Foreword

It has been our purpose to imprint upon the pages of this book those faces, scenes, and events which are most dear to us and to associate them in our theme with the glorious tradition of the Order of Preachers. May these pages ever call to mind the fondest memories of happy hours at Providence College and serve as a constant reminder that we who share the magnificent heritage of our Alma Mater must ever uphold her golden standards against the bitter foes of Truth.

PROVIDENCE

The heritage of Providence College dates from the foundation, over seven centuries ago, of the Order of Preachers by Saint Dominic Guzman. The years of the College proper are few; the tradition of its administrators and instructors, a tradition tersely expressed by the phrase contemplare et aliis tradere contemplata, is one of the oldest in the field of education.

In 1915, the Most Reverend Matthew Harkins, D.D., Bishop of Providence, invited the Dominican Fathers of the Province of Saint Joseph to found a college in the Diocese, for which he offered a grant of land and scholarships to the amount of ten thousand dollars. The Very Reverend Albert Casey, O.P., S.T.Lr., president of Thomas Aquinas College, was assigned to supervise plans for the opening of the new college.

A State Charter was granted by a unanimous vote of both houses of the Rhode Island legislature in 1917. Dedicatory exercises of Bishop Harkins Hall were held in May, 1919, when Bishop Harkins bestowed his blessing upon the building. The formal opening of the College took place in the Fall, when Father Casey, the first president, celebrated Holy Mass, which was attended by the nine faculty members and the seventy-five students of that first year.

During the presidency of Father Casey's successor, the Very Reverend William D. Noon, O.P., S.T.M., Providence College conferred her first academic degrees, twenty-five in number. Under the administration of Father Noon and that of his successor, the Very Reverend Lorenzo C. McCarthy, O.P., Ph.D., Providence College expanded along every line. The enrollment increased steadily, and each year saw the addition of more and more Dominican Fathers and Catholic laymen to the faculty. A program of athletics was initiated and developed so quickly that the Friars soon were recognized among the finest college teams in the East. Social, departmental, and sectional organizations sprang up and were fostered by the authorities that the Providence man might benefit from a well-rounded program of college activity. In 1929, the Most Reverend William A. Hickey, D.D., then bishop of the Diocese, dedicated an addition to Harkins Hall, housing spacious classrooms and laboratories, a library, cafeteria, and auditorium.

This year, under the direction of the Very Reverend John J. Dillon, fourth president of the College, a long-range building program, to include a dormitory, chapel, science building, library, and field house, was launched. Work on the dormitory already has been begun. These improvements were rendered imperative by the steady growth of the College, which now has over eight hundred students and a faculty of sixty-five members.

From the time the pioneer men of Providence College took their seats for their first class until today, the story of the College has been one of constant progress. With each succeeding year, the institution has become more firmly established as one of the East's leading liberal arts colleges. The underlying principles of culture and morality, of love of God and increase of knowledge—principles implicit in the idea of the pursuit of Truth contained in the motto of the College, Veritas—have inspired this advancement. There has been material progress—enlargement of curriculum, extension of facilities, broadening of the scope of extra-curricular activities; but, fine as this physical advancement has been, it has remained, and shall ever be, secondary to the spiritual ideal, the pursuit of Truth.

VERITAS

Gentlemanliness was the watchword then, four years ago, even as it is today, on the eve of our graduation. The Reverend John B. Reese, O.P., our Freshman moderator, did his best to inculcate this principle in our youthful minds. Leo Fischer, Frederick Hines, Raymond Baker, and Joseph Cavanagh, as officers of the Class, valiantly fought to help us rise above the social handicap of pea-green bow ties. Our real spirit was evinced when we practically demolished the Sophomore flag hidden in a campus flower plot. Next the Mixer, and our football encounter with the Sophomores, won at the price of many a brutal welt. Then we turned about to assist our friendly rivals as co-sponsors of a more than successful Spring dance.

And so we ourselves became Sophomores, and in turn wielded the sceptre of power. Right prevailed over might in our Sophomore Court; and the Freshman again wore the black and white cap.

Finally, our morale shaken by the dastardly abduction of our Prosecutor, we granted the lowly Frosh some measure of freedom. Our moderator, the Reverend Frederick C. Foley, O.P., guided us as we turned to nobler social functions and sponsored a colorful Sophomore Hop and a novel Spring Frolic. William Mogé, Leo Ploski, Raymond Baker, and Joseph Cavanagh were our officers that year.

We inaugurated our Junior social season with a deservedly appreciated Hallowe'en Dance, soon followed by our Boxing Bouts which were "knockouts" in every sense of the word. All events, however, were overshadowed by the Junior Prom. What a memorable occasion. Incomparable Mal Hallet and Company, the dashing figure of chairman Daniel Berrigan, informal formality of laughing friends and comely girls—briefly, an evening divine. Joseph Cavanagh, Leo Ploski, John Graham, and Joseph Isacco were our officers, the Reverend William R. Clark, O.P., our moderator.

Now in our Senior year, we thoughtfully, mellowly watch the liquid moments flow relentlessly onward. The Veritas Dance, Cap and Gown Day, Commencement, the Senior Ball soon will be but fond memories as we leave Providence College.

Guided by our officers, George O'Brien, T. Casey Moher, Thomas Durnin, and Joseph Isacco, and our moderator, the Reverend John T. McGregor, O.P., we go forth secure in the knowledge that we are prepared to meet the difficulties of life.

The Undergraduates

THE CLASS

The Class of 1939, upholding the traditions of former Junior classes, this year planned one of the most extensive social seasons in the history of the College, while its members continued to be outstanding in scholastic and extra-curricular activities. The officers of the Class for the year were: Daniel F. Murphy, president; Albert A. Ahearn, vice-president; Robert C. Healey, secretary, and Eugene J. McElroy, Jr., treasurer. The Reverend Irving A. Georges, O.P., was faculty advisor.

With Francis D. O'Brien as chairman of the committee, the Class opened its social season with a "Beat State" dance on November 10. This affair broke all previous attendance records.

