Friars Card 11 Contests In This City

Two Games With R. I. State Among Highlights on Slate

A 21-game varsity baseball schedule, one of the most pretentious that a Providence College nine has ever attempted, was announced today by John E. Farrell, graduate manager of athletics at the local Dominican college. The list calls for 11 games to be played in this city, including the annual Brown games at Aldrich field.

Of great local interest is the presence of Rhode Island State on the schedule for home and home contests, with the first game to be played at Kingston on May 22, and the return contest at Hendriksen field on Memorial day. These games will complete the cycle of sports competition between the two colleges for the year, and will mark a renewal of baseball relations interrupted since 1922 when State defeated the Friars twice.

Outstanding in the array of competition lined up for Jack Flynn's ball tossers in addition to the Brown and State contests, are games with Dartmouth, Princeton, Harvard, Yale, Holy Cross, Boston College, Villanova, New Hampshire and St. John's university.

Following the opening here on April 13, the Friars will take to the road for their annual spring trip, meeting Stroudsburg State Teachers College on April 17, Princeton the following day, then Villanova two days later. On Easter Sunday the first game of the series with St. John's will be played in Brooklyn. The Princeton game will mark the inauguration of competition between the two colleges, while Villanova returns after a four year absence.

CROSS HERE MAY 25

The Brown games will be played on successive Saturdays in May, the 11th and 18th, while Holy Cross will play here May 25, and Boston College June 8. The Friars travel to Worcester for the first game in the Crusader series May 4, and to Boston for the tilt with the Eagles there on the first Saturday in June.

Spring Season

SCHEDULES

Providence College
Athletic Association

JOHN E. FARRELL
Graduate Manager of Athletics

On successive Saturdays in May, the 11th and 18th, while Holy Cross will play here May 25, and Boston College June 8. The Friars travel to Worcester for the first game in the Crusader series May 4, and to Boston for the tilt with the Eagles there on the first Saturday in June.

LETTERMEN BACK

However, the outlook is somewhat encouraging with some likely prospects coming up from last year's fine freshman nine to augment the veterans available. Four lettermen still on hand are Ed Eldredge, pitcher; Capt. John Madden, third base, and Capt. Leo Marion, first base, and Omer Landry, fleet centerfield. Other seasoned performers include Leo Lanigan, a promising pitcher from the senior class; John Reid, John McCabe and Bill Fitzgerald, catchers; Paul Healey, infielder, and Pete Gobis and Frank Holden, outfielders.

The freshmen group of last year will contribute a sizable squad of capable pitchers in Lefty Collins, Marshall Brooks, Tom Hammond, Karl Sherry, Bill Doolin and Frank Donahue. Each of these lads drew action in at least one game last year and much is expected of them for varsity work this spring. Two sophomore catchers are available in Gus Hagstrom, football and basketball star, Pete Lekakos.

The infield vacancies will claim the attention of Joe Curnane, Hank Soar and Frank Coleman, first baseman, and Ray Belliveau, Tom Hazell, Milt Bleiden, Ed Banahan and Charlie Gallagher, all of whom saw service with the frosh. Sophomore outfield prospects include John Smith, Joe Lefebvre and Carl Angelica.

DATE FOR DRILLS NOT SET

No definite plans have been made regarding the start of drills. Most of the men plan to condition themselves with indoor exercises for the next month, and at the first break of favorable weather the squad will move to Hendricken Field for the outdoor drills. With the opening game carded for April 13, the team should be able to get in three weeks of intensive drills outdoors.

The complete schedule is as follows, games at Hendricken Field unless specified otherwise:

April 13, City College of New York; 17, Stroudsburg Teachers' College at East Stroudsburg, Pa.; 18, Princeton University at Princeton, N. J.; 19, open; 20, Villanova at Villanova, Pa.; 21, St. John's University at Brooklyn, N. Y.; 27, Dart-

Mty 1, Springfield College; 4, Holy Cross at Worcester; 6, Lowell Textile at Lowell, Mass.; 8, Harvard at Cambridge; 11, Brown at Aldrich Field; 12, St. John's University; 14, New Hampshire; 16, Villanova; 18, Brown at Aldrich Field; 22, Rhode Island State at Kingston; 25, Holy Cross; 30 (Memorial Day), Rhode Island State; June 1, Boston College at Boston; 5, Yale at New Haven; 8, Boston College.

Providence College Lists

R. I. State in Baseball

Princeton, Villanova Also on Schedule Which Retains 1934 Features.

Providence College will tackle an ambitious baseball schedule of 21 games this season which includes all the features of last year's listing plus contests with Princeton, Villanova and Rhode Island State. After opening at home with City College on April 13 the Friars will take their annual spring trip meeting East Stroudsburg Teachers, Princeton, Villanova and St. John's in one of the most strenuous weeks appearing on schedule.

The annual intra-city championship series with Brown University will be played in early May and will be closely followed by the two games with Rhode Island State. These listings provide opportunity to select a State College diamond champion and bring the three Rhode Island college teams together for the first time in baseball.

One game has been arranged with Dartmouth this year and will be played in Providence. The Big Green sent a team here last year only to have the game rained out and in the meeting at Honover tripped the Friars 3-2 in one of the Dominicans' few upsets. The Holy Cross series will start in Worcester on May 4 and close in Providence on May 25 while the Boston College games are listed for June 1st away and June 8th here.

Yale, Harvard and Princeton are a trio of the outstanding single games to be played by the Friars this year. Princeton is listed for the first time while the Harvard and Yale encounters hold the same place as they did last year.

Coach Jack Flynn faces many problems after last year's landslide graduation which swept away such clever stars as Catchers George Tebbetts and Oliver Roberge; Pitchers Al Blanche, Charlie Burdge and Charlie Rennick; Infielders Ed Reilly and Walter Corbett, the 1934 captain; and Outfielder Ed Koslowski.

Although there are only four lettermen returning, the crop of Sophomores which will be seeking berths on the Varsity makes the outlook for the Friars bright enough. Co-captains Johnny Madden and Leo Marion, Omer Landry, football captain-elect, and Ed Eldredge, promising southpaw twirler, are the lettermen reporting this season. Dick Burns, a regular in right field during most of last year, did not return to college this year, leaving another gap in the ranks.

Among the other veterans on the squad will be Leo Lanigan, pitcher; John McCabe, John Reid and Bill Fitzgerald, catchers; Paul Healey, shortstop, and Peter Gobis and Frank Holden, outfielders. The Freshman squad of last year will furnish capable pitchers in Fred Collins, Marshall Brooks, Tom Hammond, Karl Sherry, Bill Doolan and Frank Donahue together with Catchers Al Hagstom and Pete Lekakos. Hank Soar, Joe Curnane and Frank Coleman will be ready to take over first base duties while Ray Belliveau, Tom Hazell, Milt Bleiden, Ed Banahan and Charlie Gallagher battle for the other infield assignments. The outfielders include Ben Smith, Joe Lefebvre and Carl Angelica.

The 1935 schedule follows (games will be played at home unless otherwise noted):

Saturday, April 13, City College of New York; 17, Stroudsburg Teachers' College at East Stroudsburg, Pa.; 18, Princeton University at Princeton, N. J.; 20, Villanova College at Villanova, Pa.; 21, St. John's University at Brooklyn, N. Y.; 27, Dartmouth.

May 1, Springfield College; 4, Holy Cross at Worcester, Mass.; 6, Lowell Textile at Lowell, Mass.; 8, Harvard University at Cambridge, Mass.; 11, Brown University at Aldrich Field; 12, St. John's University; 14, New Hampshire; 16, Villanova College; 18, Brown at Aldrich Field; 22, Rhode Island State at Kingston, R. I.; 23, Holy Cross; 30, (Memorial Day), Rhode Island State.

June 1, Boston College at Boston; 5, Yale University at New Haven, Conn.; 8, Boston College.

At this writing it appears that Flynn will have to add the art of juggling to his baseball repertoire, for he has a roster of candidates for every position and exceptionally promising candidates for the two or three posts where veterans are now holding forth. Friars Lost Many Stars Of Diamond

Coach Jack Flynn Will Have to Do Some Fancy Juggling

By JOHN E. FARRELL

(News-Tribune Special Writer)

If ever a team had to be rebuilt, the Providence College nine of this spring faces a reconstruction such as I have never met in my many years of contact with the Friar baseball destinies. Graduation stripped the team last June of such standouts as George Tebbetts, now with the Detroit team in the South, and Ollie Roberge, two of finest catchers in the East, such pitchers as Al Blanche, Charlie Burge, and Charlie Rennick; infielders, Walter Corbett and Ed Reilly, a keystone combination of three years standing, and Ed Koslowski, the big left fielder. Additional losses were incurred with the withdrawal from college of Oe Perrin, flashy first baseman, and Dick Burns, hard-hitting right-fielder.

In spite of this sweeping elimination of veterans, Coach Jack Flynn will start this campaign with as ambitious a group of sophomores as he has ever had under his wing at one time. True, there are some big gaps to be filled and the outlook is far from encouraging for this spring but certainly a firm foundation can be laid for another year, and possibly the keen competition for positions in the next month of training may produce a team this season which will uphold the brilliant baseball traditions of the Friars.

At this writing it appears that Flynn will have to add the art of juggling to his baseball repertoire, for he has a roster of candidates for every position and exceptionally promising candidates for the two or three posts where veterans are now holding forth. Co-captains Johnny Madden at third and Leo Marion at first face opposition which will either displace them or result in some shifting about of men to solve the problem of mustering the strongest possible array for the opened on April 10.

CATCHING A PROBLEM

Catchers of the calibre of Tebbetts and Roberge come once in a decade, and although there are some capable receivers on the Providence squad they will face the hardest test of all the players, for they will be subjected to comparison with their brilliant predecessors. If they can weather this, possibly Jack Flynn can develop one or two real dependable receivers from such youngsters as Johnny Reid, John McCabe, and Bill Fitzgerald, reserves last spring. Gus Hagstrom, football and basketball star, and Peter Lekokos, freshman catchers a year ago.

Certainly Providence will have a pitching array that will be second to none in New England. Southpaw Ed Eldredge, hero of the Holy Cross win here a year ago, and Leo Lanigan, a capable senior, are the two veterans, and they will be joined by a brilliant group of six sophomores who turned in a fine campaign as freshmen. This latter group consists of Fred Collins, a southpaw; Marshall Brooks, Karl Sherry, Tom Hammond, Frank Donahue and Walter Doolan, right handers.

Capt. Leo Marion, who was brought in from centerfield last spring when Perrin left college, may return to the outer gardens, as Flynn has a trio of sophomore first basemen in Hank Soar, the football star, Joe Curnane, and Ralph Coleman. If one of these lads can contribute any hitting power to the team he will be likely to handle the position thus allowing Marion to bolster the depleted outfield where only Omer Landry, football captain, is left of the veteran array.

PLENTY OF TROUBLE

The old woman who lived in the shoe had no troubles compared with Jack Flynn's task of finding the proper second base and shortstop combination from the array of ambitious youngsters which includes Paul Healey, Pat Morrison, Doc Bleiden, Charlie Gallagher, Ray Bellevue, Ed Banhan and Tom Hazell. The task of testing each man and juggling him about to fit the infield puzzle is one that only the veteran Flynn would dare undertake.

If Marion is released for outfield duty, then that department will brighten considerably, as Landry should win back his centerfield berth, although he may be switched to the troublesome leftfield. In the latter situation, Ben Smith, Pete Gobis, Carlo Angelica, Joe Lefebvre, Frank Fitzpatrick and Frank Keane will make bids for regular service.

Providence may be expected to be very strong in its pitching and if the catching holds up the Friars will be very much in the running for sectional honors. The team should be good defensively as the sophomore recruits turned in some capable fielding work last spring although the outer defense will undoubtedly cause some worry. In Marion the team has one of the finest hitters in college ranks, and much of the offensive power will be concentrated in his bats, with Captain Madden, Omer Landry and Charlie Gallagher, freshman leader a year ago, as other dependable hitters.

JACK FLYNN DEAD IN HIS 52ND YEAR

Providence College Baseball
Coach, Former Big Leaguer, Stricken Last Spring.

FUNERAL ON WEDNESDAY

Was Brother of Chief Justice E.
W. Flynn and Former Governor William S. Flynn

BY J. D. McGLONE

Jack Flynn yesterday heard the call of the Great Umpire and passed on to the Big League.

Brother to Chief Justice of the Supreme Court Edmund W. Flynn and former Governor William S. Flynn, and associated with them in the practice of the law, the one time college and major league baseball star, successful minor league manager and Providence College coach for a decade, had two strikes against him for six months.

He sensed it, too, but he never gave up hope. "The count is down to three and two," he called to me as I took leave from my last visit to him a month ago, just before I headed South, "but I'm still swinging—I've got the big one left."

Brave Jack Flynn! Stricken almost a year ago in the prime of life—he was in his 52nd year—with a lingering malady, the nature of which puzzled physicians for a time, he led his Providence College nine through another fine season and retired to his home in mid-summer. He had been confined to his room since November.

Hoped to Return

Worn by disease, racked by pain, his athletic soul tortured by his helplessness, yet he smiled brightly and talked hopefully to me of his return to diamond coaching duties in the spring and of his plans for this year's Friars.

From time to time, during the fall and winter, he called eager young candidates to his bedside and discussed the team's prospects. Nothing at all about his illness; never a complaint against fate; never a protest or a murmur. Just the brave word that he was going to be about again soon.

Nothing is more tragic than a sick or crippled athlete and, while Jack definitely retired more than a decade ago from active competition, he was still a powerful figure of a man until the wasting affliction laid him low. It required double courage for him to smile. He carried a triple burden.

Joe Cronin, who takes hold of the Red Sox, this season, had this to say of Flynn: "I distinctly recall the few months I played under him in New Haven in 1926, and I regard that period as an important one in my development as a player. He was fundamentally sound in his coaching of the young players in his charge and in his handling of the club. He played no favorites and was strong for team play and team spirit. He loved to win; he hated to lose."

Square Shooter

"Straight as a string—a square shooter," was the tribute expressed by Jack Hendricks, under whom Jack played at Indianapolis in 1913 and 1914. Hendricks later managed the Cincinnati Reds for six seasons. "Baseball was his life," said Jack Egan, former pitcher for the Providence Grays, later an umpire in the American League and minor league manager. "He played it to win, thought it and talked it, day in and day out, in and out of season. He was one of the game's best missionaries, and one of my dearest friends."

It was my special privilege to sit next to Jack on the Providence College bench and there I picked up much knowledge of the inside points of the game. Also, it afforded me a chance to observe at close range the methods that raised the Friars so high in Eastern College circles and established his own prestige on a par with Jack Barry of Holy Cross. In my humble opinion, Flynn and Barry stood alone as college coaches.

Loss to College

Very Rev. Lorenzo C. McCarthy, O. P., president of Providence College, said last night:

"Providence College has sustained a severe loss in the passing of its baseball coach, Jack Flynn. He possessed in an unusual degree the qualities of a collegiate coach: technical knowledge of his particular sport and inspirational leadership.

"Baseball was more than a game with Jack; it was a discipline, a preparation for life, an opportunity for acquiring and practicing the virtues of courage, self-reliance and co-operation. We always regarded his services as extremely valuable, not so much for the victories he achieved—and they were many—but particularly for the type of sportsmanship which he so successfully inculcated. He has left with us this tradition of clean, aggressive, resourceful sportsmanship which we shall long cherish as a tribute to his memory."

Providence College was only a baseball infant when he became its nurse, but under his expert ministrations it waxed strong and where once it crept it soon leapt to the top. During his 10-year tenure the Friars played 208 games, winning 151 and losing 55. There were two ties. Three times the team won the Eastern championship, 1928, 1931 and 1932. In those three years only nine defeats were encountered against 53 victories.

Took Over Reins

Well do I remember the day Jack took charge of the Providence squad. Joey Connolly, former Boston Braves star, now Senator from North Smithfield, started the 1924 season as coach but, following the opening game with Yale, he resigned. Within a week, prior to the second game, President William Noon, O. P., persuaded Jack to take over the reins.

When he arrived at Hendricken Field the players were practicing in groups. The student manager greeted him and then assigned an undergraduate to acquaint him with the names of the players and the positions they played.

"Who are those fellows?" asked Jack, pointing to several who were tossing the ball back and forth.

"Those are our first-string pitchers," the undergrad replied, and named them.

"Is that so? And what about those chaps over there?"

"Oh, they are substitutes. I don't know their names."

"Well," drawled Jack, "you had better find out the name of that slim, red-headed fellow and print it on next Saturday's score card, because he's going to be my first-string pitcher."

And he was—none other than Charlie Reynolds, whose first start produced a 6-3 victory over Lowell Textile, then a real opponent of the Friars. The same Reynolds, on June 7, 1924, hooked up with Elmer Duggan of Brown in a 20-inning duel that finally went to Providence College by a score of 1 to 0. It was the second Varsity meeting between the teams, Brown having won in 1923 by 4 to 0.

Won Over Holy Cross

It wasn't until 1930 that the Friars succeeded in taking a decision over Holy Cross. Since then, the Black and White manages to knock off the Purple at least once a season, while Boston College and Brown, formidable opponents, have frequently contributed two victories each per season. Only once during the Flynn regime, did Brown take a season's series from the Friars and that happened in 1927, when the Bears won both games, 3 to 2 and 7 to 1.

Every victory was sweet to Flynn, but I think he got added satisfaction out of beating the Providence Grays of the Eastern League and Notre Dame in 1927 and the Red Sox in 1932. Ed Walsh, son of the famous Big Ed of the Chicago White Sox, was on the slab for the South Bend nine and he was undefeated until he met the Friars.

"Shano" Collins of the Red Sox started back to Boston without waiting for the last couple of innings. Big Bob Kline was on the mound for the American Leaguers and he had a lead of 9 to 5. "Nice little team you've got," said Collins to Flynn as he passed the Providence bench. "Yeah!" growled Jack, without looking up. He was too interested in the proceedings to notice Collins' departure.

