since December, but then so has Providence.

UP AND DOWN RAMS . . .

The Rams are noted for their superior play on their home court, Rodman Hall in Kingston. Rhody received a boost of morale recently by tying Holy Cross in the regular time of the game, but losing by 8 points in overtime. This close call for the Crusaders had much to do with the Bradley team taking over the No. 1 spot in the country and the Associated Press poll. In the way of contrast, the University of Connecticut pinned an upset defeat on the Rhody Rams by the score of 74-71.

FAST BALL GAME . . .

If things follow according to custom, tonight's encounter should be a fast and furious game. Rhody Coach, Red O'Hare, would like nothing better than to run up an impressive score on the Friars. Bruce Blount, high-scorer for the Rams, and Leon Golembiewski, defenseman and good off the boards, should keep the Cuddymen busy throughout the evening. The return to championship form of Ray Garcia and Frank Pelligrino increases Providence's chances for victory. But Sam Nissel, sidelined indefinitely because of a broken finger, will not see service.

WHERE'S RAMESES? . . .

Basketball fans of P. C. must be losing their school spirit. No one stole the Rhode Island mascot, Rameses this season. Well, not yet anyway. The game hasn't started. Anyone interested in tickets for the contest tonight should know that there are none available. Rodman Hall is a small gym and only half of the R. I. S. student body fits into the building. There is no public sale of tickets.

SWEET REVENGE . . .

About this time last year Providence College was completing one of its worst basketball seasons in the history of the school. The Boston College Eagles and their proud coach, General McClellan, ventured into Mount Pleasant Gym, confident of a victory over the hapless Friars. That evening

TICKETS FOR SMOKER

Tickets for the Boxing Smoker, sponsored by the Monogram Club March 15, are now available. Those desiring tickets should pick them up at the A. A. office or see any member of the Monogram Club, who are selling them. In order to defray expenses of the organization the tickets will sell for 35c. As Harkins Hall doesn't provide room for the entire student body it would be advisable that the students pick them up while they are still available.

P. C. played its best game of the season and won a terrific ball game. Earlier this season, the Friars journeyed to Newton, Mass., to meet B. C. The Eagles planted a decisive defeat on Providence and then avenged the licking of last season. But they also planted a seed of fight and spirit in the Friars. Saturday evening these two clubs will meet again. Will it be a good ball game? Ask any member of the basketball team, they should have an appropriate answer for you.

SPIKE-ULATION . . .

The indoor track season is coming to a finish. Only one more major meet is scheduled. That one is the Pioneer Club Meet at Madison Square Garden, March 11. The Friar track mentor, Harry Coates, hasn't decided about entrance as yet. Plans for the Outdoor Board Meet, March 25, are progressing, but no definite news has been revealed. During the winter season the Coatesmen have done an excellent job and placed high in several nationally recognized meets. This is but the third year that the sport of track has been operating at the college. However, in that short time, through the efforts of Harry Coates and his runners, track is a wholesale success at Providence College.

Dormuralites

By JOE LAUGHLIN

As the Dorm League swings into its final week we find the Newport Club still undefeated and leading the league. Next week the play-offs commence and the first eight teams with the highest percentage will compete for the dorm crown.

Some of the more important games played this week were as follows:

Aquinas Freshmen played the Hartford Hilltoppers. The Hilltoppers nosed them out 28-25. Bob Lynch was the big gun for the Hilltoppers with 15 points. Archambeault was high for the losers with 10 points. The game was decided in the last minute as the panicky Freshmen failed to rally.

The highly touted Boston Club, sporting only one defeat, ran into their stiffest opposition of the year as they were definitely outclassed by the hard-fighting Sophomore Scientists team, 43-16. The Sophomore Scientists inspired by the chance to obtain a play-off birth, displayed amazing teamwork as Dick Fritz (10), Bill Davis (9), and Steve Sulavik (10), garnered 29 points between them. The outstanding performer for the Boston Club was "Charlie" Lynch, who set up many fine plays beside scoring seven points himself.

The Boston Club returned to its winning ways, after being humbled by the Scientists, by overriding the cellar-ridden Kigmies, 24-13. Shaw, with 14 points led his teammates, each of whom got into the scoring column. Hats off to the gallant Kigmies. Although this highly-spirited team has not reached a high spot in the win column, they cannot help but reach a high spot in the admiration column of the other teams as well as every student in the dorm. Having been beaten game after game they have never showed signs of quitting or of bitterness. One can always judge good sportsmanship in a team by the way it loses. We salute Captain Bill McGuinnis, Ed Chartier, Jim Costello, Ray Whitely, Bill Sherry, Bob Dogherty, Bernie Collins, Dick Funk, Art Carter and Jim Morris for their fine sportsmanship and example of unending determination.

The greatest upset of the week saw Met. No. 2 defeat Aquinas Freshmen 29-27. For the Freshmen it was their second consecutive defeat after having previously lost only one all season. This upset is credited to the exceptional ability of big Tom McDonough (13) who was followed by Charlie Wooley with seven. Again the Freshmen were paced by Archambeault (10), who has consistently proven himself this year, and his teammate, Ed Sullivan (8).

The play-offs begin March 1 and end March 8 after which an All-Dorm team will be chosen. The Dorm Championship team will be the honored guests of the Carolan Club at a banquet and also a hockey game (Buffalo vs. Reds).

KINGSTON, R. I., March 1—Rhode Island State nipped Providence College 60 to 58 tonight before an overflow crowd of 1500 in Rodman Hall. The grand floor work of Johnny Mitchell, 5ft. 8in. guard from Waterville, Me., contributed greatly to fashion the Rams' 16th victory in 24 starts this season. With the Rams scoring their last five points from the foul line, Mitchell, who tallied the final two, dribbled the ball for 17 seconds. The game marked the final home appearance of Co-Capt. Bruce Blount and Leon Golembiewski. Bill Schlimm of the Friars, was top scorer with 25.

Boxers For Smoker To Be Chosen Soon

Crawl 3-1-50

With approximately two short weeks remaining before the Boxing Show, March 15, Coach Pete Louthis is rounding his squad into sound physical condition. The actual pairings will be announced with the next issue of the COWL.

A new class of P. C. boxers, the featherweight division, has been coming around exceptionally under the guidance of Coach Louthis. Walt Chieffo, Dick McAllister, Vin DiNicollo, and John Izzi make up this fast moving, smart punching group.

The Wednesday following the Boxing Smoker, March 22, a meeting with the Dartmouth College Boxing Team has been set. The matches are scheduled to take place at Hanover, N. H.

Freshmen Win Pair In Last Four Games

Count 3-1-50
By Charlie Sakany

During the past two weeks the P.C. Frosh have seen action four times, emerging with a 2 and 2 record. The Freshmen edged Nichols Junior College, 78-74, were set back decisively by a good Springfield Club, 67-49, lost a close one to Newman Prep, 64-60, and on Saturday checked R.I.C.E. 66-63.

In the only home game of this series the Friar Frosh displayed fine teamwork in overpowering Nichols in a tight game. During the first half P.C. trailed by a slight margin until Power scored twice from the foul line in the closing seconds. The half ended with the Freshmen in front, 32-31.

In the second period the Martinmen, led by Bob Prendegast, set the pace. Both teams scored with remarkable accuracy, but Nichols could not cope with the versatility of Big Bob. He collected 26, scoring from all points. Kirby, Clegg and Power also turned in good performances while fighting to an 80-72 victory.

At Springfield the Frosh were lacking. The Springfield Freshmen capitalized on the misplays of P.C. and rolled to an easy victory with the aid of Schutts, who chopped in 27 points for the visitors.

The Friars could do little right. Passing was inaccurate and their shooting was ineffective. Prendegast was the only Friar to hit double figures. He netted 20, while Clegg, second high for P.C. collected 8.

Against Newman Prep the Frosh played one, if not the best game of the season. The Newman team had previously whipped the Freshmen, 68-55. Completely disregarding this off sided defeat P.C. played a dazzling brand of ball which put them up 27-24 at the end of the first half.

In the second period a victory slipped from their clutches in the final minutes due to a closing spurt by the Newman quintet and questionable officiating. When the two minute rule went into effect the score stood at 55-55. The best efforts of the Friars fell short in these final minutes and Newman squeezed out a 64-60 triumph.

Power was high for the Frosh in this contest with 17 points, and close behind was Prendegast and Kirby with 16 and 13 respectively. This trio plus Clegg sparked the Freshmen to a near victory, one which they rightly deserved.

Angered by this loss in Boston, the Friar Frosh turned back R.I.C.E. in a thrilling game. Though the Freshmen trailed by 1 point at the close of the first period, determination enabled the Friars to coast to a 66-63 victory. Prendegast led the Freshman scoring with 20. Power and Clegg hit for 12 each, and Bob Paul gathered 9 on 3 field goals and 3 free throws.

The play of the team in these four contests was good, and it is easy to see that they have gained a good deal of confidence in themselves.

RI State Edges Providence Team

Count 3-1-50
In one of the best games at Rhode Island State since prewar days, the Rams last night nudged Providence College, 60-58, before 1500 fans, to square accounts for the season.

Trailing 56-49 with 6:40 to go, the Friars managed to reduce the deficit, but State's stalling tactics and the subsequent fouls charged against them held off the PC cagers in the closing minutes.

Johnny Mitchell of the Rams personally killed 3½ minutes by some clever dribbling, reminiscent of Leo Connerton and Ernie Calverley. For one full minute the Friars made no effort to get the ball away from him. When they did, Mitchell was fouled four times, and he sank three free throws in a row.

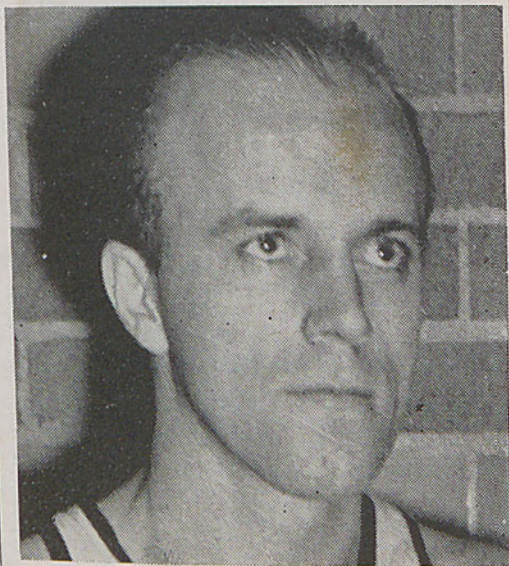

RAMBLING RAMS REVENGE MINDED FRIARS MEET BOSTON COLLEGE SAT.

Tonight at Rodman Gym in Kingston, a weakened Providence College quintet will be out to make it two straight over the high-flying Rams of Rhode Island State. The Friars, with Sam Nissel out of the lineup because of a fractured finger, are rated slight underdogs. The Rhodyites are primed for this contest and are gunning for revenge.

In the first encounter played at the Auditorium, the Friars scored a sensational upset win over State by a 59-57 score. A 20 foot set shot by Walt Lozoski with 16 seconds to go climaxed a terrific second half comeback by the P. C.'ers who had trailed 39-29 at half-time.

There has been considerable clamor for the game to be changed to an auditorium with a larger seating capacity, but it isn't being done. All the Providence College rooters and the general sports fans of the state will be unable to witness this, the top inter-state contest of the year.

The Rams, on the basis of their two splendid showings against high-ranking Holy Cross, have been installed a slight favorite. Also in their favor will be the fact that they are playing on their tiny home court with all its reputed "markings", while the Friars have been stripped of such of their scoring punch with the high scoring Nessel out. The P. C.'ers will also run into one of the most loyal rooting sections imaginable when they invade the Rhode Island campus.

On the other hand, the Friars and Coach Cuddy prefer the role of underdog. The situation is set for a repeat of the previous game. Once again, the Rams are favorites—maybe the Friars can be winners, again.

Since the eight game win streak, the Friars have been in and out, one time looking like world beaters, and then later doing everything wrong. Last Saturday, sorely missing Sam Nissel's scoring, they dropped a 58-53 decision to Rensselaer. Previous to that, they had scored two fine victories, one over St. Peter's and the other over Springfield. They are entering tonight's tilt with a twelve-six record.

The Rame starting lineup will include: Bruce Blount, Don Shannon, Leon Golembiewski, Chuck Stewart, and Johnny Mitchell. The Rams top subs are Walt Basler and Walt Shannon.

Although the Rams have all the odds in their favor, the Friars should not be underestimated. They have one of the fastest and scrappiest clubs ever to represent the College. In the type of game which these two teams play, condition and depth play an important part. Both teams are in top physical condition, except for Nissel. The Friars, however, have a superior bench. They have seven men who can step off the bench and do an adequate job, while the Rams have but two. And, that may be the deciding factor in the contest.

Coach Cuddy is planning to use the same five who have started the last few games. Jim Schlimm, high scorer since the first three games, will open as one of the forward posts. Ray Garcia, who has played excellent ball as a replacement for Nissel, will be the other forward. Frank Pelligrino, who seems to have regained his scoring eye, will start at the center position. The Co-captains, Walt Lozoski and Art Weinstock, whose excellent playmaking and set shooting are invaluable, will be the starting guards. Ray Korbusieski and Jerry Lembo, two hustling sophomore guards, will also see a lot of service.

Let's hope it is, for the Friars are out after unlucky number thirteen.

Rams Post 60-58 Victory, Square the Duel With P.C.

Johnny Mitchell's Masterly Dribbling Staves Off Losers' Rally

By JOE McHENRY

The Rhode Island State Rams scored a 60-to-58 victory over the Providence College Friars last night before a jam-packed crowd at Rodman Hall, estimated at 1500, in a game, that could well take its place among the best played on State's court since the prewar 40's and late '30's.

Both teams were keyed up and played spirited, aggressive basketball. Although the Rams managed to square the intra-state duel, the Friars had plenty to talk about in defeat. It was a fine game, though sometimes on the rough side.

Rhode Island has been involved in some thrillers of late — against Holy Cross and Connecticut. This one followed much of the same pattern, as the Rams just managed to hold off the onrushing Friars in the final moments.

Johnny Mitchell, the little guy from Waterville, Me., perhaps dribbled the Rams to victory in the closing moments, though Leon Golembiewski, Bruce Blount, Bill Shannon and Walt Basler all had a major part in the victory.

Master Mitchell

The Friars were trailing by seven points, 56-49, with 6:40 to go, but it still was anybody's game when the Rams started stalling their way to victory. Mitchell, an accomplished dribbler in the manner of Ernie Calverley and Leo Connerton, held the ball for at least a minute, with the Friars making no real effort to get it away from him. When they fouled him eventually, he put in the free throw and it was a succession of such tactics that put the game in the books as a Rhode Island victory.

While Mitchell, who controlled the ball and killed off practically three and half minutes, was doing his job, he was fouled four times in all and the four points were those which spelled the difference. After Mitchell had put in the 57th point, Ray Korbusieski and Jerry Lembo of the Friars sparked a drive which cut the lead to one point, with Korby putting in a basket and two fouls and Lembo one of each, making it 57-56.

Best of Year

Then Korbusieski put up one which rolled around the hoop and off and with 47 seconds remaining, Mitchell put in two free throws, 10 seconds apart, which made it 59-56. Korbusieski dribbled the length of the court and scored for the Friars, again bringing P.C. within a point. Then Mitchell, still dribbling as though the ball was on a string like a yo-yo, sunk another foul for the game's final marker.

Coach Vin Cuddy said he thought the Friars played their best game of the year, considering the caliber of the Rams and the Kingston court. Providence surprised even its fondest fans with a display of scrappy basketball, which nearly brought a repetition of their earlier 59-57 upset victory at the Auditorium.

State came back in the second half, twice led by 11 points, but had all it could do to hold off the Friars' rally. Providence, which had 15-7 and 21-12 leads in the first half, saw its margin gradually whittled down. Rhode Island took the lead just before the half and then the teams settled for a 32-all deadlock at intermission.

Smooth Operators

Slim Jim Schlimm was easily the best scorer on the court, with his 25 points, but his shooting was sensational. Fran Pelligrino, Ed Mooney and Walt Lozoski were prominent, with Mooney doing an outstanding job. Ray Garcia and Art Weinstock helped the cause along with their play-making.

While the Friars were a shade better in the first half, the Rams were the smoother operators in the second 20 minutes, which was played at a sounder pace. The first half was action-packed and tempers were on edge. The later activity was spirited but calmer.

Providence started out fast. Then Don Shannon pulled the Rams together and got them back in the game. Leon Golembiewski and Bruce Blount were great around the boards, with Golembiewski saving the day with his work on rebounds. Blount was very effective in the closing minutes.

Blaze of Glory

At about seven minutes of the second half, the Rams took an eight-point lead, 43-35, and they managed to hang on to that and add a few more, leading, 51-40, after 10 minutes. Once it was 12 points but the unpredictable Friars, paced by the shooting of Schlimm and Lozoski, with two long shots, got back in the ball game and staged their brilliant closing drive.

Blount, Golembiewski, Don and Bill Shannon and Basler all closed their final game at Kingston in a blaze of glory, for the Shannons and Basler led the R.I. rally in the first half when the Rams were slipping.

Blount and Golembiewski were the top men over the route.

The Rhode Island State Frosh went over the century mark, with a 105-to-58 victory over the Providence Frosh, after leading, 39-24, at halftime. Bill Marine and Ray Rossi led the Ramlets, who scored 66 points in the second half.

Friars Face Tough B.C.; Bears Home; Rams Away

By JOE McHENRY

The Providence College Friars, who are unbeaten on the Mount Pleasant High basketball court, face their toughest home test of the season tomorrow night in meeting the Boston College Eagles. At the same time the Brown Bruins will play host to the touring Hampton Institute quintet from Hampton, Va., while the Rhode Island State Rams will tackle Springfield at Springfield, Mass.

The Friars turned in an excellent game in bowing to the Rams at Kingston on Wednesday night but the game may have taken something out of both clubs. The Friars wanted to win that one badly and played their heads off trying to sweep the series, an almost unprecedented feat as far as Rhoody's rivals are concerned.

However, the Friars are just as determined to beat the Eagles, who have already beaten them at Newton in a rough, exciting contest. Boston College, coached by Al "General" McLellan who directed some of the Friars' best teams, has a good squad this season, one that would be more highly rated, if Holy Cross didn't dominate the New England area as much.

Pointing

Providence has pointed for the B.C., but it's expecting a lot for a college team to come up with two such performances in successive games. The Eagles who have beaten Yale, Villanova, Rhode Island, Seton Hall and St. Francis, among others, are a good club and have given the Cross and City College a couple of close ones in addition.

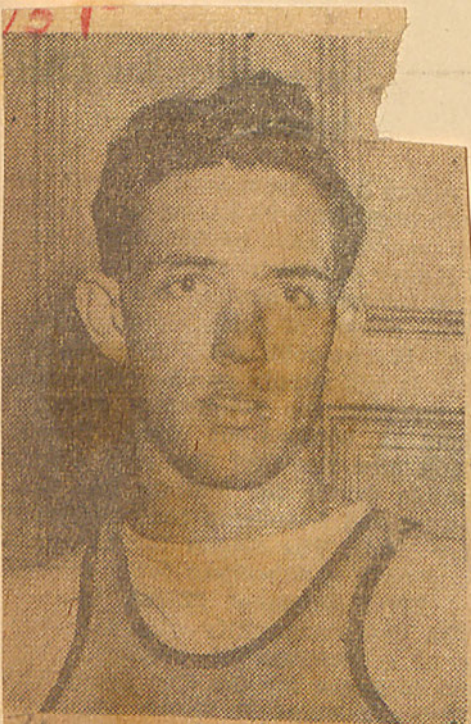

The Friars' Jim Schlimm, with 25 points against the Rams, has boosted his season's mark to 279 points, with an 18-point average for his last 10 starts. B.C. has an All-New England choice in Tommy O'Brien, a hard driving playmaker who feeds off to Tim O'Connell, Tom O'Toole, Tom Deegan and Dick Fitzgerald.

Coach Vin Cuddy will have the same starting lineup that has been answering the opening whistle since Sam Nissel broke his finger. That includes co-captains Walt Lozski and Art Weinstock, Fran Pelligrino, Ray Garcia and Jim Schlimm.

B. C. HOOPSTERS IN R. I. VISIT

The Boston College basketball team goes after its 12th victory of the season tonight when it invades the Providence Auditorium to face Providence College in a return match. BC beat the Friars, 67-50, in an earlier meeting.

The current Eagle quintet has the best record compiled at the Heights since the sport was revived five years ago, 11-7. Its goal now is to take its two remaining games, Providence and La Salle of Philadelphia.

WITH FRIAR FROSH — Bill Quinn, former Cathedral High three letter athlete will play here Saturday afternoon as a Providence College freshman basketball starter in the preliminary at 2.30 to the Springfield College-Providence varsity game. Quinn also played freshman football with the Friars and is heralded as a great baseball prospect for the Providence freshman nine this spring.

Providence Five Nips Springfield

Springfield, Mass., Feb 18. (AP)

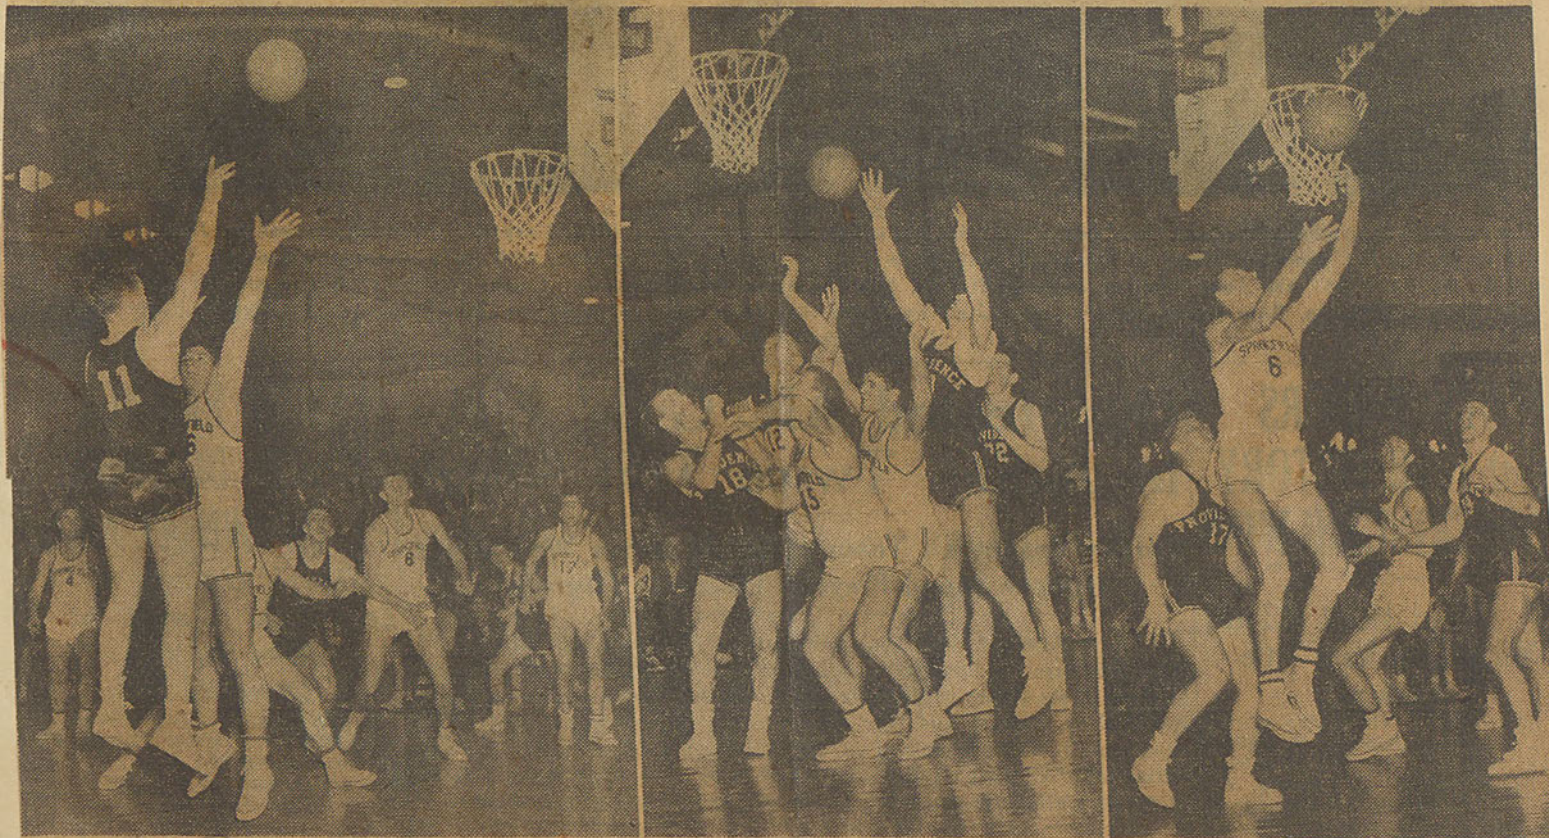

—The Providence College basketball team took over the lead early in the first half today and hung on the rest of the way to defeat Springfield 62-59 before a turn-away 3,000 homecoming day crowd.