OF 1939

The Class then inaugurated plans for a Junior Week beginning the week of May 2 and culminating with the Junior Prom at the Biltmore Hotel, May 9. Art Shaw's orchestra, a nationally known dance band, was contracted for the Prom, the highlight of the College social season. James J. Gallogly is chairman of the committee in charge of arrangements. The annual Junior Boxing Bouts were also scheduled for Junior Week.

A new ring, designed by the Reverend Thomas McGlynn, O.P., and adopted by the authorities as the official Providence College ring, was introduced to the College by the ring committee of the Class.

THE CLASS

The Sophomore class returned to Providence College in September ready for new intellectual and social conquests. Slightly decreased in number, but more firmly-knit, perhaps, from the experiences of the previous year, they readily settled into the scholastic routine. October balloting, under the direction of the Reverend James T. McKenna, O.P., moderator, resulted in the election of James F. Haran, president, William Riley, vice-president, Howard Irish, secretary, and Irving Hicks, treasurer.

The social season was inaugurated with the Harvest Dance, November 19, featuring Ray Pettine and his orchestra. Rustic barns, corn stalks, and tattered hats provided the motif for the colorful decorations. This dance, under the chairmanship of Davitt Carol, proved a financial as well as social success.

OF 1940

The traditional Freshman-Sophomore Mixer soon followed, formally welcoming the Freshman class to Providence College. The committee, composed of Freshmen and Sophomores, was headed by co-chairmen Harry H. Speckman and Richard H. Mezejewski.

The highlight of the Sophomore social season, the Sophomore Hop, on the eve of Washington's Birthday, brought Frank Fallon and his orchestra to Harkins Hall. A patriotic decoration scheme, with a model of the Washington Monument as centerpiece, flanked by a quadrangle of national flags and the College flag, provided a unique and impressive setting. Headed by Lionel Landry, the committee provided one of the year's most successful dances.

THE CLASS

The three hundred members of the Freshman Class quickly accommodated themselves to their new life. In the November elections, they elected as their officers, Charles Sweeney, president; William Danahy, vice-president; Paul Dunn, secretary; and William Blake, treasurer.

The Class was well represented both in social activities and in athletics. In sports it had a rather unbalanced season in that its participation in football was somewhat disastrous principally because of injuries to the players and a lack of reserve strength. Its basketball team experienced a more satisfactory season, winning about half of its games.

OF 1941

The Class excelled in its support of social activities. Its Saint Patrick's dance was the most successful Freshman dance in many years. Not only was the Class unanimous in the support of its own activities, but it wholeheartedly entered into the activities sponsored by the other classes and clubs of the College.

As a class it was really outstanding in its work with the Pyramid Players, especially in the musical comedy, "Friar Away." Its work in the Debating Union, in the journalistic departments, and with the International Relations Union was a credit to the Class. The Reverend John B. Reese, O.P., was advisor to the Class.

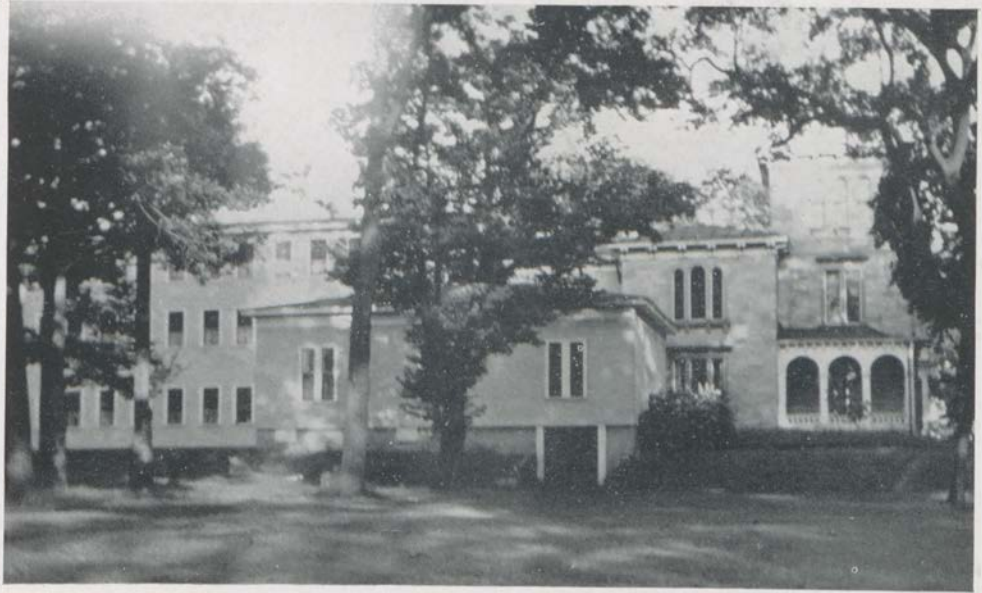

GUZMAN HALL

Guzman Hall is the residence of pre-ecclesiastical students who are preparing for entrance into the Dominican Order. They are under the prefecture of the Reverend Ferdinand G. Level, O.P., the Reverend Vincent C. Dore, O.P., and the Reverend Joseph D. Donovan, O.P.

Guzman Hall was singularly honored during the past year when the Reverend Ferdinand G. Level, O.P., was decorated by the French Government with the golden Cross of the Legion of Honor of France. The Cross was awarded to Father Level in a public ceremony at Harkins Hall by Jacques Lepoutre, Representative of the President of France.

Activities

THE ALEMBIC

Volume 1, Number 1 of The Alembic appeared in December, 1920. The Alembic has served the College without interruption since that first issue, at first as a monthly and later as a quarterly.

Explaining the adoption of the name "alembic," the editors of the first issue said, "The word has an accommodated meaning, 'anything that strengthens or purifies character.' It is our fond hope that the Providence College Alembic will prove a worthy instrument toward the accomplishment of so noble an end." This has continued to be the aim of the publication.