When Collins read the papers the next day he found out that the Friars picked up a run, then filled the bases in the ninth inning and Earl Webb emptied them by throwing a base hit wild over third base in returning the ball to the infield, the batter scoring with the other three to give the Friars the decision, 10 to 9.

South Providence Native

John A. Flynn was a native of South Providence and there on the sand-lots he embarked on the career which brought him to the big show, to managerial success and to collegiate coaching heights. Baseball came easy to the youngster, both his father and his uncle having played the game as professionals. With his brothers, Bill, Ed and Fred, he started the diamond game as soon as he was able to toddle around and it wasn't long before he could outplay boys four and five years older than himself.

Providence had a professional club in those days and Jack was a regular visitor at Adelaide Park, where the games were held. There, between trips to nearby Coakley's store for oatmeal for the water bucket on the players' bench, he learned the rudiments of catching from Pat McCauley, then backstop for the Grays.

Entering Classical high school, he immediately became first-string catcher, crowning his schoolboy competition by captaining the championship 1901 team after acting as battery mate of Andy Coakley and Jack Cashman, than whom there were none better in high school uniforms. Coakley later became a big leaguer with Connie Mack's Athletics.

Fixture at First

The feats of Louis Sockalexis, Walter Curley, Mike Powers and other Purple greats of the late 90's and early 1900's played an important part in Flynn's decision to go to Holy Cross, where he became one of the greatest first basemen in college annals. Jack was a catcher when he entered the Worcester institution, but a dearth of first base candidates found him trying for the initial turn. From then on he was a fixture. In his Senior year, as captain, he batted for an average of .425, making 39 hits, scoring 39 runs and setting a fielding record with only one error in 265 chances.

Completion of his college career saw Flynn, Bill Carrigan and Jack Hoey of the Purple entering professional ball, Flynn with Toronto, Carrigan and Hoey with the Boston Red Sox. Going to Toronto was Flynn's own choice. He could have gone to the big league, as did Carrigan and Hoey, but he figured they would soon be back. And they were.

In 1909, the St. Louis Browns of the American League bought Flynn's contract from Toronto, but Jack never wore a Brownie uniform because he would not agree to the salary offered. He was released to Milwaukee, traded in the middle of the season to St. Paul and bought at the end of the campaign by the Pittsburgh Pirates of the National League.

Two Years with Pirates

His start with the Pirates at the beginning of the 1910 campaign was especially noteworthy in that he hit home runs with the bases loaded on successive days, one off the delivery of Fred Beebe of Cincinnati and the other off Mordecai (Three Finger) Brown of the Chicago Cubs.

Two years with the Pirates, playing with such stars as Honus Wagner, Fred Clarke and Babe Adams, and Jack was established as one of the hardest hitters in the National League. Then came a knee injury that sent him back to the American Association.

His hitting continued sensationally, however, and when the next spring rolled around he was in the livery of the Washington Senators of the American League. He batted close to .300 for the greater part of the 1913 campaign, but the old injury returned late in August and again he went back to the minors, this time under Jack Hendricks at Indianapolis.

In 1914 he applied for and received a free agency from Indianapolis and was immediately grabbed by the Montreal Royals of the International League, then under the managership of Ed Barrow, who, as pilot of Toronto, had signed him to his first professional contract several years before.

Jack took his first fling at managing in 1916, when he signed to lead Springfield of the new Eastern League. The next year he was with Lawrence, which he piloted to second place. In 1918 and 1919 he won pennants with the New London team. He returned to Springfield in 1920, remaining there through 1922. The following season he headed Worcester, the only team, he often reminded me, which he ever handled that finished in a sub-cellar.

By 1924 Jack seriously began the practice of law with his brothers, but again he heard the call of the diamond. Providence College needed a coach and Father Noon coaxed him into handling the squad. From that time on, with the exception of 1926, when he managed New Haven in the Eastern League, Jack turned out Eastern college championship and near-championship teams.

Among the outstanding players turned out by him on Smith Hill were Charlie Reynolds, Johnny Halloran, Charles (Chuck) Murphy, Joe Duffy, Harry Main, John Sullivan, Eddie Quinton, Joe Harraghey, George Tebbets, Frankie Cappali, Tommy McElroy, Frank Hebert, Charles Marsella, Al Blanche, Oliver Roberge, Ray Doyle, Eddie Wholey, Heck Allen, Bobby Dion, Nap Fleurent and Eddie Wineapple.

He is survived by his widow, Florence, whom he married in 1921; three brothers, Edmund, William and Fred, the latter of New York, and two sisters, Miss Helen Flynn of this city and Mrs. Elizabeth Fitzpatrick of Hollis, Long Island.

The funeral will be held Wednesday morning from his home, 54 Spicer street, with a high mass of requiem at St. Michael's Church at 10 o'clock. Burial will be in St. Francis Cemetery.

THE SPORT WINDOW

By ARTHUR MARKEY

JACK FLYNN

COLLEGE baseball lost its outstanding strategist in the death of Jack Flynn, head coach for the past decade at Providence College. Flynn's passing leaves a void in the ranks that just cannot be filled. Jack was the McGraw of the college field. He had no superior when it came to teaching young boys how to bat, pitch and field. Jack knew what discipline was all about and how to play the sphinx when he was tickled with the feats of his charges. There were no puffed-up athletes under his wing.

Flynn always operated on the theory that a pat on the back was a fine way to give a youngster a swelled head. He was always looking to the future. He would confide to the newspapermen that so and so was a sensational player but didn't want to be quoted. The scribes could write all they wished about the boy or boys on their own but Jack was not to be mentioned.

He ruled his men with an iron hand. His baseball camps had pretty much the same atmosphere as an Army base. Bone-head plays made him grieve and he'd dress the offenders down like the General completely mortified at a disorganized column of soldiers during dress parade. But under his hard-boiled demeanor Jack had the love of a father for his boys. He cared for every one of them and would ask no player to take heedless chances for a victory. Some coaches wouldn't hesitate to ask a star to walk into a pitched ball to get the winning run over.

In 10 years of tutoring the Friars his teams won 151 and lost 55 with two games being tied. The most memorable battle was that 20-inning 1 to 0 victory P. C. scored over a great Brown team at Andrews Field in 1924. The Friars weren't conceded an outside chance against the pitching of the great Elmer Duggan but Flynn had a way of making budding stars and mediocre players perform way over their heads.

On that June afternoon in 1924 pitcher Charlie Reynolds of the Friars rose to the heights. The Reynolds-Duggan pitching battle was something we never expect to see again on a college diamond. It is the longest, most spectacular college game on record.

IDEAL BACKGROUND

YEARs of experience handling temperamental professionals gave Jack the ideal background for the college assignment and while many coaches at larger schools just couldn't help winning with a wealth of material Flynn had to work out his own destinies with the talent at hand. He played no favorites. He had no pets. Oftimes he would gamble a few runs in the early part of an important game by keeping his infield back off the grass. The opposition would become over-confident and careless but never a Flynn-coached team no matter what the score. The Friars under Jack pulled many a chestnut out of the fire with two out in the ninth.

From his days as a kid in knee pants playing on Kite lots off Eddy street to stardom with Classical, Holy Cross, Pittsburgh, Washington and with several first-class minor league teams the stern-visaged Flynn dreamed and talked only baseball. Your correspondent shared speaking engagements with him on many platforms. Jack could deliver a dandy address on sportsmanship and the merits of fair play but if his subject was baseball he was at ease and at home.

More Than 1500 Attend Funeral of Jack Flynn

Former Big League Ball Player Buried Under Warm Sun Which in Other Years Would Have Found Him on Diamond

More than 1500 persons paid tribute to John A. Flynn this morning.

To nearly all of those who attended the high requiem mass at St. Michael's Church—lawyers, college athletes, old class and teammates—he was Jack Flynn.

Leaders of both political parties, policemen who admired him as a big league ball player, men who loved him as a baseball coach during their student days at Providence College, priests and doctors who went to Holy Cross with him packed the church.

Hundreds went from the church to St. Francis Cemetery, where Jack Flynn was buried under such a sun as in other years would have found him on the diamond.

The casket was borne into the church by 10 former Providence College athletes, and the cortege passed a guard of honor comprising scores of athletes whom Jack Flynn had taught.

Members of his immediate family who followed in the cortege included his widow, Florence E. (Gooden) Flynn; his brother, Chief Justice Edmund W. Flynn of the Supreme Court; his sister, Helen, and a brother, Frederick, of New York city; former Governor William S. Flynn, another brother, and Mrs. Flynn; Mr. and Mrs. Malachi Fitzpatrick of New York; John Flynn, his uncle, Mrs. Joseph Flynn, and Mr. and Mrs. Christopher J. Brennan.

The solemn high mass of requiem at the church was preceded by ceremonies at the Flynn home on Spicer street at 9 o'clock. Despite the request of the family that no flowers be sent, scores of friends paid tribute with floral displays sent to the home.

The body was removed to the church under escort provided by police, and a special detail of patrolmen was assigned to the church to handle crowds there.

Bearers drawn from the ranks of baseball stars at Providence College included the following captains:

Dr. Francis Holland, 1923; Joe McGee, 1924; Edward Wholey, 1925; Charles Reynolds, 1926; John Halloran, 1928, and Francis Cappalli, 1931; John Farrell, class of 1926 and present graduate manager of baseball at the college; John Madden, co-captain this year; Charles Murphy, an athlete of the class of 1927, and Ar-

The members of the guard of honor which formed a lane from the hearse to the church door were Omer Landry, Frank Reavey, Malcolm Brown, Robert Lucey, Leo Marion, Joseph McHenry, Joseph Nugent, Joseph Conley, Hymen Stein, Way McDonald, Joseph Famiglietti, John Barnatavicz, Edward Eldredge, Wallace Planka, Gustavo Motta, John Reilly and Charles Burdge, all members of the Providence College student body.

Representatives from the Providence College Alumni Association who were in the guard of honor were Justin McCarthy, Eugene Sullivan, Fred McDermott, Mortimer Newton, James Higgins, Frank McGee, Joseph Gainer, Thomas H. Bride, Jr., and Alderman William McCabe.

Ushers were High Sheriff Philip E. Quinn, James P. Gallagher, president of the Holy Name Union of the Diocese of Providence; Thomas H. Kelly and William J. Lonergan, all life long friends of Mr. Flynn and his family.

Joseph A. Smith, organist at the church, played a brief recital before the mass, and Mrs. Madge Hart O'Rourke was soloist. The musical selections included "Pie Jesu," and duets, "De Profundis" and "Lead Kindly Light," sung by both Mr. Smith and Mrs. O'Rourke.

Death of Flynn, of Providence, Blow to College Baseball Ranks

Former Big League Player Had Knack of Producing Capable Campus Pitchers

The death late Saturday of Jack Flynn, baseball coach at Providence College for the last twelve years, was a blow to the sport throughout New England as well as to the fortunes of the Friars for the coming season. Flynn, a former big league player, was the brother of former Governor William S. Flynn of Rhode Island and of Judge Edmund Flynn. He was fifty-two years old.

His Providence College nines have always been high in Eastern rankings. Two or three times his teams have taken top honors. His forte was turning out sound defensive teams, nines that fought for one or two runs with confidence that the pitchers could do the rest. He had a knack of teaching pitchers and Eddie Wineapple, hurler of four or five years ago, was one of his finest products. Johnny Halloran and George Tebbetts, catchers, were other stars turned out by Flynn.

In 1925 his Providence team, behind the pitching of Charley Reynolds, defeated Brown in twenty-one innings, 1 to 9. Elmer Duggan pitched for Brown. Two years later Providence downed Brown in a seventeen-inning battle.

In his playing days Flynn was a first baseman. After holding that post at Holy Cross on the team captained by Jack Barry, Flynn went with Toronto in the International League. Later he was with St. Paul in the American Association and the Pittsburgh Pirates, when Honus Wagner was at his best. Flynn had a campaign with Washington, and then became manager of Springfield and Worcester in the Eastern League. He went to Providence College in 1922, but after four years was called to manage New Haven, in the Eastern League. After a single season he returned to Providence, where he coached through last spring.

Jack Flynn, Former Planter Pilot, Buried in Providence

Jack Flynn, Providence college baseball coach and manager of the New London Planters of the Eastern league in 1918-19, who died Saturday, was buried Wednesday in Providence.

Flynn, a lawyer by profession but known primarily as a baseball missionary, started his baseball career in Providence as first baseman for the Classical High school team. On the same team was Andy Coakley, who is now coaching baseball at Columbia. From Classical High school Flynn went to Holy Cross, where he captained the team in 1907.

Flynn broke into professional baseball with Toronto, and from there he jumped into the major leagues with Pittsburgh. He was an immediate success with the Pirates, hitting home runs with the bases full in each of his first two games. Playing in the infield with Flynn at that time were such famous stars as Honus Wagner and Sparky Adams. Later Flynn went to Washington, but a knee injury, relic of his collegiate baseball days, caused him to retire.

Led Planters to Two Pennants

But Flynn couldn't remain out of baseball, and he entered the managerial field and headed many clubs, most of them in the old Eastern league, of which New London was a members. It was in 1918 that Flynn came to New London as manager and that season and the next led the team to two pennants. Plant field, later a circus lot but now absorbed by the residential district, held many memories for the affable Flynn.

For eight seasons Flynn coached the Providence college nine and has sent many youths up to the big time, his most recent contribution being Georgie Tebbets, who is now with the Detroit club and who graduated from Providence last year.

Great Record with Friars

While coach of Providence, Flynn

compiled a record that defies comparison. His teams engaged in 208 games, winning 151 and were defeated on 55 occasions. Two contests resulted in ties. Since Flynn took over the reins Providence ascended into the heights of eastern college ranks, and in 1928, 1931 and 1932 his teams won the mythical Eastern College Baseball title.

Egan Named Successor

PROVIDENCE, March 29 (AP)—Jack Egan, former major league pitcher and umpire and for several years closely associated with the late Ban B. Johnson, when he was president of the American league, yesterday was appointed head baseball coach at Providence college, succeeding Jack Flynn, one-time Pittsburgh and Washington first baseman.

Egan, who pitched for Washington in the late '90s, managed several minor league clubs including Milwaukee, Newark, Scranton, Providence and Oklahoma City. For the past few years he has not been actively connected with baseball, devoting his time to business interests in this city.

JACK EGAN IS NEW COACH OF FRIARS' NINE

Developer of Big League
Stars Succeeds Late
Friend, Flynn

Has Long Record of Duty on Diamond Here and There

Jack Egan, of Cranston, former professional league pitching ace, successful minor league manager and big league umpire, today was appointed to succeed the late Jack Flynn as coach of the Providence College baseball team. The appointment was announced by John E. Farrell, graduate manager of athletics at the college.

Egan was a close personal friend of Flynn's through the latter's playing, managerial and coaching days and was a frequent visitor at Jack's bedside during the long illness that resulted in his death Saturday.

Appointment of Egan was hailed by Friar alumni, students and baseball fans in general today as carrying on the Flynn tradition of superior coaching that kept Providence

College up at the top of the Eastern college baseball pile for the past decade.

HAS DEVELOPED STARS

The new coach has a reputation for turning green youngsters into crack ball players, similar to that built up by Flynn. During his career as a manager Egan developed such outstanding performers as Joe Hauser, now of Indianapolis; Oscar Mellillo of the St. Louis Browns, avidly sought by the Boston Red Sox during the first part of the current season; Alex Gaston, formerly of the Boston Red Sox; Doug McWeeny, who went up to the Chicago White Sox; Rhode Island's own Jimmy Cooney and a flock of others.

Off the ball field, Egan is a tall, lean, mild-spoken gentleman, with the general appearance of a college professor, but on the diamond he's all baseball, with an iron will to win and a determination to get the best out of his players.

BASEBALL AUTHORITY

He's been a keen student of the game all his life and is a veritable mine of baseball lore. He knows the rules in and out and is frequently called upon by local umpires to settle ticklish points that arise during games.

Egan lives at 6 Washington avenue, Cranston, with his wife. He has two daughters, both of whom are married.

The new coach was to meet the squad for the first time this afternoon, when an informal practice session was to be held. Tomorrow real work will begin for the team in preparation for a heavy schedule.

Jack Egan was born in Philadelphia, but at an early age his family moved to Media, Pa., out in the rolling hill country. It was there that Jack first broke into baseball with a boys' team in the town. The youngsters played together for several years and soon they were able to clean up teams of an average age four or five years greater than the Media outfit.

Egan's first venture into organized baseball was with the Danville team in the Pennsylvania League in 1893. He began as a catcher, but switched around to pitching, where, with a version of the "fadeaway," later developed by Christy Mathewson, he was striking them out in grand style. The Washington club liked the reports on the form Danville's young hillman was showing and took him into tow in the fall of '93.

He was with Washington for part of the 1894 season and then came to Providence in the old Eastern League. The team then was under the management of Bill Murray. That season Providence knocked off the league championship, with Egan doing the bulk of the pitching.

HOLDOUT ONE SEASON

The next season Jack was a holdout from the Providence club. And here's something that may surprise baseball fans of the modern generation, accustomed to the salaries winning pitchers of the present day demand for their services. Egan was holding out for $50 more a month. The club was willing to split the difference with him, but wouldn't come across with the extra $25.

Egan stuck to his demands, though, and jumped back to his home territory in a circuit called the Cumberland League. That loop would have been a paradise to a major league scout of today with a little money to spend. Most of the teams were jammed with players from the big leagues who were holding out for sums as small as that over which Egan and the Providence club had had their difficulties. The scout could probably have picked up a world's championship outfit for the proverbial song.

News of Egan's crack pitching performances in this "outlaw" league soon began to drift back to Providence. As a result before the start of the next season Paul Draper, then owner of the Providence club, was down in Philadelphia, seeking to bring his lost sheep back to the fold. After a bit of dickering Egan returned to Providence, this time with a juicier contract than he had before.

LOCAL PITCHING HERO

Jack stuck with Providence until 1899, during which period he became a real local hero by reason of his smart brand of flinging. In the late season of '99 he tried his hand at umpiring in the New England League and the next year found him a full-fledged holder of the indicator in the Eastern League where he called them for three seasons.