Springfield led only for the first few minutes, never by more than a few points. After the winning Friars passed the local club they extended their advantage to as much as 12 points at one time.

Springfield rallied late in the second half but three long handlers by Frank Pelligrino clinched the game for Providence.

With 30 seconds to go Springfield captain Tiff Barker dropped in a long set shot to pull Springfield to 59-61 but a successful free throw by the visitors prevented any further rallying by the losers.

State Barely Bests Friars

Rams Win Rough Contest With P. C. By 60-58 Score

By HENRY J. SHERLOCK

Providence College staged a great comeback and nearly upset R. I. State for the second time this season but accurate foul shooting, particularly in the final minutes, enabled the Rams to hold off the rally and gain a 60-58 decision before an overflow crowd at Kingston's Rodman Hall last night.

The game was one of the wildest and most fiercely fought at Kingston in many years. The Friars, behind by 12 points midway through the final half and seemingly ready to collapse, suddenly rebounded just as they did in the first meeting between the schools at the Auditorium in January.

MITCHELL SAVES RAMS

In the January game Providence made up a 17-point deficit and won in the final seconds on a long shot by Walt Lozowski. But last night the brilliant work of little Johnny Mitchell of the Rams prevented a repeat performance by the Friars.

The final minutes of the game were centered around Mitchell. State held a 56-49 lead with six minutes and 40 seconds remaining when Mitchell, a fast and expert dribbler, started a "freeze."

Mitchell's act was so successful that he killed more than three minutes, being interrupted once when fouled. Mitchell caged the free throw to make the State lead 57-49. Little Johnny went on to sink three more fouls before the end to account for the triumph.

In between Mitchell's brilliant freeze attempts, which for the most part were stopped only after he was fouled, the Friars hustled and shot brilliantly to narrow the gap.

FRIARS SHOOT WELL

After Mitchell made State's 57th point, Ted Korbusieski and Jerry Lembo led a PC rally that brought them to within one point of the victors. They each scored a basket, with Korbusieski adding two fouls and Lembo one.

In the final minutes PC missed few shots. But one of the misses was a heart-breaker. A Korbusieski shot rolled around the rim and out.

Following Korbusieski's near connection, Mitchell was fouled by Lembo with 47 seconds left and made the score 58-56 on an accurate free throw. The dribbling wizard was fouled again by Lembo 10 seconds later and added another State point.

That conversion practically ciched the game for State. The Rams, attempting to avert a foul, all but watched Korbusieski dribble in for a basket with less than 20 seconds left to make the score 59-58.

Mitchell was again fouled with 15 seconds left. After making State's final point, he resumed his dribbling act and enabled the Rams to retain possession until the end.

PC'S SCHLIMM STARS

The outstanding player of the game was Jim Schlimm, PC's pivot man. Schlimm led all scorers with 25 points and was mainly responsible for keeping the hustling Friars in the game. A sophomore, Schlimm promises to be one of the greatest scorers in PC history.

Providence offset the theory that all teams must get "shellacked" by the Rams at Kingston. And the Friars did it because of superior rebounding and hustle. Schlumm combined with Frank Pellegrino and Ray Garcia in the rebounding battle against State's Leon Golembieski.

Golembieski played brilliantly and most fans rated him second only to Schlimm when recounting the game's stars. Big Leon was practically alone under the boards for State. He did a tremendous job. But Schlimm, Pellegrino and Garcia outdid the big State star often enough to keep PC in the game.

With the exception of Schlimm, none of the players enjoyed their usual shooting accuracy. That perhaps can be attributed to the rough nature of the contest. State suffered the biggest let down on its shots from the floor, making only 19 of 89 for a poor 21 per cent. PC caged 22 out of 76 for 29 per cent.

The Rams made up for their lax floor shooting by doing unusually well from the charity stripe. Outscored by three field goals, the Rams made 22 fouls, with only 10 misses. PC, on the other hand, made only 14 of 25.

State was a heavy favorite so the partisan Ram audience was somewhat aghast when PC strolled to a 10-2 lead at the start. Schlimm led the early Friar rush by dunking two baskets and a foul.

PC remained ahead for most of the first half. The Friars built up a 15-8 lead in the first five minutes. State got six of its points on fouls, with Don Shannon connecting for the first two.

FRIARS WIDEN GAP

Chuck Stewart got his and State's second basket to make the score 15-10. Golembieski followed with a basket before the Friars went off on another scoring binge. Schlimm tossed in two baskets and Garcia added another to make the score 21-12.

The Shannon brothers, Don and Bill, then sparked a State rally which enabled them to tie the score midway through the first half. Don got one basket and stole the ball to set up another and Bill hit for two successive baskets while State was moving into a 23-23 tie.

The lead changed hands with almost each basket before the end of the first half, with the score being tied three times. A Mitchell foul conversion tied the score at 32-32 seconds before the intermission.

STATE GETS HOT

The Rams were hot early in the second half and threatened to turn the game into a rout. All the Rams, Bruce Blount, Golembieski, Walt Basler, Don Shannon and Mitchell took part in a scoring spree that put State ahead 47-36 after seven minutes of play.

The Rams still held a 12-point lead at 52-40 with 10 minutes left. Three baskets by Schlimm, with a Golembieski score coming in between, made the score 54-46. Stewart dribbled through for a State score but the Friars retaliated with a Lozowski basket and Weinstein got a foul to put the Friars within 56-49.

Mitchell then started his "freeze" act. It irked the Friars at the outset and for a minute they refused to make any attempt to take the ball from Mitchell.

The first half of the game was exceedingly rough. It was climaxed by a brief scuffle between Weinstein and Mitchell. Officials Jim Duffy and Ed Boyle laid down the law between halves and the rough stuff subsided in the final period.

Rodman Hall was really packed for the game. The "early birds" took their place in line outside the gym at 4:30. The doors were opened an hour later, and before six o'clock the hall was jammed to capacity. Many were turned away.

The Ram frosh exploded with a vengeance and rolled to a 105-58 victory over the Friar yearlings. State led by only 39-24 at half-time.

State used a two-platoon system in the preliminary. Three Pawtucket boys, Ray Rossi, Fred Lennon and Dick Buba, operated with the starting five. Both Ram teams repeatedly stole the ball as they ran roughshod over the Friars.

FISTICUFFS MAR LAST 60 SECONDS OF SPIRITED TILT

Jim Schlimm Registers 26 in Leading Friar Victory;

O'Brien, B.C. Star

By JOE McHENRY

The Providence College Friars, who are enjoying their best season since the early 40's, scored another notable basketball triumph last night, defeating the Boston College Eagles, 77 to 64, before a capacity, standup crowd of over 800 at the Mount Pleasant High gym. The victory was P. C.'s 13th in 20 starts.

Despite two flare-ups in the final minute, which brought some of the fans onto the court, it was a well-played contest, with the Friars turning in another first-class performance.

The play was spirited and aggressive on both sides, with two sets of fisticuffs breaking out in the final 60 seconds. In the second exchange, Walt Lozoski of the Friars and Mort Stagoff of the Eagles were the participants, with some other players and fans joining in before things were returned to normal by Referees Joe Delaney and John Mahan and Coaches Vin Cuddy of the Friars and Al "General" McLellan.

Schlimm Heads P. C.

Slim Jim Schlimm, the clever shooting Pennsylvanian, led the Providence offense with 26 points but the Friars in general again came up with a solid, all-around performance. The Eagles, recent conquerors of Villanova, had a standout player in Tom O'Brien and were very much in the ball game.

It was the second outstanding game for the Friars in four nights, although the Providence quintet has come along fast and is a match for just about any New England combine, perhaps excluding the Holy Cross Crusaders.

Providence played a driving game with Schlimm, Ray Garcia, Fran Pelligrino, Ray Korbusieski, Lozoski and Art Weinstock as its key operators. Garcia and Korbusieski contributed some fine defensive work while Pelly and Schlimm helped out in the rebounding.

Friars Hold Lead

The Friars again started fast as they did against Rhode Island and last night held the lead for all but a short period in the second half when the Eagles went ahead, 57-55, on a combination play with Tom Deegan scoring on a layup. The Eagles, although sometimes as much as nine points behind, were always dangerous, with their flashy passwork and give-and-go style.

The Friars were 10 points up at the five-minute mark, 16-6, but the Eagles, led by Fran Duggan and O'Brien, had cut it down to three, 24-21, midway in the half. They came up within a basket at 29-27 and 31-29, with the Friars spurting on some good shooting by Schlimm, and Korbusieski for a 42-35 halftime margin.

About two minutes of the second half had elapsed when the Eagles closed in again at 42-44, with Timmy O'Connell, the BC spark. It went up to 49-44, in favor of the Friars and the Eagles were but one point behind, 50-51, after six minutes of the second half. Korby dropped in two fouls and Pelligrino scored a basket giving the Friars a five-point lead, 55-50, but Fran Gaffney and Fran Higgins countered with five points between them and tied it up.

P.C. Trails Briefly

Here Deegan scored on a clever combination setup, giving BC the lead for the only time, and the Friars were behind, 57-55, starting the last 10 minutes. Then Schlimm put in a jump shot and a pop from the corner and it was 60-59. A basket by Art Weinstock and a foul by Schlimm offset a foul shot by O'Connell and Higgins' set-shot from outside.

With five minutes left, the Friars led 63-62 but from thereon they kept pulling away, leading, 67-62 and 69-64. Duggan, O'Brien and Higgins of B.C. fouled out in the final minutes, with the Friars controlling the ball and adding to their margin.

The game was very rough over the final 10 minutes of play and particularly so in the last minutes. There was a tension throughout, although the play was clean and hard for the most part, with the Friars most anxious to square the season's series. The pressing Eagles and the hurrying Friars both play scrappy basketball.

The fans were as much at fault for the jamming which occurred once near the Providence bench, and later on the far side of the court, with Lozoski and Stagoff being disqualified with 50 seconds left.

It's among the sweetest victories scored by the Friars and their new coach, Vin Cuddy, this season, taking place along with the one over Rhode Island State.

The Boston College Freshmen defeated the Providence College Freshmen, 57 to 46, after leading, 33-13, at halftime. Jim Norton and Martin Clancy paced the junior Eagles.

Three Top Hoop Attractions Scheduled Here This Week

Bruins Play State Wednesday,
P.C. Saturday; Globetrotters at Arena Tomorrow

P. J. 6-60
By JOHN HANLON

Basketball, college and professional species, bows out of the local scene this week, but not before three of the season's best attractions are in the books.

Only the brave would name one of the home contests as tops for the week—all should be dandies. In addition, local representatives play two games out of town.

Brown leads off by playing Dartmouth at Hanover, N.H., this evening. Tomorrow night the Providence College Friars take on Clark at Worcester. That takes care of the games in the hinterlands.

Celtics Play Caps

The first of the big three on home grounds takes place tomorrow at the Auditorium, where the Harlem Globe Trotters display their special brand of basketball against the Philadelphia Sphas. On the same card, the Boston Celtics will meet the Washington Capitols in a National Basketball Association game.

Brown and Rhode Island State will meet in the first of two intrastate games on Wednesday at Marvel Gym. The second takes place Saturday, same place, with Brown and Providence College as the opponents. State winds up its season against the Bruins, and the Saturday game is the finale for both clubs.

B. C. Five Plays Last Road Game Tonight Against Providence

Boston College's rejuvenated basketball five plays its final road game of the year when it stacks up against Providence College in a return clash at the Mt. Pleasant High gym tonight. In the curtain raiser, the B. C. freshmen will meet the Providence freshmen at 7 p. m.

Providence has come fast since the first meeting, when it was beaten by the Eagles, 67-50. At present, the Friars' season record stands at 10 figure at the time, for the Friars were rated the favorite by a good bit. This time the teams should go into the game as evenup.

All three of the locals came up with victories over the weekend. The Friars took the measure of Boston College, Brown had an easy night of it against Hampton Institute and the Rams just edged Springfield in the last 10 seconds of play.

Schlimm Stars

The Friars' victory over Boston College by a 77-64 count added an extra fillip to one of the best seasons the school has had in some years. They led most of the way and, when the Eagles did take over, they quickly took charge again. Jim Schlimm continued his high-scoring spree with 26 points.

State battled the Gymnasts right up to the horn. Bruce Blount tied the count at 56-all and, with 30 seconds left, Leon Golembiewski put his club ahead with two foul conversions. Springfield then tied it up, but Walt Basler of East Providence tossed in the clincher with just 10 seconds left. Final score: Rams 60, Springfield 58.

Coach Vin Cuddy has a well-balanced club which boasts of an outstanding scoring artist in 20-year-old Jim Schlimm, rated as one of the best all-around basket ball players to appear in New England in a long time. Teammate Art Weinstock, a resident of Newton, has also been instrumental in the success of the R. I. quintet. However, on the strength of the fine showing B. C. made recently, the Eagles are odds-on favorites to repeat their victory.

The team finishing first in the National Hockey League standings has gone on to win the Stanley Cup six times in the last 11 seasons.

Boston College To Meet PC

PROVIDENCE (INS)—The Boston College basketball team seeks its 12th victory of the season tonight when it faces Providence College in a return match at Rhode Island Auditorium.

In their previous meeting, the Eagles beat the Friars, 67-50.

The present Boston College hoop team has an 11-7 record, the best compiled at the Heights since the sport was revived five years ago.

All the good basketball, incidentally, isn't being played by Holy Cross these days and, before this week is over, Rhode Island fans will have a chance to appreciate that little point.

There are two games coming up that could produce thrills in abundance as well as good basketball. There will be fun aplenty tomorrow night when Rhode Island State and Brown meet at Brown and again on Saturday night when Providence College visits the Bruins.

The young men who are coaching State and PC are in a position to take deep bows for the jobs they have done this winter. Red Haire got away to a stuttering start at Kingston but eventually brought his team to such a point that it was able to add considerable lustre to the fair name of Rhode Island State College.

Vin Cuddy, at P.C., was similarly effective. He took over a team that had had a sorry season last year, losing 19 games. No matter if the Friars fell flat on their faces tonight at Clark and again Saturday at Brown they still will compile a better record. Come the worst, the Friars can lose only nine games this winter and it could be that seven will be their total.

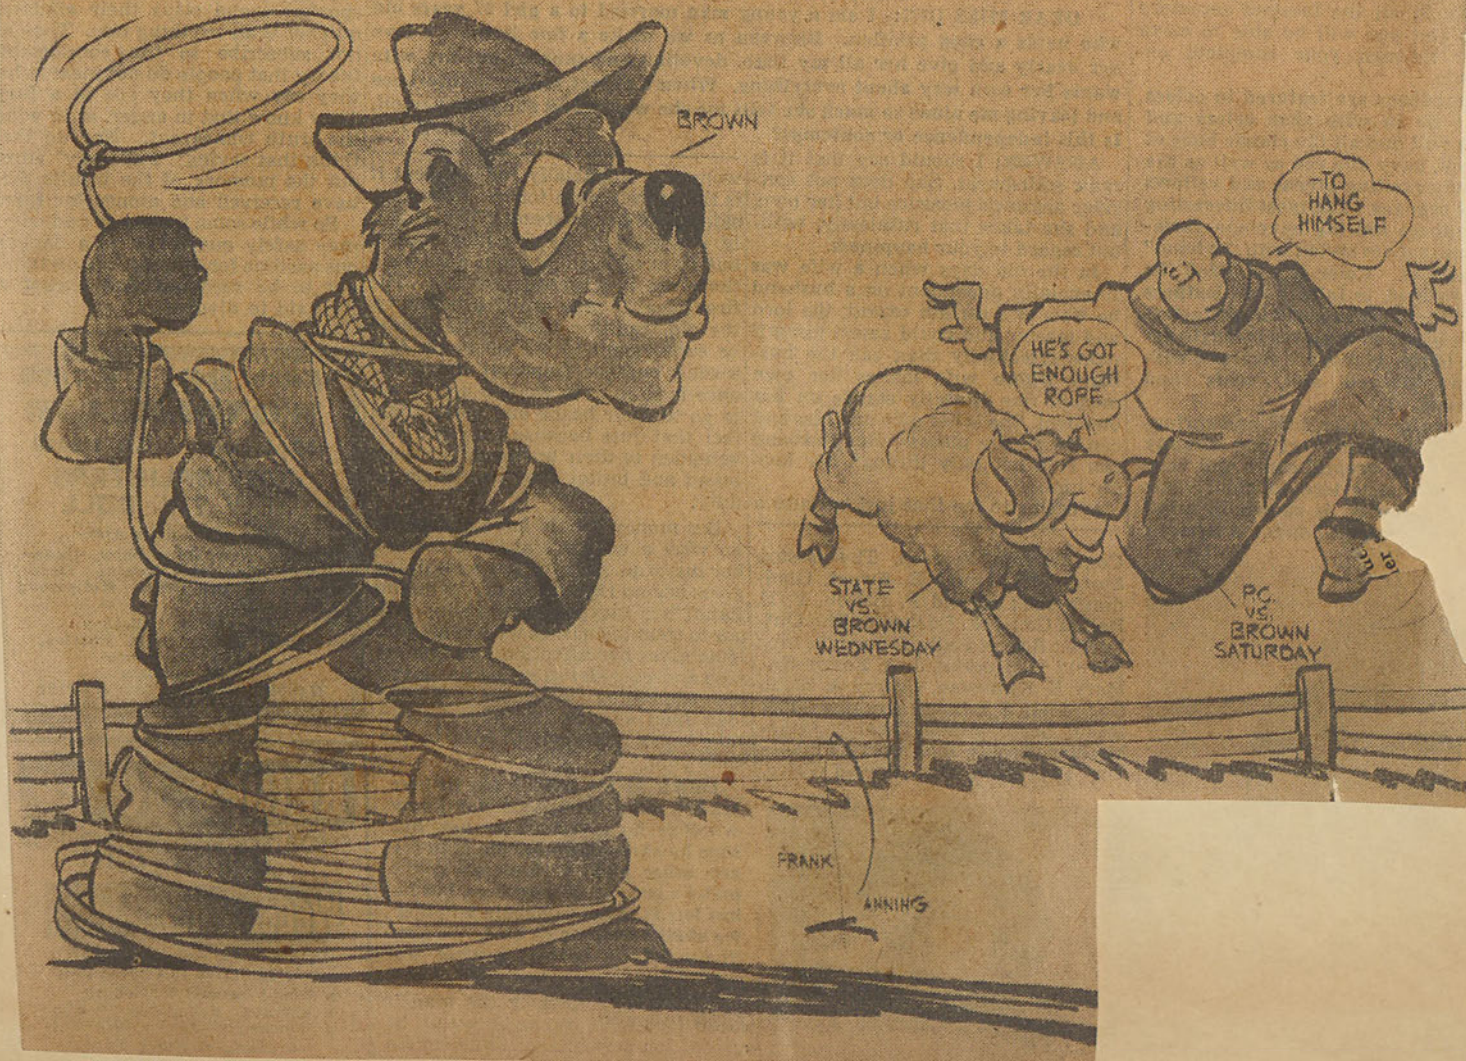

The amiable young man who learned his basketball at the University of Connecticut has done a splendid job. Chances are he will do even better.

The state colleges could wind up where they started if Brown should beat State and PC beat Brown this week. A victory for the Rams tomorrow night would mean the state title. The Rams will be favored over Brown but Bob Morris' crew is tough on its home floor, which means that another in a long line of exciting duels is in prospect. Come early and bring your ear plugs.

The Brown basketball forces warmed up for their intrastate duels with Rhode Island State and Providence College with a 54-to-48 victory over Dartmouth last night at Hanover. Perhaps that's a good omen for the Bruins' chances against the Rams and the Friars.

The Rhode Island basketball schedule, which came in like a lamb, is going out like a lion with Providence College and Rhode Island State far surpassing their fondest hopes. The Friars, the Rams, and the Brown Bruins, all of whom scored weekend victories, bring their seasons to a close this week and some fine games are on tap if all hold their present form.

of Irish extraction like Tom O'Brien, Tim O'Connell, Fran Duggan, Tom Deegan, Ron Hickey, Dick Fitzgerald, Frank Gaffney, Jackie Moran and Tom O'Toole along with Mort Stagoff, meet La Salle tonight at Boston Garden. Ken Loeffler's La Salle team is among the East's best, losing only three games, but the Eagles are a top flight team in their own bracket.

The Boston College basketball team goes after its 12th victory of the season tonight when it invades the Providence Auditorium to face Providence College in a return match. BC beat the Friars, 67-50, in an earlier meeting.

The current Eagle quintet has the best record compiled at the Heights since the sport was revived five years ago, 11-7. Its goal now is to take its two remaining games, Providence and La Salle of Philadelphia.

Providence Coach Voices Approval Of Elk County

Says 3 Local ^{3/6/50}
Players Big ^{ST. MARYS}
Asset To Team. ^{DAILY PRESS}

Head basketball coach Vin Cuddy of the Providence College Friars thinks that St. Marys, Pa. is just about the nicest city in the United States even though he never has been within a hundred miles of there.

In his first year at the helm of the Friars basketball forces, Cuddy has compiled a wonderful record to date of 12 wins and six losses when it is considered that practically this same team won only 7 of 26 games a year ago. Cuddy said recently that without St. Marys contribution to P. C. the record would not be near as good, thus his sentiments about the Pennsylvania city.

Three St. Marys boys, Sam Nissel, a junior, Jim Schlimm and Tom Bauer, the latter two sophomores, have played a tremendous part in the drive of the Friars. Schlimm is the leading scorer on the team and Nissel is the second high man. Bauer who was counted on heavily by Cuddy in his pre-season drills was the victim of a kidney ailment early in the season and he has never been able to get back in his early season form. However, Bauer will be a prominent figure next season.

Nissel who has been leading scorer on every team at P. C. that he has played on has had to make way for the sensational Schlimm this year. In his Frosh year, Nissel led all scorers and last year as a sophomore he stepped right up to the varsity and led all scorers on that quintet. However Schlimm has been setting a sensational pace over the last ten games that he has pulled away from his fellow townsman. Big Jim scored a total of 254 points to date and in the last ten games averaged 18 points a contest.

Proud Of St. Marys

COACH VIN CUDDY

Nissel has scored 175 points to date. Sam also has one less game than Jim as he broke a finger last week and he sat out the R. P. I. game a contest that the Friars lost. Cuddy said after the game that Nissel was the difference as the Friars had figured to take that one.

Schlimm also holds the individual high game total for the Friars this season as he scored 27 points against St. Peter's recently on 12 field goals and 3 foul shots, a game by the way which the Friars won by one point. Nissel scored 20 points in that contest.

With four games remaining on their schedule the Friars with Schlimm and Nissel leading the way are out to make a clean sweep. This would give them sixteen victories for the year and that would break the 15 victory year that the 1942 quintet accounted for which is the best mark for a Friar quintet in recent years.

The Friars, who reversed a previous setback in beating Boston College, in a hard fought game Saturday, will meet Clark at Worcester tomorrow night and Brown on Saturday at the Marvel Gym. The Rams come to town on Wednesday night when they tackle the Bruins, also at Marvel Gym.

Providence, playing about as capable a brand of ball as they have shown since the early 40's and the playing days of Larry Drew, Ted McConnon, Chet Zabek and company, shouldn't have a great deal of trouble with the Clark cagers at Worcester, although Coach Vin Cuddy is wary of a letdown.

The Friars turned in outstanding games against R.I. and B.C., with slim Jim Schlimm establishing himself among New England's better basketball players. The Eagles, who have almost an entire lineup of boys

N.A.I.B. Playoffs

Tufts has been invited to the N.A.I.B. playoffs at New Britain for the Jumbos closed their regular season last night with a 72-59 decision over B.U. for their 19th victory of the year against four setbacks. Mass. State, New Britain Teachers and St. Anselm's are the other participants in the tourney, with the winner going to Kansas City.

The Providence College Friars were on the tentative list until they came with such a rush and established themselves as a competent team. Last year they were in this playoff despite 17 setbacks but they've come a long way and might just prove too tough. But then again Tufts could do the same thing. The New Britain Teachers, coached by Ross Merrick, have won this event for the past two seasons, played on their home court.

Rhode Island State is another club which could win this sectional tourney, but they are not affiliated with the N.A.I.B.

Providence Host to B. C. Five Tonight

Coach Al McClellan will take his Boston College basketball squad to Rhode Island tonight for a return match with Providence College. In their first meeting, the Friars took a rough and tumble game from the Eagles, 67 to 50. Tonight's contest, which will be played at Mt. Pleasant High School, Providence, will get under way at 9:30.

Providence Quintet Pulls Out Victory With 12 Points in Overtime Period

By JOE McHENRY

Worcester, Mar. 8.—Providence College's Friars scored an 82-to-75 victory over Clark University in an overtime game here tonight as the Scarlet turned in its best game of the season.