John H. Fanning was the editor-in-chief of The Alembic for the past year. He was assisted by associate editors: Walter A. Hughes, Walter F. Gibbons, William D. Geary, Robert C. Healey, and Norman C. Carignan. The contributing editors were John A. Graham, Albert McAloon, Joseph V. Cavanagh, and Lionel J. Landry. The business staff under the direction of Richard G. Koehler was composed of John J. Mahoney, Leonard J. Morry, and Vincent T. Aniello. The faculty advisors were the Reverend Robert D. Reilly, O.P., and the Reverend John T. McGregor, O.P.

THE COWL

Organized in November, 1935, as a medium for the recording of the outstanding events of daily life at the College and for the expressing and nurturing of student opinion and spirit, The Cowl has risen rapidly in its less than three years' existence, until it now is recognized as an outstanding collegiate weekly. In the summer of 1937 the publication was one of seven from colleges for men selected by the Catholic School Press Association for the honor rating All Catholic, and one of its stories was awarded first prize in the straight news story competition.

This year, under the direction of co-editors Robert C. Healey and Norman J. Carigan, The Cowl has given complete coverage on the news of the week, and, in its editorial columns, has been an alert defender of Catholic doctrine and social teaching. The Reverend William R. Clark, O.P., is faculty advisor of The Cowl.

THE VERITAS

The Editors

THE VERITAS is published annually by the Senior Class to summarize the various phases of college life. John A. Graham was co-editor-in-chief in charge of the literary activities of this year's edition. He was assisted by the associate editors, William G. Beaudro and William B. Plasse. Daniel J. O'Connor was co-editor-in-chief in charge of the financial phases of the work. His assistants were Robert W. Murphy, advertising manager, and Daniel R. Libutti, business manager. The Reverend John T. McGregor, O.P., was faculty advisor.

The staff, selected by the officers of the Class of 1939, is composed of: Michael A. Coyne, Walter F. Gibbons, Harold S. Pivnick, Francis D. O'Brien, John J. Mahoney, Francis E. McInnis, John F. Hogan, and Joseph F. McManus.

THE DEBATING UNION

The Debating Union had an active and enthusiastic season. Forty-four students, composing the largest membership in the history of the Union, participated in the activities which were directed by the officers, Frank G. McGovern, president; Walter F. Gibbons, vice-president, and Norman J. Carignan, secretary. The Reverend A. P. Regan, O.P., was moderator and coach.

Weekly intramural debates, begun in October in preparation for the Varsity season, continued until after the Easter recess. A series of radio debates was conducted over a period of eight weeks through the facilities of Station WEAN.

John H. Fanning, Timothy R. Crawley, Albert E. Paine, and Walter F. Gibbons were selected to make the road trip through the northern part of New England the week of March 14.

Representatives of the Union attended the Model Congress and Speaking Contests at Rhode Island State College, in April, and officiated as judges in the Massachusetts High School Debating Championship Finals at Fall River.

THE PYRAMID PLAYERS

Continuing in its determination to maintain its high standards of theatrical excellence established in the past, the Pyramid Players this year offered three productions to the students of the College. Early in December, the organization produced the play, If I Were King, by Justin McCarthy. Directed by the Reverend Urban Nagle, moderator, it auspiciously inaugurated the dramatic season at the College and was enthusiastically welcomed.

In February, the Players appeared in three one-act plays produced under student direction. The first, A Minuet, by Louis M. Parker, was directed by Eugene J. McElroy. The second, titled The Bride Wore Red Pajamas, was under the direction of Raymond A. Baker. John A. Andre directed the third, The Rising of the Moon, by Lady Gregory.

Rehearsals were then started for the annual musical comedy considered the highlight of the dramatic season. Friar Away was selected as the title for the plot written by Robert C. Healy, Walter F. Gibbons, Norman J. Carignan, and Eugene J. McElroy. Original music was composed under the direction of Raymond V. Pettine.

This year the organization was governed by an executive board composed of Raymond Baker, John J. Tytla, John A. Andre, Eugene J. McElroy, and Robert C. Healy. Andre served as production manager, Tytla as stage manager, and Baker as treasurer.