Little Rock in the Southern Association needed a pitcher badly in 1903 and Jack went back to the mound. But he didn't stay there long. There was trouble about a bonus promised Jack for winning a certain number of games and which the club wouldn't pay. So Jack went to work for Ban Johnson as an umpire in the American League, then an "outlaw" circuit.

In 1904 and 1905 he was an umpire under President Pat Powers in the Eastern League and in 1906 he was calling them in the American Association. In 1907 he went up as an umpire to the big show, serving from that year until 1915 as an arbiter in the American League.

GREAT REP AS UMPIRE

Throughout his career under the big top Egan was known as an honest, forthright ump who called them as he saw them, without fear or favor. Baseball players in those days were tougher than they are now and, as Jack says, you couldn't "give an inch or they'd have you back in the bushes at the end of the season." The toughest ones, though, met more than their match in Egan, whose soft speech, high brow and generally scholarly manner concealed an iron will and a temper that was slow to rouse, but when roused, went the limit. On the diamond his word was law, as the players, even some of the highest priced performers in the game, found out when they were rushed off the diamond for getting gay with Ump Egan.

Jack has a rare fund of stories gleaned from his services in the big leagues and he's always a welcome figure wherever baseball fans gather since, besides knowing the stories, he has his own special way of telling them that brings out all the humor in them.

FAVORITE STORY

One of his favorites is the tale of the catcher who came up to the big leagues, filled with accounts of Ty Cobb's uncanny knack of stealing bases. The youngster was particularly awed by the stories of how Cobb, when stealing second, would frequently keep right on going after the catcher's throw and run down to third, usually getting there safely. Aforesaid catcher one day found himself faced with that situation one day as Cobb sped down between first and second. Much to the surprise of all concerned, the catcher threw the ball to third, then turned proudly around, well pleased with himself, and said: "Well, that's stoppin' him."

Jack Egan Takes Up Duties As Friar Baseball Coach

New Mentor Sees Squad Step
Through Lively Outdoor Practice Session.

Providence College's baseball squads yesterday plunged into serious preparations for their opening games, to be played in two weeks, with a new pilot, John J. Egan, former big leaguer, at the helm. Although the weatherman delivered football weather to a baseball squad, the afternoon was not a washout and Coach Jack Egan was able to size up the material on hand.

After meeting his co-captains, Leo Marion and Johnny Madden, Coach Egan watched the stream of batters who stepped up for hitting practice and asked questions about different players. The earnest attitude of the squad seemed to catch his attention and in spite of the poor weather the players did hold a stiff workout for their opening day.

Tomorrow the action will shift to Hendricken field, which is being put in shape by "Whitey" Anderson, a groundsman of wide experience who has had charge of parks ranging from the major to college diamonds. For the first time the field will be laid out exactly in the proportions required. New surfacing and fireclay for the pitchers box and the area around home plate will make the field the last thing in diamond surfaces.

Giving every evidence of the colorful career he has had in the baseball world, Coach Egan talked with his co-captains about the Friars' prospects and appeared ready to talk baseball with anyone who cared to listen. While the Friar batters were poling the ball far afield the new Friar coach watched with interest. He seemed to take this indication of power as a proof that Providence College intends, as far as it is in its power, to field another team of championship calibre.

First Clash With C.C.N.Y. On April 13

Friars Look Forward to Good Season Under New Coach

By GERALD PRIOR

(News-Tribune Sports Writer)

Jack Egan, newly appointed baseball coach at Providence College, buckled down in earnest today to the job of carrying on the tradition of Friar baseball excellence so gloriously established by Egan's long-time friend, the late Jack Flynn.

Gerald Prior

Called out of retirement to take over the Friar post left vacant by Flynn's death, Egan met his squad for the first time yesterday and, despite the damp, chill weather, the players went enthusiastically through an informal practice under the watchful eyes of the new coach.

Today Egan planned a more strenuous workout with the squad to get a better line on the material from which he will have to rebuild a varsity team that suffered heavy losses in all departments—battery, infield and outfield—through last June's graduation.

FIRST GAME APRIL 13

The Friars will begin their quest for another Eastern championship when they meet City College of New York here Saturday, April 13. That leaves two full weeks of practice before Egan fields his first college team.

There's a tough opening stretch of games lined up for the team. After the first clash at home, the Friars face the East Stroudsburg Teachers, Princeton, Villanova and St. John's, all on the road, before coming back to Hendricken Field for a game with Dartmouth, April 27.

Despite the heavy graduation losses and the strenuous campaign facing the club, Friar alumni, students and followers of the team in general are looking forward with confidence to the season, under Egan's coaching.

Coakley's Proposal for Collegiate World Series Finds Favor, With Japan Interested

By J. P. Abramson

ANDY COAKLEY, veteran Columbia baseball coach, who has proposed a college world series among representatives of all the major conferences in the country as well as a team from Japan, has broached the project to a Japanese official and finds him sympathetic to the venture.

Coakley has outlined his plans to Sadao Iguchi, Japanese consul in New York, who will contact the baseball authorities in Nippon, where the college game is paramount. From Mr. Iguchi, Coakley learned that the Japanese colleges have a spring and a fall series. The spring series winds up the first week in June. If a Japanese team were selected to play in the college series here it would have to depart June 6 to reach this city June 22.

Inasmuch as Coakley's project calls for the series to start June 24 this would give the Japanese two days in which to get acclimated. The week of June 24 Coakley believes is the only time for the series.

Japanese teams have visited here before and Japan may like the idea of an "official" series for world college supremacy. Even if the Japanese can not make the trip, Coakley would like to see the series played. He is receiving a lot of letters from college authorities commending the plan. The entire project, of course, depends on finding some means of financing it. Coakley believes the series would finance itself, but it would be necessary for the backers to advance guaranties to teams traveling from California, Texas and the far reaches of the country. Baseball angels, if any, will please communicate with Coakley at John Jay Hall.

Providence College, which has produced one of the best teams in the East in recent years, will start its season Saturday at home against C. C. N. Y. with a combination consisting mainly of new players. Jack Egan, successor to the late Jack Flynn, who died last month, is hopeful of maintaining the Friars' standard of play despite the loss by graduation of such players as Al Blanche, Charlie Burge (who never lost a college game) and Charlie Rennick, pitchers; Walter Corbett and Ed Reilly, who worked as the keystone combination for three years; Ed Koslowski, Tom Grady and Dick Burns, outfielders, and Ollie Roberge and George Tebbets, catchers. Tebbets is now with the Detroit Tigers.

Only four letter men are available for the start of the new season. They are Leo Marion, hard-hitting first baseman, and John Madden, third baseman, who are co-captains; Omer Landry, center fielder, and Ed Eldredge, outpaw pitcher. Egan is grooming Gus Hagstrom and Leo Lefebvre, freshman outfielder last year, for catcher. He is also optimistic in uncovering some pitchers who will pick up with Blanche and Burge. Ed Collins, a southpaw, who was the standing freshman, hurler; Eldredge, who was credited with the victory over Holy Cross last year; Leo Lanigan, senior, and Marshall Brooks, Walter Doolan, Tom Hammond, Karl Sherry and Frank Donahue, all sophomores, comprise the pitching staff.

With Hank Soar, sophomore, showing promise at first base, Egan has switched Marion back to the outfield. Soar was the Friars' best halfback last fall. He is 6 feet 2 inches tall and weighs 190 pounds. Two other sophomores will be in the infield, Milt Bleiden and Charley Gallagher at short and second, respectively, with Madden at third.

Marion, the team's big man, in left; Landry in center and any one of seven candidates in right will be the outfield. The Friars expect to be a bit shaky at the start, but hope to finish fast as they did last year when they scored thirty-six runs in beating Yale, Holy Cross and Boston College in their last three games. The Friars have scheduled twenty-one games, including Harvard, Yale and Princeton, Holy Cross, Boston College, Brown, Dartmouth. Their only game there is with St. John's on April 21.

the excellent... been showing scooping them up around short. Milt can hit, too. He was poling them out longer than any of them in yesterday's drill. In general, his work was an improvement even over the fine form he displayed at short with last year's Freshman team.

Of course it's way too early yet to make any predictions as to the probable makeup of the team. Egan may do a lot of shifting around of his material in the next two weeks. He has an uncanny knack of picking the right men for the right spots, as he proved time and again as a pro manager. Meanwhile things are moving along on Hendricken Field and, while the chill winds of early spring are moaning a requiem for the departed Jack Flynn, the youngsters who broke into college baseball under Jack's guidance, are working with a will on the job of preparing for a season that they hope will be a real tribute to the departed leader's memory.

EGAN INSPIRES CONFIDENCE

Egan's the sort of man to inspire confidence, with his long record of playing and managerial triumphs in professional baseball backing up a personality that seems ideal for the job of getting the best out of a gang of aspiring college youngsters.

The new coach was kept busy during practice yesterday and, in fact, throughout the day, meeting students, alumni and fans and receiving their congratulations on his appointment. He's too old a hand at the game of developing ball teams to be drawn into any predictions on the prospects for the season at this early stage, but there was a pleased glint in his eyes as he watched some of the youngsters go through their paces.

The big jobs facing Jack at the start seem to be the development of a second base-shortstop combination to replace the graduated Walter Corbett and Eddie Reilly, the building up of a couple of crack catchers and the grooming of some promising pitchers from last year's Freshman team into fingers of 'varsity calibre.

BLEIDEN GOING WELL

Some inkling of a partial solution to the keystone problem in the infield has appeared in practice with the excellent form Milt Bleiden has been showing scooping them up around short. Milt can hit, too. He was poling them out longer than any of them in yesterday's drill. In general, his work was an improvement even over the fine form he displayed at short with last year's Freshman team.

Of course it's way too early yet to make any predictions as to the probable makeup of the team. Egan may do a lot of shifting around of his material in the next two weeks. He has an uncanny knack of picking the right men for the right spots, as he proved time and again as a pro manager. Meanwhile things are moving along on Hendricken Field and, while the chill winds of early spring are moaning a requiem for the departed Jack Flynn, the youngsters who broke into college baseball under Jack's guidance, are working with a will on the job of preparing for a season that they hope will be a real tribute to the departed leader's memory.

FRIARS TO OPEN

AGAINST TEACHERS

Following this afternoon's practice the Providence College baseball team will leave for Danbury, Conn., on the first leg of its tour through New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania. Coach Jack Egan and his squad will make an overnight stop in Danbury and will then move on to Stroudsburg, Pa., where the Friars will meet the State Teachers College Wednesday afternoon.

Yesterday the Friars had a long session of hitting practice. Ed Eldredge serged them up with Johnny Reid behind the plate. The regular Friar batting order was used at the start of the drill with Co-captain Johnny Madden leading off. He was followed by Omer Landry, chunky little outfielder, Charlie Gallagher, sophomore second baseman, and Leo Marion, hard-hitting senior.

The other players all took a turn at bat under the watchful eye of Coach Jack Egan. Conditions in Stroudsburg will play an important part in the selection of a starting pitcher, Egan said. Fred "Lefty" Collins, who was assigned to start in the City College game, which was washed out on Saturday, is the logical choice to face the Teachers.

However, Egan may save him for Princeton which is a much stronger club and Tommy Hammond may be sent against Stroudsburg. Hammond has shown rare judgment in pitching during training and is due for several assignments before the season is over.

Bid Ed Eldredge and Karl Sherry should also show to advantage on this trip which will be a thorough test of the Friar strength. Joe Lefebvre has the backstop assignment for the opening game. During his first season with La Salle Joe was a catcher but shifted to the outfield the following year. He has shown marked ability behind the plate and with his capable hitting will be one of the Friars' big assets this year.

Marion and Bleiden Get Two Hits Each for Local College

East Stroudsburg, Pa., April 18.—History repeated itself yesterday on Wayne Field when a strong Providence College baseball team took the local teachers college ball tossers over the hurdles in the season's opener for both nines by a 5-1 tally. The Providence team, duplicated its feat of last year when it spilled the Mittmen by a 10-0 count.

Fred Collins, Providence port sider, pitched the entire eight innings working in heavy fashion and rolling up 17 strikeouts along the route. Fritz Benner, of the Mittmen worked smoothly also but was unable to match the fast pace set by Collins. Benner registered eight strikeouts before being supplanted by Hunsinger, in the final stanza.

Collins and Madden opened a big seventh for the Rhode Islanders with line drives to right field. Landry got a hit past Leininger and Gallagher came through with a hot smash to Henning who bobbed it and allowed Collins and Madden to score. Marion followed with a hit to centre to score Gallagher for the third run. Soar popped out to end the inning.

Teachers College scored its lone marker in the eighth when Hunsinger opened with a hit to Gallagher, who fumbled and left Hunsinger safe on first. Blysak fied out and Grady fanned. But Rock singled to centre. Summerhill followed with a hit to centre scoring Hunsinger on the smash and leaving Rock on third. Pattas batting for Long popped out.

The game was called in the eighth by agreement.

Providence Rallies Late to Beat Princeton

Tigers Blow Up as Visitors Score Nine in Last Two Innings in 11-7 Victory

Special to the Herald Tribune

PRINCETON, N. J., April 18.—Collecting nine runs on seven hits in the last two innings, the Providence College baseball team overcame a five-run Princeton advantage on University Field this afternoon and handed the Tigers their fourth defeat of the season, 11 to 7, as against six victories.

Dale Rice held the Friars to three hits for seven innings, but blew up in the eighth and Bob Mardfin, who relieved him, also was unable to check the visitors, yielding five hits and the winning tallies in the ninth. Marshall Brooks started in the box for Providence, but was replaced by Ed Eldridge in the eighth. The latter received credit for the victory.

The Tigers took a three-run lead in the first on two bases on balls, a double by Garry LeVan and Ken Sandbach's single, and added two more in the fifth when Bob Nevitt singled and crossed the plate on a triple to left center by LeVan, who scored on Sandbach's hit to right.

DOMINICAN RALLY IN CLOSING INNINGS NETS NINE RUNS

(Special to the Providence Journal.)

Princeton, N. J., April 18.—Collecting nine runs on seven hits in the last two innings, the Providence College baseball team overcame a five-run Princeton advantage on University Field this afternoon and handed the Tigers their fourth defeat of the season 11-7, as against six victories.

Dale Rice, big Nassau moundsman, held the Friars to three hits for seven innings, but blew up in the eighth, and Bob Mardfin, who relieved him, was also unable to check the visitors, yielding five hits and the winning tallies in the ninth. Marshall Brooks started in the box for Providence, but was replaced by Ed Eldridge in the eighth, who received credit for the victory.

The Tigers took a three-run lead in the first on two walks, a double by Garry Levan and Ken Sandbach's single. Then they added two more in the fifth when Bob Nevitt opened with a single and crossed the plate on a tremendous triple to left centre by Levan. Garry tallied the second on Sandbach's hit to right.

Providence scored their first two runs in the same inning, the second on the first of Levan's two errors, and, after Princeton appeared to have clinched the game in the seventh by going five runs up on hits by Nevitt, Levan and Sandbach, Providence rallied to win comfortably in the last two innings.

FRIARS DOWN VILLANOVA

FRIARS WALLOP VILLANOVA 10-3

Collins Pitches 8-Hit Ball for Winners.—Landry Is Batting Star.

(Special to the Providence Journal)
Villanova, Pa., April 20.—Powerful clubbing behind the brilliant pitching of Fred Collins brought Providence an easy 10-3 victory over Villanova this afternoon at the main liners' field.

It was the third straight of the season for the Rhode Islanders and the second defeat in four starts for the Wildcats. Fred Collins, hurling in great fashion, limited Villanova to eight hits and kept them fairly well scattered.

His exceptionally fast speed-ball and deep-cutting curve sent down 11 of the Main Liners via the strike-out route. He walked three and hit one batsman.

* * *

It was Fred's second win of the year. In turning back the East Stroudsburg Teachers he was credited with 17 strike-outs.

Tom Collins, the Villanova twirler, was nicked for 11 base blows by Providence. Three of these were triples and one a double, all coming at opportune moments.

Omer Landry, Providence left fielder, was the hitting star for the Rhode Island team. He came through with three bingles, one a triple, in four visits to the plate.

Johnny Madden, the third sacker, got two hits in three attempts. One of his smashes travelled to deep right field for a triple and the other was a two-bagger into the same spot.

While Ben Geraghty led with the pace for the main liners, Frank Skaff was their hero. In the eighth frame the short and husky Villanova third baseman drove the ball deep over the left field fence for a homer. The sphere travelled more than 400 feet, the longest hit made at the Wild Cats' field.

Providence, off to a flying start, pushed over two runs in the opening inning. Madden tripled and scored when O'Meara's throw-in hit Umpire Dinsmore. Landry, hit by a pitched ball, stole second and scored when Marion fled to deep centre.

Game played:

April 20, 1935

Villanova came back with a marker in its half when Lincoln Lensi's double scored Geraghty, who had walked.

Two singles, an error and two stolen bases gave Providence four runs in the third. Landry's single admitted Madden, who had doubled in the fourth, while two triples, two singles and a walk gave Providence three more in the ninth.

Skaff's four-bagger in the eighth scored Mehan, who walked and accounted for the other Villanova runs.

Dominicans Had Great Road Trip

Jack Egan Congratulated on His Successful Debut as Coach

By FRED FOLEY

(News-Tribune Sports Writer)

Coach Jack Egan and his Providence College team shook the dust of a successful road trip off their shoes today and buckled down to work for their home opener Saturday when Dartmouth will come to Hendricken Field.

Fred Foley

With three wins and a tie to show out of four tough games on the road, the 1935 Friars are being hailed as a worthy successor in the long line of great Providence College teams that have kept the Dominicans in the college baseball headlines during the past decade.

At the same time Egan, making his debut this year as a college mentor, is being showered with congratulations upon the grand start he has made in the coaching chair, left vacant by the death of his long-time friend and diamond comrade, Jack Flynn.

The Friars opened their road trip with a 5-1 win over the East Stroudsburg Teachers, rallied in the closing stages to take an 11-7 verdict away from powerful Princeton, whacked Villanova to a 10-3 fare-thee-well and wound up the jaunt by playing St. John's of Brooklyn to a 4-4 tie yesterday.