The Friars, showing some signs of a letdown after their stands against Rhode Island State and Boston College, had all they could do to win tonight.

Providence, which had to come from behind in the second half after trailing, 35-29, at intermission, looked more like itself during the final 10 minutes and in the overtime period. Clark played inspired ball, with Kenny Steingold, a graduate of Pawtucket West, sparking the play with 20 points. Steingold, who had played approximately 20 minutes all season and had missed the last two games, nearly pulled his team to victory.

Taking Over

The game was deadlocked at 70 all going into the overtime, with Bob Dik's pop shot with 33 seconds left tying it up. Then the Friars really took command. Frank Pelligrino started the scoring with three points on a one-hand pitch and a foul conversion, but Paul Shimiski came back with a basket for the Scarlet.

Then Jim Schlimm dropped in a push shot, Pelligrino hit with another one-hander and Ray Garcia converted for a basket on a break-way with Schlimm. This put the Friars seven points ahead, 79-72, with 2:42 of the overtime remaining. Clark had shot its bolt. Garcia added the Friars' final three points.

Although the Friars were favored, they went into the game minus Walt Lozoski and Sam Nissel. Pelligrino, Schlimm and Garcia were the main cogs in the Providence lineup and a couple of substitutes were there when it counted in the stretch. Alex Becker chipped in five points in the final five minutes or so, when every one of them was worth its weight in gold, and Ronnie Gagnon did a splendid job with his ball-handling and dribbling.

Peak

Pelligrino hit his scoring peak for the season with 28 points. Schlimm contributed 20.

Pelligrino was the man who pulled the P.C. quintet together when it started to crack wide open. Art Weinstock played well in the early going, when the Friars couldn't seem to cope with Clark's offense.

Clark once led by 10 points in the first half and the Friars couldn't shake them in the second, despite some hustling play. P.C. went eight points up at 61-53 in less than six minutes, but Clark fought back, tied it up at 66-all with 3:38 left and again in the final seconds.

Bob Prendergast paced the Providence College Frosh to a 56-to-39 victory over the Clark Frosh with 25 points.

Clark University extended highly-favored Providence College into overtime before bowing in its basketball finale last night at the Clark gym, 82 to 75.

The Scarlets rallied at a point when they were eight points down and seven minutes remaining, to tie the score at regulation time, 70-all.

But the Friars whooped it up in the extra heat with 12 points against five for the Russ Granger forces who tried desperately for this upset but instead ended up with their 11th loss in 16 games.

Ken Steingold, a reserve who topped Clark with 20 points; Bob Dik, whose set shot sent the game into overtime; Bob Kirby, with 19 points, and Paul Shimin-ski with 15 points and another stellar performance, were receiving congratulations today for brilliance in defeat.

Draw Top Talent

By JOE McHENRY

The Providence College Friars will stage their second annual outdoor track and relay carnival on Saturday, Mar. 25 at Hendricken Field, with another banner meet in prospect.

Coach Harry Coates of the Friars and the Rev. A. B. Begley, O.P., have been silently working overtime in lining up top-flight talent for the meet, with the hope and expectation that they'll surpass last season's fine inaugural.

A year ago more than 300 performers took part in 62 events in special, college, schoolboy, midget and novice competitions. Some of the biggest names in track were in competition and many of the same stars will be back again this year.

The races will be run over P.C.'s board track set up in front of the big stand on Hendricken Field. The high jump will be held in Harkins Hall and the field events also on Hendricken Field. More than 4000 attended the meet last season on a bitter cold day, with many top performances marking a most successful program.

His alma stem sent him to Fort Trumbull Branch of the university and v rae he set up an athletic department which won top brass thrbroval. His teams played good ball, and one who noticed his lloaching methods was Hugh Greer, varsity basketball boss at Storrs.

Last spring Providence College invited Greer to become its athletic director and basketball coach, and the opportunity to handle an administrative post was an attractive one but Connecticut Alumni heard about the offer and sold Hugh a bill of goods by getting the university to make his Storrs' job a better one. Greer in turn recommended Cuddy to Providence as a young man who would lead them back to the heights in basketball.

All Cuddy knew about Providence College was that it had a pretty fair freshman basketball team, which included Waterbury's Ray Korbusieski, but he promised the good Dominican Fathers that he would get the most out of the material available while installing his system, "flashy passwork and give-and-go style."

He certainly got results from a combination of Slim Jim Schlimm, Walt Lozoski, Ray Garcia, Fran Pelligrino, Art Weinstock and Korbusieski. They had to battle their way to victory Saturday night, surviving two fistic exchanges in the closing minutes before scoring the decision.

Korbusieski figured prominently in the victory, scoring 13 points and doing a splendid defensive job, but "Slim" Schlimm, a Philadelphia lad, was the big gun with 26 points.

Bears, With Mahoney Fit, Hope to Conquer Friars

By JOHN HANLON

Providence College and Brown will close the local college basketball season with their game tonight at Marvel Gym. The starting time is 8:30. The freshman clubs will meet in a preliminary game, starting at 7 o'clock.

Frank Mahoney, the Bruins' captain and man of all works, definitely will play for Brown. The lanky star was injured Wednesday night in the R.I. State game and was thought to be finished for the season.

However, Dr. Edward Crane, team physician, examined Mahoney's injured back yesterday afternoon and then gave Big Moe the okay.

The Friars, with two regulars sidelined, have no such heartening news to report. Both Sam Nissel and Walt Lozoski, the latter a P.C. co-captain, are on the injured list.

Nissel, who broke his right index finger several weeks ago, will not play. Lozoski, suffering a bruised hand, worked out Thursday and had trouble holding a ball. Coach Vin Cuddy said yesterday that Lozoski's chance of playing was "very, very doubtful."

Thus, the odds on the contest—considering the return of Mahoney and the absence of Lozoski and Nissel—come up slightly in favor of the Bruins. Brown won the first contest between the two by the surprisingly large margin of 62-48.

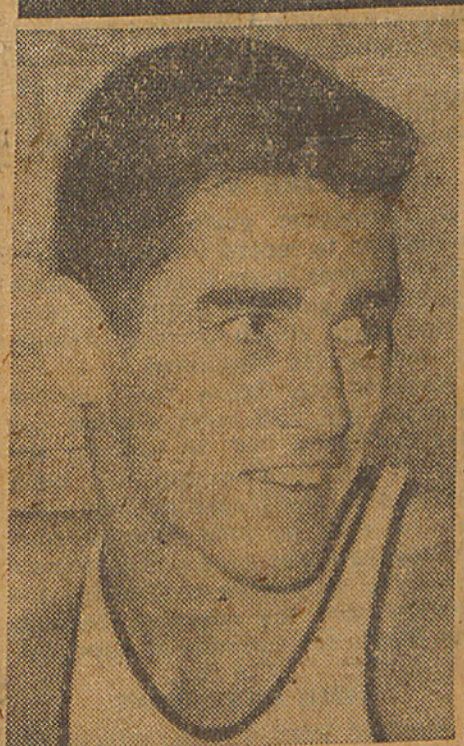

The margin is so described because the Friars this year have had much the better season than Brown and figured to take the first meeting. Providence's season record now is 14-7 and one more victory will make it the best mark the school has had in seven years. Brown's 10-14 card is well below the school's par.

Six members of the Bruins' squad will be playing their last game as opposed to just three men on the Friars' roster. Mahoney, Ken Provost, Pete Tyrrell, Emil John and Ben Patrick are the candidates for graduation for Brown. Ned Corcoran has another semester to go, but has used up his eligibility. Fred Kozak has a semester's play left.

The Friars' seniors are Lozoski, Co-capt. Art Weinstock and Orr. Weinstock—with Lozoski—is the only senior in the starting cast. The other members are Korbuseski, sophomore, and Frank Pellig.

Bruins, Friars In Hoop Finale At Marvel Gym

Game Tomorrow Ends Season Here; Mahoney Will Start for Brown

By JOE McHENRY

Neither the Brown Bruins, nor the Providence College Friars are expected to be at full strength when they meet in their final basketball game of the season tomorrow night at the Marvel Gym but in most quarters the Friars are favored over the boys from College Hill.

Brown will have the services of its talented Frank "Moe" Mahoney, who was not expected to play with a back injury. The Brooklyn star came through a mid-day examination by Dr. Eddie Crane, the Brown team physician, in fine style and will be ready, although perhaps not at his physical best. Sam Nissel and Walt Lozoski, however, are still doubtful participants for the Friars.

Mahoney injured his back in the Rhode Island State game and Dr. Crane didn't think it would come around as well as it did. The Bruins' key man didn't relish sitting out his final college game and his presence should give Brown a lift that it may need.

Over on Bradley Hill, the Friars hope to have both Nissel and Lozoski, but if either is able to make it, he'll be sub-par at best. Nissel has a broken index finger while Lozoski has a puffed hand and they have trouble handling a basketball.

Missed

Coach Vin Cuddy has missed the shooting and scoring of Nissel, who was a 15-to-20 point man in most of the Friar games. The P.C. mentor figures he might have won the R.P.I. and Rhody games with Sam in there pitching at full strength. Lozoski, rounding out a fine career on the court with the Friars, has been a sparkplug and a steadying influence on some of the younger players.

Walt's absence was noticeable in the Clark game, which the Friars just managed to pull out. Frank Pelligrino played about his best college game against the Scarlet. His one-hand pitch shots from well outside just about broke the backs of the Clark team. He was the main guy when it counted, although hustling Ray Garcia, Jim Schlimm, Art Weinstock, Al Becker and Ronnie Gagnon also figured prominently in the victory.

Lozoski's value has been frequently underestimated by anybody seeing the Friars play one or two games. However, it's no secret to coaches who have studied the Friars' offense that Lozoski's pass-ins to Schlimm and his ability to maneuver an opponent just a little bit out of position have been a big help in making Schlimm one of the top scorers in New England. While Schlimm scores them, you have to give the ball to him when he's ready.

Amends

The Bruins played fairly well in beating Dartmouth and losing to Rhode Island State this week but their general performances of late haven't been up to the work of the Friars. P. C. had a letdown against Clark but should be back up for the Bruins as they lost the first game, playing one of their poorest games, and they wish to make amends for that.

Coach Bob Morris will start a team of Mahoney, Ken Provost, Chuck Whelan, Zeke Creswell and Fred Kozak. He looks for a good ball game but says Brown probably needs Mahoney to win it. This will be the final game for Pete Tyrrell, Patrick, Provost, Mahoney and Emil John. Ned Corcoran and Kozak will be eligible for the first half of next season, graduating with the February, 1951 class.

Co-captains Walt Lozoski and Art Weinstock and Tom Orr are the seniors with the Friars. The Providence lineup will include Garcia and Schlimm at the forwards, Pelligrino at center, Weinstock and sophomore Ray Korbusieski at the guards. The Friars will be shooting for their 15th victory of the season, but they were favored in the first meeting and the Brown-Friar games have been fairly close in recent years.

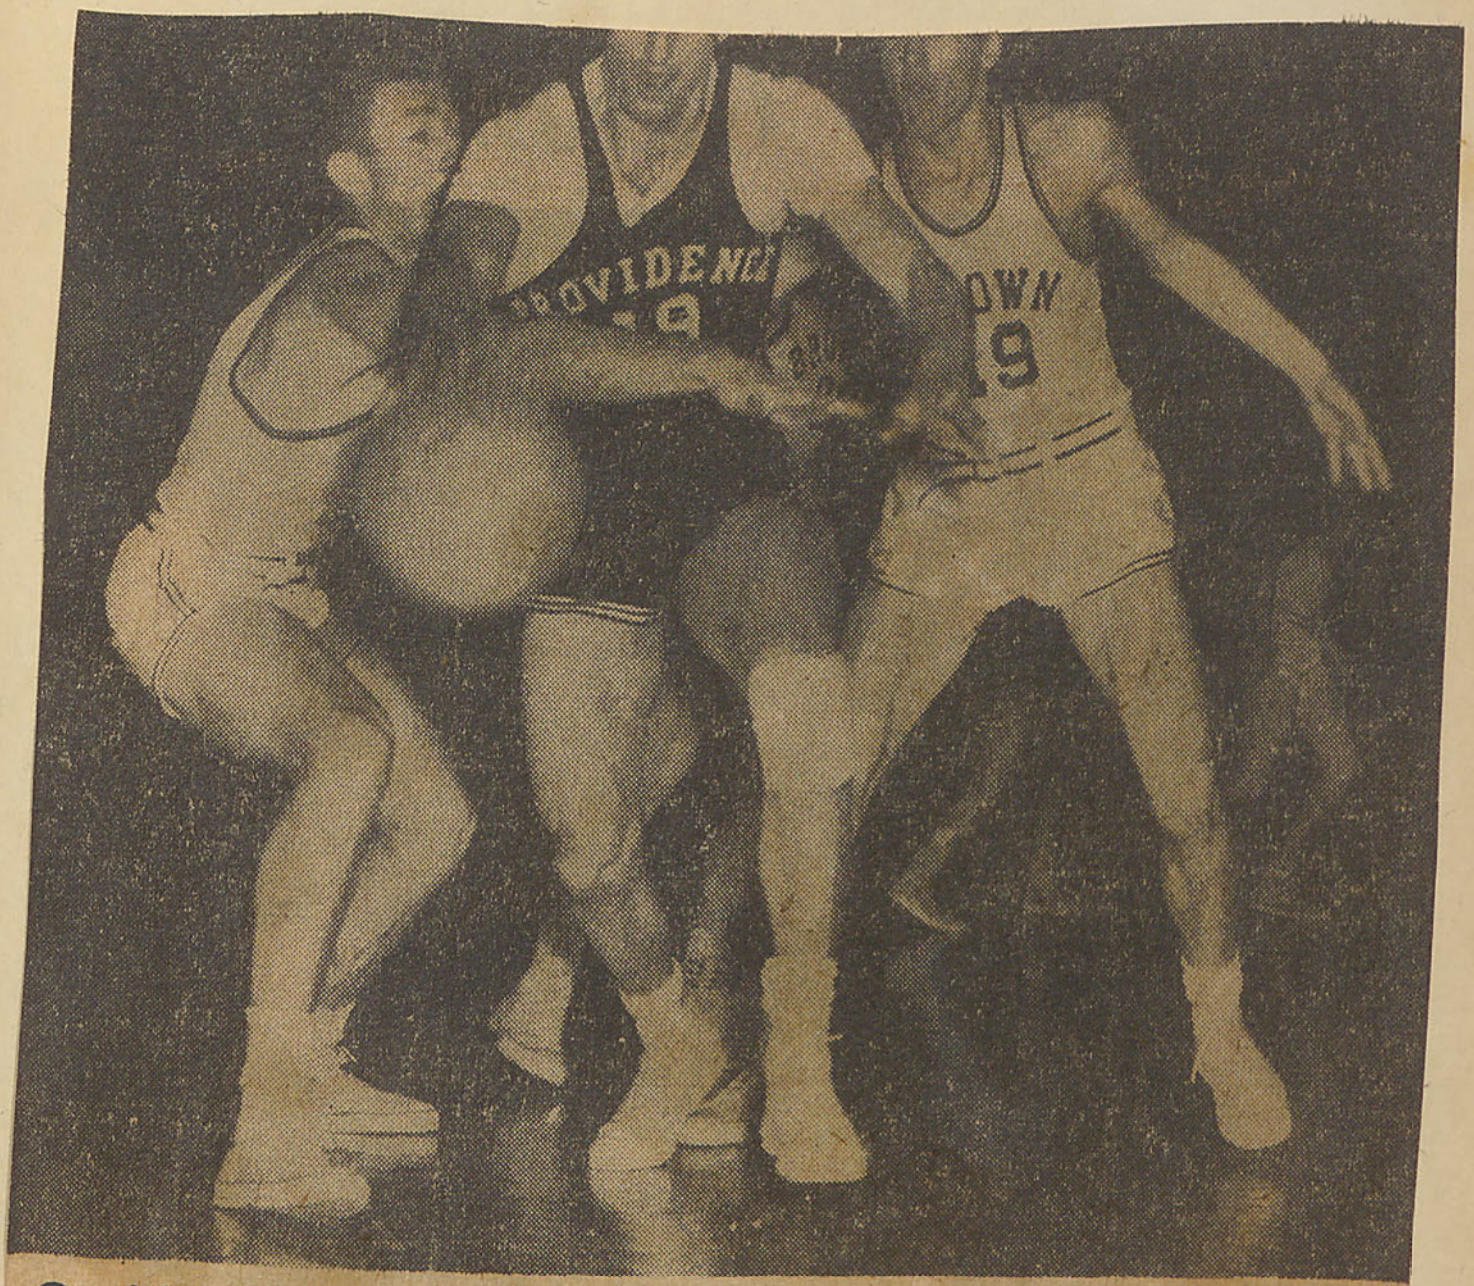

N.E. Swim

Coach Joe Watmough's Brown swimmers will be contenders for the New England championships which got under way today at the M.I.T. pool. Williams is the defending champion but has been beaten in dual competition by both Brown and Bowdoin, while Springfield is another possibility. Win Wilson, Ollie Patrell and Duncan Gray are the best bets among the dozen Brown entries.

The Bruins will have a team of 10 men competing in the Eastern Inter-collegiate wrestling championships, which got under way today at Princeton. There are 16 schools entered, with Lehigh and Syracuse regarded as the top teams. The Brown entries include Robert Smart at 121 pounds; Robert Rolt at 128, with Smart as alternate; Gray Michael at 136; Frank Manchester at 145; Dave Michael at 155; Mark Rowe at 165; Alex Marshall at 175; and John Chernak in the unlimited class with Paul Seifert at alternate.

FORM REVERSAL AFTER 15 MINUTES SWINGS VICTORY

P.C. Plunges Into 23-13 Lead;
Brown Cuts It to 32-30 at Half, Then Rolls

By JOHN HANLON

Brown's basketball Bruins shook off their early fits and starts last night and slammed out a 66-54 victory over Providence College on a strong second-half showing at Marvel Gym. The game, witnessed by about 1200 patrons, was the season's final for both clubs.

The Bruin Cubs made it a clean sweep for the evening by downing the Friar Frosh in overtime, 55-51.

Brown Ragged at Start

For 15 minutes, Brown looked like it should go back to the fundamentals of the game. The Bruins scored exactly three floor baskets in 15 minutes and took 14 shots before they made their first. The Friars, meanwhile, were getting their share and had piled up a 23-13 lead at the three-quarter mark. Their floor game was crisp and they had made six of their first six foul shots.

Then the situation reversed. The Friars lost their touch and, with Ned Corcoran hitting from the outside and Zeke Creswell from in close, the Bruins left the court at intermission just two points down, 32-30.

In the second frame, Brown blew the contest wide open—but good. In eight minutes, they outscored the Friars, 20 points to five, and worked up their largest margin of the night, 50-32, Mahoney, Fred Kozak and Ben Patrick led the show.

Friars Fall Short

Thereafter, Schlimm and Frank Pelligrino, both of whom played outstanding games, led the Friars' pull which cut the lead to seven points at one stage. But the Friars, in suffering their eighth loss in 22 games, never got closer.

In essence, the teams showed complete reversals of form by halves. The Friars started rather hot, particularly from the foul line, and made 12 of their 33 floor shots. Brown, until the late going in the first half, was outlandish. They made, in all 11, out of 40 tries.

Ronnie Gagnon, a sophomore from Central Falls, paced the Friars to their best lead in the opening half when he got seven of the Friars' 11 points that put them ahead, 23-13. Then Brown, paced by Kozak, Creswell and Mahoney, started to click and closed it to two points at the intermission.

The second half was just the opposite, statistically. Brown made 12 of its 34 floor shots and the Friars just eight in 32. Both clubs, in total, shot 23 fouls; Brown made 18, Providence, 14.

The closest play of the contest was the last five minutes of the first frame. Brown tied the count three times, but the Friars pulled ahead each time. The Bruins took a 33-32 lead, their first of the evening, at 1:35 of the second half, lost it temporarily, then went ahead for good at the two-minute mark on Mahoney's jump shot in close.

The Friars lost the services of Ray Garcia and Ray Korbusieski on fouls midway through the second period and Brown lost Corcoran seconds after the opening of the half when he was struck on the head with an elbow. Several stitches were required to close the wound.

Six Brown seniors—Mahoney, Ken Provost, Pete Tyrrell, Emil John, Patrick, plus Corcoran, whose eligibility is used up—played their last game for the Bruins. Fittingly, John scored Brown's last basket and Mahoney, just before the horn ended the game, sank two foul shots. That made his point total for the season 361—834 in two and one-half years of play.

Art Weinstock was the only Friar senior in their lineup. His fellow co-captain and senior, Walt Lozoski, was out with an injury, and Tom Orr, another senior, did not play.

The freshman contest was tied, 49-49, at the end of regulation play after the Friars had overcome an early 20-5 lead of Brown's. Two floor baskets, one each by Dave Carter and John Flanders, and a foul by the former clinched the game in overtime for the Bruin Cubs.

Brown Ends Season With High Note by Defeating P.C. Five

By JOE McHENRY

Coming out of the Marvel Gym Saturday night, I was of the opinion that they should give both the Bruins and the Friars that saliva test that they have around the tracks. For the Friars went cold after a brilliant start and the Bruins came with a rush that swept the intra-city series.

But later I ran into Freddy Kozak and Freddy said "that victory was no fluke—we can beat the Friars seven days a week." And coming from a steady guy like Freddy, you realize that the Bruins, despite their shortcomings in some other games, perhaps, were out to wind up their careers with a good victory and knew in their hearts they could do it.

Reflecting back again though, both coaches, Bob Morris of Brown and Vin Cuddy of the Friars, were afraid of that one. Bob was in a blue mood, a lot less than enthusiastic when he was talking about the possibility of having to go without Mahoney. Cuddy on the other hand would just have soon called it a halt after the Friars' victory over Clark for they weren't in it with their performances against Boston College and R.I. State.

Great Half

Brown wound up its year with one of its better performances for even those who have watched them consistently couldn't ask for a great deal of improvement on the second-half play against the Friars. Moe Mahoney, either the No. 1 or No. 2 basketball man in Brown's all-time ranking, depending on how you compare him and Harry Platt, played a top ball game.

Mahoney, apparently favoring his back in the early part of the first half, came to life after Coach Morris had given the boys a pep talk during a timeout with about 5:15 left. In the second half Mahoney was the player that Emil John so frequently raves about. He was almost that good, for John places a pretty high value on Mahoney's game.

And perhaps it was justice of a sort when Emil got in there in time to score Brown's last basket and fire a pass to Mahoney, which might have meant another, except that Moe was fouled. Around the Journal, John is known somewhat as "Little Moe" for few college friendships and rooting societies are stronger than the bond between Mahoney and John, with Freddy Kozak around the edges.

Schlimm Bottled

Mahoney also tied up the Friars' Jim Schlimm a bit more than usual and the Brooklyn boy's rebounding and general all around excellence gave the club a lift. The Bruins didn't need much outside fire for each of them played with spirit once they found they could beat the boys from Smith Hill.

Zeke Creswell, Kozak, Ben Patrick, Ned Corcoran, Pete Tyrrell, Chuck Whelan and Ken Provost all hustled and the Friars weren't able to match their drive.

The Friars, who have completed a fine season with 14 victories in 11 starts, weren't at their best in either Brown game, which is no reflection on Brown. The Bruins were superior in both contests and playing at their best in the final half of the final game of the year.

Fran Pelligrino, Ronnie Gagnon, Schlimm and Art Weinstock all played well for Providence College, although Sam Nissel and Walt Lozowski were missed. Gagnon led the Friars' first-half surge, while Pelly and Weinstock were the most dependable over the route. Ray Garcia and Ray Korbusieski turned in some good spot work.

All in the Game

By Jerry Prior

Season's End . . .

THE changing sports seasons seem to mean more to you as you get, shall we say, more mature. That's why you shouldn't have missed the Brown-Providence College basketball game Saturday night. Maybe nowadays season's end appeals to the maudlin side of your nature, the way weddings lure women of a certain age, the way commencements affect some of the old grads.

Jerry Prior

Anyway, you were glad you sat in on the college-basketball season's fadeout. It was a good game and Brown won it and you couldn't begrudge the Bears that. They had had rocky going over the roughest basketball schedule in Bruin history, they had kept their chins up through some mighty discouraging days and it was good to see them wind up with a victory. Most of the Brown first-stringers were seniors, too. So when Emil John tossed in the last field goal, Frank Mahoney scored the last two points on foul shots and the buzzer sounded for the end of the game, the cheers that went up were as much hail and farewell for the seniors as they were in honor of victory over the Friars.

Over on the Friars' bench, the gloom wasn't as deep as it might have been over losing a game. The percentage of seniors on the Friar squad was small. In fact, rugged Art Weinstock was the only June graduate who played Saturday night. So most of the Friars could look forward to next season and, on their showing during the last campaign, could look forward with the hope of bigger things.