THE PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY

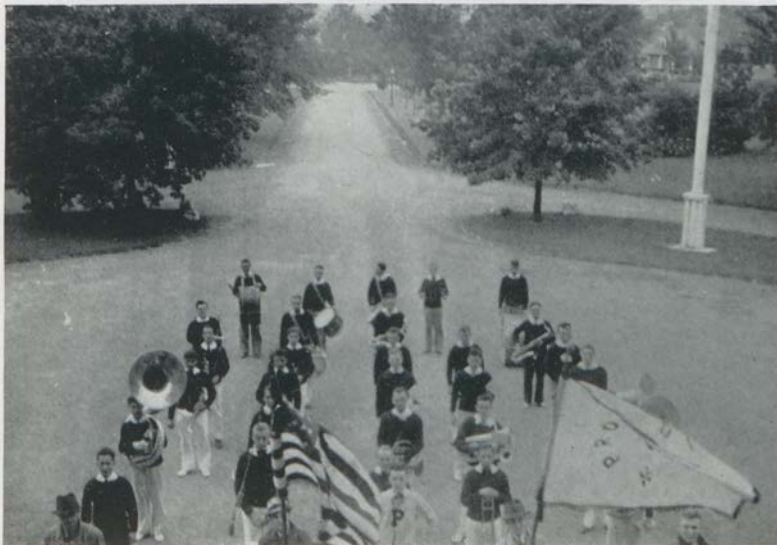

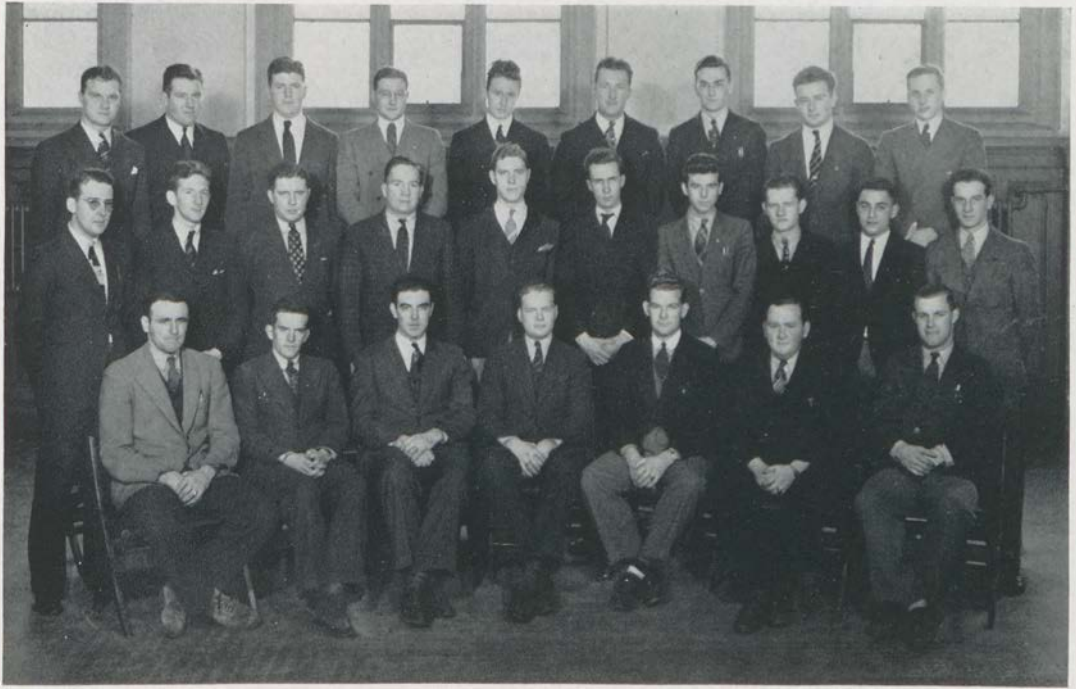

The Philharmonic Society is composed of three musical organizations: the band, the orchestra, and the glee club.

The band, under the direction of the Reverend Irving A. Georges, O. P., played at many of last year's football games and at several other outdoor functions, including the Holy Name Parade in September.

The orchestra and glee club were under the direction of the Reverend Leo S. Cannon, O.P., Doctor of Music from Catholic University. Besides its many appearances at college functions, the orchestra gave several radio concerts.

The Glee Club was this year reorganized with Robert W. Murphy as president. Several of its members sang at High Mass every Sunday in the College chapel and at the special Masses throughout the year. The orchestra and glee club cooperated with the Pyramid Players in the presentation of the musical comedy, Friar Away.

THE AQUINO CLUB

The aim of the Aquino Club is to foster in its members a deeper appreciation of Italian culture through use of the Italian tongue in discussions of Italian customs and literature. The officers for the year were: Anthony Stramondo, president; Fernando Gabriele, vice-president; Arnold Giusti, secretary; Daniel Libutti, treasurer, and Joseph Petrosino, chairman of the membership committee.

The first semester's activity began with a combination smoker-initiation ceremony, at which fifteen newcomers were formally welcomed into the Club. The December and January meetings featured round table discussions on Guglielmo Marconi and Luigi Pirandello respectively. Members were guests at a meeting of Il Circolo Italiano at Pembroke. They listened in at the International Relations Union's panel discussion of the Spanish situation.

The Aquino was the first college club in the State to endorse the Marconi Memorial Fund Drive.

THE FRIARS CLUB

The Friars Club commemorated, this year, its tenth anniversary. Organized in 1928 by John Farrell, graduate manager of athletics, the Club has persistently fulfilled its purpose as expressed in its motto, "Welcome the coming, speed the parting guest." At the anniversary banquet, held in the Crown Hotel, January 7, the Friars pledged themselves to a program of intense activity.

To fill the void left in the life of the College upon the death of the Dalmation mascot, Friar Boy I, the Friars gave to the College another Dalmation hound, Friar Boy II, who since his coming has won eleven prizes in the dog shows of New England.

Besides entertaining all visiting athletic teams in the traditional manner of the College, the Club assisted many of the other College organizations in their activities.

Officers of the Club were: T. Casey Moher, president; John Brown, vice-president; Thomas W. Durnin, treasurer, and John P. Grady, secretary. The Reverend Edward H. Schmidt, O.P., was faculty advisor to the Club.

THE CAMPUS

The Campus Club, resident student organization, inaugurated its year's activities, October 5, with a dance at Harkins Hall. Other prominent socials sponsored by the Club were the first annual Christmas Party, December 17, and the New Year Welcome Party, January 6.

The annual Stag Party was held on January 11. Eddie Casey, sports commentator, spoke on "Athletics in Life."

The Campus Club sponsored the first reception to Coach Hugh Devore at Harkins Hall before the assembled student body, February 17. A program of vaudeville and speeches by Arthur Markey and Joe Fay, radio sports commentators, preceded Coach Devore's address. Coach Albert McClellan was master of ceremonies.

CLUB

The Club was governed by an executive committee composed of: William Dodd, Norman Eichner, Victor Lynch, Joseph Baldwin, and George Sullivan. The Reverend Leo M. Carolan, O.P., was faculty advisor.

THE INTERNATIONAL

A steady increase in membership and prestige, indicating a widespread student interest in peace and world problems, marked the second successful year of the International Relations Union.

Officers for the past year were: Francis J. O'Rourke, president; John J. Stratton, vice-president; and Lionel J. Landry, librarian. The Reverend Peter P. Reilly, O.P., was faculty advisor.

Activities for the year included several timely panels on factors tending to influence peace in world conflicts. The highlight of the year was the conference of February 26, at which Providence College was host to over twenty college units composing the New England Peace Federation. Two speakers of national repute addressed the delegates: the Reverend Robert G. Slavin, O.P., Ph.D., professor of Thomistic Theology at the Catholic University of America, and Charles G. Fenwick, Ph.D., professor of political science at Bryn Mawr College.