STRONG FINISHES

The St. John's game went only the regulation nine innings, despite the tie score, since the way had to be left clear for the playing of a semi-pro game at Dexter Park in Brooklyn, scene of the contest.

Had the game gone into extra innings, it appeared that the odds

(Special to the Providence Journal)
Brooklyn, N. Y., April 21.—Frank McGuire, promising St. John's University right-hander, had to be content with a tie when the Redmen made three errors in the eighth inning to let Providence College tie them, 4 to 4, at Dexter Park today. The game was called after nine innings to permit a semi-pro game to start on time.

McGuire pitched a fine game for the Indians after he had relieved Johnny Dixon in the fourth inning with none out, the bases filled and the score 3 to 2 against him. McGuire made two batters force runners at the plate and got the third hitter on a grounder to check the budding Providence rally without further damage.

The Indians handed McGuire a one-run lead when they scored once in the sixth and once in the seventh to make the score 4 to 3. But after this, the Redmen weren't themselves and erred three times in the eighth which permitted Gus Hagstrom to score the tying run of the game for the Friars.

FRIARS ARE BEATEN

Dartmouth Gets to Collins In 8th to Beat Friars 5-2

Indians Nick Southpaw Hurler

Victory.

With victory within easy reach, Fred "Lefty" Collins, Friar southpaw, weakened in the eighth inning and permitted Dartmouth to register a 5-2 victory over the Providence College baseball team yesterday afternoon at Hendricken field. The Friars played tight baseball until Dartmouth cracked down on Collins and garnered two singles and four walks to score four runs.

Collins seemed on the way to win his own ball game in the sixth when he drove a scorching triple into left field to score Lefebvre with the Friars's second run but his lapse in the fatal eighth proved to be the turning point in Dartmouth's favor.

In the first three innings Dartmouth was retired in order. The Indians did not get their first hit until the fourth.

Providence was away to a one-run lead in the first inning when Madden hit into short centre and then stole second. Landry drew a walk and Marion, Friar co-captain, tapped a perfect bunt along the first base chalk-line. Teddy Olson, Dartmouth pitcher, scooped up the ball but hesitated to make a play. When he did throw, it was to third where Umpire Foley called Madden safe on a close play. Marion reached first on the fielder's choice. Madden scored on Gallagher's grounder.

* * *

Dartmouth had three men on base in the fourth but Collins did not falter as he forced two players to ground out and forced out Phil Clark at home to end the inning. Providence loaded the bases in the third, but Hank Soar could not get the ball out of the infield and the chance to score went begging.

Phil Clark in centre field for the winners proved to be the nemesis of Friar batters as he raced from one end of his territory to the other to nip sure hits in the bud.

Game played: April 27, 1935

With one out in the sixth Joe Lefebvre, Friar catcher, singled and Fred Collins lifted the ball to the left field fence for the feature extra-base hit of the game, sending Lefebvre across home plate. Neither team found the seventh inning particularly "lucky" and Collins took the box for Dartmouth's half the eighth.

* * *

Phil Clark reached first on Bleiden's error and advanced on the Friar shortstop's wild peg to Soar. Ratajack's single sent Clark home and the bases were loaded when Collins walked Casey and gave Hart a single.

Ray and Allen drew walks scoring Ratajack and Casey. Coach Egan then decided to replace Collins and sent Tom Hammond to the mound. Hammond had a count of 3-1 to handle and allowed another walk, forcing Hart with the third "gift" run for Dartmouth. The Indians' tally in the ninth was the result of Clark's walk and a single to deep right by Bill Hart.

FRIARS SNAP SPRINGFIELD

VICTORY RUN, 8-7

Marion's Double in 8th Nets Dominicans' Winning Run

Defeat Is First in Nine Games for Maroons.—Three Home Runs Made.

Leo Marion's double in the eighth inning scoring Omer Landry, who had drawn a walk, enabled the Providence College baseball team to snap Springfield's eight-game winning streak on Hendricken Field yesterday afternoon, 8 to 7. Marion was the outstanding batsman of the day in a game which saw the Friars garner eight hits off two Springfield twirlers and the visitors collect 10 hits off a pair of Friar pitchers.

The Friars put on a five-run splurge in the second inning and stayed out in front until the fifth when Springfield scored two markers to tie the score 6-6. Eliot had replaced Davis in the third, after the Maroon moundsman had walked three Friars, and he held the Friars scoreless for three innings while his teammates drew up with the Dominicans.

Friar runs in the seventh and eighth clinched the victory for the locals and the visitors' lone tally in the eighth just fell short of its objective. In spite of five errors the Friars gave Springfield only one run in this manner.

A high wind, which mounted in velocity as the game drew to a close, delayed the pitchers but added to the interest of the game as the outfielders were forced to race after fly balls carried along by the gusts. Omer Landry made two spectacular catches to feature the fielding of the outfielders.

In the third inning he came in on the run for Huston's low liner and dropped to his knees to check a sure hit. Landry backed almost to the left field fence out by the boundary flag in the seventh to take Cella's long fly in one hand and keep possession of the ball as he somersaulted and rolled over.

Home runs were much in evidence, with two in favor of the visitors and one for the Friars made by Tommy Hazell, right fielder. Warren Huston, Maroon shortstop, hit for the circuit trip in the first inning with Smith scoring ahead of him. Allen, visiting right fielder, connected with one of Tom Hammond's low curves for a homer in the fifth as Springfield drew up 5-5. The strong wind carried the ball out onto the Providence College campus about six feet over the centre field fence.

Lowell, Mass., May 6.—The Lowell Textile baseball team, which had turned in a commendable record on the diamond until today, faded against a strong Providence College nine and the visiting Friars won handily 12 to 2. "Lefty" Collins who replaced Brooks in the first inning for Providence struck out 14 batsmen and held the textile team to four hits, two of which were made in the last two frames when the Providence hurler coasted along with a 12 to 0 advantage.

Home runs by Lefebvre and Bleiden and a triple by Madden accounted for six of the 12 runs. Fifteen safeties in all were made off Lowell's pitchers, Alcott and Liebmann, in a contest that was never in doubt after the visitors started their heavy hitting in the third and did not stop until six hits were made and seven tallies were scored in the last frame.

Madden and Bleiden in the Dominican infield gave the best fielding exhibition of the game. For Lowell Textile, Poremba's exhibition was the best with six chances accepted successfully and the only extra blow made off Collins, a double in the eighth.

SPRINGFIELD GAME

Concluded

Marion, Friar co-captain, had a field day at bat with two doubles and a pair of singles in five trips to the plate. He drove in a run in the second and another in the eighth to keep the Friars ahead.

Landry had six putouts to show for his day's work and singled and stole second in the second frame to get in position to score, which he did on Marion's hit to short right. Sensing a hit-and-run play in the second Springfield's second baseman, Rod Smith, covered the sack and Charlie Gallagher hit a liner right to him to retire the side.

Only the sixth inning was scoreless. Hammond forced Scott and Ober to fly out and struck out Smith to retire the visitors. Eliot forced Collins and Hagstrom to fly out and made Landry ground out to Huston at short. Johnny Madden drew a walk and stole second but was left on base.

Ober, lead-off man for the Maroons, grounded out in the first inning. Smith was walked and scored on Huston's homer to the left field fence. Cella and Allen fled out to Hazell and Landry.

Marion made his first hit in the Friars' half of the first but was left stranded on the bases. Springfield scored one run in the second when Bleiden and Hagstrom made errors and Ober singled to score Scott.

Applying pressure in the second frame, the Friars put a sacrifice, a home run, a walk and three singles together to score five runs which proved to be very important in the final accounting.

From this point on, except for one run in the third for the Friars, the visitors provided all the scoring until the fifth inning. They tallied one in the fourth and two in the fifth to tie the Friars at 5-5. After the runless sixth, the Friars scored once in the seventh and once in the eighth while the Maroons could only tally one run in the eighth.

FRIARS LOSE

Bilodeau Hurls 4-Hit Ball as Harvard Triumphs 6-2

Three Errors and Four Passes Costly to Dominicans; Madden Hits Homer.

(Special to the Providence Journal)
Soldiers Field, Cambridge, Mass.,
May 8—Providence College was unable to shake the Eastern Intercollegiate League jinx here this afternoon and lost a twilight baseball game to Harvard 6-2 on Soldiers Field. The Friars had previously lost to Dartmouth, another member of the E. I.
loop.

Ed Eldredge pitched loose ball and the Frair fielders aided in the downfall by costly errors and misjudgements. There were great plays in the making, more in fact that crop up in many a college game, but the Frairs misfired on the verge of completing double and vital single killings.

Tom Bilodeau, on the mound for Harvard, was in rare form and gave only four hits, one of them accounting for the two Frair runs. This was Co-captain Johnny Madden's home run in the third. Providence showed its only life in this frame but the following batters were unable to connect with Bilodeau's offerings with effectiveness.

Harvard took the lead in the first inning. Two runs were across the plate for the Crimson before the visitors had recovered from the crack of Prouty's bat as he drove out a scorching single on Eldredge's first pitched ball. In the fourth the Frairs aided Harvard with a base on balls and an error and the Cantabs garnered three singles to put across three runs.

Another tally in the sixth proved an anti-climax, as the Friars made a pair of errors. Providence went down in order in six innings under the guns of Bilodeau and three of the visitors' singles were of no avail.

Eldredge picked a few runners off the bases to prevent more Harvard scores. In the first inning he caught Adzigian off second on two different occasions.

A costly error in the fourth inning gave Harvard a chance to rally and make three runs. Owen singled between second and third. When Maguire bunted Joe Lefebvre tried to catch Owen as he went down to second but the Friar catcher's peg was sky high and went to centre field.

Bears Rated Even Choice With Friars

Large Crowd Likely to See
Tight Contest at
Aldrich Field

By GERALD PRIOR

(News-Tribune Sports Writer)

It's "write your own ticket on the winner" as Brown and Providence College point for the first game of this season's city college championship baseball series tomorrow afternoon at Aldrich Field.

Gerald Prior

The game in advance shapes up as anyone's party, with Brown conceded a better chance this year of hobbling the Friars than at any point over the past five seasons. The Bears are that good.

Brown's last win over the Friars came way back on May 18, 1929. That game tied the '29 series up, for the Friars had won the first clash. The Dominicans took the third game of the series and thereafter proceeded to sweep each year's series in two straight games through '30, '31, '32, '33 and '34. That five-season romp lifted the Friars total of wins for the 'varsity rivalry up to 17 out of 25 games.

So what does it look like this year. Well, there's this and there's that and what do you think, m'friend. It's one of those "if" games.

MANY "IFS"

If Lefty Collins pitches up to tops for the Friars, Brown will find it hard to get the hits needed to win ball games. And again, if Amby Murray of Brown has his slants working and is able to leave his tendency toward wildness behind with his street clothes, the Friars may find themselves breaking their backs trying to connect.

Or if Big Charlie Butler of Brown catches hold of an outside ball on the business end of his mighty bat with the bases well populated, it may be good-bye ball game from a Friar standpoint. Or also if some of those husky young sophomores Jack Egan has in his Friar cast—Joe LeFebvre, Milt Blenden, Charlie Gallagher, for instance—began to wallop the ball along with Co-Captain Leo Marion the shoe is likely to be on the other hoof.

The rival teams have been like that this season. They've been hot most of the time, but they've been stony cold on occasion. Brown did nicely in wins over Northeastern, Vermont, Maine, Dartmouth, Colgate, New Hampshire and Tufts. Even in a loss to powerful Holy Cross, the Bears weren't too tough, the defeat being by the narrow margin of 10-8. But against Yale Brown lost its batting punch and fielding effectiveness to drop a 10-0 decision.

Providence College looked the part of another great Friar team in victories over East Stroudsburg, Princeton, Villanova, Springfield and Lowell Textile. In a tie with St. John's and a 5-2 loss to Dartmouth the Dominicans also played good ball. But on Wednesday against Harvard they went to the canines completely, afield and at bat, to lose, 6-2.

NO FAVORITE

So it's a college ball game in which the teams are pretty closely matched and in which either may suffer a let down that will prove disastrous. To pick a favorite under those circumstances is just so much waste of time.

Brown will have the edge in experience, with nary a sophomore in its likely starting lineup. Providence College has to depend upon sophomores to fill the positions not occupied by the veterans, Co-Captains Marion and Johnny Madden, and that little outfield prize package, Omer Landry. That may count for something under the pressure of a game such as tomorrow's clash. Then, from the other angle, they're putting on the junior prom at Brown tonight and some of the ball players will be on hand. That, you'll admit, if you know anything about junior proms, isn't exactly the best preparation for a gruelling ball game.

LARGE CROWD LIKELY

At any rate, a crowd that's expected to be the largest local baseball turnout of the season will trip over to the field tomorrow in the expectation of seeing a close ball game. There'll be plenty of enthusiasm on both sides of the field. Brown hasn't had much chance to cheer during the past five lean years, but the Bears are expecting to do aplenty tomorrow. The Friars will be out in full force in the hope of seeing their team continue its sweep.

Brown got something of a break in the pre-game toss-up. Dr. Frederick W. Marvel, Brown athletic director, and Johnny Farrell, graduate manager of athletics at Providence College, tossed a coin to decide which was going to be the home team. The Bears will take the field first tomorrow and will have last bats, if—just to wind up with another "if"—they need them.

BROWN HAS HOPES IN P. C. SERIES

UP ON College Hill the Brown athletes are optimistic over the annual baseball series against Providence College. The first of the two games is scheduled for Saturday afternoon at Aldrich Field.

The Friars have a wide edge in the competition which started back in 1923, having won 17 times against eight victories for the Bear. The most thrilling duel of the series was the 1-0 20-inning triumph scored by P. C. on June 7, 1924, at Andrews Field. That was the contest which developed into such a stirring pitching battle between Charley Reynolds and Elmer Duggan. Duggan struck out 29 P. C. batsman while Reynolds was stingy with hits and had superb control.

Brown batters insisted Charley didn't have a thing on the ball that afternoon. It was coming up to the plate as big as a balloon but they couldn't connect. Reynolds was simply throwing it where the bat wasn't. Johnny Halloran, brainiest catcher college baseball has developed in 20 years, was back of the plate for P. C.

The Bears haven't measured the Friars since 1929 when they scored a 5 to 3 victory. Coach Jack Kelleher has a well-balanced club on the Hill this year while Coach Egan is obliged to experiment with a group of inexperienced material including a half-dozen sophomores. The only veterans from the great team the late Jack Flynn handled in 1934 are co-Captains Johnny Madden and Leo Marion and Omer Landry, the fleet-footed outfielder who seems to cover a mile of territory.

The largest score of the long series between the city rivals was the 14-2 P. C. win of 1930.

Brown looks hopefully to the opportunity this week and next of squaring a few old accounts with the Smith Hill boys.

It should be a tight series with Bruno having the edge by reason of its seasoned material. The lads will fight for every point all the way.

BROWN UPSETS FRIARS

Murray Pitches Eight Hit Ball to Break Friar Reign

Sixth-Inning Batting Blast and Shower of Errors Mark Bruins
First Win Since 1929.

BY F. C. MATZEK

Ambrose Murray's eight-hit south-paw pitching exhibition coupled with an even half dozen Friar errors brought an end to Providence College's six-year baseball dominance over Brown at Aldrich Field yesterday. The score was 6-4. A rabidly partisan crowd of approximately 4000 saw the game.

A four-run outburst in the sixth, aided materially by a trio of Friar miscues, gave the Bears the 26th game of an intercity series that was inaugurated in 1920. The Bruin victory halted Providence's string of series-game triumphs at nine, the Friars having won that many in a row since the opening tilt of the 1929 two-game series.

Before that sixth inning shower of errors kicked a keen pitching duel sky high, Murray was having his troubles matching the fine effectiveness of "Lefty" Collins, Friar south-paw. In the end Murray had an edge, but it was a slim one. His eight-hit performance shaded Collins's exhibition by two bingles, the Bears collecting 10 off of the Dominican portsider.

* * *

The Bruin twirler had a trifle the better of it in the matter of control, too. He issued four passes to six given out by Collins. The latter, however, was well out in front in strikeouts. He fanned 14 Bruin batters while Murray was accounting for seven Friars in the same manner.

Joe Lefebvre and Bleiden were the Friar offenders in the sixth. The Friar catcher tossed into right field in a futile effort to catch Frankie Brown after the Bruin second sacker had singled to open that frame. Frankie went to second on the throw and reached third when Murray beat out the second of his three infield hits.

Game played: May 11, 1935

Slader fanned, but Levinson and Hart drew passes, the one to the Bear catcher forcing Brown in with the first run of the inning. Collins made a grand effort to get out of his difficulties. He fanned Mickey O'Reilly. But Appleyard banged an easy roller to shortstop that Bleiden fumbled with an easy forceout in prospect.

Murray scored on that miscue and Levinson and Hart followed suit when Bleiden winged the ball past the grandstand in back of third in an effort to get Levinson as the latter moved up from second to third on the first of the shortstop's errors. Appleyard went all the way around to third but remained there when Butler grounded out after Elrod had reached when he was hit by a pitched ball.

* * *

That was damage enough to lose the ball game for the Friars. Before that wild inning Brown had moved out in front on a lone run in the second, but the Friars had come back to take over the lead with a brace of markers in the fifth. Providence added one more in the seventh and still another in the eighth, but fell short of tying the ball game, mainly because Perry Elrod, in centre field for the Bruins, turned in a circus catch of Bleiden's long fly to keep Tom Hazell and his deadlocking run anchored to first. The Bears added their last marker in the final half of the eighth with another Providence error proving helpful.

Two singles and two passes were combined for Brown's second inning run, Frankie Brown scoring on Levinson's single to right after being passed and pushed along by Murray's bunt single down the third baseline and a pass to Slader.

Hazell singled to open the Friar fifth. Bleiden popped out to Murray and Lefebvre fanned, but Belliveau singled to right to send Hazell to third. Collins bounded a single off Murray's glove to score the Friar right fielder. Madden walked to fill the bases and Belliveau tallied when Murray was charged with a balk, one that Hart induced when he came out to the front of the plate as Belliveau feinted an attempt to steal home.