Glance Back . . .

Even Coach Vin Cuddy couldn't remain gloomy very long over the outcome of the game. He could look back over the season and take pardonable pride in his team's 14-8 record in his first year as head coach. And you couldn't blame him, either, if he reflected a bit on the fact that he had split even with a Rhode Island State team which had gained national attention by the way it forced powerful Holy Cross to the limit in two games. Definitely, this Cuddy had indicated he was the man to bring basketball back to its former high estate with the Friars.

One of Cuddy's seniors, Walt Lozoski, couldn't play in the final game because of an injury. That was unfortunate, because the balding co-captain had supplied one of the high spots of the local season, the last-minute long shot that had defeated Rhode Island State at the Auditorium in December.

Of course, though, it had been the Rams who had provided most of the high spots on the court. It would be a long time before you'd forget this Ram team—big Leon Golembiewski going in under the boards, Bruce Blount and his side shot, Johnny Mitchell and his dribbling, Chuck Stewart and his odd jump shot, Don Shannon snatching the ball away from the opposition—not the best team in State's history, but certainly one of the most colorful and one that ranked well up in the Ram records. Yes, Red Haire might well say, as he had said the other night when State's season ended with victory over Brown: "No, I guess I can't kick about this one."

"Happy" Team . . .

No, you reflected at season's end, none of the three coaches in Rhode Island college basketball had any reason to look back with regret. Bob Morris, Brown's coach, hadn't been able to make his victories overbalance his losses, since the triumph over the Friars had made it only 11-14. But Morris had known at the start that he was taking on a terrific job in that killing schedule and had predicted no more than a dozen victories. The Bears' schedule was the kind a college usually plays after it has gone out scouring out the highways and byways for basketball talent. And it's no secret that Brown hasn't been doing that. Outside of Mahoney—and possibly Fred Kozak, though the latter is severely handicapped by his size—the Bears didn't have what you'd call a "natural" as a basketball player on their squad.

So you reflected that Morris certainly could take pride in the fact that he had kept team morale up through the season so that at the finish the Bruins could rally and defeat a club as capable as the one Cuddy brought over from Providence College. And generally it isn't regarded as an easy task, keeping up overall team morale when you have a star as outstanding as Mahoney. But there was never any jealousy of Mahoney among the rest of the squad. Morris' wise guidance, Mahoney's own unobtrusive personality and the spirit of as fine a bunch of boys as ever played for Brown kept all that stuff out. It had been a "happy" team, all the way.

Walt Lozoski Played Iron Man Stunt for P.C. Basketball Team

By JOE McHENRY

Brown made the "iron man" famous but Providence College is continuing the tradition.

You usually think of "iron men" as big, rugged giants. Walt Lozoski of the Friars is something of an "iron man"—but not of gigantic proportions. He's the Jim Martin of Providence College basketball.

Martin is the fellow who started more football games for Notre Dame than any man in history. Lozoski played in 83 of his first 85 college basketball games, started practically all of them and then ironically had to sit out the last two with an injured hand.

That's quite a record, for Walt played four seasons and you have to go back to the days of Johnny Krieger, Larry Wheeler, Heck Allen and Bill McCue to find anything approaching it. Johnny Farrell, who watched all the great Friar athletes, says he doesn't think that anybody ever played as many games with the Friars as Lozoski, and that includes Bill Kutneski.

Longer Schedules

"We didn't play schedules as big in those days," Johnny said, "but we had some great players."

Lozoski might have added those last two games to the string—that is just getting into the lineup for appearances sake—but he didn't think he could be a help and didn't want to lower the club's chances by playing when he couldn't adequately handle the ball.

Walt was a steady influence with the Friars this season and Coach Vin Cuddy was quick to give him credit for his leadership. Walt's biggest thrill was pitching in the winning basket in the victory over Rhode Island State but he has always been a team player and valuable even when he didn't score a point. Frequently he was setting up others.

Lozoski has a kid brother at home in West Hazleton, Pa., who'll make quite a college athlete. The Friars probably won't get him as he's a top flight football prospect, playing quarterback in addition to basketball. He's 6-4 and weighs 190 and is really good, Walt says, with a little pride.

In Walt's four seasons with the Friars he has played with and against some of the best in the East. He started to name the top five and found that there were so many good ones that he'd have to pick more. And here they are in order: Bob Cousy of Holy Cross and Tony Lavelli of Yale. (They were in a class by themselves and you couldn't keep them off any team like that, was his comment.)

On Another Team

Then comes Pep Saul of Seton Hall, Tom O'Brien of Boston College, Ken Goodwin of Rhode Island State, Moe Mahoney of Brown, Walt Dropo of Connecticut, George Kaftan of Holy Cross, Frank Otring of Holy Cross, Elmore Morgenthaler of B. C. and Bruce Blount of R.I. State.

"Mahoney would be All-American on a team like Holy Cross or any similar outfit," Lozoski says.

Walt played in the Army at Williams Field in Arizona when his team won 40 out of 44 games. He and Larry Drew played at the guards, with Laddie Gale (All-American from Oregon) and Webb Pace, who later played for Pepperdine in Los Angeles. This group formed one of the best service units in the country.

"Larry was great clearing the boards. We were beaten by Wright Field, 35-30 in overtime. They had Dike Eddleman, Ed Sadowski, Bruce Hale and John Mahnken, all big names," he said.

Did Well in AAU

"We went to the National AAU tourney at Denver one year and knocked off the top-seeded 20th Century-Fox team, which had Frank Lubin and Jim Seminoff as its stars. They were so sure of beating us that they didn't even take a warmup before our game. We beat them, 51-50, and that was something. The next game we were put out by some Denver collegians. I've always been sorry we didn't win that one because I sure would have liked to play against the Phillips Oilers, even though they probably would have beaten us, but good."

Walt has had a lot of big and little moments in his sports activities. He's doing some teacher-training work at Mount Pleasant and would like to go into coaching and teaching next year. He and his senior buddy, Art Weinstock, gave the Friars a rough and ready backcourt combine and they'll be missed when another season rolls around.

Friars, Brown And R. I. Win

Rhode Island's three colleges, Providence College, Brown and Rhode Island State, prevailed in basketball games last night.

The most notable triumph was scored by the Friars, as they swept past a good Boston College five, 77 to 64; State emerged from another thriller by downing Springfield College, 60 to 58, and Brown had the easy task, whipping Hampton Institute, 71 to 54.

Chief gunners for the Friars were Jim Schlimm and Fran Pelligrino, the latter from Westerly. Schlimm tallied 26 points to turn in the game's outstanding individual performance, and Pelligrino found his scoring eye for 14 points.

Play throughout was spirited and was marked by a fist fight between Walt Lozowski of the Friars and Mort Stagoff of the Eagles in the last 60 seconds. Both were chased from the fray by the officials. The winners led at the half, 42 to 35.

Hero in State's victory over the Indians was reserve Walter Bassler. He sneaked in under the Springfield basket to fire in the goal that gave the Rams their two-point edge. Just a few minutes earlier, Springfield had taken a 56-54 lead. Leon Golembiewski popped in two fouls, and then the teams matched baskets until Bassler converted.

Brown had little trouble with Hampton, leading at half time, 41 to 19. Moe Mahoney topped the Bruins with 17 points.

B. C. HOOPSTERS IN R. I. VISIT

The Boston College basketball team goes after its 12th victory of the season tonight when it invades the Providence Auditorium to face Providence College in a return match. BC beat the Friars, 67-50, in an earlier meeting.

The current Eagle quintet has the best record compiled at the Heights since the sport was revived five years ago, 11-7. Its goal now is to take its two remaining games, Providence and La Salle of Philadelphia.

Indeed, it was in a very short time. He followed his Wanamaker performance with a victory in the Hunter Mile at the Boston A. A. meet the next week, finished second in the New York A. C. mile, won the AAU mile, placed second in the IC4A two-mile invitation, defeated Wilt in the Heptagonal two-mile invitation and won the New York K. of C. mile. His fastest winning time for the mile to date is the 4:11.5 he posted in the AAU meet.

John Joe Barry, Irish Miler, To Compete in Friars' Meet

By PETE McCARTHY

John Joe Barry, the Hibernian Hurricane from Ballycurry, Ireland, is going to add the Providence College board track to his current tour of the spiked-shoe circuit. Harry Coates, Friar track coach and director of the second annual P.C. Invitation Track Meet, last night announced receipt of Barry's entry in one of the special events on the program.

The distance the Irish lad is to run will be determined by the opposition Coates is able to assemble for the Mar. 25 meet. Barry's appearance is being sponsored by the Providence Friendly Sons of St. Patrick.

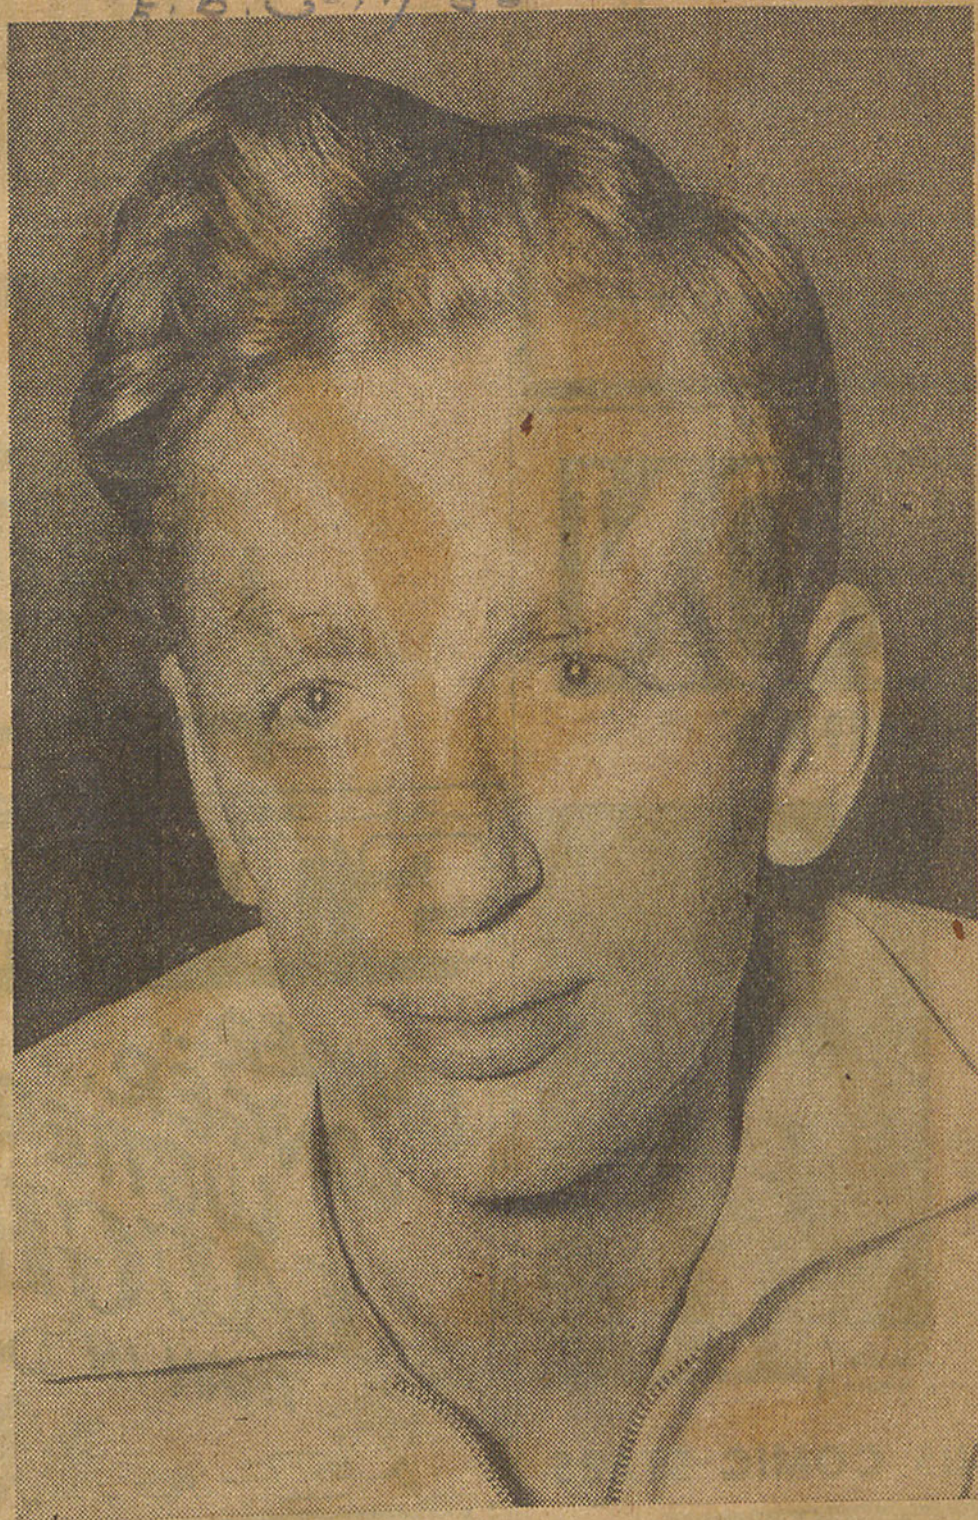

The 23-year-old Illinois-born Irishman came to the U.S. last fall and enrolled at Villanova. He holds all of the Irish championships from 880 yards up to three miles. With the opening of the American indoor track season, Barry celebrated his return to these shores after 21 years in the Emerald Isle by winning his first U.S. start in the "shortened" two-mile run at the Washington Star meet in January.

Sharp Contrast

That was his first try at the indoor boards and the running conditions presented a sharp contrast to the springy turf tracks that proved so much "meat and potatoes" to him in Ireland. His best mark for the mile distance over there was a neat 4:08.6.

After the Washington meet, Barry attempted the mile run in Philadelphia, Boston and New York, but had to be satisfied with a second and two thirds in that order. However, he was only four yards back of Fred Wilt and Don Gehrman in the controversial Wanamaker Mile in New York. That was the race in which first Gehrman and then Wilt was adjudged the winner. Both runners were timed in 4:09.3, fastest this season. Barry was caught in his best time of the year to date, 4:10.2.

After his first few races, Barry's reaction to American indoor running was sought and the Irish lad replied that the smoky atmosphere of the arenas, and the banks, or "bends" as he called them, gave him some trouble but he felt that he'd get used to them in time.

JOHN JOE BARRY

Barry has a couple of important engagements this weekend. Tonight he runs in the Cleveland K. of C. meet and then moves on to Chicago tomorrow night to tangle with Wilt and Gehrman in the Bankers Mile. He wrote Harry Coates that he is looking forward to competing in the P.C. meet because it will give him the opportunity of running under the unusual conditions provided by a board track, identical to all those used on the winter circuit but placed outdoors where fresh wholesome air is as plentiful as the blarney of his fellow countrymen.

Friars From Connecticut

RAY KORBUSIESKI

Providence — (Special)— This is not the best basketball season Providence College has ever enjoyed, but it is the best in eight years, and the excellent record compiled by the Friars against strong opposition is due in no small part to four gentlemen from Connecticut.

First there is Coach Vin Cuddy, native of Waterbury and former three-sport star at Naugatuck High School and the University of Connecticut. It was Vin's first season at Providence and he turned in a fine job. Although he is one of the youngest college coaches in the country, Cuddy has impressed Providence with this well-drilled club.

RAY KORBUSIESKI of Waterbury, former Leavenworth High star, has been a Providence standout, though only a sophomore. He played in every game, alternating at the guard posts. He has perhaps played more times than any other guard on the squad.

JERRY LEMBO of New Haven is another sophomore who has turned in a fine job for Cuddy this year. He suffered a shoulder separation during the season, and this hampered his performance considerably. New Haven fans will remember his athletic feats at Hillhouse High and Collegiate Prep. Early this season he tossed in the points that tied up the Rhode Island State game for Providence, paving the way for the Friars' first win over State in 13 attempts.

FRANCIS MCGURKIN of East Hartford is a junior, and possesses one of the best set shots on the Providence team. Cuddy has used McGurkin on several occasions to open up a tight defense. Whenever McGurkin pops in a few from the outside, the defense generally loosens.

Connecticut has played a big part in the best P.C. basketball season of recent years.

stock, 20, and Walter Lozowski, 27. . . . Sam Nissel, high scorer for the Friars as a freshman and as a soph, was headed for another crown when he broke a finger and missed last six games . . .

Clark Quintet Loses To Providence, 82-75

By JIM GRAHAM 3-9-50

Trailing by eight points with less than seven minutes to play, an aroused Clark University quintet came from behind four times in the last five minutes to tie the game 70-all at regulation, only to lose in overtime, 82-75 to a favored Providence College team at Alumni gym last night.

The game marked the close of the Scarlet's season and Russ Granger's boys made it their best one, with an exhibition of game-ness that left 400 spectators limp with excitement on leaving the arena.

And ironically enough it was a former Rhode Island high school boy, sophomore Ken Steingold, a product of Pawtucket West High, who came near upsetting the applecart for the visitors from the Rhode Island capital.

Steingold Tallies 20

Steingold, an unsung reserve, who has played but 20 minutes all year enjoyed the best night of his career, tallying 20 points to pace his mates in their courageous battle.

With the Friars out in front, 70-68 and but 33 seconds remaining, Bob Dik, a cool, steady performer for Clark all evening, hit with a set from outside to knot the count and send the game into overtime.

Providence center Frank Pelligrino center, the game's high man with 28 points, connected with a hook and a push and a free throw, and sophomore Jim Schlimm and junior Ray Garcia added hooks to catapult the visitors to a 79-72 advantage in the first three minutes of the overtime. Providence was never in danger again.

Knot Score At 61-All

But the real story from the customers point of view, was packed into the final 6 minutes and 46 seconds of the regulation.

Down 61-53 with 6.46 to play, the Scarlet roared back with eight points in less than two minutes to knot the count at 61-all with 4.54 showing on the new scoreboard.

Bob Kirby ignited the Clark surge with a set and Bob Dik followed with a free throw and another set to cut the Friars leeway to 61-58.

Shiminski Shaves Score

Then the Scarlet's brilliant co-captain Paul Shiminski curled in a driving layup to shave the gap to 61-60 at 5.07. Shiminski netted the doubledecker while in the grasp of a Providence defender and the force of his effort sent both players sprawling under the hoop as the stands yelled themselves hoarse.

A bare thirteen seconds later Shiminski converted from the free throw line to tie the count at 61-all with but 4.54 to play.

Cliff Nordwell then sent Clark out to a shortlived advantage with a free throw but Pelligrino popped in a set to send the Friars out front again, 63-62.

Clark Takes Lead

Nordwell came right back with a pretty set to give Clark a 64-63 lead, but Ray Korbusieski retaliated from the foul line to knot the count at 64-all with 3.56 to go.

Al Becker tossed in a jump as Providence regained the upper hand at 3.45 but Bob Kirby matched him with a set and the game was even-stephen again at 66-66.

Pelligrino let fly a set from the side at 2.54 as the Friars moved out in front again 68-66 but Dik tossed in a twister from his position left of the free throw lane and the score was tied again at 68-68.

Friars Take Over

Then with 56 seconds remaining Ronny Gagnon curled in a hook to send Providence ahead for the fourth time in the last five minutes, 70-68.

The Scarlet appeared doomed but Dik came driving down the floor over the mid-court line and popped in a set to tie the count for the last time at 70-70 with a bare 33 seconds left.

The overtime was an anticlimax.

Big Bob Prendegast, a mere 6-7 of a lad tossed in 25 points, to lead the Providence Frosh to a 56-39 victory over the Clark Jayvees in the preliminary. Scores:

Martin Calls Squad For Baseball Start

Preparations for the coming baseball season are in full swing at the college. Under the able supervision of Coach Hal Martin, the members of last year's varsity have been conditioning themselves indoors for the past two weeks. The workouts have consisted in calisthenics and running for the most part.

Hal Martin is not too optimistic about the coming season. The schedule figures to be rough, and the loss of key players will hamper the Friars. However, he is sure that the hustle which characterizes P. C. teams will enable the squad to make a good showing. Hal is also counting on some of last year's Freshmen squad to add some punch to the Varsity.

BROWN STOPS P. C. FROM 15 WINS LOSS OF LOZOSKI AND NISSEL FELT

By Dick Boulet

Saturday night, the Friars ended a successful season on a sour note, succumbing to Moe Mahoney & Co., alias Brown University, 66-54. This brought the season record of 14 wins and eight losses, the best slate for P. C. since pre-war days, certainly a feather in Coach Vin Cuddy's hat. During the last two weeks of the campaign the Friars displayed both extremes in basketball playing. Against Brown Saturday and Clark the previous Wednesday, they showed the effects not only of two tough games the week before, but also of the loss of first stringers Sam Nissel and Walt Lozoski. Presence of these two in the lineup would have definitely turned the State and Brown games into P. C. victories.

Sensational high scoring sophomore Jim Schlimm continued to be the offensive mainstay for the Black and White. Brown's Moe Mahoney was the only defender able to keep Jim under 20 points in the past couple of weeks, he held him to 18. In the Boston College romp Slim Jim racked up 26, and against Rhody's Rams he totaled 25, while he garnered but 20 in the Clark tilt. Certainly an enviable record for a sophomore.

Frank Pelligrino shook off his mid-season slump to set the season scoring record in the Clark game, registering 28 points and really saving the day. Not only did his offensive work improve, but his rebounding has also been superlative. In the first half of the Brown tilt, Frank gave one of the best rebounding exhibitions ever turned in by a Providence College player.

Coach Cuddy has been especially pleased with the improved, hustling play of Ray Garcia. Since returning to the starting lineup to replace Sam Nissel, Ray has been one of the offensive mainstays, while playing an excellent floor game. Sophomores Ray Korbusieski and Ronnie Gagnon both played steady ball in the final games.

Co-captains Art Weinstock and Walt Lozoski closed brilliant four-year careers by leading the Friars to new heights in the Boston College and Rhode Island State games. Though not always high in the scoring column, their worth was in their floor work and smooth playmaking which enabled Schlimm and Nissel to score.

Coach Vin Cuddy can really be proud of his club, a hustling team which scored two notable upsets and barely missed scoring another. The Friars played their best ball against B. C. and R. I. State. In beating Boston College they avenged a previous loss and upset a team which had just knocked off high ranking Villanova.

Frosh Lose To Brown To End Poor Season

By Charlie Sakany

The Freshmen quintet concluded the season with one win and four losses in their final five games. On Saturday the Frosh bowed to Brown, 55-51. In their other outings the Friar Jrs., were set back by Marianapolis, 87-70; trounced, 105-58, by Rhode Island State, and checked by B. C., 57-46. Their only successful start was against the Clark Freshmen who they downed, 52-39.

During a rather dark season the P. C. Frosh won seven games while losing 15. At times the club was quite impressive while on other occasions they were severely lacking.

In spite of this record, the Freshmen have gained valuable experience which will be a great asset to the boys who will go to the varsity next season.

Coach Martin has also produced some outstanding talent in the form of Beaver Power and Bob Prendergast. These two boys have led the Frosh throughout the season. Beaver displayed sparkling ball handling and all around know how; while Bob's offensive versatility and fine rebounding has made him a prospect to be reckoned with. Prendergast collected 343 points in 21 games for an impressive average of 16.3. Power gathered a season total of 234 for an 11.1 average.

Though not outstanding, such boys as Reidy, Kirby, Keating, Bell, and Paul proved on occasions to be talented and full of fight. These boys always gave their best while on the court. Red Reidy while not appearing in all the games managed to gain third slot for the season scoring, followed by Kirby.

Most will agree that the Freshmen, while not winning all their games, have usually played a good brand of ball, producing many thrills and always holding the interest of the spectators.

ANOTHER FOR THE RECORD BOOKS . . .

The 1949-50 edition of the Providence College basketball team was the finest aggregation representing the school in almost 10 years. In 1941, Larry Drew and Ted McConnon led the Friars to a record season of 15 wins and 5 defeats. This year's club came within one victory of tying their superlative victory record. Coach Vin Cuddy and this court-wise crew have come a long way to established in fine 14-8 record in comparison to last season's poor showing of 7 victories and 19 defeats.

For some time now, P. C. sport fans have been yelling for that big man who can score consistently, who can be counted upon in the clutch. Now we have him in the person of big Jim Schlimm, a Sophomore from St. Mary's, Penna. He led the scorers this year with a 15 points per game average, and has two more years of Providence College competition before him. Sam Nissel, who missed the final games this season, is another reason why the basketball team has been a success. With Frank Peligrino, he represents that one-two-punch from the sides on the forward wall. Pelly has done a tremendous job this season, not only offensively, but his backboard control and defensive skill have been outstanding.

Ray Garcia has done a very effective job at forward this season. He hit a mild mid-season slump but came back to fill in wonderfully for the injured Sam Nissel. Next year, Gabby will return to his guard post, where he should stand out among the best. Co-captains Walt Lozoski and Art Weinstock will be sorely missed next season. Proof of this lies in last Saturday's Brown game and the recent Clark University encounter. With Walt in there matters would have been a little different. Somebody on next year's squad is going to have to do Walt's job of masterminding the play. We wonder who it will be.