Ten members of the Union attended the New England Model League of Nations sessions at Massachusetts State College in March. They represented the nations of Ireland and Panama.

RELATIONS UNION

LA PLÉIADE

Under the direction of Professor William B. S. Smith, students of French this year organized La Pléiade, a club, membership of which is limited to students in advanced French courses. The principal intellectual aims of the club are to give the members a wider acquaintance with French, and to make a study of the traditions, history, and culture of France and French Canada. French only is spoken at meetings.

Aram P. Jarret was head of the Council, governing body of the club, for this year. Other officers were: Lionel J. Landry, president; Alfred E. Sauté, secretary-treasurer; Raymond A. Beaulieu, program director; Matthew J. Scullion, Ernest O. Ferland, and Gerald G. Sherry, Council members.

The organization took its name from La Pléiade, the celebrated literary group of the XVI Century, founded by the illustrious Ronsard. The motto came from Ronsard's pen:

*Et d'autant que l'on a la liberté plus grande,
D'autant plus se garder que l'on ne soit repris.*

ALBERTUS MAGNUS

The formation of the Albertus Magnus Science Club in November fulfilled a long-felt need in the activities of the students in the science and the pre-medical departments. At the initial meeting a constitution was formulated and the following officers were elected: Thomas F. Kennedy, president; Leopold Trifari, vice-president; Joseph Donnelly, secretary; and Joseph Palumbo, treasurer. Membership is open by right of seniority to all Seniors, and to members of other classes by election. The Reverend Frederick C. Hickey, O.P., accepted an invitation to serve as moderator of the new organization.

The purpose of the society is both social and intellectual. Its members are able to keep up with the rapid development of the various sciences through a series of interesting lectures both by faculty members and by the students themselves. Outstanding among the lectures were: "Electricity and Life," by the Reverend Frederick C. Hickey, O.P.; "Socialized Medicine," by Darius Ferland; "Birth Control," by John Millea; "The Action of Insulin on the Sugar Content of the Blood," by Leopold Trifari; and "The Liquefaction of Gases," by Joseph Donnelly.

CLUB

During the Easter vacation the members of the club inspected the plant of the Air Reduction Company in Boston. All in all, when we consider the difficulties attendant upon a pioneer movement, we must conclude that the Science Club has enjoyed a most successful first year.

THE FALL

The Fall River Club, the oldest territorial club in the College, completed one of its most active seasons. At its first meeting, Daniel J. O'Connor was elected president, Gerard Connor, vice-president, Francis Devine, secretary, and Jeremiah MacDonald, treasurer. John Sullivan, '31, was moderator of the Club.

This year, a new constitution was adopted by the forty-three members and permanent headquarters established in the Sullivan Building, Fall River, Mass.

Its social activities included: two Whist Parties, the Annual Dinner Dance, the Mid-year Dance for members only, the Farewell to the Seniors Dance, and the Annual Banquet. The Club is associated with the Providence College Alumni Association of Fall River.

GUZMAN

Social activities at Guzman Hall are regulated by the Philomusian Society, an organization whose officers are chosen annually by popular election. During the past year activities have flourished under the leadership of James Erwin, president; Thomas Dolan, vice-president; John Reidy, secretary; and Bernard King, treasurer.

In accordance with tradition, the actual arrangement of functions was left in the hands of three appointed committees, those for entertainment, debating, and athletics. Following the initiation of Freshmen, the athletic committee, composed of Raymond Collins, John Dering, and William Aldridge, organized softball and handball tournaments.

Study clubs organized by Thomas Sheehan, Charles Corcoran, and William Rock of the debating committee, met monthly to discuss topics ranging from liturgy to science and religion, and to debate questions of a social nature. The Lacordaire Society, headed by Russell Aumann, and the Guzman Hall Choir also enjoyed a prosperous season.

PROVIDENCE COLLEGE ATHLETICS

Interest in athletics had its rebirth in the establishment of an Athletic Council at the College. The Council is made up of the Faculty Administrators, the Faculty Director of Athletics, and the Chairman of the Alumni Board of Advisors which is closely affiliated with the Council and is represented in all the meetings of the Council by its chairman, Charles Reynolds. Other members of the Board are John J. Smith, '33, and Thomas H. Bride, '27.

Prior to the establishment of the Council, and after the resignation of the Reverend Edward H. Schmidt, O.P., the Reverend Robert G. Quinn, O.P., was appointed Director of Athletics at the College. Two other significant changes took place during the year. Hugh Devore was appointed head coach of football to succeed Joe McGee who resigned at the close of the year, and Arthur Quirk, member of the faculty, upon the resignation of Jack Egan, succeeded him as coach of baseball.

In Review

When Joe McGee and his assistant coaches, Phil Coughig and Albert Tosse, who had done so much for the College, departed, only Mal Brown remained to remind us of those other days. Mal is an integral part of our college life; he is more than trainer, he is friend and companion to all the athletes. Mal, his smile, and his gravy train take the sting out of defeat, and put the umph in the thrill of a win.

VARSIITY

The Friars played through a difficult eight-game schedule for a season's record of two victories and six defeats. Numerous injuries in key positions handicapped the team from the very outset and left the otherwise small squad badly undermanned.

Head Coach Joe McGee sent a young eleven onto Fitton Field at Worcester, October 2, to meet the mighty Crusaders of Holy Cross. Some twelve thousand spectators saw the Friars outmanuever the favored Crusaders in the first half of the game, and then, because of over anxiety, lose the game, 7 to 0.

Providence and Xavier University, of Cincinnati, Ohio, met at the Cranston Recreation Field under the arc-lights, October 8; Providence defeated the Musketeers, 7 to 6, in a game filled with thrills, for its first victory of the season.

St. Anselm's College, in what was a surprise victory, easily defeated the Friars, 26 to 0. Providence made its debut at Hendricken Field on October 23, in a game with Springfield. In the downpours of rain the Friars eked out a 9 to 6 victory over the Indians.