Successive singles by Belliveau, Collins and Madden after Murray had fanned Bleiden and Lefebvre gave the Friars one more marker in the seventh. They completed their scoring in the eighth when Leo Marion tripled to right centre and came home on a wild pitch. Gallagher grounded out, but Hazell was passed. Elrod came through then with his catch of Bleiden's long fly to left centre. Fitzgerald, relief catcher, grounded out.

O'Reilly was safe when Landry dropped his fly in short left to start the eighth and romped in with the final run of the game when Elrod drove a two base hit along the left field foul line.

St. John's Connects for Only
Two Hits Off Pawtucket
Youth.

Behind the two-hit pitching of Karl Sherry, Pawtucket sophomore, the Friars of Providence College jumped back into the victory column yesterday at Hendriken Field to down St. John's University, 9-1. Getting to Frank Maguire in the first inning, eight Friars came to the plate and knocked out five hits to score four runs.

Maguire fared no better in the following frame when he gave a walk and yielded one hit to launch two runs over the plate for the home team. An error by Testagrossa was partly responsible for one Friar tally.

Providence hit hard and often from the start and with Sherry pitching at his best was never seriously threatened by the Brooklyn Redmen. Coach Jack Eagan shook up his starting lineup and batting order and the changes evidently were successful. Omer Landry headed the batting list and hit safely to centre his first time at bat.

* * *

From then on there was a barrage of hits and a parade of Friar runs across home plate. With two out, Hazell, Gallagher, Banahan and Beliveau found Maguire for bingles in the first inning until Maguire tightened and struck out Johnny Reid. Reid had helped to shatter the Redmen's hopes in the first inning when he went back of home plate to nab two foul flies for putouts.

The visitors were put out in order in the first, second, third and sixth innings. None of the St. John's players reached base until the fourth when Hagan singled over second base to deep centre. A walk in the fifth inning placed the second visitor on base but a rally did not materialize.

In the ninth inning the Redmen made a slight spurt toward whittling down the margin of victory. Dixson drove out a hard grounder which Madden could not handle. Leary drew a walk but here the threat died out. Coach Buck Freeman tried several pinch hitters and made a few shifts in his team but the Redmen could not produce a rally in the face of the determined Friar defence.

Game played: May 12, 1935

Five hits and four runs in the first frame for the Friars were followed by one hit in the second for two runs. Landry drew a walk in the second and went to third when Testagrossa erred on Madden's hard grounder, permitting the Friar co-captain to reach first. Marion's single to deep left sent Landry and Madden home.

Madden hit a scorching single to left in the fourth inning but St. John's staged a double killing, Dixon to Cochran to Kelly, to end the Friars' chances. With the change in pitchers in the sixth, the Friars went to work on Joe Coppo.

Belliveau grounded out to third. Johnny Reid hit safely to short right but was caught at second, Coppo to Cochran, on a fielder's choice of Sherry's roller. Landry and Madden singled to score Sherry, and Marion was given an intentional walk, filling the bases. This brought Tom Hazell; he drove a liner into centre field to score Landry and Madden.

The Friars were not able to produce any scoring in the seventh and eighth as Coppo struck out two and his infielders tightened their play. This victory for the Friars decided the series with the Redmen; the first game ended in a 4-4 tie.

Three-run "Break" Helps Villanova Beat Friars 6-2

Skoff's Drive Hits Discarded
Glove and Goes for Homer.
Marion Hits Twice.

Villanova played errorless ball and out-hit the Providence College baseball team two to one yesterday afternoon on Hendricken field to down the Friars 6-2. Eddie Vaughn, visiting pitcher, allowed the Dominicans five scattered hits and in spite of six passes he managed to avoid serious trouble.

Karl Sherry, Friar pitcher, gave eight hits and Eddie Eldredge, who replaced him in the eighth, allowed two. Coach Jack Egan used two pinch hitters but the damage had been done and the Friars were unable to rally.

In the seventh the visitors received a "break" which was a severe blow to the home team. What should have been a single by Skaff went for four bases when the ball hit a Villanova outfielder's glove as it lay on the ground and rolled past Gallagher to the centrefield fence.

At the time two men were on base and two were out. From this point on the Friars were out of the running. Vaughn issued two walks in the seventh and it seemed that the Friars might overcome their handicap but the visitors tightened their play to retire the side.

Linn Lenzi, Villanova catcher, drove out two triples and a single in five times at bat to feature the visitors' hitting. Mahan doubled for the other Villanova extra-base hit.

For Providence Leo Marion's pair of singles in four trips to bat were the best Friar bingles. Sherry hit a double in the third for the only local extra-base hit.

Lenzi's triple followed by Mahan's sacrifice fly to centre gave Villanova their first run in the opening inning. In the third Lenzi again tripled and scored on Mahan's double.

Then came the "break" in the seventh which gave the visitors three runs and in the eighth they added another on a single and a sacrifice.

Providence did not score in the first three nor the last three innings. Its runs were made in the fourth and fifth. Tom Hazell reached base when he was hit by Vaughn. Belliveau drew a walk and then Hazell scored on Banahan's single.

Out at the Plate on a Delayed Steal

Madden, Providence College third baseman, is shown being tagged out at home plate in the fifth inning of yesterday's Providence College-Villanova game at Hendricken Field. Madden tried to score on a delayed steal, but Schoppmeyer, visitors' second baseman, threw to Catcher Lenzo to catch Madden. Umpire Gardella is calling the play. Villanova won the game 6-2.

Lefebvre led off the fifth with a single to right field and advanced on Sherry's sacrifice bunt. He stole third and scored when Marion singled along the right field foul line.

WILDCATS NIP FRIARS,

Providence Bows in Tenth; Umpire Ejects Marion

New Hampshire Comes from Behind in Eighth-Inning Spurt; Reid Hits Homer.

Tying the score in the eighth inning at 5-5, the New Hampshire Wildcats rallied in the 10th to down Providence College 6-5 at Hendricken Field yesterday afternoon. New Hampshire collected 10 hits off Marshall Brooks. It was a double, a single and a sacrifice fly in the 10th that gave the visitors their winning run.

Umpire Foley ejected Leo Marion, Friar co-captain, from the game for aggressively questioning a decision at first base. At the time Foley was behind third base with two Friars between him and the runner.

Isaac hit a slow roller to Brooks who scooped it up and threw towards first. Ray Belliveau was on first covering the play with Marion a few feet away in the direction of the pitcher's box. Brooks's toss was grabbed by Marion who dropped to the ground and tagged first just before Isaac touched the sack.

Joe Curnane went in for Marion, but the loss of one of their best hitters hurt the Friars chances considerably.

New Hampshire took a two-run lead in the first frame singles by Toll and Walker and a sacrifice by Chase. Providence tallied in the fourth when two hits and Hazell's sacrifice scored Madden. In the fifth the visitors made another run but the sixth found the Friars at their best and they scored three markers.

With two out the Friars took advantage of an error and a hit batter coupled with three safe blows. Hazell and Belliveau doubled in this inning and Banahan singled in this rally.

Another run for P. C. in the seventh gave the Friars a 5-3 lead. This run was the result of Johnny Reid's circuit wallop over the right field fence. Coming back strong in the eighth the visitors banged out two hits to score two runs and tie the count.

Neither team was able to score in the ninth. But New Hampshire found Brooks for two hits in the tenth while the Friars went out in order in their half of the inning.

Friar Shortstop Caught Off First Base

FRIARS EVEN SERIES WITH BRUINS,

Collins Shades Murray In Dominican Victory

Brown Errs Early as Friars

lumn Ahead Never to Re
By F. C. MATZEK

Coupling hits and errors to advantage, Providence College outscored Brown, 7 to 4, at Aldrich Field yesterday in the second game of the annual baseball series between the two city rivals. The decision, almost the exact reverse of one the Bears scored one week previously, gave the Friars an even break in their 1935 meetings with the Bruins. Close to 3500 saw the game.

Yesterday's tilt found Fred "Lefty" Collins, portside star of the Providence club, shading Ambrose Murray, Brown left-hander, in much the same manner Murray had edged out the verdict in their duel last Saturday. Yesterday's game was the 27th in the Friar-Bear series and left the winners a 15 to 12 margin in games won.

Showing a marked tendency toward three-run sorties, the Dominicans rushed off to a three-run lead in the opening frame and countered with a similar outburst in their half of the third after the Bruins had knotted the count with three markers in the opening half of that same frame. A Brown run in the sixth sliced Providence's margin to two runs, but the Friars countered again in the seventh with the run that gave them their winning margin of three runs.

* * *

Miscues again marred the pitching achievements of the rival southpaws. The Bears erred five times behind Murray and the Friars were charged with a trio of errors in ragged support of Collins.

The Bruins opened their misfiring in the second half of the opening frame when an assortment of weird baseball aided the Friars toward a 3-0 lead. Murray's second pitch hit Landry, leadoff man, on the foot. He pilfered second before Madden flied out to O'Reilly in right field. Appleyard Bruin third baseman, came in onto the grass to snag Marion's easy roller down the third baseline, but his throw was over Butler's head. Landry counted and Marion went to third on the wild toss.

Game played:

May 18, 1935

Tom Hazell here connected for the first of his two triples and scored Marion. Lefebvre was out when Butler took his grounder in front of first, Hazell remaining at third. Belliveau singled to complete the three-run damage. Levinson erred on Collins's grounder but the side was retired when Banahan forced the Dominican hurler at second, Levinson making the putout unassisted.

* * *

In the first of the third, it was Providence's turn to lapse. The Bears counted three runs on a combination of two errors, two bases on balls and a wild pitch. Levinson walked and stole second while Hart was striking out. A wild pitch sent him on to third. O'Reilly walked and both runners advanced. Levinson scored when Appleyard was safe at first as Banahan's wide throw pulled Marion off the bag.

O'Reilly stole third and scored on a delayed double steal when Belliveau intercepted Hagstrom's short throw to second and let the ball get away from him. Elrod contributed a double to left to send Appleyard in with the tying run. Butler drew a pass, but was held at first when Frankie Brown fanned and Collins threw out Murray.

The Friars unleashed a barrage of hits in the last of the inning to pull out ahead again. Singles by Marion, Belliveau and Collins and a pass to Hazell combined with a pair of stolen bases by Marion brought three markers.

Burbank, in at short for Brown in place of Levinson, walked in Brown's half of the sixth, went to second on a wild pitch, reached third on O'Reilly's scratch hit in front of the plate and scored when Marion was slow on his return throw to Hagstrom.

Hazell tripled to left centre with two out in the seventh and registered Providence's seventh run on Lefebvre's single to left.

FRIAR VICTORY COMPLICATES COLLEGE BASEBALL PICTURE

Rhode Island State Out in Front With Undeclared Record in Intra-State Competition

BY JOE NUTTER

The local college baseball race was further complicated Saturday as Providence College evened the count in its series with Brown. Today Rhode Island is out ahead with an undefeated record in intra-state as well as out-side competition, and the Brown and Dominican nines are running a very close race for second honors.

FRIARS DESERVING OF THEIR TRIUMPH

In the final analysis, it was the two weaknesses with which Brown opened the season that jumped up and hit the Bears squarely in the face Saturday. Some have felt all along that Brown was enjoying rare good fortune to travel as fast as it has in the face of flaws in the catching and short field posts. Be that as it may, the men who came up to fill the two weakened posts have delivered with laudable courage, but Saturday the Friars applied enough pressure to break both stations wide open.

Providence won handily enough, and she fully deserved her verdict. Neither "Lefty" Collins nor Ambrose Murray had too much on the ball, both teams hit rather freely, but fatal errors in the infield cost Brown any chance to sweep the series on the flying Friars.

But time is moving along now, and the three Rhode Island college nines are very rapidly coming up to the season's finals. Brown faces the easiest road this week, with two games. The Bruin journeys to New Haven to meet Yale Wednesday and plays Colby here Saturday.

Cutting Off a Friar Run in Seventh

Fred Collins, playing centre field for Providence College against Holy Cross yesterday at Fitton Field, Worcester, is shown being put out at home plate in the seventh inning as he tried to score from third on Johnny McCabe's hit. Joe Cusick, Providence boy, is the Crusader catcher making the putout with Umpire Cleary calling the play. Holy Cross won the game 13-7.

CRUSADERS LANCE FRIARS 13-7 FOR TWELFTH IN ROW

Dominicans' 6-Run Splurge in 7th Falls Short But Routs Bruninghaus.

(Special to the Providence Journal)
Fitton Field, Worcester, Mass., May 20.—Providence College made a desperate attempt to halt Holy Cross at Worcester this afternoon before going down to defeat 13-7 at the hands of the slogging Crusaders. The Friars trailed the winners by one hit, making 14 to the Purple's 15.

Until the visitors made their first tally in the sixth it seemed that the Crusaders were on their way to their 12th straight triumph with no trouble at all. But Providence put across a run in the sixth and followed up with six in the seventh, a rally that drove Roy Bruninghaus from the mound and jolted the home team into action.

* * *

Trailing 9-1, the Friars made a vain attempt to draw up with the Crusaders and went into the eighth only two runs behind, 9-7. But this surge stirred the Crusaders into action and behind Al Jarlett they scored four runs in the eighth to assure the victory.

Bruninghaus was troublesome to the Friars until the sixth when he gave up two hits. Then he went down under a seven-hit barrage off the Friar bats in the following frame. Jarlett permitted the Friars only three bingles in the remaining two and one-third innings.

In the midst of the Friars' seventh-inning batting spree, Co-captain Leo Marion knocked out a triple to left and in the next frame made another into centre. Ed Eldredge, called to the mound to relieve Sherry, tapped out two singles in his two appearances at the plate.

* * *

Marion's triple in the eighth was the last effort made by the Friars in the direction of a rally. Jarlett clamped on the lid in the ninth, forced Belliveau to ground to short and fanned Bleiden and McCabe.

Errors paved the way for the Crusader scores in the third and eighth innings. Bleiden was the chief offender with two costly muffs. Landry had tough luck on a try for a running catch in the third frame. The ball rolled out of his hands as he raced under Cusick's long lift to left centre.

FRIARS AND R. I. STATE RAMS TO OPEN SERIES AT KINGSTON

Gill Named by Keaney for Mound Duty in Important Game

Rhode Island State's fast stepping baseball outfit will terminate its home season at Kingston tomorrow afternoon, when it entertains Providence College in another of the intra-state college series. A victory for the Rams will practically clinch the State title for the Keaneymen.

Roland Gill, diminutive right hander, is expected to pitch for the Keaneymen. Having worked the last three innings in the Northeastern game yesterday, Gill should be in perfect trim for tomorrow's meeting.

The Rhode Islanders, by virtue of their exceptionally fine success this season, have been attracting large crowds to their home park of recent weeks, but tomorrow's encounter is expected to top all attendance marks.

Seniors who will be performing on State's home lot for the last time are Captain Bud Gorman, "Happy" Applin, Bud Fisher, Eddie Ryan, and, if they manage to break into the lineup, Jack Marsden and Joe Gula.

Tomorrow's contest is viewed with special interest at State, since a victory will send the Rams on to Worcester Friday with an unblemished record, and, should they top the similarly undefeated Crusaders, such a feat would permit the Keaneymen to put a rightful claim to the Eastern collegiate title.

Coach Jack Egan of the Friars has named no starting lineup for the Rhode Island game but it appears certain that the players who lost to Holy Cross last week will again see service. The pitching selection will be more or less of a toss-up until the teams take the field as most the Friar staff was in action against Holy Cross.

Dominicans Score in 12th To Hand State First Defeat

Six-Run Drive in 7th Saves

Friars; Bleiden Hits

Timely Triple.

Rhode Island State finally met defeat, when Providence College beat Frank W. Keaney's Rams 7-6 in a 12-inning affair before 1500 at Kingston yesterday afternoon. This loss snapped State's victory run of nine straight games.

A triple to right field by Milt Bleiden, Friar shortstop, and a subsequent sacrifice fly to left by Ray Belliveau, P. C. second baseman, settled the issue in the first half of the 12th. The Rams held the lead until the seventh when the winners uncorked a six-run attack that knotted the score.

A single by Bleiden, with Friars on second and third, completed this uprising. To State the play was the first of several heart-breakers that trailed the Rams in the closing innings.

Although well placed, Bleiden's bingle was a weird "flake". As the P. C. shortstop was evading one of Will d'Entremont's wide curves the ball hit the bat and looped over Applin's head, dropping into short right. Two runners scored on this play.

Rhode Island proved more threatening than Providence after the seventh but the Rams threw away all their chances. With men on third the scoring punch was missing in the ninth and 10th innings.

State's opening score came in the second when two were out. "Babe" Martin was hit by Collins. Mudge was safe when Collins threw wide to Marion. Fay's single through the box sent in the two runs.

In the next canto Marion's misplay on Pascoe's slow roller and Bud Fisher's hard drive to right made the third State run. Two were added in the fifth on Fay's single and Gorman's home run to left. State's final tally came in the sixth as Martin scored on Mudge's left field hit.

Providence College built up its six-run rally in the seventh with the aid of State errors. Capable State fielding gave d'Entremont the advantage in the first six cantoes.

Friar Hero Safe at First

Ray Belliveau beats out a hit to Fay in the second inning of the Providence-R. I. State game at Kingston yesterday. Applin, Ram first baseman, is covering his station. In the 12th Belliveau came through with a sacrifice fly to score Bleiden with the winning run. Bleiden contributed a full share to the rally by setting up the scoring play with a triple. The Friars won, 7 to 6.

Gallagher reached second when Fay threw wide to Applin at first, permitting Gallagher to take another base. Joe Lefebvre drove a single to right to score Gallagher. d'Entremont, unsettled, walked Landry and Gorman fumbled Madden's slow roller to fill the bases.

At this point Leo Marion singled through the box to score two runners and Madden raced home when Collins grounded out to Gorman. Then, Bleiden, attempting to pull away from an inside pitch, had his bat hit and the ball dropped into right field, scoring two runs.