Brown must have attempted to give Providence a sense of false optimism this season. Just before both games, their ace and captain, Moe Mahoney was declared "out of the important encounter." We know the story. In-again-out-again-on-again-off-again Mahoney. Providence College passed up the NAIB small college tournament this season. It was scheduled for last Thursday and Friday. With P.C.'s absence New Britain Teachers were given an almost sure victory. Is that why New Britain had the tournament scheduled when Providence was unable to compete?

Next season's ball club should be the best one in history. With a couple of good freshmen ready to jump into varsity berths, and the wholesale improvement of the Sophomore and Junior veterans, Vin Cuddy will have one of the top clubs in New England come next December. Bob Prendergast and Beaver Power, two capable performers for Hal Martin's Frosh, seem to be ready for play next season. The fine showing of Ray Korbusieski, Ronnie Gagnon, and Jerry Lembo, all Sophomores, is insurance, also, for next season. On behalf of the student body, we wish to congratulate Vin Cuddy and his basketball players for a fine year, and express our best wishes for a record-breaking 1950-51 season.

BASEBALL BEGINS

Coach Hal Martin is now rounding his veterans into shape for the oncoming baseball season. The actual outdoor drills will probably start around March 28. The board track will be taken down after the invitation meet, March 25, and the field will be prepared for use. Coach Martin doesn't seem too optimistic about the forthcoming season. But he is banking upon his veterans and the capable members of last season's Freshman team. Pitching seems to be poor but time will tell, and we can bet that Hal Martin will win his share of ball games for Providence College.

INTRAMURALS

The intramural basketball season is now coming to a close. The Dorm League finished last week, and Larry Drew is now conducting the playoffs in the Day League. Intramural volleyball will start soon.

MONOGRAM CLUB

BOXING SMOKER TONIGHT

PARTICIPANTS NAMED FOR FIGHTS, LOUTHIS PROMISES GOOD PROGRAM

By John Salesses Card 3-15-50

Tonight the Monogram Club will run its annual smoker in Harkins Hall auditorium. The first bout will start at 8 p. m. sharp.

Pete Louthis has been working these past weeks training as good a group of boxers, if not better, than those whom we have seen taking part in the Smokers of previous years. These men who will climb through the ropes tonight have worked very hard getting into shape and the results will be seen in good, hard-fought bouts.

Seven bouts in all are listed. They will include the featherweight, lightweight, senior welterweight, middleweight, and the heavyweight division.

The new division, that has been added, for the Smoker, will please many fight fans. Four fast-moving scrappy featherweights have been paired off for the first two bouts on the card for the evening. In the first fight, Vin DiNicola will square off against Johnny Izzi. Walt Chiefo has drawn as his opponent Dick McAllister for the second featherweight clash.

The third fight will be a get together for lightweights. Art Daglis will encounter Jim Fisher. Two senior welterweight matches have been listed with Jim Cote or Oscar Peters meeting Jerry "Gibber" Hanrahan in the fourth bout and Bob Ford will take on Bill Magee in the fifth section. The middleweight division will be well represented by Vin Callahan and Armando Annunziato. The final fight on the card has Leo McCarthy meeting Frank Kilbride in a heavyweight encounter.

Many will recall that several of the fighters who are on tonight's program also fought in last year's Smoker. These men are Bill Magee, Frank Kilbride, Oscar Peters and Leo McCarthy.

The winners of each bout, as was done last year, will make up the Providence College contingent for a return with the Dartmouth College boxing team March 22 up in Hanover. Kilbride and Peters were among those who fought the Hanover "Indians" last year in Harkin's Hall. Those who attended the matches will long remember the excellent bouts even though the Friars were presented but one victory, that by the fast-moving, hard-hitting Oscar Peters.

An invitation has been extended to the Rhode Island Boxing Commission. It is hoped that the commission will have representatives here as officials for the boxing program.

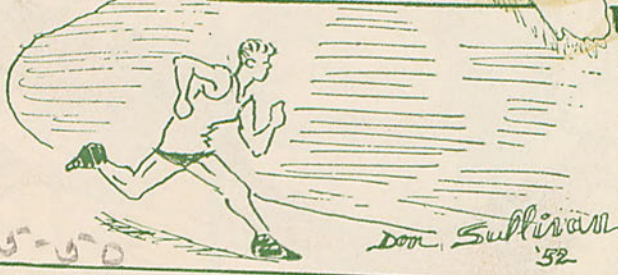

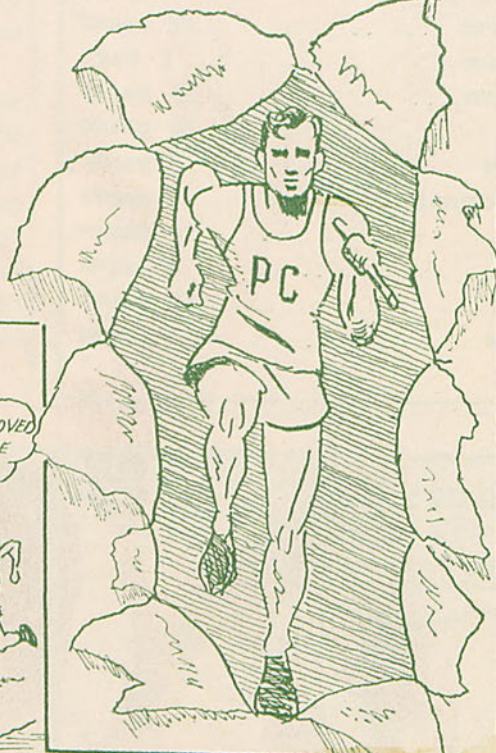

The fights will be run according to the intercollegiate boxing rules. An innovation has been added in that the boxers will wear the intercollegiate approved head gear. The bouts will consist of three rounds with each two minutes long and one minute between rounds.

As in previous years, a full house is expected as many non-college people are interested in attending the matches. Come early and assure yourself of a good seat. The price of admission for students is 35 cents and 75 cents for non-students.

Pete Louthis, who will referee, has hopes for a surprise addition to the program that would make it well worth while for everyone present in Harkins Hall to enjoy.

PROVIDENCE COLLEGE TRACK
STAR FROM EAST HARTFORD

P.C. Board Meet Set
For March 25 Talent

By John Salesses ³⁻¹⁵⁻⁵⁰ Cowh

Sports enthusiasts will take pleasure in the fact that they may see the best track meet of the year to be held in this state one week from this Saturday afternoon. Providence College will run its second Annual Indoor Track meet at Hendriken Field. Harry Coates has done much work in bringing into Rhode Island this annual parade of national track champions.

Last year many will remember the excellent performances turned in by Phil Thigpen and Carl Joyce in the 880-yard run. Frank Fox beat Herb McKinley and Charles Slade in the 500-meter run. Bill Dwyer edged Stanfield and Fielding in the 60-yard low hurdles and 50-yard dash. Hank Dreyer took the 15 kilo's weight event with an exceptional toss of 60'-0". The Providence College track team also turned in good times in the freshman and varsity mile relays. Tony Fratanuono won the discus event beating Olympians Hank Dreyer and Sam Felton. Dick Phillips of Brown reached 6,6" in the high jump.

A crowd of nearly 4,000 turned out for the meet. This year, it should be larger, with the welcomed return of some of last year's performers along with some new faces of national track prominence. As yet, not all the applications for the meet have been filled out. Rhode Island State, Seton Hall, Holy Cross and Springfield are among the colleges who have been sent invitations.

Cowl 3-15-50

With the regular season finished, intramural director, Larry Drew, is now conducting the playoffs for the top teams in the 11:30 and 12:30 leagues. Next week should finish the basketball activity in intramural circles. The winner of the P. C. league will then take on the intramural champions of Brown (the date to be announced later).

In the 11:30 league, which ended some time ago, the Froshmores were high on the totem pole, and they will represent that league in the playoffs. Lamy and O'Connor are the two big guns who paced their team to victory.

The 12:30 league, which concluded activity last Thursday, ended in a tie for first place. The standings and records of the team are as follows: La Salle II (5-0), Woonsocket (5-0), Pawtucket (4-1), Senior Arts (3-2), New Bedford (3-2), Cranston (3-2), Schmoes (2-3), La Salle I (2-3), Fall River (2-3), Clippers (1-2), Soph Scientists I (1-2), Ramblers (1-4), Blackstone Valley (1-4), Soph Scientists II (0-1), and Chad Brown (0-3).

The playoff consists of four teams: The Froshmores from the 11:30 league; and the La Salle II Club, Woonsocket, and Pawtucket from the 12:30. La Salle II is banking on the efforts of Gentile and Palizza, and Woonsocket's aces are Dwyer and Doonan. Kaveny and McKnight are Pawtucket's hopes for the championship.

The results of the sponsored foul shooting contest are as follows: Ed Durocher took first place by hooping 71 of 100 shots. Austin Toole and Ed Dalton won second and third places respectively.

Larry Drew has announced that an intramural volleyball league will begin soon. The method of procedure will be similar to that of the intramural basketball program. Contests will be played in the early afternoon. Qualifications for entrance are the same as for the basketball league.

In an experimental basketball league conducted by the athletic association, five teams of business students competed in a separate group. Its results were quite successful and Larry Drew may convert the entire intramural program to the systems of the educational departments—for example—a league for science students, a league for pre-meds, a league for business students, and so forth.

The results of this league show that the Brewers took first place with a 7-1 record. The combination of Littlefield, Tracy, Tierney, Davy, Marrama, and Soucy was tops. The standings of the other clubs are: Nuggets (2nd), Celtics (3rd), Bombers (4th), and Rockets (5th).

Pre-Eccs Subdue New Haven, 49-47

By JOE LAUGHLIN

The dorm league came to its end Wednesday night with the most thrill-packed game of the season. Both teams exhibited the high brand of basketball which enabled them to complete in this final contest—a contest which was to determine upon which team the dorm crown would rest. Both teams had played hard to receive this opportunity and were determined not to let it slip by, as the final score, 49-47, certainly reveals. At no point in the contest was the outcome certain. Extreme tension was kindled in the early minutes of the game and cheers from the capacity crowd could be heard throughout the campus. A few of the Guzman high-shooting stars were:

Logan, who, with his advantageous height, managed to control the boards in Guzman's favor. Not only did Bill excel on the boards, but his smooth hook-shot and his tap-ins gave him 17 points which had a great deal of influence in determining the final outcome.

Bunny Boylan, a boy who has been a spark to the Guzman Club throughout the season, hit with his timely set-shots for 14 points.

"Moose Perricane was the lad who was in charge of the dribbling and playmaking departments and although small in stature managed them with praiseworthy accuracy.

Frank Petriello and Jerry Vanderharr were other Guzman assets displaying their basketball know-how.

I think the most external display of initiative can be credited to the New Haven Captain, Al D'Ambruoso. Al, while leading his men in their most important tilt, garnered 14 points. Court-wise Bob Conti was tied with his Captain in number of points scored. This was made possible by Bob's fine shooting and also by Picone, Clifford, and Gaffaney, who set up many fine plays as well as playing a fine defensive game.

The lead throughout the game was fickle and visited both teams frequently. When the final whistle blew the two clubs were at a 45-45 deadlock which necessitated a five minute overtime. In the overtime it was a battle between Bunny Boylan, representing the Guzmanites, and "Hook" Clifford, a mainstay for the New Haven Club. At the termination of the five minutes, Boylan (4) had a two point edge on the "Hook" and was able to present the dorm crown to the fellows from Guzman.

Friars Prep For Catholic Hoop Series

By JOE McHENRY

The Providence College Friars resumed basketball practice with vim and vigor yesterday at Harkins Hall as Coach Vin Cuddy started preparations for the Friars' trip to Albany and the National Catholic basketball tournament.

The layoff did some of the boys good, loosened them up and relieved that tight, tense feeling that overtakes a basketball team in the stretch of a hard season, Coach Cuddy reported today.

The Friar coach thought that both Sam Nissel and Walt Lozoski, who missed some of the Friar final games, would be ready for the post-season tourney. Nissel worked out yesterday, but Lozoski was tied up with his teacher-training program and wasn't available.

Nissel and slim Jim Schlimm, the two St. Mary's, Pa., alumni, both played in the Pawtucket Boys' Club tournament and won all-star berths. Schlimm was one of the high scorers and also was tied with George Duffy in the selection for the tourney's outstanding player.

Top Stars

Thommy Thomas, a Denver newspaper man who is director of the Albany tournament, said he had heard of Schlimm and his hook shots. But he offered Jim McCabe of Loras College of Dubuque, Ia., as his nomination for the top player among the competing teams. McCabe, a jumping jac, scored 614 points for the Iowa Collegians, who won both the Midlands and the Central Conference championships this season.

McCabe, who comes highly rated, averaged 21.9 points per game and was second to Nate De Long of River Falls Teachers for the nation's scoring leadership over much of the past season.

Siena, which used to play the Friars every season, has the best team in its history, sparked by Willy Harrell and Ed Delange, both outstanding players. The Idians have won 48 of their last 58 starts. Coach Dan Cunha, a Notre Dame grad, rates his present combination the best he has coached at Siena, with a 25-and-4 record.

Vin Cuddy

Creighton of Omaha has an outstanding record, with a decision over Kansas' Big 7 co-champions, which played tight games with Holy Cross and Bradley, two of the nation's ranking teams.

The Friars may get a chance to reverse one of their setbacks if they meet Iona of New Rochelle. The Ionians, who won 19 out of 21 games and beat Siena, are a strong combine but Providence could have done better in their ball game.

Lozoski Lift

The presence of Lozoski in the Friars' starting lineup should give the team a lift for they missed Walt's passing and hustle in their last two games with Clark and Brown. Walt's steadying influence meant a lot to some of the younger players. His puffed hand has come around with rest and he's expected to be in top shape for the opener.

The competition at Albany will be rugged for each of the eight entrants has something to recommend it, from high scoring (St. Francis, 74-point average), tight defense (Siena, one of the best in the country for the past three seasons) and hustle (Loras).

But as Coach Cuddy says, with a grin, "We can very possibly steal some of their thunder out there. We have a dangerous club, too, and if we're hitting we can give any of them a battle."

Stanfield Faces Dwyer in Dash At P.C. Meet

By PETE McCARTHY

Andy Stanfield of Seton Hall, Billy Dwyer of Providence and Herb McKenley of Jamaica, B.W.L., will compete in the special 60-yard dash at the second annual Providence College Invitation Track Meet Saturday at Hendricken Field, Director Harry Coates announced last night.

Stanfield is the national sprint champion both indoors and outdoors and has been defeated only once since he ran second to Dwyer in last year's P.C. meet. That setback was administered by Ira Kaplan of New York University in the Boston A.A. meet last month.

The tall, lean Seton Hall runner captured the IC4A, NCAA and AAU crowns last spring and won both the IC4A and AAU indoor titles this winter, besides dominating all but one of the weekly spiked-shoe carnivals.

A leg injury suffered while he was competing with the U.S. team abroad last summer has hampered Dwyer for most of the season, but he competed in several of the winter meets and showed his best form in finishing second to Stanfield in the AAU sprint. If he's right, he's a sprinter Stanfield cannot trifle with.

McKenley has just returned from the Central-American Olympic Games, in which he won the 200 and 400-meters and finished second in the 100-meter dash. He placed second to his fellow countryman, Art Wint, in the 1948 Olympic 400-meter run. He ran in the special 550 against Frank Fox and Charley Slade of Seton Hall in last year's P.C. meet.

Coates said last night that he expects two more entries to round out the special dash field. The meet includes two other special runs, with John Joe Barry of Ireland in one of them, eight events for schoolboys, three college relays and three open AAU events.

Voice From Ballygarry . . .

Bill Lee, from the Shamrock Gaelic Football Club, wants to file a claim for Ballygarry in the County of Tipperary as the home spot of John Joe Barry, the Irish distance runner. . . . Lee, who came from Ballygarry, himself, says that John Joe and his folks lived there most of the time although John Joe did spend several years in Dublin before coming over here and that fact may have resulted in Ballycurry, a Dublin suburb, getting credit for producing the Gaelic speedster. . . . At any rate, Lee says all the members of the Shamrock Club, whether they come from Dublin, Tipperary or wherever, will be on hand to hail Barry at a reception Saturday night at the Columbus Club after John Joe's appearance in the Providence College meet Saturday afternoon. . . . The Shamrocks, incidentally, have joined the New England Gaelic League and are looking forward to a good season, with the team bolstered by new talent. . . . I always knew Gaelic football was a rugged, testing game, but I didn't know until I talked to Lee just how durable the players in it are expected to be. . . . Seems substitutions are allowed only for actual injuries and such substitutions are limited to four. After that if a man is injured the team plays short-handed. . . . And speaking of manpower, how about a bow in closing to Heinie Murray's basketball team from little Blackstone High, which lost only one game this season, won both the Clark University and Eastern Massachusetts small school tourneys and while winning the tourneys played and was victorious in six games in five days!

TRACK TICKETS

Because of the high costs incurred in sponsoring the Second Annual Providence College Invitation Track Meet, students are going to be asked to pay 60c admission. Regular admission price is $1.20. Students are requested to obtain their tickets by bringing their ticket booklets to the athletic office and buying the special tickets there.

P.C. Five Using Brown's Court In Tuneup for Catholic Tourney

Unable to use their regular gym, the Friars have been using the facilities of Brown's Marvel Gym for practice sessions. The team worked out there Monday and yesterday and will be back again Friday.

A telephone call was all that was needed to complete the arrangement.

"I called Paul Mackesey (Brown's athletic director) earlier in the week," said Vin Cuddy, the Friars' coach, "and he said come ahead."

"It's a good break for us," Cuddy said after yesterday's workout.

He explained that his team thus has a chance to practice on a court that is equipped with glass backboards and approximates the size of the court they'll play on at Albany. Mt. Pleasant High School's gym, where the Friars normally play, is not available.

Cuddy said he thought his club was in for a tussle in the tourney, which will match some of the better Catholic clubs in the country.

"Siena and Iona are tough teams," he said. "We are in for a lot of basketball."

George Wade

Crack Seton Hall Mile Team

Also Enters Carnival

Set for Saturday

By PETE McCARTHY

The field for the special distance race in Saturday's second annual Providence College Invitation Track Meet was considerably strengthened yesterday with the receipt of entries from George Wade of Yale and Phil Thigpen of Seton Hall.

Wade and Thigpen will join John Joe Barry of Ireland in a race which Harry Coates, the meet director, has set at three-quarters of a mile. Coates explained that he decided on this distance in order to give Thigpen, a 1000-yard specialist, an equal chance with milers Barry and Wade.

Coates also announced that Frank Fox, the former Seton Hall 600-yard champion who won the P. C. special 550 last year, will compete again in the middle-distance special which will go 320 yards Saturday.

Other entries received yesterday include the crack Seton Hall mile relay team of Bob Carter, Charley Slade, Harry Bright and the fourth member who is either Stanfield or Thigpen; Don Evans, New Jersey schoolboy sprint champion last season; Ed Scott of the Warrinanco A.C. of N.J., who was Scott's predecessor as king of New Jersey schoolboy dashmen; and Brown University's two Tobey Twins, Jonathan and Joshua.

Evans and Scott will compete in the open AAU handicap 60-yard dash. Jon Tobey will run the handicap 600 and Josh will be in the mile handicap.

Wade, who holds the mile record at Yale at 4:13.1, has run against Barry several times this season. The Eli star won the Boston K. of C. and the Heptagonal mile runs. The only time he crossed the tape ahead of the Irish champion, however, was at the Hub Casey meet.

Thigpen won the Millrose 880, the Boston K. of C., the IC4A and the Chicago 1000-yard runs and placed second in the BAA meet. He beat out Carl Joyce, then of Seton Hall Prep. in last year's P. C. 880.

Fox, now teaching at Seton Hall Prep, has been either first or second in every 600-yard race he has entered this winter. He won the Boston K. of C., the Millrose and the Chicago races. He'll have his hands full at the 320-yard distance against Herb McKenley, the Jamaica Olympian who holds the world's record for 300 yards both indoor and outdoor. His outdoor mark is 29.8 seconds and indoor, 30.3. Stanfield and Dudley O'Leary of Boston University are expected to round out the 320 field.

The meet will be held on the Friars' 11-lap board track at P. C.'s Hendricken Field and will get under way at 1:30 p.m. Competition will include eight events for schoolboys, three college relays, three AAU handicaps, three special events and CYO relays.

MUTT AND JEFF

April 3-22-50

John Cassedy and Gerry Kallman, who are two of the big reasons why the Providence College one-mile relay team has been an outstanding and championship aggregation, are New Jersey boys who have been running together now for some time. Since their high school days in Jersey City, Cassedy and Kallman were inseparable as teammates on the relay teams of their school. Even then, as they do now, Gerry runs the third leg and John runs in the anchor position. This is their sixth year of track competition as teammates.

Smoker Pleases 850 Fans Peters and Harold Star

Cowl 3-22-50

Last Wednesday evening 850 boxing fans jammed into Harkins Hall to witness a very colorful boxing show staged by the Monogram Club. In the main attraction of the evening, Oscar Peters, 146 pounder from Taunton, Mass., fought an exhibition bout with Hughie Harold of Pawtucket. Both are clever boxers and have had much experience in the amateur field. This no-decision exhibition was preceded by six bouts which pleased all present.

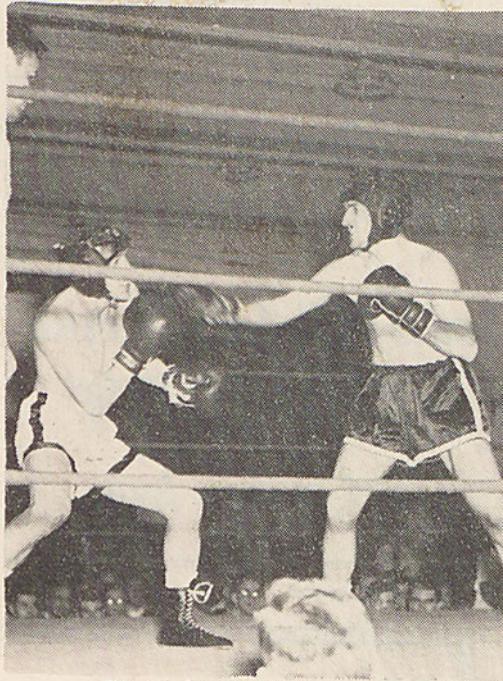

In the semi-final match Jim Cote of Fall River, Mass., won a TKO over Jerry Hanrahan in a 150 pound bout. Hanrahan failed to answer the bell at the beginning of round three and referee Pete Louthis awarded Cote the fight. Plenty of punching and mixing it up characterized this fast encounter.

The best fight of the night was a contest between Vin Callahan of Hartford, Conn., and Armando Annuziato of Taunton. Both weighed 165. Callahan's long reach played to his advantage although Annuziato seemed to be the better puncher. Callahan was awarded a unanimous decision which was quite unpopular with the gathering.

Dick McAllister, featherweight from Cranston, outpointed Wait Chieffo of New Haven, Conn., to open up festivities around 8 o'clock. It was a fast bout with little punching and contact. In the 136 pounds class, Art Dagnon of Newport won a unanimous decision from Jim Fisher of Providence. In the only split decision contest of the evening, Bob Ford, 147, of Providence, beat Bill Magie, 148, of Newton, Mass.

were Bill Lynch and Angus McAdams of Providence.

In another exciting fight, Leo McMarty of Riverside, R. I., fell victim to Frank Kilbride of Sandy Hook, Conn., in a heavyweight encounter. The first two rounds were fast and furious, but by round three, McCarthy had trouble keeping in the fight and kept tying up Kilbride. It was a unanimous decision. —FLANAGAN

Seventy-five Report For Diamond Drills

3-22-50 Cowl
Approximately seventy-five candidates have answered Coach Hal Martin's initial call for baseball players. Although the number is encouraging, Hal is not too enthusiastic about this year's prospects. Only a few players are returning from last season's nine. Coach Martin is looking to the candidates who have moved up from the freshman squad to plug the gaps caused by graduations and other reasons for ineligibility.

Although it is rather soon to start making predictions, it would seem that this year's nine is sadly lacking in experience. No experienced pitchers are on the squad, while aspirants for the second base and shortstop positions are also inexperienced. The hitting ability of the candidates is as of yet an unknown quantity.

Foremost among the veterans who have reported is captain Art Weinstock, the regular catcher, on whose shoulders much of the offensive burden will lie. Also back from the 1949 club are first baseman Ted Maloney, third sacker Ed Mooney, and outfielders Sam Nissel and Walt Sullivan. Frank Higgins is the only pitcher who is back. The reserve second sacker, Skippy McGurkin is also out for the team.