SEASON

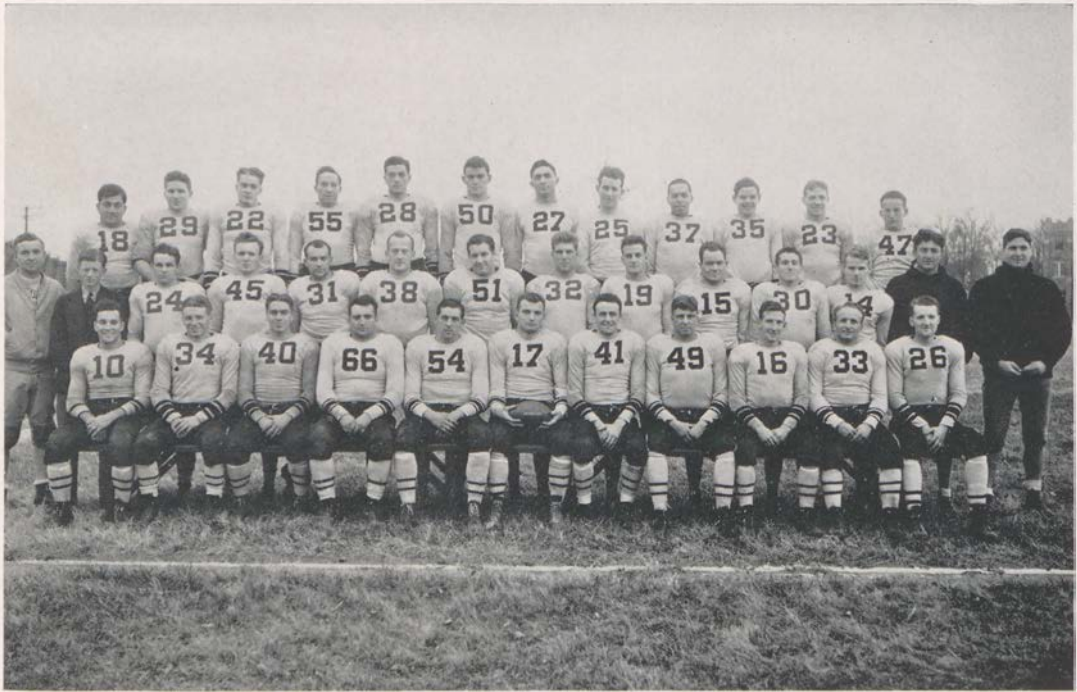

Injuries and sickness raised havoc with the Friars as the second half of the schedule got underway. City College of New York defeated them in a close game at New York, 8 to 6, on October 30. Niagara University, in a Sunday game at Hendricken Field, November 7, handed the Friars their fourth defeat of the season, 17 to 6.

In its second night game, Providence met Rhode Island State College at Cranston Recreation Field, November 12. When the final whistle had sounded the Friars were again on the short end of the scoring. Over anxiety proved, once more, their undoing and paved the way for State's final-period scoring drive and victory, 13 to 0.

Thanksgiving Day, Providence closed its season at Westminster, Md., in a game with the Green Terrors of Western Maryland University, losing the game 20 to 0.

HUGH DEVORE

The handshake of Joe McGee and Hugh Devore is symbolic of the ties that unite them in friendship to the College.

Joe McGee, our own thoroughbred sportsman and true friend, resigned his position as head coach of football and was succeeded by Hugh Devore of Notre Dame and Fordham University.

As a Class we make our last farewell to Joe whom we knew so well, respected, admired, and loved. To Hugh and his assistants, Ed Crotty and Joe Dulkie, we leave our best wishes for their success and that of the College.

FRESHMAN FOOTBALL

The Freshman football team scheduled games with some of the finest elevens in the East. The squad, comparatively small in numbers and size, and handicapped further by multiple injuries, never fully reached its peak and lost five of its six games.

Thirty-seven candidates reported on September 20 to Coaches David Couhig and Raymond Belliveau for their first drill in preparation for the opening encounter with Holy Cross. They entertained the Holy Cross Freshmen, October 7, at Hendriken Field and suffered a 2 to 0 setback from their much heavier opponent.

The road trips were hard on the yearlings: at Cambridge, October 15, they met and gave way to the Harvard Junior Varsity squad, 25 to 0; at Kingston, October 23, already suffering from injuries, and not strong enough to resist the power of Rhode Island State, they were defeated, 33 to 0.

At home, they played the Boston College Freshmen at Hendriken Field, October 29, and fell before the mighty Eagles, 51 to 0, in a rough game. They fulfilled their engagement with St. John's Preparatory School, Danvers, Mass., where they met their last defeat, 6 to 0. The game on Armistice day with the United States Naval Training Station at Newport, which they won 6 to 0, was a fitting season's finale.

AS WE

VARSITY

Although the Varsity's basketball record for the past season showed seven victories as against nine defeats, the Friars retained their intra-city championship title for the twelfth successive year and placed second to Rhode Island State College in the State ratings. Prominent among Providence's list of victims was Yale University on February 16, an unusual feat on any occasion and an achievement all the more significant here inasmuch as the triumph occurred on the Bulldogs' own floor, the Payne - Whitney gymnasium. Other victories were achieved at the expense of Assumption College, Saint Anselm's College, twice, Stroudsburg State Teachers College, Lowell Textile, and Brown University.

An exacting and sporadic schedule, unfortunately interrupted because of Christmas recess and later because of semester examinations, and the part-time loss of Captain Edward Bobinski midway in the season while he was recovering from an operation, combined to work to the team's disadvantage.

VARSITY

Providence opened its season on December 14 at Storrs, meeting and losing to Connecticut State. Two days later the Friars engaged Assumption College at Harkins Hall and defeated the visitors to bring the first part of their campaign to a close. They resumed competition, January 8, defeating Saint Anselm's at Manchester. Dartmouth tripped up the Friars in a close game, January 13, as did Rhode Island State two days later at the Auditorium. Providence remained idle until February 12, when it entertained Springfield and received its fourth setback of the season.