Bleiden was caught at second as State began to check this Friar rally. Belliveau singled but Gallagher was tossed out by Pasco. In the eighth Landry was hit by a pitched ball and Marion walked but the effort died out when Hazell grounded out.

In the ninth inning Fay doubled and Gorman was passed. Applin was hit by Collins to fill the bases. The State fans poured out of the stands as Pascoe swung at a pitch that hit him. But the game was not over for the runners were sent back to their stations and Pascoe had a strike called on him.

FRIARS, CRUSADERS IN RETURN BATTLE

Collins and Callahan, Southpaws, Likely Pitching Choices for Game Here Today.

Providence College's baseball nine, which broke the victory strings of Springfield and Rhode Island State, will play Holy Cross at Hendricken Field at 3:15 o'clock this afternoon. The Crusaders have won 13 straight contests, including victories over both Springfield and State.

In the first game between the teams, played at Worcester, Providence lost 13-7 after staging a strong rally in the seventh inning.

Fred "Lefty" Collins, New Milford sophomore, who twirled in the first Cross game, will in all probability face "Boots" Callahan, Holy Cross southpaw, this afternoon. Either Joe Lefebvre or Johnny McCabe will catch.

The lineups are expected to remain the same for the other positions. Jack Barry is undecided about his starting pitcher for today, although Callahan has been named tentatively. Barry may give Roy Bruninghaus another try against the Friars in spite of the damage done to Bruninghaus's delivery in the seventh frame at Worcester.

Ten-Hit Friar Cannonade Rips Holy Cross Off Top

Sherry's Pitching and Landry's
Outfield Play Feature
Hendricken Field Game.

By F. C. MATZEK

Complementing Karl Sherry's five-hit pitching with a 10-hit cannonade in which each member of the Friar nine had a part, Providence College's baseball forces tumbled the Crusaders of Holy Cross from the unbeaten ranks at Hendricken Field yesterday. The defeat, a 4 to 1 setback, was the first of the campaign for the Purple in 15 starts. Close to 4000 saw the game.

With the major defensive burden resting on the pitching capabilities of the Pawtucket Sophomore, the Friars concentrated on the attack. One blazing three-hit, three-run spurt in the last of the fourth actually turned the trick. It brought the Dominicans from behind and put them into a lead that Sherry protected well the rest of the distance.

Each and every one of the Friars shared in the 10-hit barrage levelled against Roy Bruninghaus, ace moundsman and starter for the Crusaders, and his successor, Jarlett.

Four of the Friars stepped definitely to the fore in run producing—Hazell, Belliveau, Gallagher and Reid. And of that quartet Gallagher, centre fielder, garnered top laurels with a two-run homer in the fourth that put the Friars out in front.

Hazell opened the fourth inning uprising with a ground single to left. He stole second before Bleiden fouled out, and scored on Belliveau's slashing single to left centre. Gallagher followed with a long shot over the right field fence.

That Gallagher poke settled the issue. Hazell's run had knotted the count at 1-1, Nick Morris of the Crusaders having cocked Sherry's first pitch in the third over that short right field wall for a four-ply wallop. Johnny Reid, loose-jointed Friar catcher, brought the scoring to an end with a duplicate of Morris's and Gallagher's homers in the seventh. It was superfluous, perhaps, but it was sweet recompense for two previous strikeouts by the Dominican backstop.

Crossing the Plate With Friars' Final Score

Johnny Reid, Providence College catcher, is shown scoring in the seventh inning on his homer over the right field fence at Hendriken Field against Holy Cross yesterday. The home run was the third in the game, the Friars getting two and the Crusaders one. Umpire Rudderham is watching Reid cross the plate, while some youthful admirers reached out to greet the Friar catcher.

The victory for the Friars evend their score with the Purple baseball lancers, Holy Cross having beaten them 13 to 7 Monday at Worcester. The triumph establishes the Friars as specialists at snapping victory strings. The same club brought an end to straight victory runs by Springfield and R. I. State, cutting both teams down after they had recorded nine in a row.

There was something more to yesterday's performance by the Friars than Sherry's top-grade hurling and the batting of Hazell, Belliveau, Gallagher and Reid. Omer Landry, in left for the Friars, pulled robbery catches on Daughters in the first and on Couillard in the seventh. Gallagher accepted three chances in centre field to cut down possible hits. One off Moriarty in the ninth was a gem.

The Friars' inner defence was almost flawless. Madden erred on Couillard's hopper in the second, but Sherry covered the miscue when he caught the Crusader napping off first. Belliveau, Bleiden and Marion combined for the only twin killing of the victors. Daughters, at third for the Purple, was charged with the only miscue of the game, an error that didn't, however, figure in the scoring.

Couillard, right fielder for Holy Cross, found the short right field not to his liking. Twice he was backed up against that barrier and each time, once in the third on Madden's drive and again in the eighth on a similar shot by Bleiden, the ball bounded out of his glove. Each hit went for two bases.

Bleiden's double was the lone hit off Jarlett who relieved Bruninghaus in the eighth after the latter retired in favor of pinch hitter Buzz Harvey in the first of the same inning. Bruninghaus was nicked for nine hits in seven frames. He fanned five Friar batsmen and issued no passes.

SHERRY'S EXHIBITION A RARE FEAT

KARL SHERRY gave as fine an exhibition of college pitching when the Friars defeated Holy Cross as you you'll see on any diamond. The young man was as cool as a shylock's stare in the pinches and when he had no trouble lurking on the base lines toyed with the Crusaders by the simple use of a tricky change of pace and a hesitation delivery.

The Cross batsmen, sluggers extraordinary to the tune of a team average of .400, were expected to cut loose and rattle the windows in Harkins Hall far beyond centre field at any time but young Mr. Sherry wasn't awed by the tremendous batting punch and past performance of Jack Barry's bombers.

The Cross athletes might represent the finest collection of diamond brilliants uncovered in a decade at Mt. St. James but on Saturday they were just another bunch of freshmen to the bespectacled Sherry, a sophomore. Against St. John's of Brooklyn, a fortnight ago, the youth from over Taunton way let the Redmen down with two safe clouts. Cross could gather but four. Six hits in 18 innings. Fair enough.

The collegiate ball fan has a choice dish here this week. Brown plays at Aldrich Field on Memorial Day against one of Harvard's most spectacular clubs, a team that possesses power and can collect runs in big bunches. At the same time Rhode Island State will be playing P. C. at Hendricken Field. State will be looking to avenge a 12-inning setback the Friars handed out last week.

Harvard, the Bruins, P. C. and State are hitting on all cylinders now.

Rhode Island State will invade Hendricken Field for the first time in almost 12 years to meet the Providence College baseball team in an attractive Memorial Day game this afternoon at 3:15 o'clock.

When the teams opened their present series a week ago they battled through 12 torrid innings before the Friars emerged on top 7-6. With the same lineups in action today it appears that another interesting contest will be played.

Coach Frank W. Keaney, the Ram mentor, will start the nine men who faced Providence in the first encounter. The Rams returned to the victory highway, defeating Northeastern 10-5, while the Friars toppled Holy Cross, 4-1, to end the Crusaders' win streak at 14 games. Clever "Wil" d'Entremont will pitch for the State team with Ryan behind the plate.

Coach Jack Egan, Friar coach, will send Fred "Lefty" Collins to the box with lanky Johnny Reid, capable catcher. Collins went the full 12 innings against State, a game in which he grew better as the frames flew by. Reid has caught Karl Sherry, sensational P. C. twirler, in the St. John's and Holy Cross games and will team with Collins against State.

Leo Marion, Providence College first baseman, is shown above being tagged out at the plate by Catcher Ryan in the fifth inning of the Providence College-R. I. State Game at Hendricken Field yesterday. Marion had tripled to score two runs and tried to stretch the hit into a homer when a fine relayed throw to Ryan caught the Friar player at the plate. The Friars won the contest 6-1.

Rams Unable to Hold Their Early Advantage

Turn Victory Tide.

Fred "Lefty" Collins, Providence College southpaw, limited Rhode Island State to four hits as the Friars took the Rams into camp for the second time this year at Hendricken field, 6-1, yesterday afternoon before 4000 fans.

Rhode Island was away to an early start with a run in the first inning and with "Wil" D'Entremont pitching well it seemed the Rams were due to even their score with the Friars. But two State errors in the third gave Providence one run and the Friars applied pressure in the fifth to score four more.

The good work of Collins on the mound and the effective Friar fielding had a large share in the victory. Collins held the Rams to four scattered hits and fielded six chances without a slip-up.

Errors on the part of Rhode Island enabled the Friars to tie the score in the third. Four hits, coupled with two errors, paved the way for a four-run Friar splurge in the fifth, which Rhode Island could not overcome. Two hits and two errors added another run to the Friar total and the game ended as the Rams flied out and grounded out in the ninth.

There were several fielding gems during the game. Eddie Fay, Rhody shortstop, went back for a nice catch of Collin's fly in the second inning. On the next pitched ball, Fay nabbed Bleiden's liner for the third putout. Charlie Gallagher, Friar centre fielder, made a spectacular, running shoe-string catch of Mudge's fly and threw in to the plate to hold D'Entremont on third.

After Belliveau flied out in the third inning to Martin in centre, Gallagher drew a walk and stole second. Gorman erred on Hagstrom's grounder and Gallagher went to third while the Friar catcher was safe at first. Gallagher scored when Ryan attempted to nab Hagstrom who was stealing down to second. Pascoe stopped the Ram catcher's throw behind the pitcher's box and threw to home. But Ryan dropped the ball as Gallagher crashed into him with the first Friar run.

Game played:

May 30, 1935

Providence and State went out in order in the fourth. It was in this frame Gorman was ruled out for interference when he bumped Marion, who was trying to catch his foul pop fly between home and first.

With State out of the way in the fifth, Providence laid wood to D'Entremont's offerings to score four runs. Belliveau singled to deep short and made certain of the hit by sliding face first into the bag. He went to second when Applin erred on D'Entremont's peg to first in an attempt to catch him off the bag.

Gallagher's sacrifice to D'Entremont moved Belliveau around to third. With the count 3-2 against him, Gus Hagstrom hit a double to the right field fence to score Belliveau and place himself in position to tally. Landry's single to left field sent Hagstrom home. Madden's grounder was mishandled by Fay, Ram shortstop, and Landry romped to second. Both Madden and Landry came home on Marion's triple.

* * *

Marion hit to deep left centre and Fisher, Martin, Pascoe all had a part in relaying the ball into Ryan who nailed Marion at home. It was Pascoe's expert throw to the plate which enabled Ryan to tag Marion out. Hazell grounded out to end the inning.

In the sixth Providence tallied when Belliveau singled and Applin erred to permit Collins to score. Marion singled to right in the seventh, but died on second after stealing to that point.

The usual huddle at home plate was prolonged when Keaney questioned the ground rules. Marion, Madden, Gorman, Kelleher, Gardella and Keaney were the huddlists.

Marion Completes the Circuit

Leo Marion, hard-hitting first baseman of the Providence College Friars, crosses the plate after his four-ply wallop to left in the eighth inning of the Providence-Brown game at Aldrich Field yesterday. The run was the only earned one of the game which the Friars won 3 to 1.

BY F. C. MATZEK

Providence College and Fred "Lefty" Collins made it two out of three for the season against the Brown Bears and Ambrose Murray yesterday at Aldrich Field as the Friars took the third and deciding game of the city championship series 3 to 1.

A four-hit pitching exhibition by Providence's crack southpaw gave him his second victory in three starts against the Bruins this spring and likewise gave him his second triumph in three duels with Murray, Bruin portsider. The latter was nicked for seven hits, one a homer by Leo Marion.

Sloppy play on the part of both supporting casts marred what otherwise might have been an exceptionally keen pitching battle. Marion's score on his homer opening the eighth was the lone earned run of the quartet tallied. Miscues were of assistance to the Bears in scoring their one marker and to the Friars in counting their other two.

The Bruins took the lead in the fourth with the Friars knotting the count in the sixth, getting the deciding marker in the following frame and adding an additional one, by Marion, in the eighth.

Perry Elrod drew one of the nine passes issued by Collins to open the sixth. The Bruin centre fielder went to second when Hagstrom dropped a third strike on Butler and continued to third as Frankie Brown went out on an infield play. Murray drove in the runner with a scatch single close to second base.

Game played: June 3, 1935

BUTLER REACHES FOR A HIGH ONE

Brown first sacker snares a high toss from Levinson at short on Milt Bleiden's scratch single in the sixth inning of the Brown-Providence College game at Aldrich Field yesterday. The Friars won 3 to 1 to take the city championship.

Providence tied the score in the sixth when Madden walked and scored after Marion had sacrificed him to second on a bunt, Butler making the putout at first and then throwing past an uncovered third base. Later in the same inning Bleiden singled through short and reached second on a steal that drew a throw from Harrie Hart that went out to centre when no one was covering the keystone station. The Friar shortstop advanced to third on the peg but remained there as Belliveau fled out.

* * *

Gallagher tallied the winning run in the seventh after walking to start that frame. Hagstrom sacrificed him to second and he went on to third when Murray's toss to Levenson got away from the Bear short fielder. Collins took a hand in winning his own game with a single to centre to send Gallagher home.

Marion added to the Friar total with his homer to left starting the eighth. Hazell and Bleiden followed with singles and Belliveau walked to fill the cushions. Gallagher hit to Levenson forcing Hazell at the plate. Bleiden went out the same way when Hagstrom grounded to Frankie Brown. Belliveau was caught at the plate, Murray to Hart, on an attempted steal.

The weird baseball that was served up in both previous games this spring was in order yesterday, too. Not all of it was confined to the three innings in which unearned runs were scored. Mickey O'Reilly got the first of four straight passes he received off Collins in the first frame but was forced at second, Collins to Bleiden, on Appleyard's roller. Bleiden pegged over Marion's head in an attempt to double up the Brown third baseman. The latter continued on to second but was doubled up there, Marion to Bleiden, as the Friar first sacker made a quick retrieve of the ball as it bounded back from the wall in front of the stands.

Providence's triumph gave the Friars the city crown to add to the State championship which they had clinched prior to yesterday's tilt.

Yale is the next opponent on the Providence College baseball schedule the Friars invading New Haven tomorrow for a game with the Bulldogs. The Dominicans have won 11 games, tied one and lost six. Their victories have been made over Princeton, Villanova, St. John's, Holy Cross, Brown, Rhode Island State, Springfield and Stroudsburg.

This year's Friar nine is expected to shake the so-called jinx which has bothered other Dominican nines in their games at New Haven. Karl Sherry, conqueror of Holy Cross which trounced Yale 14-4 in a recent game, will start for the Friars. Johnny Reid is the probable catching selection.

Yale has won four and lost four in Eastern Intercollegiate play and ranks second both in the team batting and fielding averages. Rankin, one of the best pitchers on the Eli staff, is expected to face the Friars with Klein catching. Klimczak, Woodlock and Curtin are Yale's heavy hitters with marks well over the .300 average.

ond Base.

Game played:

June 5, 1935

Behind the four-hit pitching of Karl Sherry, the Providence college Friars yesterday defeated Yale 2 to 0, for the first Yale shutout of the season here. The contest was virtually a pitchers battle as Charley Dillingham except for lapses in the opening frame and the seventh, kept pace with Sherry in retiring the sides almost with regularity. He allowed six hits and the seventh was garnered off Bernie Rankin who pitched the final frame after Horton had hit for Dillingham in the eighth.

Ray Belliveau and Johnny Madden connected for five of the visitors' hits, the former getting three singles, the latter two.

Yale had more chances to count than did Providence, but Sherry tightened in the pinches and some snappy fielding cut short Eli rallies.

For the Friars, Omer Landry in the left garden corraled six labelled hits, while Milt Bliedon and Madden made difficult saves to choke off possible Yale hits.

The throwing of Phil Klein was pretty, three of the visitors succumbing to his accuracy at the midway station. Captain Woodlock showed some of his oldtime stuff too, in fielding. But for a wide throw by Klimczak in the final frame, which was cancelled by Klein's throw to Curtin nipping Bliedon, Yale played errorless ball.

A pass to Madden, Marion's double along the right field foul line and Hazell's sacrifice fly to Armstrong gave the Friars a run in the first inning. Thereafter until the sixth no more than three batters faced Dillingham. In the sixth Madden singled after two were down but died when Kelley snared Marion's line drive.

In the seventh Hazell led off with a single over second. Bliedon sacrificed, Dillingham to Kelley. Belliveau lined a hit too hot for Klimczak to handle and Hazell scored the second final tally of the game.

(Special to the Providence Journal.)
New Haven, Conn., June 5—The performance given by Karl Sherry, Providence College pitcher, of white-washing Yale 2-0 with only four singles marked the most brilliant pitching of the season against the Elis. The Friars scored their only two runs off Charley Dillingham, reserve twirler who allowed six hits in the eight innings he remained in the box. They got one hit off Bernie Rankin, who replaced him in the ninth.

Yale played almost errorless ball. A wide throw to first base by Walter Klimcyak, handling Milt Bleiden's difficult bouncer in the ninth, was the only Eli misplay.

Both nines exhibited dazzling fielding form, Bleiden and Ray Belliveau contributing sparkling stops and throws.

John Madden scored the opening run in the first inning on his base on balls and Leo Marion's two-bagger along the right field line. Tom Hazell's single in the seventh, Bleiden's sacrifice and Belliveau's single to left sent Hazell across with the second run.

Tommy Curtin, the only Yale player to reach third, singled in the second and advanced on Capt. Woodlock's sacrifice. He took third on Phil Klein's out but was stranded as Larry Kelley fanned.

EAGLES DOWN FRIARS

Dominicans Bow Twice To Bludgeoning Eagles

6-3, 6-5

Friars Sink 6-3 and 6-5 in 16
Innings as Boston College
Explodes 27 Hits.

By E. G. MATZEK

A 27-hit barrage laid down on a trio of Providence College hurlers gave the Boston College Eagles two victories over the Friars at Hendricken Field yesterday. Dividing their total of hits as evenly as possible, the Eagles rapped out 14 off Karl Sherry in the first game for a 6 to 3 triumph and came back with 13 more off Collins and Brooks in a seven-inning afterpiece to win, 6 to 5.