Up from the Frosh are second baseman Buzz Barry, hot corner guardian Georgie Ducharme, initial sacker Don McDonald, and center fielder Dick Duignan. Southpaw hurlers Bill McKeon and Bill Fagan are also moving up. Coach Martin is hopeful that these fellows may be able to supply the speed and hitting so essential to a winning team.

The squad will not be cut until the fellows have been given a thorough tryout. During the season Hal expects to carry about twenty players. He is hopeful of having warmer weather so that the squad can move outdoors for its practice session.

ANOTHER FEATHER IN HIS CAP . . . 3-22-50 Coates

There is a favorite college song whose title is "Lafayette Was Lafayette When Lehigh Was a Pup." By supplementing some choice words we can make it read "Seton Hall was Seton Hall when P. C. was a Pup." That's about the extent of it, too. In the years around 1920 when Providence College was a babe in the woods of Capitol Hill, Harry A. Coates was in the process of building Seton Hall College into the greatest track school in the country.

As he did here last Spring, Harry Coates built a board track for Seton Hall and began an annual track meet which is known all over the country as the Seton Hall Relays. As he did here last Spring, he started from scratch to build a citadel of sports enthusiasm in track. Two gentlemen who can proudly bear witness to the genius of organization of Harry Coates are the Rev. Daniel F. Reilly, O.P., and the Rev. Leo E. Schnell, O.P., Both of the good fathers ran for Harry Coates when they were students at Seton Hall.

It is more than a vague possibility that Providence College will be the site of a national track meet in the class of the B. A. A. Games or the K. of C. Games in the not too far distant future. Coach Harry Coates spent nearly four week's travelling throughout the East attracting the best talent available for Saturday's meet. Also, the Rev. Aloysius B. Begley, O.P., athletic director, with his tireless efforts, has contracted many schools and made a great deal of the preliminary arrangements that are so important to an affair of this nature.

So, Saturday afternoon another milestone will be reached in Providence College athletics. Some 500 athletes will perform before an expected gathering of 5,000 track fans at Hendricken Field.

TOURNEY BOUND . . .

The Friar hoopsters hung up their uniforms after the Brown game and called it a good season. But next week the racks will be empty again as Vin Cuddy will lead his charges to Albany to compete in the National Catholic Invitation Tourney. This is not just another post-season affair, it is an opportunity to put Providence on the basketball map of the nation. Though there are several teams in the tourney with impressive records, we should never forget what makes basketball the game that it is. That certain something is the element of competitive spirit and surprise. P. C. is not lacking in either respect.

SCHLIMM HONORED . . .

Big Jim Schlimm, sensational sophomore center, has added another award to his laurels. St. Anselm's College, twice victims of the Friars this season, placed Jim at one of forwards posts on their All-Opponent team. In the two games with the Hawks, Jim scored 28 points. He was picked on ten of the 13 ballots. The other members of the All-Star aggregation are Tom O'Brien of Boston College, Burr Carlson of New Britain Teachers, Jim Farley of St. Michael's, Ted Shire of Colby College, and Timmy O'Connell of Boston College.

HERE AND HEREAFTER . . .

Tonight the Providence College Intramural Boxing Team, will fight the Dartmouth College Indians at Hanover, New Hampshire. The winners of the bouts last Wednesday will represent P. C. . . . The daily papers are having a grand time playing up stories about two ex-Providence athletes, Birdie Tebbetts and Hank Soar. Birdie, of course, is a catcher for the Red Sox and Hank Soar is an American League umpire. Their verbal barrages on balls and strikes are creating headlines everywhere . . . Warren Walden, popular sportocaster in Rhode Island, will broadcast the events at Hendricken Field Saturday over the loud speaker.

La Salle II Intramural Champions of the School

By CHARLIE SAKANY

The La Salle Club of P. C. copped the Intramural Basketball Championship by downing the Woonsocket Club in a hard fought game, 50-36.

Palizza started the ball rolling for the La Salle quintet by scoring with a push shot in the opening minutes. For the next few minutes the scoring was nearly even, but with 7 minutes remaining to be played in the first half, a field goal and a free throw by Littlefield gave the champs an, 11-6, lead. In the remaining minutes of this period the best efforts of Woonsocket produced only 5 points, while La Salle, scoring effectively, collected 11. The half ended with Woonsocket in the dust, 22-11.

Early in the second period the underdogs made their bid for victory. They pressed their adversaries at every chance and for a couple of minutes the offensive onslaught of La Salle was stopped. Simmons dropped in three quick goals for Woonsocket, and for the first time in the game La Salle's lead was threatened. Littlefield and Gentile, however, took matters into their own hands. Both boys trained their sights on the basket and started shooting. In a matter of minutes they booster La Salle's lead to 17 points.

With seven minutes remaining in the game, and a comfortable margin, the La Salle Five began a freeze. The Woonsocket Club pressed, and obtained possessions after two valuable minutes had ticked off the clock. Through the fine shooting of Dywer the looser managed to raise their score to 29. With only two minutes remaining their was little doubt as to the final outcome. La Salle scored nearly at will in these last minutes. The game ended with the La Salle team victorious, 50-36.

This game featured some standouts, notably, Littlefield, Dywer and Cottam. Littlefield was the difference in this contest. His fine defensive play was only outshadowed by his offensive greatness. The Woonsocket star, Dyer, paced his club while scoring 15 points. Cottam played a fine defensive game, collecting many rebounds from both boards.

mark into the tourney. Included in its wins are victories over Siena and Providence College, both entrants in the competition. Late in December, Iona scored a hard-fought 81-70 triumph over the Friars.

A dark horse in the play is Loras College from Dubuque, Iowa, which won two conference titles while running a 20-8 record. Another five about which little is known is Creighton of Omaha, which can boast of a triumph over Kansas, the Big Seven co-champs.

St. Francis of Brooklyn, has also accepted a bid to compete. Last year they reached the finals of this tournament at Denver. St. Francis of Loreto, Pa., which posted a 17-4 mark is another entrant. The field of eight is rounded out by St. Michael's of Winooski, Vermont, conqueror of a good Boston College club during the regular season.

Providence College which had ended its campaign on the 11th of March, will resume practice this week. Some of the players have kept in shape by playing in amateur tourneys. Coach Cuddy will be allowed ten players for the tilts, which will be played on the 28th, 29th, and 30th of this month, and the 1st of April. Choice of players will be determined by the condition of Sam Nissel and Walt Lozoski, both of whom were injured at the end of regular year. If they are ready and able to play, P. C.'s hopes for pulling a surprise will be greatly enhanced. High scoring Jim Schlimm, Frank Pelligrino, Ray Garcia, Art Weinstock, Ray Korbusieski and probably Ed Mooney will make the squad along with Sam and Walt. The remaining positions are wide open. Tom Orr, Skip McGurkin, Ron Gagnon, Jerry Lembo, Al Becker, and Hoc Power are all in the running for the spots.

Over 400 Athletes To Compete Saturday

Canal 3-22-50

It will be a great day not only for the Irish but for all sports-minded people this Saturday, when John Joe Barry comes to town to take part in the second annual Providence Invitation Track Meet at Hendricken Field. Over four hundred entries have been received so far, for what promises to be a first class meet. Starting time is 1:30 p.m. sharp.

Harry Coates, P. C.'s track mentor, has spent many weeks in getting together the greats of the track world. This meet will see the return of several of last year's Invitation Meet performers, in addition to a flock of new stars.

John Joe Barry, Ireland's and Villanova's great miler, will lead the array of stars. Many other names of collegiate circles and the future national champion from high schools and grammar schools, have sent in their applications. Other luminaries include Phil Thigpen, Seton Hall's national collegiate 1,000 yard champ; Andy Stanfield, Billy Dwyer, Dudley O'Leary, Mal Whitfield, and Bob Black. It is hoped that Herb McKenley, world record holder for the quarter mile (45.9 seconds), and George Wade, Yale's outstanding miler, along with other track champions, will enter the meet.

Team entries in the meet include Providence College, Seton Hall, Boston University, Bryant College, Rhode Island State, Fairfield, Holy Cross, Villanova and possibly Yale.

John Joe Barry, the Illinois born Irishman, has come a long way in the track world. He is one of the best distance runners in the country today. His best time for the mile include a 4:8:6 timing in Ireland; in the U. S. he has been clocked at 4:10:2, which he turned in while placing third in the disputed Wannamaker Mile. Barry has beaten the best in copping the A. A. U. indoor mile, the B. A. A.'s Hunter Mile and the New York K. of C. mile. The Irishman has also proved that he is a good two-miler by beating Fred Wilt in the Heptagonal two-mile invitation race. Age is also in his favor as he is but 23 years old which is young as the age for distant runners goes. John Joe will have no easy race of it as he has Phil Thigpen of Seton Hall and possibly George Wade of Yale listed as his opponents in the special $\frac{3}{4}$ mile invitation race.

In the 60 yard dash, Andy Stanfield, the present intercollegiate and A. A. U. outdoor sprint champion from Seton Hall, will meet Providence's own Billy Dwyer, the former national sprint champ. Both these men toured Europe with American track teams and both were consistent winners. While in Europe, Dwyer suffered a pulled tendon which sidelined him for several months; now, however, he is making a comeback.

Stanfield will also run against Dudley O'Leary, Boston University's N. E. A. A. U. 440 yard champion, and possibly Herb McKenley in the 300 yard dash. O'Leary set a new N. E. A. A. U. record for the quarter mile with a time of 48 seconds flat. McKenley, besides being world's record holder for the quarter mile, is also the Central American champion in the 200 and 400 meter dashes. Mal Whitfield and Frank Fox, co-owners of the world mark in the 600, are also possible entrants in the 300.

Several relays have been listed. Bob Black, a consistent winner in local and national collegiate distance races, will run for R. I. State College in the 640 yard relay. The Providence College track team also has its work cut out for it. The freshman relay team will meet the frosh quartets of Holy Cross and R. I. State. The Friar varsity will meet Fairfield in the 1-lap relay, Seton Hall and Holy Cross in the 2-lap relay, and R. I. State, Holy Cross and possibly Seton Hall in the 4-lap relay.

The top high school track teams of Rhode Island will compete against such schools as New Bedford Vocational, Brandeis' Vocational, Boston Trade, Union, New Jersey, Newman Prep, and Boston College High in the 60-yard hurdles, 60-yard dash, relays, 300, 600 and 1,000-yard runs. The Catholic Youth Organization will be well represented in the special events for parochial grammar and junior high schools.

P. C. RELAYS DRAW

Harry A. Coates

Olympian who holds the world's record for 300 yards both indoor and outdoor. His outdoor mark is 29.8 seconds and indoor, 30.3. Stanfield and Dudley O'Leary of Boston University are expected to round out the 320 field.

The meet will be held on the Friars' 11-lap board track at P. C.'s Hendricken Field and will get under way at 1:30 p.m. Competition will include eight events for schoolboys, three college relays, three AAU handicaps, three special events and CYO relays.

P.C. Practicing On Brown Court For Hoop Series

FB - 3-23-50
Brown is giving Providence College's basketball team a helping hand this week in the Friars' preparations for the National Catholic Invitation Basketball Tournament at Albany next week.

Unable to use their regular gym, the Friars have been using the facilities of Brown's Marvel Gym for practice sessions. The team worked out there Monday and yesterday and will be back again tomorrow.

A telephone call was all that was needed to complete the arrangement.

"I called Paul Mackesey (Brown's athletic director) earlier in the week," said Vin Cuddy, the Friars' coach. "and he said come ahead."

"It's a good break for us," Cuddy said after yesterday's workout.

He explained that his team thus has a chance to practice on a court that is equipped with glass backboards and approximates the size of the court they'll play on at Albany. Mt. Pleasant High School's gym, where the Friars normally play, is not available.

Cuddy said he thought his club was in for a tussle in the tourney, which will match some of the better Catholic clubs in the country.

"Siena and Iona are tough teams," he said. "We are in for a lot of basketball."

School Track Rivalries Spice P.C. Competition

By EMIL JOHN

Several individual rivalries in Rhode Island schoolboy track will be concluded tomorrow in the second annual Providence College Invitation Track Meet. The eight schoolboy races that supplement the college, and A.A.U. events have drawn entries from 13 schools, five of them from out of state.

Dave Kehoe, La Salle's middle-distance ace, will attempt to finish an undefeated season in the 600-yard run, one of Saturday's interscholastic features. Kehoe, Class A and New England champion in the 600, has traveled the distance in 1 minute, 16.4 seconds. With favorable weather Saturday, he may run the 600 in the fastest time ever made by a Rhode Island schoolboy.

Pizzo Doubtful

For competition, Kehoe will have his teammate, Tim Ryan, and Bill Methia of New Bedford Vocational. Joe Pizzo, Hope's No. 1 trackman, has been sick this week and may not be ready Saturday. Pizzo is entered in both the 300 and 600—he's Class A 300 champion—but Coach Tom Russell hasn't decided yet in which race to run him, if he runs at all.

Judging from previous performances, the 1000-yard run should be a highlight. Dick Ollen of Cranston (the class of Rhode Island), La Salle's Bob Conde, and Bob Herman of Hope are the local standouts in this event; Ed Cameron of Plymouth and Bob Pepin of New Bedford are talented visitors. Ollen, Class A and New England champion, completed a "triple" by winning the 1000 in the Brown Interscholastics last week.

Ray Brophy of La Salle, undefeated in schoolboy competition this year, heads the entries in the 60-yard low hurdles. Paul LaChappelle, another Maroon, may have trouble in the 300 with Hope's Harvey Bomes, who won the 300 at the Bowdoin Interscholastics.

Ryan Entered

All season the dash has contributed the best finishes in local schoolboy meets. At one time or another Bill Allen of East Providence and Bob Washburn and Art Davis of Mount Pleasant have taken individual laurels, and all three are entered in the 60-yard sprint Saturday.

Joe Ryan of Newman Prep, winner of the Joe Nutter Memorial Mile last spring in the Brown Interscholastics, is not entered in any of the schoolboy events, but will run in the A. A. U. mile handicap.

The local entries in the meet are from East Providence, Barrington, La Salle, Central, Cranston, Mount Pleasant, Classical and Hope. Out-of-state teams competing are Boston College High, New Bedford Vocational, Boston Trade, Plymouth and Brandeis Vocational.

In addition to the high school events, two relays for CYO teams will be run—one in the grammar division and the other in the junior high school division.

Classy Fields Ready for P.C. Track Meet

More Than 400 Entered
By Colleges, Amateurs,
Schools Tomorrow

By PETE McCARTHY

A field of more than 400 entries, embracing some of the best college, amateur and high school talent available in this area, will compete in the second annual Providence College Invitation track meet tomorrow afternoon at Hendricken Field.

The competition, which will consume approximately 54 heats, will get under way at 1:30 o'clock.

A representative cross-section of the country's topflight track performers will appear in the three special events. That who's-who group is headed by John Joe Barry, the Irish mile champion; Andy Stanfield of Seton Hall, who rules the nation's sprinters in all events from 60 to 220 yards and who also mowed down the best there was in the British Isles last year; Phil Thigpen, also of Seton Hall, who has dominated the 1000-yard field the past two years, and Frank Fox, the former Seton Hall star who has been similarly successful at 600 yards.

Crack Relay

Three college relay races have drawn entries from R.I. State, Holy Cross, Fairfield, P.C. and Seton Hall. These races include two-lap, four-lap and sprint relays. The crack Seton Hall quartet has burned up the indoor circuit at the mile distance, with spectacular victories in the Millrose (3:19.5) B.A.A. (3:20.4) and the IC4A (3:22) meets. The Millrose clocking set a new meet record and the B.A.A. time equaled the meet mark.

The New Jersey college's team is composed of Bob Carter, Harry Bright, Charley Slade and either Thigpen or Stanfield. Harry Coates, the Friars' coach who is directing the meet, plans to have them run against an all-star team in addition to their regular race against P.C. and Holy Cross in the two-lap event.

The three invitation events will be run at 60, 320 yards and three-quarters of a mile. The 60 will bring together Stanfield, Billy Dwyer of Providence, who beat the Seton Hall star in last year's P.C. meet, Bill Gould of Holy Cross and Herb McKenley, the Jamaica Olympian who is a capable runner at distances from 60 to 400 yards.

Wade Coming

The 320-yard run will match Fox, Stanfield, Dudley O'Leary of Boston University, Don Evans of Seton Hall and possibly McKenley. George Wade, the best miler in Yale track history and winner of the Boston K. of C. mile; Thigpen and Barry.

Three open AAU and eight high school events plus two CYO relays will complete the program to be held on the Friars' 11-lap track located in front of the football stands. Members of the R.I. Track Officials Association will conduct the meet and they are requested to report to Harry Devoe at the field at 1 o'clock.

National Track Standouts Set to Compete In Invitation Meet at P.C. This Afternoon

John Joe Barry, Stanfield,
Thigpen, Fox and Dwyer
Included in Lineup

By PETE McCARTHY

The second annual Providence College Invitation Track Meet, providing competition for college, high school, amateur and youthful CYO runners, and highlighted by several nationally prominent performers, will be run off this afternoon at Hendriken Field starting at 1:30 o'clock.

Director Harry Coates, the Friars' track coach, has lined up eight events for schoolboys, three college and two CYO relays, a trio of open AAU events and three special races.

The name runners who will appear on the three-hour program include John Joe Barry, the Irish champion who has added a sizeable list of laurels to his collection during this winter's campaign; Andy Stanfield of Seton Hall, who currently holds the U.S. sprint titles from 60 to 220 yards; Phil Thigpen, also of Seton Hall, who has won the majority of the 1000-yard runs during the last two seasons; Frank Fox, former Seton Hall standout who has lost very few decisions at 600 yards the last two years; George Wade, the Yale miler; Billy Dwyer of Providence, former national 60-yard dash king; and Herb McKenley of Jamaica, who placed second to Art Wint in the 400-meter final of the 1948 Olympics.

These stars will be joined by a few others in the three special events—the 60-yard dash, the 320-yard run and the three-quarter mile race.

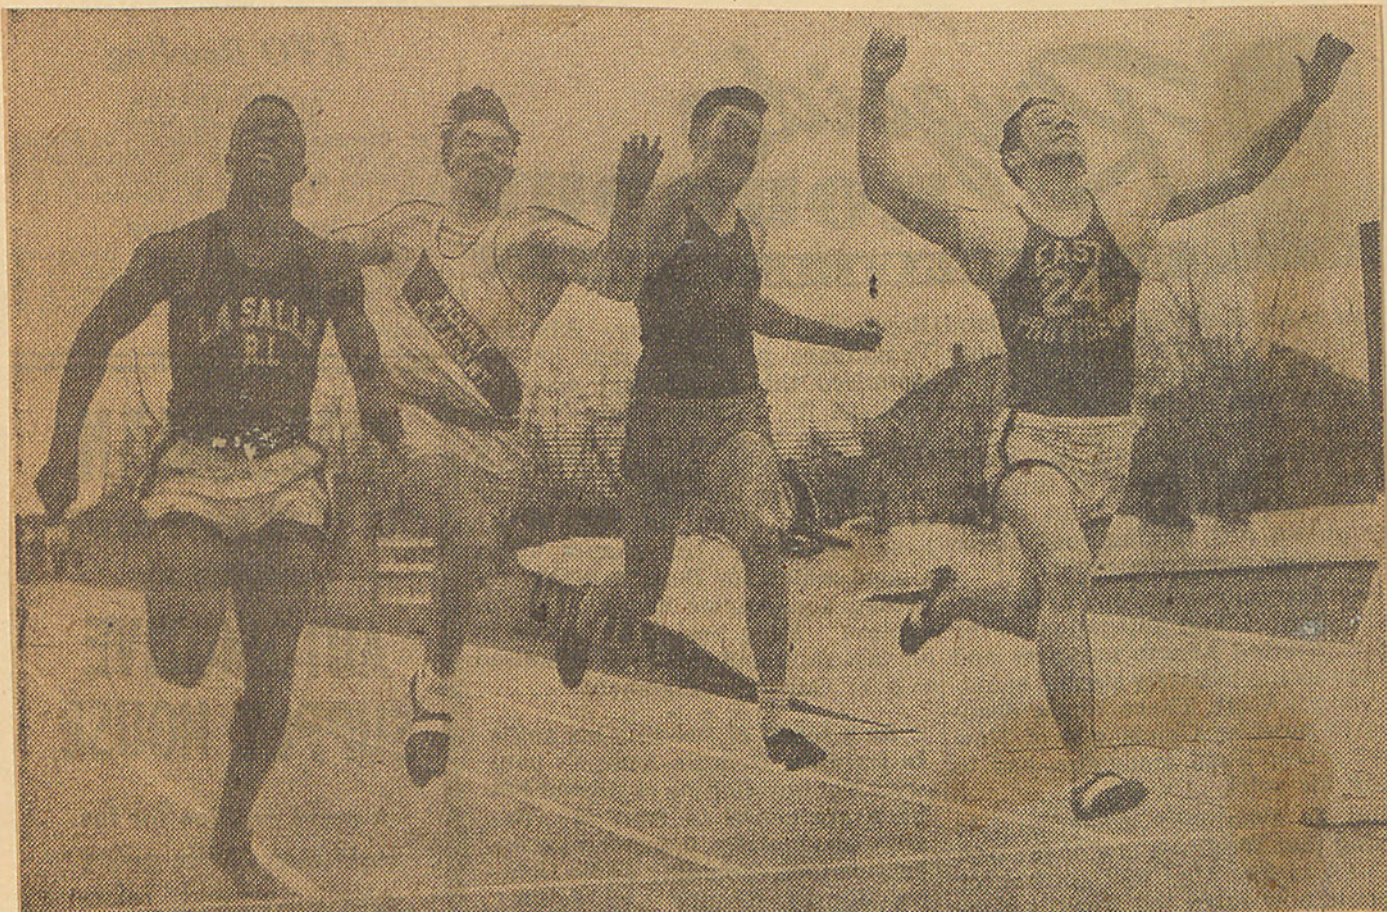

Entered in the college relay field are Seton Hall, Holy Cross, R.I. State, Fairfield and P.C. This group will compete in one, two and four-lap relays. The Seton Hall team of Bob Carter, Harry Bright, Charley Slade and Stanfield was clocked in 3:19.5

for a meet record in the Millrose Games and won several other big meets with slightly slower times.

The high school entry list embraces eight R.I. schools and five from Massachusetts. These include La Salle, last year's team champion, East Providence, Hope, Central, Mount Pleasant, Classical, Barrington, Cranston, Brandeis Vocational, Boston College High, New Bedford Vocational, Boston Trade and Plymouth.