On February 16, a rejuvenated Friar five humbled Yale at New Haven to atone somewhat for its earlier losses, and three days after handily downed Saint Anselm's. The next six games took the Friars away from home to meet Springfield, Saint John's University, City College of New York, Stroudsburg, Villanova, and Rhode Island State. In every game but the Stroudsburg contest, the touring athletes ended up the losers. Returning home for encounters with Lowell and Brown, Providence succeeded in winning both, the latter for the intra-city championship.

The credit for the success enjoyed by this year's five is due to Coach Albert McClellan for the masterful manner in which he piloted his small and inexperienced squad throughout a rigorous and not too favorable schedule.

FRESHMAN BASKETBALL

The Providence College Freshman basketball team scored victories in five of its thirteen contests during the past season. It won over Newport Training Station, Bridgewater Teachers, the Springfield College Junior Varsity, Bryant College, and New Bedford. It suffered defeat from the Connecticut State College Freshmen, Bryant College, the Rhode Island State College Freshmen, twice, Newport Training Station, the Springfield College Freshmen, Olneyville Boys' Club, and the Brown University Freshmen.

The scores for the season were: Providence 41, Connecticut State 63; Providence 48, Newport Naval Station 41; Providence 30, Bryant College 38; Providence 46, Bridgewater Teachers 45; Providence 42, Rhode Island State 53; Providence 47, Springfield College 41; Providence 25, Newport Naval Station 44; Providence 31, Bryant College 29; Providence 27, Springfield College 41; Providence 30, Olneyville Boys' Club 52; Providence 58, Rhode Island State 75; Providence 50, New Bedford Textile 40; Providence 39, Brown University 59.

INTRAMURAL BASKETBALL

The enthusiasm and interest manifested in intramural sports during the past year indicated that the athletic program at Providence College was definitely on the upgrade. In carrying out his proposal "to have every student participate in some sport," the Reverend Robert G. Quinn, O.P., new faculty director of athletics, outlined an intramural program for football, basketball, and baseball to be effective next year.

Intramural basketball enjoyed its most successful season this year when over one hundred students representing eight teams participated in a five game schedule. The original schedule of seven games was shortened to avoid conflicts with other activities. This year's league comprised teams representing the Seniors, Juniors, Sophomores, Freshmen, Guzman Hall, Campus Club, Friars Club, and The Cowl.

Guzman Hall retained the championship by completing its schedule without a defeat. It won a thrilling 22-20 triumph over the previously unbeaten Freshmen in the last game of the season. The Seniors, Juniors, Campus Club, and Friars registered two wins as against three defeats; The Cowl quintet gained only one victory in five starts.

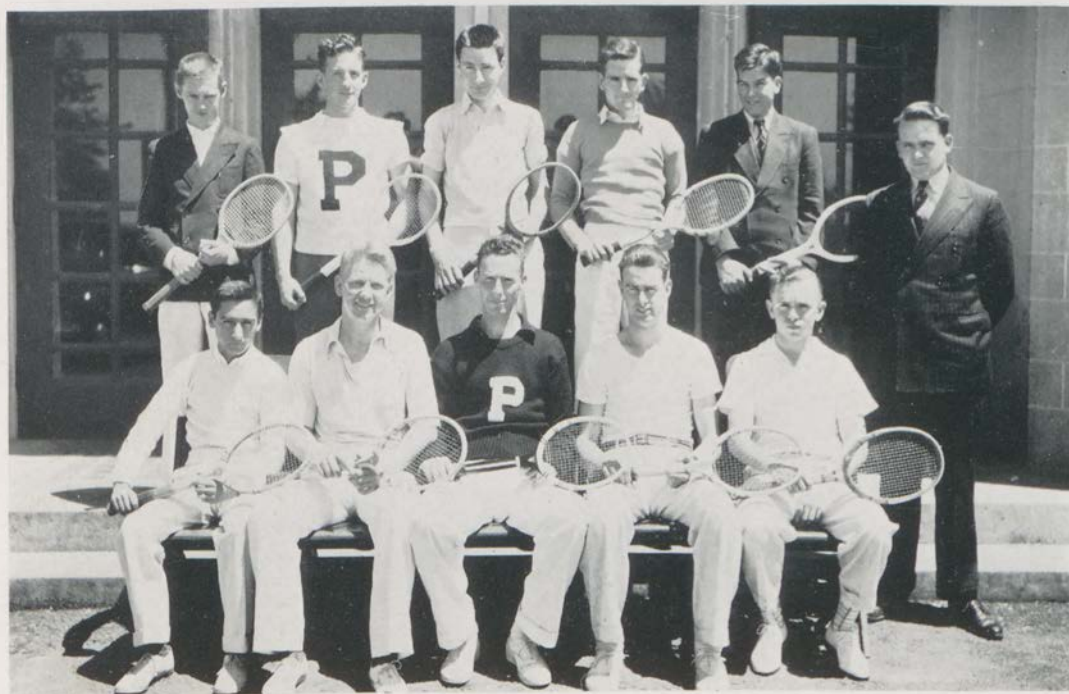

TENNIS

The Tennis Team, composed largely of veterans, won four of its six matches in 1937. It was victorious over Assumption College, Worcester Tech, Connecticut State, and American International. It lost to Brown University and Rhode Island State College. Matches with Tufts, Springfield, Clark, and Boston College were cancelled because of rain. The team competed in the New England Intercollegiate matches.

The netmen this year face a schedule which lists matches with the same leading New England teams, and will again participate in the New England Intercollegiate games at Hartford, Conn.