Tight infield defensive play that included three double plays was helpful to the Eagle cause in the opening tilt. Three home runs, two by Concannon, and one by Pagliuca, drove in all of Boston's runs in the nightcap.

The double victory by the Eagles all but spoiled the day for Friar adherents who were celebrating "Leo Marion Day" in honor of the Dominican co-captain and first baseman. Held to one hit, a single, in the first game and to but one more, a double, in the second, Marion nevertheless played a star role. He scored twice himself, drove in a run and had a hand in three of four double plays executed by the Friars.

Game played: June 8, 1935

Leo Marion, Providence College co-captain, is shown above after tagging Anderson of Boston College at home plate on a perfect throw from Omer Landry in the sixth inning of the first game at Hendricken Field. Landry came in fast to take Galligan's drive in left field and pegged home to Marion, covering the base line, to catch Anderson. The Eagles won both games, 6-3, 6-5. Shown in the photo are, left to right, Umpire Gardella, Catcher Reid, Marion, Anderson on the ground and Pitcher Sherry.

Deprived of a chance to lead his team to victory Marion's afternoon, however, was not featureless. A delegation from Putnam, Conn., the Friar star's home city, met him at home plate his first time at bat and with Mayor Francis H. Murphy of Putnam as their spokesman, presented Marion with a $500 purse and a fountain pen. Lending both color and music to the occasion the St. Mary's School Band of Putnam played throughout the afternoon.

Boston pushed into the lead in the second inning of the first tilt when Curran singled and scored on Anderson's double to centre. The Friars came back to get that run back and another one with it in the fourth. Marion singled to open the inning. Hazell followed with a single and Bleiden walked to fill the bases. The Friar co-captain scored when Galligan let loose a pitch that got past Fallon. Hazell pulled up at third but scored on Gallagher's single.

The Eagles evened the count in the fifth on Galligan's single and O'Flaherty's double against the fence in right field. Curran, lead-off man for Boston in the sixth, smashed one of Sherry's pitches over the fence to put his club in the lead once again. Pagliuca's double, Bleiden's error on Anderson's grounder and a bunt single by Fallon filled the bases before the Friars settled down. Terry forced Pagliuca at home, Marion to Reid and Galligan hit into a double play. Landry ran in to get the B. C. pitcher's line drive to left and then made a perfect throw to Marion in front of the plate. The latter tagged Anderson as he tried to score after the catch.

Belliveau and Reid combined to give the Friars an even break in the score in the last of the same inning. The second sacker singled, stole second and counted on Reid's two-base smash to right centre. Reid was out on a relay to third when he tried to stretch the hit to a triple.

That ended Providence's scoring for the game although the Friars threatened in the seventh when Landry's single, Madden's double and a walk to Marion filled the bases. The threat was dissipated when Hazell lined into a double play.

The Eagles won the game in the eighth when Anderson scored on Terry's single after he had drawn a walk and stolen second. They added to their total with two more markers in the ninth. O'Flaherty opened with a single. Ready sacrificed him along and Concannon fanned before Curran came through with a scorching single that got by Hazell, enabling the Boston first baseman to reach second. Bleiden knocked down Pagliuca's hard grounder but couldn't make a play and both runners were safe. The latter drew a throw to second on a delayed double steal, allowed himself to be caught in a sling between first and second and Curran scored, beating out Marion's throw to the plate.

Putnam Honors A Native Son

A delegation from Putnam, Conn., headed by Mayor Francis H. Murphy, shown at home plate on the Hendricken Field diamond on Saturday as they presented a purse of money and a fountain pen set to a Putnam boy, Leo Marion, first baseman and co-captain of the Providence College baseball nine. Marion is shown in the centre of the photo accepting the gift from Mayor Murphy.

Three Eagle homers decided the second game. Concannon got his first over the right field fence with Ready on base, to send his club away to a 2-0 lead in the first canto. Pagliuca dropped one over the same section of the fence in the third after Concannon and Curran had singled. Concannon added the sixth and winning run with a homer inside the field in left in the fourth frame.

The Friars broke into the score column in the last of the fourth when Tom Hazell opened the inning with a lift over the short right field barrier. Belliveau came through with a triple to left and scored after Gallagher's fly to right.

Still on a batting rampage, the Friars tallied three more in the fifth after two were out. Brooks, on the mound in place of Collins, fanned to open the inning. Landry, captain-elect of the Friars, got his fourth hit of the two games, a single, but was forced at second by Madden. The Friar third sacker went to second on Mahoney's wild throw to Curran and scored when Marion drove a double through the Boston first baseman's hands.

Marion tallied the second run of the frame on Bleiden's single after advancing on a one-ply hit by Hazell. The latter crossed the plate when Belliveau's low drive proved too hot for Pagliuca to hold. Duffy, Boston southpaw, assumed a relief role for the second time during the afternoon, going in to pitch to Belliveau. Gallagher ended the rally when he grounded to Duffy. In the first game the Eagle portsider replaced Galligan with Marion at bat and with two out and two on in the ninth. That threat faded when the Friar first baseman went out on a fly to right.

Collins felt most of the Boston bombardment in the second game. The Dominican southpaw was nicked for 10, of Boston's hits during the first, two and two-thirds innings. Brooks held the Eagles to three hits and one run, Concannon's second homer, the remainder of the distance. Yesterday's games ended Providence's season.

LANDRY ELECTED FRIAR CAPTAIN

Central Falls Boy, Football
Leader, Is Picked to Similar Honors in Baseball.

Omer Landry of Central Falls, Providence College outfielder, was elected captain of the 1936 Friar baseball team at a meeting of the Dominican lettermen held after yesterday's double-header with Boston College.

Landry is the second Rhode Islander in as many years to hold the captaincies of two Friar athletic teams. William Kutneski of this city was football captain in 1934 and leader of the basketball team this season.

Landry is a former schoolboy luminary and played three sports for St. Raphael's Academy. He is the smallest member of the team and in addition to holding the baseball leadership he also is captain-elect of the 1935 football eleven.

In his Sophomore year Landry played right field and then was shifted to centre when Leo Marion was moved to first base. This season Landry has played in left field.

The Providence College Athletic Council will award letters to the following Varsity players:

Co-Captain John Madden, Pittsfield, Mass.; Co-Captain Leo Marion, Putnam; Captain-elect Omer Landry, Central Falls; Fred Collins, New Milford, Conn.; Karl Sherry, Pawtucket; Marshall Brooks, New Haven; Edward Eldredge, Middlebury, Vt.; Leo Langan, Somerville, Mass.; Tom Hammond, Fall River.

Alfred Hagstrom, Gloucester; William Fitzgerald, East Providence; John McCabe, Pawtucket; John Reid, Pittsfield; Joseph Lefebvre, Pawtucket; Raymond Belliveau, Fitchburg; Milton Elsdon, Staten Island; Edward Banahan, New Haven; Thomas Hazel, Brighton; Charles Gallagher, Newton.

Freshman numerals will be awarded to: Frank Zavadskis, Cleveland; John Lynch, Caldwell, N. J.; Paul Ryan, Haverhill; John Lengyel, New Haven; Charles Kelley, Wallingford, Conn.; William Spinnler, Paterson, N. J.; Leo Fischer, Springfield, O.; Don Minicucci, Naugatuck, Conn.; Leo Floski, Albany.

Charles Gaffney, Providence; William Moge, Springfield, Mass.; Thomas Appleton, Cranston; Edward Bobinski, New Haven; John Crowley, Cumberland; William Kosick, Cleveland; Norman Eichner, Torrington, Conn.; Vincent Ahearn, Derby, Conn.; Michael McGarry, New London, manager.

Friar Frosh Nine Booked In 12 Games

P. C. Yearlings Open Season at Hendricken Field on April 12

Twelve games, all of major importance, were announced today for the Providence College Freshman baseball team by John E. Farrell, graduate manager of athletics. The list is the most difficult ever tackled by a yearling nine at the local college, and will thoroughly test the mettle of the Friar first year men.

Featured on the card are seven games to be played at Hendricken Field, with contests booked against the Harvard, Brown, Boston College, Holy Cross and Rhode Island State Freshman nines as the outstanding tilts. The opening game is set for April 10, with the State Teachers College nine from Bridgewater, Mass., providing the opposition. The Harvard Freshmen come here after the Easter recess.

The addition of the home and home series with the Rhode Island State Freshmen will result in a triangular series for the State supremacy, as home and home tilts are also booked with the Brown Freshmen. Otherwise the list contains the annual opponents, including Dean Academy, St. John's Prep, and Boston College.

Though little is known of the calibre of the ball tossers in the Freshman ranks, yet it is a certainty they will have to step at a lively clip to equal the fine record of last year's cub nine, which lost but three games in 11, bowing to the Cross yearlings, to St. John's Prep, and to Dean Academy. Many from this team will move into Jack Flynn's Varsity lineup this spring, as graduation depleted the squad last June, and many first string position will be open to competition.

The complete schedule, games at Hendricken Field unless specified otherwise, is as follows:

FRIAR FRESHMEN IN PRACTICE GAME

Ray Belliveau Gets Four Hits in Varsity Drill; Coleman Features at First.

There were several interesting developments in the Providence College baseball camp yesterday afternoon as the Varsity and Freshman players practiced despite the chilling weather. The yearlings had their first practice game with three teams in action. Several promising prospects showed skill in the field and at bat.

As far as batteries go the Freshmen appear to have three combinations of winning calibre. Bill Spinnler, Jack Lengyel and Charles Kelly possess plenty of ability as catchers. On the mound Paul Ryan, captain of the Freshman football team, Appleton and Zawadski have shown well in the early work.

In the Varsity practice, Ray Belliveau hit a homer, triple and two singles, to turn in a sparkling exhibition of batting power. He is expected to share second base duties with Charlie Gallagher, who led the Freshman batters last year.

Ralph Coleman turned in a capable session at first base. He promises to make Hank Soar and Joe Curnane step fast before conceding them the assignment. Gus Hagstrom was behind the plate during a portion of the afternoon and caught the offerings of Ed Eldredge and Karl Sherry in good style.

The three Freshman teams as they lined up yesterday were Appleton, pitcher; Spinnler, catcher; Fischer, Blaney, O'Neil and O'Connell in the infield and Klossick, Bobinski and Polak in the outfield. The second nine: Ryan and Lengyel; Marion, Ahearn, Ploski and Moge; and Taylor, Crowley and Gorman. The third combination was: Zawadski and Kelly; Borges, Isacco, Torelli and McInnes; and Crawley, Eichner and Mulshenock.

FRIAR FRESHMEN

TRIP BECKER 10-1

(Special to the Providence Journal)
 Worcester, Mass., April 15.—Providence College freshmen had little difficulty scoring a 10 to 1 victory over Becker College here today in the opening baseball game of the season for both teams. The visitors cut loose with a 13-hit attack behind Ryan's five-hit pitching and had the game in hand all the way. The Businessmen played poorly afield, committing six errors which didn't help their cause any.

Ploski's triple followed by Crowley's single winged the Freshmen into a three-run lead in the second inning. Seney's failure to hang on to a long fly in the third sent two Friar runs in and some timely hitting gave them three more tallies in the fifth.

In the fifth inning, Moge, Providence third sacker, split a finger on his throwing hand and was forced to retire.

FRIAR FRESHMEN GAIN 2-1 VICTORY

Ploski's Triple in 8th Brings Decision Against Harvard
Yearlings.

Game played:

April 25, 1935

A triple by Leo Ploski in the eighth inning, scoring Vin Ahearn from second base, gave the Providence College Freshmen a 2-1 victory over the Harvard Freshmen at Hendricken field yesterday afternoon in the Friar yearlings' opening home baseball game.

The Friar Freshmen scored one run in the third inning but Harvard tied the count in the fifth. Both pitchers tightened up from then on until Ploski's three-base hit finally broke the tie. The pitching was close all during the game with Frank Zavadskis, winning twirler, allowing only three hits and Ray Ingalls limiting the Friars to five bingles.

Ahearn, Providence second baseman, singled over second base in the third and advanced to second when Frank Zavadskis drew a walk. Leo Ploski laid a neat infield hit along the third baseline to load the bases. ^{John} Tom Crowley hit a roller to Ray Ingalls, Harvard pitcher, who threw home to force Ahearn. Then Zavadskis scored when Colwell, Harvard catcher, threw to first.

Knowlton was safe at first on Ahearn's error in the fifth and went to second on Ingalls's sacrifice. Stewart reached first on a fielder's choice and then Knowlton tallied on Sullivan's sacrifice fly to Gorman in deep right field.

Ahearn bunted along the third base line and advanced when Ingalls threw wide to first base. Ploski connected with a triple to right sending Ahearn home with the second Friar score. The inning ended as Ingalls fanned Crowley and Minicucci.

Zavadskis made victory certain for the Friar Freshmen when he struck out the three Harvard batsmen who faced him in the ninth. The Friar hurler aided in his team's defence with eight assists.

FRIAR FRESHMEN DEFEAT RAMLETS

Scoring runs in the fifth and sixth innings to break a three-all tie, the Providence College Freshmen defeated Rhode Island's Freshman baseball team yesterday afternoon at Hendricken field 5-3. A steady rain fell during most of the contest.

Paul Ryan of the Friars limited the visitors to three hits and was in trouble only in the fifth inning when a high throw to first by Minicucci, Dominican third baseman, started the Ramlets on a three-run rally. Larkin and Abrams hit singles in this frame to send the Ram runners around. A fine play at home, Ryan to Spinnler, nipped Larkin at the plate, preventing another Rhody tally.

Ryan set the Ramlets down in order in all but the third, fifth and eighth innings. Four errors weakened the Ram front and permitted the Friars to score a vital run in the fifth as they went ahead of the Kingstonians.

The game was the first of a home-and-home series. The next game will be played at Kingston on May 24.

FRIAR FRESHMEN WIN 4TH STRAIGHT

Big Third Inning Gives Dominican Yearlings 5-4 Triumph Over B. C. Eaglets

Providence College's unbeaten freshman baseball team extended its winning streak to four games by downing the Boston College freshmen 5-4 in a free hitting contest at Hendricken field yesterday afternoon.

Providence had a big third inning with Leo Fischer's home run over the short centre field fence, the highlight of the attack. After Zavadskis flied out to centre, Leo Ploski connected for a double to deep right. Appleton was safe on Carey's error.

Minicucci grounded out to Bonin, but Jack Lengyel singled to send Ploski and Appleton home. Fischer then drove out the first home run of the game to send in Lengyel with the third and fourth Friar runs. Bobinski singled, but the inning ended when Gaffney struck out.

Ploski started the seventh inning for the Friars with a neat single over second. He stole second and came in on Lengyel's second single to end the Friar scoring.

The Eaglets scored one run in the third as Bonin reached on Gaffney's error and scored when Gorman dropped an easy out in right field.

FRIAR FRESHMEN BEAT BROWN 9-1

Fourteen Passes and Three Hit Batters Mark Provi-dence's Fifth Victory.

Providence College's freshman baseball team won its fifth straight game of the season, downing Brown freshmen, 9-1, in a loosely-played contest at Hendricks field, yesterday afternoon. Three Brown pitchers and two Friar twirlers issued 14 bases on balls, hit three players and made the contest a long drawn-out affair.

The outstanding hit of the game was Leo Fischer's home run in the first inning off Bill Dickinson's delivery at the time when Crowley and Appleton were on the bases. Later in the game Wright hit Brown's only extra-base clout, a triple. Catcher Charlie Kelly, starting his first game for the Friar freshmen, made a triple in the fourth frame.

Brown took a short-lived one-run lead in the first inning. Brokaw walked and was followed by Wright, who reached first on Friar errors. Kelly's error sent the Bruin runners to second and third, respectively, and Brokaw scored on Hinckley's sacrifice fly in left.

Moge scored for the Dominicans in the first inning after Fischer had hit his homer to account for three Friar tallies. After doubling, Moge advanced when Bobinski drew a walk and Ahearn reached on an error. Moge came home as Burkhart hit Kelly for a forced run.

Five Friar runs in the second followed six walks, two hits and an error. Burkhart replaced Dickinson for Brown in the first inning, but did not fare very well. He gave way to Eccleston in the second after issuing five walks. Vic Lynch went to the mound for the Friars when Moher weakened in the third frame.

Scoring For Friar Freshmen in First Inning

Moge, third baseman of the Providence College freshman nine, is shown sliding at home plate safely with the second Dominican run of the first inning at Hendricken Field yesterday in the game with the Brown Freshmen. The Friar yearlings won the contest 9-1.

FRIAR FRESHMAN

NINE WINS, 10-6

Defeats St. John's Prep With Four-Run Rally in Sixth.

Overcoming a three-run lead in the fifth inning, the Providence College Freshmen baseball team annexed its sixth victory yesterday, defeating the St. John's prep nine at Hendricken Field, 10-6. Although they ran up a two-run lead, the Friars were unable to stem a Saints' rally, and going into the fifth they were behind, 5-2.

Four runs in the sixth gave the home team a lead which they never relinquished. McDonald, losing pitcher, was in trouble in the fifth, sixth and seventh, as he hit two Friars and walked two. He was touched for four hits in these frames, but the real trouble was in the St. John's fielding, which weakened at this point.

A triple by Bond and doubles by Somy and Lengyel were the feature bits of hitting in the game. A double play, Merullo to Palombo to Bond, in the seventh halted a Providence threat, which had already accounted for two runs.

SPORT - N - ALITIES

By HY NEIGHER

Arlington, Vt., claims one of Springfield's most popular all-around athletes inasmuch as he was born there on Sept. 3, 1912. However, he has been living in the City of Homes since he was four years old.

Bill Moge is an invaluable "jockey" on the baseball field. He has received plenty of athletic lore from his brothers, Al and Gus, who were athletes in their own rights. While he has no younger brothers, he retaliates somewhat by teaching the neighborhood kids the inside dope on sports. In baseball he has no par at third base in the city for all-around performance. He is a good hitter and surprisingly fast for his size. His addition to the Westinghouse basketball team a year ago lifted the team from the doldrums of the Triple A League to the championship. Moge was graduated from Tech. He can punt 60 yards with ease and pass with the dexterity of Benny Freidman. Prominence in sports goes into other fields for he is the leading pool player in Brightwood. He attended St. Anslems College.