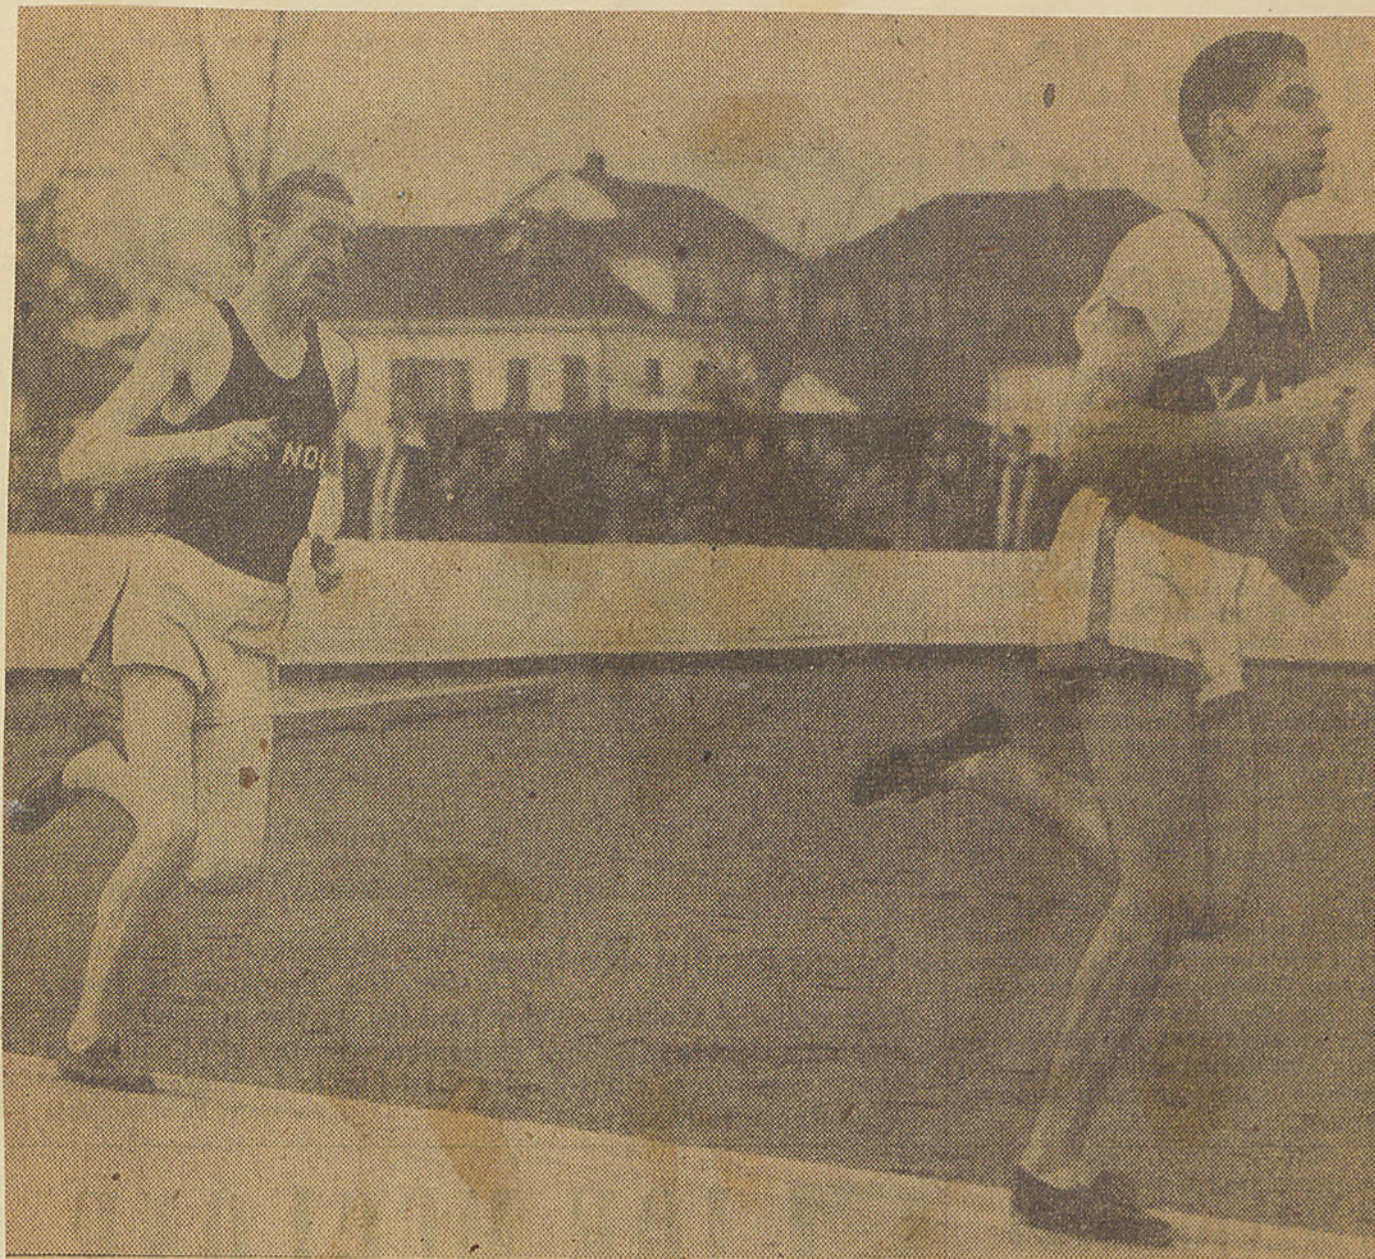

One of the closest races of the meet is expected in the R.I. college freshman relay, bringing together State, Brown and P.C. Schools competing in the CYO relays are Holy Name, St. Mary's, Immaculate Conception, St. Pius, Holy Ghost, Tyler, Blessed Sacrament and St. Rita's.

Schoolboy Dash Final: Bill Allen of East Providence (extreme right) lunges at the tape to victory in the 60-yard dash at Providence College yesterday. Bernie Pina of La Salle (extreme left) was a close second, and Walt Barnes of Boston College High School (second from right) was third. The Mount Pleasant runner is Bob Washburn.

Setting the Pace: Yale's George Wade, the eventual winner, is shown setting the early pace in the special three-quarter-mile race yesterday at the Providence College Invitation Track Meet. Challenging in second place is John Joe Barry of Ballincurry, Ireland, who was forced to drop out after six laps because he was still suffering from the effects of a bad cold which had confined him to bed earlier in the week.

All in the am

By Jerry

International . . .

THIS is the international invitation three-quarter-mile run," Harry Devoe ad-libbed over the loud-speaker system as John Joe Barry of Ireland, George Wade of Seattle and Yale and Phil Thigpen of Seton Hall lined up for the feature event in the Providence College track meet.

"Six furlongs, from the chute, with no place or show betting," a volunteer, assistant ad-libber chimed in from the stands, offering a reminder that there was another "overcoat" meet in progress a few miles to the north. The horses had come back to Lincoln Downs on the same day as the stars of the track world were visiting Providence College and the lure of the mutuels at Lincoln may have been responsible for holding the Hendricken Field crowd down to a scant 2000.

It was an enthusiastic 2000, however, eager for the start of the three-quarter, even though it knew John Joe, the Irish champ and the man it had come to see, could have been forgiven if he had made himself a late scratch in the event.

"The cold is still on me," the blond from Ballincurry had said before the race," and I suppose I should be in bed. But I said I'd come here and run and I'll run as far as I can. It may be for only two laps, though."

So even though he had been showing a temperature all week, he toed the mark, did this Barry from Ballincurry in the parish of Ballingarry in the county of Tipperary and a rousing cheer he received for turning out. He was cheered twice again, as he challenged Wade, once in the third lap and again in the fifth. He dropped out after six laps, however, and then Wade and Thigpen had the spotlight to themselves. They took it big, too, with a rousing finish in which the Blue from New Haven edged out the Blue from Seton Hall by a half-yard.

High Spot . . .

That, I guess, was the high spot of the meet from a spectator standpoint. Or maybe it was the seemingly effortless performance of Andy Stanfield from Seton Hall, current "fastest human," in scoring a double. Or maybe, on second thought, I'd hold out for the relay leg between little Johnny Cassidy of Providence College and long-legged, smooth-striding Charlie Slade, of Seton Hall, who once scored an unprecedented sweep of four events in the national prep-school championship.

They're long-time rivals, and long-time friends, from their New Jersey school days, Cassidy and this Slade, who is figured as the main United States threat for the 440 hurdles in the next Olympics. Well, big Slade had a slight edge on little Cassidy as they started their leg and it seemed he'd be able to pick up at least a five-yard bulge for his side before the leg was over. But little Cassidy clung to him and at times seemed almost to be running along in the tall guy's pocket. And when they finished, Slade's edge was no bigger than when they started. It may be that Slade wasn't at his peak, or wasn't going all out in this event, but at any rate it was the kind of show that catches the fancy of a crowd and the fans cheered every inch of it.

Carnival . . .

All in all, it was quite a show, this carnival staged by the school-boys, collegians and "name" runners gathered together by Harry Coates, present Providence College coach and long-time developer of outstanding track talent. You could even forgive the committee in charge for sticking in a couple of contests at seldom run distances so that the athletes would have a chance of setting new times. Which, of course, they did, in the 320-yard run and the 1560-yard relay.

It was unfortunate, of course, that Barry wasn't able to show at his best, but maybe he'll be back another year when he and the other track stars won't have to compete with the mutuels and there'll be a bigger crowd on hand to watch them perform.

John Joe definitely will be on this side of the water next year. He's taking a four-year course at Villanova, studying commerce and finance. How is he doing with his studies?

"I'm getting by, all right," John Joe will tell you, but with a shake of the head indicating he'd like to be doing a bit better. "These week-ends away, yo' know, don't help any."

Gun Trouble . . .

He has been busy outside college weekends, while proving that he can show his speed on indoors boards in the United States almost as well as he could on Irish turf. He has three major mile victories and one important two-mile triumph as well as a couple of minor accomplishments to show for his efforts.

Was it hard getting used to the boards?

The difference in the surface wasn't too bad, John Joe said. Even the sharper turns didn't bother him overmuch, at first, he said. There was one thing, though. Outdoors, he was used to hearing the gun go off for the last lap when there still was a quarter of a mile to go. He had become accustomed to judging when to make his finishing kick from the sound of the gun at that time. On the 11-lap indoor tracks the gun didn't sound until he had only 160 yards to go and he really didn't have time to work up his closing spurt.

Someone pointed out to him that he seemed to have his finishing kick gauged all right in the races he had won.

Barry to Compete in Providence Meet

PROVIDENCE, R. I., March 17—Rev. A. B. Begley, O.P., athletic director of Providence College, announced today that John Joe Barry of Ireland and Villanova College will run in the second annual Outdoor Board Track Relay Carnival at Providence College next Saturday, March 25.

JOHN BARRY TO RUN IN PROVIDENCE MEET

PROVIDENCE, March 18—The Rev. A. B. Begley, O.P., athletic director of Providence College, announced today that John Joe Barry of Ireland and Villanova College will run in the second annual outdoor board track relay carnival at Providence College next Saturday afternoon. Barry's first appearance in Rhode Island will be sponsored by The Society of the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick.

The relay carnival is being run for only the second time. Last year, 4000 persons saw the meet.

P.C. Draws Rugged Siena In Catholic Hoop Tourney

By JOE McHENRY

The Providence College Friars have drawn the people's choice, the Siena College Indians, in the first round of the National Catholic basketball tournament, which gets underway Tuesday night at Albany, N.Y.

There are softer spots in the draw but none any tougher than the task facing Coach Vin Cuddy and his ambitious Friars. Siena, the host team, boasts one of its better records, some say the best, and they are a real power among the smaller college teams.

Siena, in contrast to the fast moving Friars, stresses a ball control game. The Indians play it tight and have a tall, rangy squad which won 24 games and lost five this season. The Indians are one of the best defensive teams in the country by any standard. Last season they ranked second to Oklahoma A. & M. for the nation in defensive play and were among the leaders again this season. Siena's foes have averaged only 42 points a game for five years.

Worked at Brown

The Friars worked out this week at the Marvel Gym as guests of Brown University and Coach Cuddy was satisfied with the workouts. The addition of Sam Nissel, who was out with a broken finger, will help the team against the Indians, but Walt Lozowski's hand hasn't come around as well as first expected.

Providence used to play the Indians and met them as recently as the '47-'48 season. The Providence quintet holds a 3-2 edge in the series, although Siena has won the last two games, 47-42 in 1947 and 66-53 in 1948.

Siena, coached by Dan Cunha, a Notre Dame grad, was one of the leading teams in the country for the first half of the present season, although not mixing too frequently with "name" teams. The Indians won their first 15 games before losing a close one to Niagara. They beat Manhattan twice, Seton Hall, Regis (National Catholic champs last season), Scranton, St. Bonaventure, and both St. Francis of Brooklyn and St. Francis of Loretto, Pa., which are also in the tournament.

Scoring Duel

The game may develop into a scoring duel between the Indians' Ed Lange and the Friars' Jim Schlimm. Lange needs 41 points to get into the 1000 bracket. He has been the Indians' top player through three seasons while they won 69 games out of 87. The Siena team has won on an average of 23 and lost 6 for the past three years, with a strongly-senior combination.

The Indians also have a sophomore star who is expected to develop into a real topnotcher before he finishes. That's Billy Harrell, rated with the best in up-state New York this season, and a fine all around player.

Naturally, Coach Cuddy of the Friars didn't expect to draw anything soft in a tourney of this caliber. He has a lot of confidence in his team, which has played some fine basketball this season. He says the spirit and morale are great for the trip and he looks for the Friars to make a good showing.

"Siena will be tough but we're not exactly pushovers either. We'll give 'em a battle," he says.

The Friars play Siena in the feature game on Tuesday, with Loras College of Dubuque, Iowa, playing St. Francis of Loretto, Pa., in the first contest. The other first-round pairings on Wednesday match Creighton, top seeded, with St. Francis of Brooklyn, and St. Michael's of Winooski, Vt., and Iona of New Rochelle.

Friars Facing Rugged Opponent in Siena

P.C.'s Opening-Round Foe in Catholic Tournament

Has 24-5 Record

Joe 3/20/30
By JOE McHENRY

The Providence College Friars are paired with probably the toughest team in the field in meeting Siena College in the first round of the National Catholic Basketball Tournament, which opens Tuesday at Albany, N.Y.

Creighton, from Omaha, Nebraska, is the top-seeded team in the tournament, probably on the basis of its victory over Kansas. Big Seven co-champion, which played outstanding games against both Holy Cross and Bradley. And Iona is second-seeded by virtue of its upset 41-40 decision over Siena.

But take a look at the record. Siena has won 24 games and lost five, and has been a ranking team in the nation defensively, surpassed only by Oklahoma A & M last season and outstanding in that department again this season.

Coach Vin Cuddy has his charges ready for the tourney after several workouts this week at Brown's Marvel Gym. The Friars will travel to Albany by car tomorrow and work out tomorrow night at Vincetian Institute in Albany.

The Friars will have Sam Nissel back in the regular working lineup for the first time in weeks. Sam had a broken finger. However, there is some question about the availability of Co-Captain Walt Lozoski. He won't make the trip unless his puffed hand improves. All the others are in good shape.

In commenting on the game, Coach Cuddy said, "Perhaps it's a bit unfortunate that we drew Siena because we're hitting a real tough club on its home court. We probably would have been better off meeting one of the others because then we'd both be playing on a strange court. The Albany Armory is where Siena has beaten most of those teams.

"But in a tournament you've got to expect to have to play good, tough teams. We may surprise them and knock them off. Why if our boys are hitting, I'd match them against most anybody. Iona was one of the teams to beat them and yet I thought we should have beaten Iona on our New York trip." (Iona beat Siena, 41-40, and scored an 80-70 victory over the Friars.)

Siena has one of the best records in the country for the last three years, with the nucleus of the club now in its senior year. The Indians have won 22, 23 and 24 games over this stretch. Siena's victories this season included a 42-38 decision over St. Bonaventure, a 57-50 victory over William & Mary, 46-41 over Manhattan and 59-48 over Seton Hall. The Indians lost to Georgetown (47-42), Fordham (58-49), St. Bonaventure (52-47) and Niagara (59-49).

The tournament opens on Tuesday night, with St. Francis of Loretto, Pa., meeting Loras College of Dubuque, Iowa, and the Friars meeting Siena in the second game. Creighton takes on St. Francis of Brooklyn and St. Michael's of Winooski, Vt., faces Iona in Wednesday's twin bill.

Irish Star Will Run In P. C. Relay Carnival

25P 3-19-30
Providence, March 19—John Joe Barry of Ireland and Villanova College will run in the Second Annual Outdoor Board Track Relay Carnival at Providence College next Saturday afternoon, March 25, it was announced Friday.

Barry is without a doubt one of the greatest foreign athletes to invade the United States in recent years and it is only in the last month or so that he has really come into his own. He was very much bothered by the board tracks during the winter season and the smoke-filled gardens. However, he has now mastered the art of running on boards. The fact that the Providence College meet is held on a board track and out in the clear air should further enhance Barry's performance.

John Joe Barry Will Run At PC Carnival

PROVIDENCE — Rev. A. B. Begley, O.P., athletic director of Providence College, announced today that John Joe Barry of Ireland and Villanova College will run in the second annual outdoor board track relay carnival at Providence College next Saturday afternoon, March 25.

Barry is without a doubt one of the greatest foreign athletes to invade the United States in recent years and it is only in the last month or so that he has really come into his own. He was very much bothered by the board tracks during the winter season and the smoke-filled gardens. However, he has now mastered the art of running on boards. The fact that the Providence College meet is held on a board track and out in the clear air should further enhance Barry's performance.

Recently Barry ran a two-mile run in Boston on a Friday night and a mile performance on Saturday night in New York, and won both races. This will be Barry's first appearance in Rhode Island and this initial visit will be sponsored by the Society of the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick.

While the Providence College Relay Carnival is being run for only the second time, it promises to uphold the fine tradition started a year ago in its inaugural when many of the great runners in the country were brought here. With the announcement of Barry's entry, Providence College officials have gotten away to a good start in their effort to make this year's meet even better than last year's, which drew over 4000 people and was acclaimed by press and public alike as one of the most successful track ventures ever presented on a college campus.

TOMMY CONNOLLY was very nice about it. "We'll start you in as a base umpire where the work is comparatively easy," he told the young umpire. "And after you get the feel of the job, we'll try you out behind the plate where it's tougher." The kindly, white-haired chief of the American League umpirical staff had made the same pretty speech to all new arbiters and they all were grateful for his thoughtfulness and consideration. Vast was his astonishment when his newest Man in Blue weighed in with a dissent. "If you don't mind, sir," answered Hank Soar. "I'd just as soon start in behind the plate. I like it where the going is toughest."

Although that reply surprised Connolly, it wouldn't have surprised Stout Steve Owen, who knows Soar a lot longer and better. It was typical of Hank. He always gloried in the going when it was toughest.

Hank Soar is the one-time defensive backfield wizard of the New York Football Giants. He has just embarked on a new career and his progress has been breath-taking. At the start of last season he was umpiring in the New England League and in the middle of the campaign he was promoted to the American Association. Before the year had ended the American League had bought his contract. This is as rapid a rise as a ball player jumping from Class B ball to the majors in one season.

"He's the best young umpire that I've seen in years," admitted Connolly.

Hank is quick, alert, accurate and loud. When he renders a decision, he rattles every liniment bottle on the dressing room shelves just as Bill Klem used to do. In fact he has many of the Old Arbitrator's mannerisms even though he is in the other league.

Popularity Kid

Everyone in sports is rooting hard for him because Hank is a perfectly delightful character, one of the most genuine and best natured of men. Although one never would suspect it from listening to their conversational exchanges, the irrepressible Mr. Soar came pretty close to being Stout Steve's favorite football player. Owen rode him unmercifully and made him his whipping boy in a vain attempt to puncture the protective screen of Hank's immense good nature. He never succeeded.

There was, for instance, the time the Giants were in a squeaker. Their lead was tenuous and time was running out. Soar intercepted an enemy pass—he had few equals in that department of play—and Owen permitted himself the luxury of one deep breath.

"Slow it up!" he roared to Hank from the sidelines. Thereupon Soar, who was quarterbacking the team, tried a forward pass. Stout Steve almost swooned.

The $64 Answer

It was the most foolhardy call imaginable. In rushed a substitute for Soar and Owen met Hank at the sidelines with a black look in his eyes which meant that any jury could only rule this justifiable homicide.

"Didn't I tell you to slow it up?" he stormed.

"Gosh, Steve," expostulated Hank. I thought you yelled: 'Serve it up.'"

"Whatcha think you were playing?" asked Steve, stifling a grin. "Tennis?"

Hank had had a rather strange pro football career. He quit Providence College at the end of his junior year and was the ground-gaining ace of the then outlaw American League. But as soon as he was eligible for the National Football League the next season he signed with the Giants. Right from the start he was a tremendous, un-stoppable ball carrier. But he only went in short spurts before bogging down. Then it was discovered that an obstruction in his nasal passage cut short his breath and ruined his effectiveness. An operation was advised.

The cheerful Hank submitted and then he couldn't run worth sour apples. In some inexplicable fashion his effectiveness had been removed. From one of the very best he had become only so-so as an off-tackle slasher and open field will-o'-the-wisp.

Dr. Owen Prescribes

"I guess we should have you operated on again, Hank," sighed the dismayed Owen, "and have the missing piece of bone returned to your nose." Soar probably would have been willing, at that.

Even though Hank no longer was a wizard to the outside and a perfect foil for Tuffy Leemans' inside thrusts, he didn't deteriorate in value. He became a marvelous defensive back. He was a fast and shifty 200-pounder with a fiery competitive spirit, a lust for combat and ferocity in his tackling. Only on the gridiron did he shed his vast amiability.

It was as a defender against forward passes that he was supreme. Hank had that uncanny sixth sense the job requires. He could smell a pass before it even was thrown and there he was to knock it down or intercept. They didn't come any better and he was just as valuable as a morale-builder.

During the war he ate his heart out on a lonely Army post in Greenland, reliving every Sunday as if he still were back in New York. His letters to Owen were filled with humor and pathos as he described his own emotions, visualizing the team going to the Polo Grounds, climbing into uniform, warming up and playing the game.

Threatening Letters

But each missive wound up with a bold threat. "Don't you dare issue my No. 15 to anyone else," warned Hank. "This war can't last forever. If you assign No. 15 to anyone else, I'm coming back and rip it off his back." Steve saved his number for him.

Just before the war and when Slingin' Sammy Baugh was in his prime, the Redskins staged a tremendous rally against the Giants and cut their lead to a point or two. And down the field once more surged the Capital Braves in the waning minutes of the fray, making a last desperate bid for victory.

Soar was playing safety and he kept turning his back on the scrimmage in order to glance at the clubhouse clock as the final seconds ticked off.

"Stop watching the clock," screamed the frantic Owen. "Watch Baugh."

The ineffable Mr. Soar cupped his hands and delivered a classic answer.

"Stop bothering us, Steve," he said happily, "we're busy out here."

With his disposition, spirit and talents Hank Soar should go far in anything he attempts. Here's hoping he makes it as an umpire.

FRIARS' FIVE PLAYS IN ALBANY TONIGHT

Meets Favored Siena Quintet in First-Night Competition of Catholic Tourney

By JOE McHENRY

Albany, N.Y., Mar. 27.—The Providence College Friars take on the Siena College Indians in the feature game of tomorrow night's opening bill in the National Catholic Basketball Tournament here at the National Guard Armory.

Loras College of Dubuque, Iowa, meets St. Francis of Lorreto, Pa., in the tournament opener at 8 o'clock. The P.C.-Siena game will start about 9:30 o'clock.

Coach Vin Cuddy's Friars are confident, though the Indians, who have won 18 out of 21 games at the armory, are heavy favorites in their home town.

Providence will have its three best shooters in operation for the first time in several weeks. Sam Nissel is off the casualty list and will join Fran Pelligrino and slim Jim Schlimm in the starting lineup.

The Friars will need every bit of height they can muster against the rangy Indians, whose starters average well over 6 feet. Ed Lange and Willie Harrell of Siena are rated as top players in this area. Lange is a senior who needs 41 points to reach the 1000 mark and is winding up a brilliant career with the Indians.

Harrell is a fine shot and a good floor man. Some rate him as the best sophomore player in northern New York since the war.

Schlimm, who set a scoring record for the Friars this season, has a very soft shot from a hooking position and is the key to the Providence attack. As Schlimm goes, so go the Friars and tonight he'll have more help in retrieving the ball, with Nissel, his former schoolboy running mate, back in action. Co-capt. Walt Lozoski and Art Weinstock will start in the back court.

Siena plays a control game. Its opponents have averaged only 42 points a game over the last five seasons. The Indians have won 69 games over the last three seasons. Bill Boland, Lange, George Bruda, Charles Northrup, George O'Brien, Myron Lotosky, Ralph Fedullo and Dave Troncello are veterans of these excellent seasons and are available tonight.

Providence is capable of defeating Siena, despite its fine record. The Friars upset Boston College just after the Eagles had taken Villanova. They also gave Rhode Island a terrific battle in Kingston's Rodman Hall after the Rams' fine stands against Holy Cross.

Siena holds decisions over such teams as William & Mary, Niagara, Seton Hall and St. Bonaventure, and won its first 15 straight. The Indians were defeated, in close games, by Iona, Fordham, Georgetown, St. Bonaventure and Niagara.

Loras has the sensational Jim McCabe, who this season has scored 618 points as against St. Francis' 74-point-per-game average for the season.

Guisti's, Jennies, Hoboes, Knights Win in Tourney

Two Providence teams and one each from Pawtucket and Attleboro qualified for the semi-finals of the 20th annual senior basketball tourney last night at the Pawtucket Boys' Club.

Guisti's Travelers of Providence nosed out the Rhode Island All-Stars, 45-43. Jennies of Providence turned back Quinn's All-Stars, 56-49, as Phil Cardin paced the winning attack with 25 points.

The Pawtucket Hoboes captured their third straight tourney victory by defeating the Pawtucket YMCA, 60-48. Tom Whipple, with 18 points, paced the Hoboes' attack. Attleboro Knights of Columbus, paced by Jim Schlimm, Providence College star who set a tourney record with 29 points, easily defeated Wescott Aces, 66-41.

Semi-final games tomorrow night will bring together Pawtucket Hoboes and Attleboro Knights of Columbus in the first game at 7:15 o'clock. Jennies and Guisti's Travelers collide in the second tilt. The finals are listed for Sunday night.

P.C. Lettermen List Boxing Bouts Tonight

The Monogram Club of Providence College, composed of letter-winning athletes, will hold its annual boxing smoker tonight at 8 o'clock at Harkins Hall on the college campus.

The program will consist of eight bouts. A trip to Hanover, N.H., to face the Dartmouth College boxing team will be the award for tonight's winners. A year ago Dartmouth sent a team here to face P. C. and the Friars will return the compliment. Dartmouth has boxing on an intra-mural basis much as Providence College.

P. C. Boxers Compete For Trip To Dartmouth

PROVIDENCE—The annual boxing smoker of the Monogram Club of Providence College will be held at 8 o'clock tonight at Harkins Hall on the college campus.