VARSITY

The Varsity baseball team recorded thirteen victories and ten defeats in the 1937 schedule which included some of the stiffest opposition in the East. Victories were scored over Assumption College, Stroudsburg, Villanova, Tufts, Springfield, Brown, Rhode Island State, Dartmouth, City College of New York, Boston College, Holy Cross, and St. John's University, twice. Defeats were administered by Stroudsburg, Villanova, Yale, Rhode Island State, Holy Cross, Brown, Long Island University, twice, and Holy Cross, twice.

Perhaps the outstanding feat of the campaign was Karl Sherry's third win over Holy Cross in as many years. Sherry is the only pitcher in recent years to register three victories over the Crusaders.

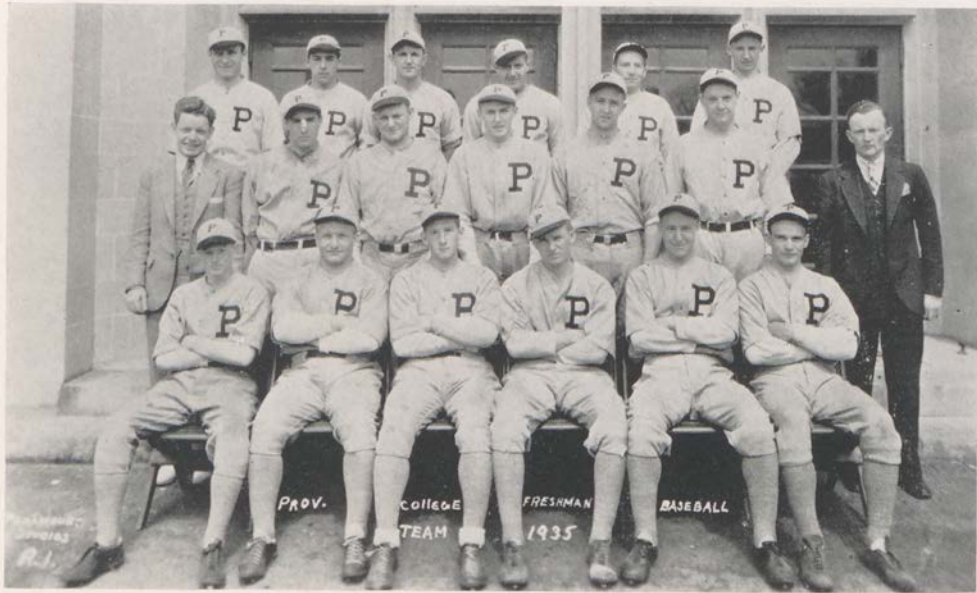

BASEBALL

One of the novelties of the season was a night game with Long Island University on Hendricken Field, which the invaders won, 11 to 6. In intra-state competition, Providence divided the games with Brown and State.

This year, Dr. Arthur Quirk, a graduate of the College and one of immortal Jack Flynn's pupils, succeeded Jack Egan as varsity baseball coach. The Friars looked very impressive in the spring practices, and should enjoy a successful campaign. The schedule calls for eighteen games with some of the outstanding colleges in the East, including St. John's University, Villanova, City College of New York, Rhode Island State, Holy Cross, Brown, New Hampshire, Dartmouth, Boston College, and Yale.

Undefeated Freshman Team

From the ranks of the Class of 1938, always outstanding for its contributions to the athletic teams of the College, John E. Farrell, graduate manager of athletics, formed, in 1935, the only undefeated baseball nine in the history of Providence College. The Freshmen that year won all of their eleven games, scoring victories over some of the more outstanding yearling teams in the East.

Members of the team, many of whom are holding down important positions on this year's Varsity, were: Bill Moge, captain; Vin Ahern, Dom Minicucci, Bill Spinnler, Leo Fischer, Frank Zavadskis, Tom Appleton, Leo Ploski, Charlie Gaffney, John Crowley, Vic Lynch, Joe Kossick, Norm Eichner, Jack Lengyel, Paul Ryan, and Ed Bobinski.

PROVIDENCE COLLEGE

Officers of the Providence College Alumni Association are Joseph H. Lyons, '31, president; Dr. Francis M. Hackett, '30, vice-president; and Dr. Daniel J. O'Neill, '24, secretary.

The Alumni Association inaugurated, this year, its series of monthly beefsteak parties at the College Cafeteria; members of the different classes sponsored each party. The most successful event of the year was the banquet in farewell to Joe McGee, '24, retiring coach of football, and in reception to Hugh Devore and the Reverend Robert G. Quinn, O.P., new faculty director of athletics.

The Alumni Ball was held at the Narragansett Hotel on February 25. The Alumni Day ceremonies are scheduled to begin at Harkins Hall with Mass for the deceased alumni. Breakfast is to be served at the Narragansett Hotel. The afternoon and evening program is planned to consist of luncheon, golf, field sports, and dinner at the Metacomet Club.

Three members of the Association, John Bride, Charles Reynolds, and John Smith, were appointed Advisors to the Athletic Council at the College. The Association rendered invaluable service during the building fund drive.

ALUMNI ASSOCIATION

The banquet given at once as a farewell to Joe McGee and as a reception to Hugh Devore and the Reverend Robert G. Quinn, O.P., was attended by the largest group of notables and sportsmen ever to attend a banquet in the State of Rhode Island. Adam Walsh, head football coach at Bowdoin and former Notre Dame star, was the guest speaker. Joe Fay, radio sports announcer, was toastmaster.

Among the notables and sportsmen to attend the banquet were: Governor Robert E. Quinn, Mayor James E. Dunne, Robert "Bob" Quinn, president of the Boston Bees, Casey Stengel, George Tebbetts, and Frank Keaney of Rhode Island State College.

Joe McGee's farewell address was masterful; its beauty of diction, its sincerity of tone, like the ringing of a golden bell, deeply touched the hearts of his friends and admirers. Joe spoke of his four years with the Friars; we could see him through his words working with his team, we could feel the influence that won for him the respect and love of those whom he coached. Joe was presented with a wrist watch by his colleagues of the Alumni Association, and a large photograph of himself encircled by men of his first team.

Edward S. Doherty was chairman of the committee in charge of the banquet.