He is now attending Providence College but this time he intends to stick. Moge's desire is to be an athletic coach at some high school or college.

MOGE'S HIT WINS FOR FRIAR FROSH

(Special to the Providence Journal)
Newton, Mass., May 14—Providence College Freshmen nosed out Boston College youngsters, 1-0 in one of the closest baseball contests seen on the Eagles' diamond this spring.

The game featured a pitching duel between Steve Zawadkis of the visitors and O'Hara. The duel was broken up in the eighth with a hit and pair of local errors.

John Crowley, a Friar cub lead-off man and left fielder opened the eighth with a clean hit by shortstop Fred Minicucci reached on Anglin's error at third base but the next ball to Anglin, a hard hit grounder, was safely scooped up and Crowley was forced at third, Minicucci stopping at second.

FRIAR YEARLINGS WIN 9-1 AT STATE

Providence College baseball forces scored their second triumph of the week over the Rhode Island State teams when the Friar yearlings upset the Rhody first year men, 9 to 1, yesterday afternoon at Kingston. The win was the Friar Freshmen's second win of the season over the Ramlets.

Victor Lynch, Providence hurler, gave three bingles. George Hines, the Rhode Island finger, was the victim of loose support on the part of his teammates.

P. C. Frosh Coach

JOHN FARRELL

P. C. Diamond Frosh End History-Making Campaign

Coach Farrell's Yearling
Squad to Furnish Good
Varsity Material

The baseball future at Providence College looms as exceptionally bright these days, particularly as the result of the Friars victory over the previously undefeated Crusaders on Saturday with seven underclassmen in the starting lineup, but in general due to the brilliant work of the freshman squad which completed the current campaign undefeated in eleven starts. With such a fine nucleus to work with next spring, the Friars have high hopes of enjoying one of their brightest baseball campaigns.

The freshman team scored its eleventh and final victory of the season last Friday by downing the Rhode Island State yearlings at Kingston by a 9 to 1 count in a seven inning game. Coached by John E. Farrell, graduate manager of athletics at the college, the Friar first year men presented a smart and well-balanced aggregation. Farrell absorbed a fund of baseball knowledge as the result of eight years of close contact with Jack Flynn at the Smith Hill college, and he has been a strict task master in keeping the yearlings travelling at top speed.

Of especial interest in checking over the freshman group is the fine work of Bill Moge, third baseman, and Leo Fischer, first sacker, both of whom will be counted upon to fill the vacancies to be made by the graduation of Johnny Madden and Leo Marion of this year's varsity. Moge, a husky all round performer who starred as fullback in football, and as a guard with the basketball team, hails from Springfield, Mass., while Fischer is a resident of Springfield, Ohio. Moge is a fine fielder, and has a very strong throwing arm. He was out of action the first two weeks of the season due to a hand injury, but once in the lineup proved to be one of the best performers of the group.

FISCHER STARS AT FIRST

Fischer, a southpaw fielder and hitter, has already attracted much attention by his classy first base play, and many close followers of Friar sports rank him as a fielder on a par with O. Perrin who guarded the first sack for the locals so well for three seasons. Fischer is a fine hitter, and was one of the leading batters of the team this spring. He hoisted home run drives over the right-centre fence on Hendricken Field against the Brown freshmen, and the Boston College freshmen.

The varsity catching staff gets a fine receiver in Johnny Lengyel, a product of New Haven high. Lengyel couples a strong throwing arm with a fine all round ability for his position, and Coach Jack Egan has cast envious eyes at him many times this spring when seeking the solution of the varsity catching problem. Charlie Kelly, a rangy youngster from Wallingford, and Bill Spinnler, football and basketball numeral winner from Paterson are other catchers who will come in for consideration.

Providence NEWS-TRIBUNE

HURLING OUTLOOK BRIGHT

The pitching staff of three right handers should give Egan a great array of hurlers. Frank Zavadskis, Cleveland product, turned in some clever box work in scoring wins over the freshman teams of Harvard, Brown and Boston College (twice), while Paul Ryan, freshman football leader last fall, and a former pitching ace at St. James High in Haverhill, accounted for wins over Becker College, Rhode Island freshmen, St. John's Prep, and Bridgewater Teachers College.

Vic Lynch, a big 185 pound six footer from Caldwell, N. J., was handicapped by a hand infection at the start of the season, and did not draw action until late in the campaign, but his work stamped him as a fine varsity prospect. He hurled six innings against the Brown freshmen when the Friars won a 9 to 1 game, defeated S. John's Prep 6 to 2, and held Rhode Island yearlings to three scattered hits in the finale last Friday. Tom Moher, Nashua boy, saw action for three innings in the first Brown tilt.

In addition to Moge and Fischer, the freshmen offer four other infielders who will merit consideration when the varsity is being picked next year. Leo Ploski, hard hitting shortstop from Albany who was forced to the sidelines with a broken nose three weeks ago, Charlie Gaffney, former La Salle act who saw action at both second and short, and Dom Minicucci and Vin Ahearn, two Connecticut youngsters, who worked at second base all season, will be the ones ready to force the present varsity players for the assignment next spring.

FLEET OUTFIELDERS

Defensively the freshmen outfield trio of John Crowley of Cumberland in left, Ed Bobinski of New Haven in center, and Tom Appleton in right, is the finest to perform on Hendricken Field in years. All three are fleet of foot and have acquired a knack of going back fast after long drives which loom as possible base hits. All have good throwing arms, with Bobinski a standout in this respect. Crowley turned in some timely hitting, but Bobinski had to fight his way out of a batting slump and it was not until the end of the season that he began to boost his average. Appleton will be a hard man to keep off the varsity next spring as he is a natural left handed hitter. He hit consistently all spring, and was well over the .350 mark when the campaign closed.

Other yearlings who aided in giving the Friars their second undefeated team in their sports history were Joseph Kossick, a husky outfielder from Cleveland, who played for Aquinas high in Columbus last year, Norm Eichner, Torrington product who saw action in the outfield and who handled first base in the final two contests when Fischer was injured, and Stan Gorman, an outfielder from Enfield, Conn.

The season record of the freshmen is as follows:

Providence Freshmen 10, Becker College 1.
Providence Freshmen 2, Harvard Freshmen 1.
Providence Freshmen 5, R. I. State Freshmen 3.
Providence Freshmen 5, Boston College Freshmen 4.
Providence Freshmen 9, Brown Freshmen 1.
Providence Freshmen 10, St. John's Prep 6.
Providence Freshmen 1, Boston College Freshmen 0.
Providence Freshmen 14, Bridge-water Teachers College 4.
Providence Freshmen 6, St. John's Prep 2.
Providence Freshmen 4, Brown Freshmen 1.
Providence Freshmen 9, Rhode Island Freshmen 1.

The last two are graduates from the Freshman ranks.

DANIEL J. HART TO LEAD
FRIAR TENNIS TEAM

Robert Carroll of This City Appointed Manager of Club.

Daniel J. Hart of Millville, Mass., was appointed Varsity tennis captain of the Providence College team yesterday by the Athletic Council. Hart has been a regular on the team for the past two years and is the only senior letterman returning to the squad this year.

Prospects for the Friar netmen are very favorable this year with the presence of Francis Fitzpatrick on the team. Other capable players who are seeking berths are Tom Regan, Tom Hagen, Irv Anger, Joe Pelchat and Norm Sandler.

Robert Carroll of this city has been appointed manager. Quentin Geary, also of Providence, will manage the Freshman squad. Carroll was the Freshman manager last season.

The call for tennis players was made this week but the weather has prevented any practice. A strong schedule, including participation in the New England Intercollegiates at Amherst, faces the Friar tennis team this year.

Hitting a Double for Giants in Hopeless Cause Against Indians

Leo Marion, recruit first baseman in the New York Giants' camp, is shown at bat at Pensacola training camp on Friday. He is just about to hit a double which started a ninth-inning rally of two runs. But the Cleveland team had scored four and won, 4 to 2. Sullivan is the Cleveland catcher and Babe Pinelli the umpire

Providence College Lists R. I. State in Baseball

Princeton, Villanova Also on Schedule Which Retains 1934 Features.

Providence College will tackle an ambitious baseball schedule of 21 games this season which includes all the features of last year's listing plus contests with Princeton, Villanova and Rhode Island State. After opening at home with City College on April 13 the Friars will take their annual spring trip meeting East Stroudsburg Teachers, Princeton, Villanova and St. John's in one of the most strenuous weeks appearing on schedule.

The annual intra-city championship series with Brown University will be played in early May and will be closely followed by the two games with Rhode Island State. These listings provide opportunity to select a State College diamond champion and bring the three Rhode Island college teams together for the first time in baseball.

One game has been arranged with Dartmouth this year and will be played in Providence. The Big Green sent a team here last year only to have the game rained out and in the meeting at Honover tripped the Friars 3-2 in one of the Dominicans' few upsets. The Holy Cross series will start in Worcester on May 4 and close in Providence on May 25 while the Boston College games are listed for June 1st away and June 8th here.

Yale, Harvard and Princeton are a trio of the outstanding single games to be played by the Friars this year. Princeton is listed for the first time while the Harvard and Yale encounters hold the same place as they did last year.

Coach Jack Flynn faces many problems after last year's landslide graduation which swept away such clever stars as Catchers George Tebbetts and Oliver Roberge; Pitchers Al Blanche, Charlie Burdge and Charlie Rennick; Infielders Ed Reilly and Walter Corbett, the 1934 captain; and Outfielder Ed Koslowski.

Although there are only four lettermen returning, the crop of Sophomores which will be seeking berths on the Varsity makes the outlook for the Friars bright enough. Co-captains Johnny Madden and Leo Marion, Omer Landry, football captain-elect, and Ed Eldredge, promising southpaw twirler, are the lettermen reporting this season. Dick Burns, a regular in right field during most of last year, did not return to college this year, leaving another gap in the ranks.

Among the other veterans on the squad will be Leo Lanigan, pitcher; John McCabe, John Reid and Bill Fitzgerald, catchers; Paul Healey, shortstop, and Peter Gobis and Frank Holden, outfielders. The Freshman squad of last year will furnish capable pitchers in Fred Collins, Marshall Brooks, Tom Hammond, Karl Sherry, Bill Doolan and Frank Donahue together with Catchers Al Hagstom and Pete Lekakos.

Hank Soar, Joe Curnane and Frank Coleman will be ready to take over first base duties while Ray Belliveau, Tom Hazell, Milt Bleiden, Ed Banahan and Charlie Gallagher battle for the other infield assignments. The outfielders include Ben Smith, Joe Lefebvre and Carl Angelica.

The 1935 schedule follows (games will be played at home unless otherwise noted):

Saturday, April 13, City College of New York; 17, Stroudsburg Teachers' College at East Stroudsburg, Pa.; 18, Princeton University at Princeton, N. J.; 20, Villanova College at Villanova, Pa.; 21, St. John's University at Brooklyn, N. Y.; 27, Dartmouth.

May 1, Springfield College; 4, Holy Cross at Worcester, Mass.; 6, Lowell Textile at Lowell, Mass.; 8, Harvard University at Cambridge, Mass.; 11, Brown University at Aldrich Field; 12, St. John's University; 14, New Hampshire; 16, Villanova College; 18, Brown at Aldrich Field; 22, Rhode Island State at Kingston, R. I.; 23, Holy Cross; 30, (Memorial Day), Rhode Island State.

June 1, Boston College at Boston; 5, Yale University at New Haven, Conn.; 8, Boston College.

Coakley's Proposal for Collegiate World Series Finds Favor, With Japan Interested

By J. P. Abramson

ANDY COAKLEY, veteran Columbia baseball coach, who has proposed a college world series among representatives of all the major conferences in the country as well as a team from Japan, has broached the project to a Japanese official and finds him sympathetic to the venture.

Coakley has outlined his plans to Sadao Iguchi, Japanese consul in New York, who will contact the baseball authorities in Nippon, where the college game is paramount. From Mr. Iguchi, Coakley learned that the Japanese colleges have a spring and a fall series. The spring series winds up the first week in June. If a Japanese team were selected to play in the colleg series here it would have to depart June 6 to reach this city June 22.

Inasmuch as Coakley's project calls for the series to start June 24 this would give the Japanese two days in which to get acclimated. The week of June 24 Coakley believes is the only time for the series.

Japanese teams have visited here before and Japan may like the idea of an "official" series for world college supremacy. Even if the Japanese can not make the trip, Coakley would like to see the series played. He is receiving a lot of letters from college authorities commending the plan. The entire project, of course, depends on finding some means of financing it. Coakley believes the series would finance itself, but it would be necessary for the backers to advance guaranties to teams traveling from California, Texas and the far reaches of the country. Baseball angels, if any, will please communicate with Coakley at John Jay Hall.

Providence College, which has produced one of the best teams in the East in recent years, will start its season Saturday at home against C. C. N. Y. with a combination consisting mainly of new players. Jack Egan, successor to the late Jack Flynn, who died last month, is hopeful of maintaining the Friars' standard of play despite the loss by graduation of such players as Al Blanche, Charlie Burge (who never lost a college game) and Charlie Rennick, pitchers; Walter Corbett and Ed Reilly, who worked as the keystone combination for three years; Ed Koslowski, Tom Grady and Dick Burns, outfielders, and Ollie Roberge and George Tebbets, catchers. Tebbets is now with the Detroit Tigers.

Only four letter men are available for the start of the new season. They are Leo Marion, hard-hitting first baseman, and John Madden, third baseman, who are co-captains; Omer Landry, center fielder, and Ed Eldredge, southpaw pitcher.

Egan is grooming Gus Hagstrom and Joe Lefebvre, freshman outfielder last year, for catcher. He is also optimistic over uncovering some pitchers who will stack up with Blanche and Burge. Fred Collins, a southpaw, who was the outstanding freshman hurler; Eldredge, who was credited with the victory over Holy Cross last year; Leo Lanigan, senior, and Marshall Brooks, Walter Doolan, Tom Hammond, Karl Sherry and Frank Donahue, all sophomores, comprise the pitching staff.

With Hank Soar, sophomore, showing promise at first base, Egan has switched Marion back to the outfield. Soar was the Friars' best halfback last fall. He is 6 feet 2 inches tall and weighs 190 pounds. Two other sophomores will be in the infield, Milt Bleiden and Charley Gallagher at short and second, respectively, with Madden at third.

Marion, the team's big man, in left; Landry in center and any one of seven candidates in right will be the outfield. The Friars expect to be a bit shaky at the start, but hope to finish fast as they did last year when they scored thirty-six runs in beating Yale, Holy Cross and Boston College in their last three games. The Friars have scheduled twenty-one games, including Harvard, Yale and Princeton. Holy Cross, Boston College, Brown, Dartmouth. Their only game there is with St. John's on April 21.

HAIL EGAN'S APPOINTMENT

THE appointment of Jack Egan, silver-thatched veteran of thousands of thrilling baseball situations, to take over the coaching reins at Providence College meets with the whole-hearted approval of former Friar stars, undergrads and friends of P. C. Egan has a delightful personality. An assuring smile. He succeeds his former pal and baseball associate, the late Jack Flynn.

Egan is the Connie Mack type of manager. Flynn was convincingly serious. Coach Egan steps in at a time when the P. C. baseball fortunes are at the peak and you may be assured he'll carry on nobly for the Friars and his very dear friend and rival in many baseball battles.

Providence will be playing another of its rugged schedules and the Friars are fortunate at this time to have such a tutor as Egan available. The man who chased Tyrus Cobb from the field time and again when umpiring in the American League; the man who stood out there on the greensward and called them as he saw them, ducking pop bottles in the less gentlemanly days of baseball; the man who took belligerent managers under the grandstand to fight it out with bared knuckles after the game surely knows his way around the highways and byways of the diamond.

Baseball has changed considerably since Egan was a big-time hurler. It is a big business proposition now with tremendous stadiums, costly trainers and the very best of everything. They traveled in moving vans when Jack broke in and they played for blood. It was not an unfamiliar sight to see some clever base stealer sharpening his spikes with a file before game time.

You have none of that now. The game has changed and Coach Egan has changed with it and the Providence College players will like and respect this kindly old director. We'll not go into Egan's age, but he's a full decade on the bright side of Connie Mack and nobody ever thought of the venerable Mr. McGillicuddy being in his dotage. To wit: He sold washed-up Lefty Grove and a flock of others to Tom Yawkey and the Red Sox for $125,000.

Luck to the new coach.

would be in favor of the Friar outfit, which has the knack of a strong finish, as was evidenced by the Princeton game.

In facing Dartmouth the Friars will be taking on the club that is the early season leader in the Eastern Intercollegiate League. The Indians are out front with two victories, a notch ahead of Harvard and Columbia, each having a pair of wins and one loss. Dartmouth walloped Cornell, 11-2, Saturday.

Last year Dartmouth tripped the Friars up, 3-2. The Green has Bob Roundley, winning pitcher in that game, back again for another try.

LANIGAN GETS CHANCE

One of the interesting features of the St. John's game, from a Friar standpoint, was the fact that Leo Lanigan, a senior, who has been trying for a regular pitching berth for four years, but had never seen action on the slab, was given his chance against the Redmen. He started the game and did well enough for seven innings, holding the opposition to five hits, before being removed in favor of Tom Hammond.

The Friars were trailing, 4-3, going into the eighth inning. Frank McGwire, who took up the St. John's hurling burden in the fourth when Johnny Dixson wilted under a Friar rally, was doing well enough, but his support weakened in the eighth and three St. John's errors allowed Gus Hagstrom, Friar Sophomore catcher, to come home with the tying run.

Neither club was able to tally in the ninth. The Friars outhit the Redmen, eight bingles to five. The Friar hitting was well distributed among seven players. Co-Captain Leo Marion was the top sticker, with two safe ones, including a timely single that scored two runs in the third, and a double. Shortstop Milt Bleiden also hit a double.