Eight bouts are listed on the program in which boxers will compete for a trip to Hanover, N. H., to face Dartmouth College boxing team. The Dartmouth team came here last year to face P. C. and the Friars will return the compliment. Dartmouth has boxing on an intra-mural basis much as Providence College. The Monogram Club is composed of letter-winning P. C. athletes.

Brown Trips P. C., 66-54

Mahoney, Kozak Pace
Bruins' Hoop Victory

PROVIDENCE, March 11 (AP)—Brown staged a roaring second-half comeback and scored a 66-54 basketball victory over Providence College here at Marvel gym tonight. It was the final game of the season for each club.

The Bruins, held to 3 floor baskets in the first 15 minutes of play, started their surge late and topped it off with a 20-point barrage in eight minutes of the second half.

Frank Mahoney, one of six Brown Seniors, topped the scorers with 19 points. Jim Schlimm paced the Friars with 18.

Mahoney, Fred Kozak of Fall River and Ben Patrick were the leaders in the Bruins' drive, during which Brown held the Friars to 5 points to their 20.

Providence Five In Catholic Play

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP)—Providence College became the eighth and final team to accept a bid to compete in the National Catholic Intercollegiate Basketball tournament.

The tourney will be played March 28, 29, 30 and April 1.

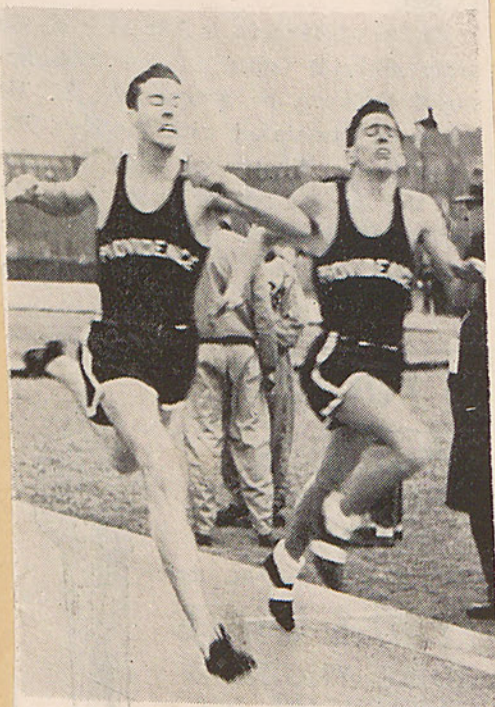

TWO RECORDS BROKEN IN BOARD MEET SATURDAY

By John Salesses 3-29-50

Two new world's marks were set as present and future stars shone brightly in the Providence College Invitation Track Meet at Hendriken Field last Saturday afternoon before more than 2,000 sports enthusiasts.

Seton Hall College and Providence College led the collegiate field.

Andy Stanfield of Seton Hall was the individual star of the meet with victories in the 60-yard and 320-yard special Invitation dashes. Racing against such great champions as Herb McKenley of the Grand Street Boy's Club of New York and Billy Dwyer of the Rhode Island Track Officials Association, he copped the 60-yard dash in the excellent time of 6.2 seconds to equal the best mark set in that event in the current season. Dwyer, last year's winner, placed second by a yard with McKenley third. In the 320-yard dash, Stanfield beat McKenley by a stride as he added to his string of records by setting the fastest time ever recorded for this infrequently run event. His time was 34.4 seconds breaking the old accepted mark of 35.9.

The second record of the afternoon to be smashed, was the 390-yard relay. The Seton Hall quartet of Dave Evans, Charley Slade, Harry Bright and Bob Carter running against an All-Star team composed of Jack Cassidy, Jack McConnell, Bill Sherry, all of P. C., and George Wade of Yale, broke the old mark of 3 minutes, 6.6 seconds made by a Harvard relay team 36 years ago, with a time of 2:57.2.

True competitive spirit was shown by Irish John Joe Barry in the special 3-4 mile Invitation race. With a cold that he has suffered for the four previous days, John Joe would not disappoint the crowd and entered the race along with George Wade of Yale

Martin Has Trouble Practice Time Cut

3-29-50 Cowl

With the start of the season three weeks off, Coach Hal Martin has already had enough tough breaks to last him for the course of the year. So far, nothing seems to be breaking in Hal's favor.

He has been unable to hold outdoor sessions due to inclement weather and presence of the board track on the baseball field. The week and a half Easter vacation means that at the most his charges will have exactly one week's practice outdoors before embarking on an ambitious 17-game schedule against the toughest opposition in the East. The participation of the basketball team in a post-season tournament also poses a problem for Coach Martin. Four veterans from last year's squad, Ed Mooney, Sam Nissel, Captain Art Weinstock, and Skip McGurkin, have all been playing with Vin Cuddy's five. This means that they will have had only a day or two of practice when the opening game rolls around.

Unavailability of Captain Art Weinstock for practice has really caused a drastic situation behind the bat. Hank Downey, reserve catcher last season, and on whom Hal was depending to fill the bill until Art was available, has to return to the hospital for a recurrence of a neck injury, and is not expected to be able to play for about three or four weeks. This leaves the team without an experienced backstop. These are only a few of the problems that Coach Martin has run into before even playing the first game.

Thus far in practice indoors in Harkins Hall, the lefthanded trio of Frank Higgins, Bill Fagan, and Bill McKeon have shown up surprisingly well. A torrid battle is being waged for the second base spot. Dick Maloney, regular second sacker two years ago, and a first baseman last season, is back out for the position, and is having a difficult time beating out Buzz Barry, up from Larry Drew's yearling squad. Don McDonald, Steve Sulavik, and George Ducharme presently appear to have the inside track on the other infield positions, but the situation will most likely change when the Basketball players report.

Vin Callahan Victor In Dartmouth Bouts

3-29-50 Cowl
The Dartmouth College Boxing Team decisively defeated the P.C. pugilists last Wednesday evening by taking four of the five bouts scheduled in Alumni Gymnasium, the Dartmouth field house. About 250 Hanover boxing fans witnessed the show.

In the main attraction of the evening, Mark Mullaley, 175, of Providence College, was defeated by the Dartmouth ace, George Clendon, last year's heavyweight champion. Clendon is a champion New Hampshire Golden Glover; he won the Passaic, N. J., Diamond Belt, and was a New Jersey representative in the 1948 Olympic trials. That's quite a record for an intraural boxer.

Oscar Peters was unable to duplicate last season's victory as he was topped by Dartmouth's 145-pounder, John Heintzleman. Gerry Hanrahan fought a tough fight in the 155-pound class but was nosed out by the Green's Dick Halloran. Last week's COWL was responsible for a major error. Gerry Hanrahan was not given credit for beating Jim Cote in the Smoker, March 15. In the writeup, Cote was given credit for the victory. Sorry, Gerry Hanrahan.

The only Friar triumph came when Vin Callahan beat Dartmouth's best 165-pound fighter, Fred Klett. In the final bout of the affair, Frank Kilbride, 175-pound heavyweight, was defeated by Rick Ribble who weighed a mere 220 pounds. Of course, it was a badly matched bout.

Friars Face Siena In Tourney Start

Cowl 3-29-50
The Providence College Friars were scheduled to meet third seeded Siena College last night in the opening round of the National Catholic Invitation Tournament at the National Guard Armory in Albany, New York. Siena, despite its third seeding is the popular choice to take the tournament, barring some stirring upset.

The biggest advantage for the Siena Indians in their contest with the Friars is the fact that they are the host five and are playing on their home court, where they have built up their impressive slates of the past three campaigns. This season they racked up a 24 win and 5 loss record against some very good opposition. In the two previous years they racked up 22 and 23 wins respectively, while their loss average over the past three seasons has been a low six games.

Allowed to take ten men on the trip, Coach Cuddy finally settled on a group of high scorers: Jim Schlimm, Sam Nissel, Ray Garcia, Frank Pelligrino, Art Weinstock, Walt Lozoski, Ray Korbusieski, Ronnie Gagnon, Ed Mooney, and Tom Bauer. Readiness of Lozoski to make the trip gave the team's chances an excellent shot-in-the-arm, as he was the steading influence during the campaign. Surprise choice to make the trip was forward Tom Bauer, sensational as a freshman, but hampered by injuries for most of the season. Tom's rejuvenated play during the practice for the tourney earned him the right to go with the club. If he could hit the form which he displayed as a frosh, P. C.'s chances of pulling a surprise will be even greater. Certainly, they went into last night's game with the proper mental approach. —Boulet

Big Jim Schlimm Breaks School Scoring Record

By DICK BOULET Cowl 3-29-50

Jim Schlimm, sensational sophomore sharpshooter, set a new all-time Providence College individual scoring record during the past season. Registering 342 points in 22 games, Slim Jim topped the former high of 309 set by Ted McConnon in the 1941-42 campaign. Schlimm's total in last night's game with Siena and any other contests which the Friars may play in the tourney, depending on the outcome of the tilt with the Indians, will be included in his record.

Schlimm, who hails from St. Mary's, Pa., a small town with a population of 12,000, started the season as a second string forward, but forced his way into the starting lineup by his spectacular scoring sprees. His record total is all the more surprising when it is realized that he didn't break into the first five until the eleventh game on the schedule, the tilt with Iona while on the New Your trip.

Being a high scorer is nothing new for this talented soph. He played first string on the varsity basketball squad for three years while at St. Mary's Catholic high. In his senior year he paced the team in scoring by garnering 400 points. Last year, as a Freshman he sparked Hal Martin's boys to an excellent campaign by racking up 202 markers in 19 contests.

Standing 6' 3½" and weighing 180, Schlimm is the biggest of a family of twelve children, evenly divided between boys and girls. His older brother, Greg, played two seasons of varsity ball before him, while at present he has three younger brothers on the St. Mary's club. An Education Major, Jim started playing basketball in the seventh grade, and has been playing ever since.

Much credit for Schlimm's success must be given to Coach Vin Cuddy, who has worked hard with Jim and helped him develop his variety of shots. The former St. Mary's ace feels that his left hand hook from the key-hole is his best shot. However, he scored consistently all season on both right and left hand hooks and two-hand push shots from in close.

Schlimm, a modest, unassuming lad despite his scoring efforts, is not a flashy, eye-catching player. He is a steady ball player who does a lot of good work, but whom you're inclined to overlook. In addition to pacing the scorers, Jim can be depended upon to get more than his share of rebounds, while playing a sound defensive game.

When asked the best player he competed against all year, he unhesitatingly answered Moe Mahoney. Mahoney, the Brown University ace, held the P.C. star to but nine points in the first contest against the Bruins. This was the pivot ace's lowest total after moving into a starting role. The talented soph feels that he turned in his top performance in the return match with the Rhody Rams at Kingston. In that tilt he racked up 25 points while being guarded throughout the game by rugged Leon Golembewski and often being double teamed.

Although he didn't start a game until midway through the campaign, the pivot flash managed to lead the team scorers in twelve of the twenty-two tilts played. Jim hit for twenty or more markers five times, and, after breaking into the starting lineup, fell below 16 points but once.

His high total was his mark of 27 against St. Peter's, while his next bests were 26 in the second Boston College game and his 25 at Rhode Island State. He registered 21 in his first starting assignment, the Iona contest, and garnered 20 in the return engagement with St. Anselm's at Mt. Pleasant.

Schlimm set his record of 342, plus whatever he gets in the tournament play, on 137 field goals and 68 free tosses, a 15.5 game average. By setting his record as a sophomore, Slim Jim has stamped himself as a chap to be watched during the two following years. If he can keep up the high standard which he has set for himself, he will solve many of Coach Cuddy's offensive problems for the coming seasons. Let us hope that the flashy forward can continue to improve as he has ever since coming to Providence College.

RECORD, OUSTING P. C., 86-49

men in the Friars' forcing and fast-moving attack. Providence led, 17-16, shortly after the 10-minute mark, but the Indians tied it up at 19-all about 13 minutes along on Bob Boland's foul shot. They led at the half, 33-24.

The Indians broke the game wide open in the first few minutes of the second half, hitting on four of five set shots to boost their lead up to 42-26. After that the Indians were going down hill and the Friars never got back into the ball game.

Schlimm, who scored 15 points, and Pelligrino, around the boards, were the top Providence operatives. Schlimm scored several hook shots of the fancy variety and was given a fine hand after he fouled out in the second half.

PLAY TO BEGIN ON WEDNESDAY IN ALBANY, N. Y.

By DICK BOULET

Providence College has accepted a bid to compete in The National Catholic Intercollegiate Tournament to be held in Albany, New York, beginning on the 28th of March. Acceptance of the bid by the Friars completed the eight-team field for the tourney.

The Friars, who have just completed their most successful season in eight years by turning in a 14 win, 8 loss slate, scored impressive victories over Rhode Island State and Boston College during the course of the campaign. They have improved steadily and should do well in this tournament. Coach Vin Cuddy has his boys playing hustling aggressive ball with the stress on offense rather than defense.

Despite the fact that the major Catholic colleges have accepted bids to the MIT and NCAA, an impressive array of fives has been lined up. Foremost among the teams is Siena College, the Host squad which posted a superb 25-4 record against top flight competition. Numbered among its victims are St. Bonaventure, Seton Hall, St. Francis (twice), and Manhattan (twice). For the past two years Siena's Indians have been second only to Oklahoma A. & M. in defensive averages. This squad, whose offense is paced by Walt Harrell and Ed Lange, two of New York's better hoopsters, is generally considered the best ever to represent the school.

Providence Quint Could Surprise

By STAN LEVINE

Times-Union Sports Writer

Providence college, rated one of the darkhorses in the National Catholic Invitation Basketball tourney at the Washington Avenue armory, March 28-30, April, could easily surprise many cage experts.

The Friars, who won 14 of 22, and finished with the finest record since the 1941-42 campaign, are capable of beating any of the eight teams in the tourney.

PROOF OF the aforementioned facts were victories over Rhode Island State, Boston College, Springfield College, twice; St. Peter's and American International twice.

Coach Vin Cuddy, in his first year at the helm of the Friars, Ticket Manager Paul Kearney of Siena College announced he would accept check or money orders for the National Catholic Invitation Basketball tourney March 28-30, April 1 at the Albany Armory.

Ticket prices are $1.80 for reserved seats and $6 for a block for four nights. Reserved general admission are $1.50 and $5 for a block for four tourney nights.

took a team that won only 7 of 26 a year ago, and with a couple of new additions from the frosh team he molded the present club.

The Friars are not an especially big team, but are a driving, pressing ball club that keeps forcing their opponents to make mistakes.

Spark plug and floor leader Co-Captain Walt Lozoski, and scoring leader Jim Schlimm, a sophomore, are the Providence stars.

SCHLIMM TOSSED in 342 points through the hoop to set an all-time one year record.

Providence's 93 points against Bates was the high for the season. The Friars averaged 65.7 points on offense.

Meanwhile, Tourney Director Tommy Thomas announced that seeding of teams will be made tomorrow at noon at the Hotel Ten Eyck headquarters. Four of the teams will be ranked, and will lead the brackets.

Seven Clubs In Catholic Cage Field

St. Francis of Loretta, Pa., one of the nation's highest scoring combines, today became the seventh team to accept a bid for the National Catholic Intercollegiate invitation basketball tournament in the Albany Armory Mar. 28-30, Apr. 1.

Director Tommy Thomas of Denver, in Albany for the tourney, announced the latest selection. He expects to disclose the eighth entry later today to complete the field.

Teams which had previously accepted bids are Siena College, host team; St. Francis of Brooklyn; Loras College of Dubuque, Iowa; St. Michael's of Burlington, Vt.; Creighton University of Omaha, Neb., and Iona College of New Rochelle.

St. Francis of Loretta, coached by Dr. William (Skip) Hughes, has a record of 17 victories and 8 losses this season. It scored 1,855 points to its opponents' 1,559. Its offensive average was 74.2 points.

St. Michael's was added last night. The Mikemen, coached by Barry Branon, went undefeated in Vermont State competition to annex their fourth Green Mountain championship. The Knights had a 17 to 5 seasonal record, finest in history.

Ted Burzenski, 6-6 junior center, is St. Michael's scoring leader. His 364 points averaged to a 16.5 per game, breaking college and state records.

Tommy Thomas announced today Thomas, of Denver, Colo., is sponsoring the tourney with Siena College as host team.

Dates for the event, to be played at the Washington Avenue Armory, are Mar. 28, 29, 30, and Apr. 1.

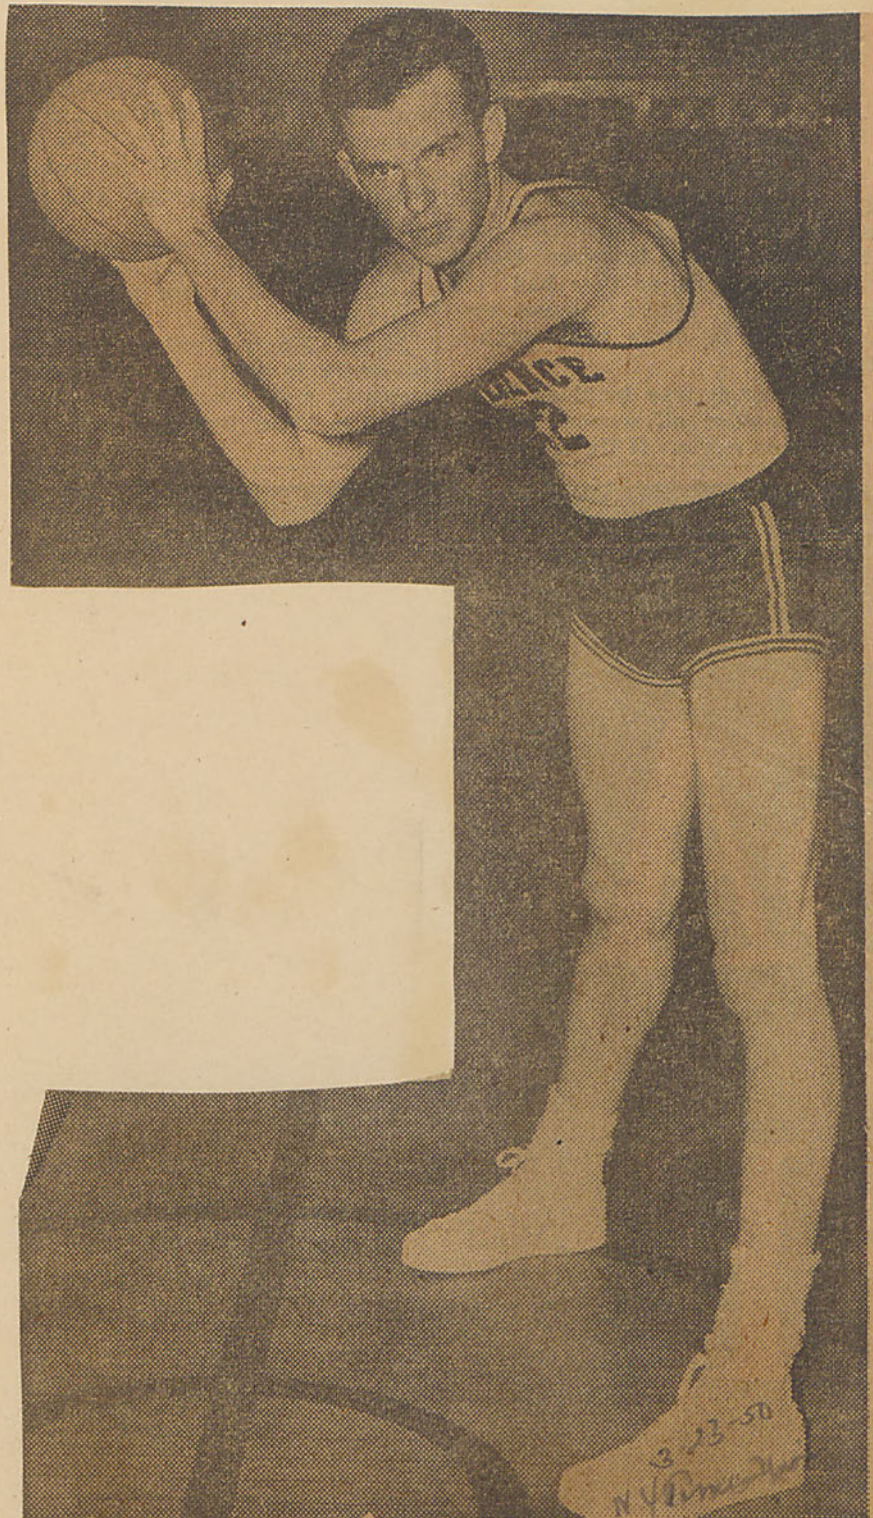

Two first round games are scheduled the first two nights of the event, with the semi-finals the third night followed by the finals and consolation contest the final evening.

Thomas also announced that opening games will get underway at 7:45 p. m. each evening, with the nightcap to follow.

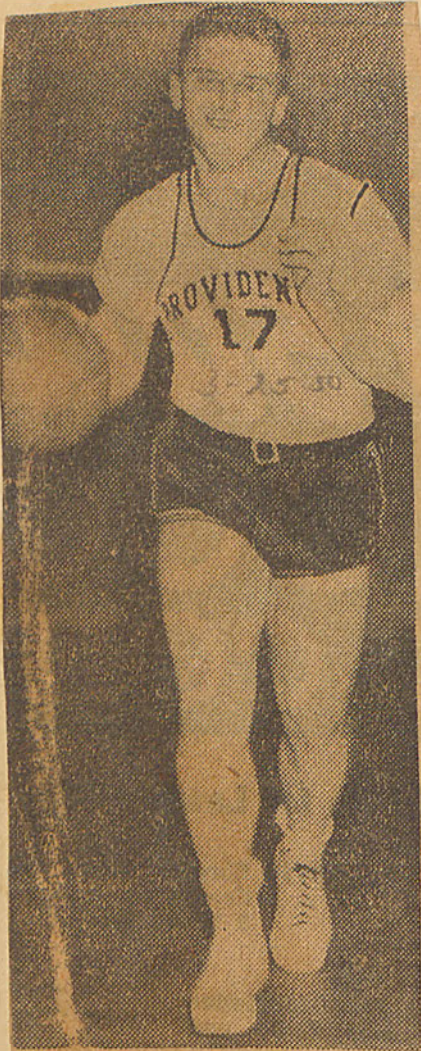

Seedings and pairings are due to be made later this week.

The tourney roster was completed over the weekend with Providence College accepting a bid. Others are Loras of Dubuque, Iowa; Creighton of Omaha, Neb.; St. Michaels, Burlington, Vt.; Iona of New Rochelle; St. Francis, Brooklyn and St. Francis, Loretto, Pa.

Tickets are on sale at Siena College's ticket office and at Johnny Evers' in State St. Thomas said there will be a reduced rate for those who purchase tickets for all four tourney nights. Rates are the same that prevailed at Siena games during the regular season.

JIM SCHLIMM—FRIAR SCORING ACE

Maybe Rev. Benedict Dudley, OFM, guardian of the Siena friary, had some inside information. Or maybe he was just a good guesser when he spoke at the press luncheon of the National Catholic tourney the other day. 3-25-50

"We'll put our fate in the hands of Providence," he said.

Pairings announced yesterday showed that Siena's tourney fate would indeed be in the hands of Providence (Rhode Island, that is) in the first round of the tourney which opens Tuesday at the Washington avenue armory.

The third-seeded Indians are matched with the Providence Friars in the second game of Tuesday's opening twin bill. It will start about 9 a. m.

Albany, N.Y., Mar. 28. — The Siena College Indians, known as the defensive strategists of the East, went out of character here tonight, turning on their biggest offensive punch in nearly two seasons in handing the Providence College Friars an 86-to-49 setback in the opening round of the National Catholic Basketball Tournament.

It wasn't a particularly good game for the Friars; it was a sensational one for the favored hometown Indians. On their performance tonight, Siena shouldn't have a great deal of trouble winning this tourney.

Loras College of Dubuque, Iowa, topped St. Francis College of Loretto, Pa., 59-58, in the opening first-round game tonight. It was a thriller all the way.

4000 Fans Anxious

It would have taken a topnotch game on the part of the Friars to win this one and they started out as though they were going to do it. They outplayed the Indians in the early going as the partisan Albany crowd of over 4000 waited silently and anxiously for the Indians to break out.

When the Indians got rolling, they had plenty to cheer about for they left the Friars in arrears and went on to one of their greatest victories of the season.

Once the Indians got control, the Friars lost their zip and it was all Siena. The Indians' Ed Lange turned out to be all he was cracked up to be in scoring 25 points, many in the last 10 minutes when he was driving toward the tournament scoring record, which he missed by three points. He was easily the Indians' top player although Bill Harrell was flashy and a crowd pleaser with his spectacular work.

Siena opened with its usual deliberate game but the Friars went ahead sparked by Art Weinstock. The Indians then got a 9-4 edge on routine playing and the Friars passed them at 10-9 with three baskets by Sam Nissel, Jim Schlimm and Fran Pelligrino, all in the space of 43 seconds.
