ALMA MATER

*Mother of Truth, we proudly pledge to thee
Undying love and steadfast loyalty.
From thee we learnt the wondrous works of God,
His goodness, grace, and holy pow'r;
Clear hast thou shown what pathways must be trod;
All fearless now we brave life's hour!*

*Though failure frown, though kindly fortune smile,
Firm our advance; nought can us e'er beguile.
To honor bound, to love and virtue sworn,
Lift we our voice in full acclaim;
Thy sons shall thee with noble deeds adorn;
Hail, Providence! we praise thy name!*

The College Seal

The seal of Providence College is extremely meaningful. It consists of a torch superimposed on a triangle. In symbolism, the triangle represents the Trinity and usually appears with the point upwards. In this instance, however, while the significance of the God-head is preserved, the triangle is reversed and has an historical connotation. It denotes the original form of the College property. The cross-bar in the triangle follows the architect's drawing of the first building.

The torch, always indicative of learning, is particularly emblematic of a Dominican institution since it is part of the device of one of the oldest shields of the Order. At the outset it referred to St. Dominic himself who so magnificently conquered heresy by the Light of Truth and who personally and through his followers was responsible, in no small measure, for the full flowering of the medieval universities. This tradition for learning the Friars Preachers carried to every part of the world.

The flame of the torch signifies the soul of man; the light of the flame indicates the mind radiant with learning, and the heat of the flame represents the heart of man fired with a deep love of the finer things of life. The torch is always borne aloft. The flame, therefore, towers the surrounding symbols and typifies leadership among men.

The motto, Veritas, was chosen not merely because of its appropriateness—the object of all study is Truth—but because the students of Providence College share in the 700-year old heritage of the Dominican Order which has challenged error wherever it has been found and which has a record of glorious triumphs.

Jubilees are occasions for recalling the past, and to the staff this fact was a challenge. The challenge has been met and this book has been produced, however, only through the cooperation of many persons and by the use of restricted, available materials. The Alumni will recognize plates that were used in preceding books; and for that reason this Silver Jubilee edition will recall the past in ways other than the mere written history of the College.

From the May graduating class came the inspiration, since it is the 25th class to receive degrees from the College; but to all three classes of 1945, and to our kind patrons, and to many others too numerous to mention, go our sincere thanks for invaluable help.

That this book might be the link between a glorious pre-war past and a glorious post-war future, we have deemed our efforts well spent.

From the Beginning

It was in the Fall of 1916 that Bishop Matthew Harkins formally invited the Dominican Fathers of the Province of St. Joseph to establish a college within the diocese of Providence. The preliminaries included getting the permission of the Dominican Master General which came in February 1917—"to establish a house to educate youth in religion and letters."

The charter for the establishment of the College was granted by the State of Rhode Island and Providence Plantations in the January Session of the General Assembly of 1917. This legal document provided for the promotion of "virtue and piety and learning in such of the languages and of the liberal arts and sciences as shall be recommended from time to time by the corporation . . ." and granted to the corporation the right . . . "to determine and regulate the course of instruction in said college and confer such degrees as are usually conferred by colleges and universities." Thus the College was officially founded and the first meeting of the corporation was held on March 10, 1917 at the Bishop's House, when the executive committee was authorized to proceed with the construction of a suitable college building.

The clergy and people of Providence were generous with funds and the building was promptly constructed. The original plans called for the formal opening in 1918, but World War I intervened, and the formal dedication did not take place until May 25, 1919.

In the presence of distinguished representatives of Church and State, Bishop Harkins, in whose honor the building was named, pronounced the blessing according to the ritual of the Church prescribed for such occasions. Solemn Pontifical Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament was given at a temporary altar which had been erected at the main entrance of the building; Coadjutor Bishop William Hickey was celebrant, and he was assisted by Father Luke Thornton and Father Jordan Donovan. The ceremonies, which served the double purpose of dedicating the new building and celebrating Bishop Harkins' fiftieth Ordination anniversary, were terminated with an address by the Right Reverend Thomas J. Shahan, rector of Catholic University of America, Washington, D. C.

The academic life of the College was begun on September 18, 1919 when a freshman class of 75 was enrolled. Father Casey, President of the College, celebrated Mass at the opening exercises and Coadjutor Bishop Hickey preached the sermon. Those present, in addition to the entering students and nine members of the faculty, included Father Raymond Meagher, Provincial, several members of the diocesan clergy, some of the Founders, and friends of the College.

The cycle of this first class ran its course and the graduation exercises were begun with suitable Cap and Gown Day ceremonies on May 24, 1923. Father Galliher, Dean, conducted the investiture. On Baccalaureate Sunday, June 10, 1923, Father Noon, President, who had succeeded Father Casey in 1921, celebrated the Solemn High Mass at which Monsignor Peter E. Blessing preached. The first degrees conferred by Providence, except for the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws conferred on General Armando Diaz in 1921, were granted to a class of 25 graduates on June 17, 1923. At this time addresses were made by Governor William Flynn, Mayor Joseph Gainer, Bishop Hickey and Father Noon. The Commencement Ball held at the Narragansett Hotel concluded the college life of the first class to be instructed by the Dominican Fathers in the State of Rhode Island and Providence Plantations.

Since 1919 there have been 5,997 students enrolled at the College, of whom 2,213 have remained the four years to graduate—about the average for colleges everywhere in the country. In the Extension School there have been 6,791 registrations with 238 finishing the required work for degrees. The student enrollment reached a peak in 1940 with 853; but it began to decline when Selective Service began to function, and since Pearl Harbor Day it has dropped almost to where it was when the College was opened.

Physically the College has grown too. The original triangular site, situated at the junction of River Avenue and Eaton Street, in the northwestern section of the city, was enlarged by the purchase in 1926 of the Bradley estate of fifteen acres. A wing was added to the homestead, and it became Guzman Hall—the living quarters for Dominican pre-ecclesiastical students. Aquinas Hall was erected on part of the Bradley estate, and St. Thomas Hall was acquired with twelve acres in 1930, making the total acreage of the College grounds, forty-seven.

The College grew rapidly, and in 1927 it became clear that the original facilities were not adequate. A new wing to the rear of Harkins Hall was constructed, making a "T" of the original building. It was completed in December 1928 and dedicated by Bishop Hickey on February 7, 1929, in ceremonies which included a Solemn High Mass and an address delivered by Father M. J. Ripple, O.P., then national director of the Holy Name Society, one of the greatest speakers of his time.

As the College grew, so did its reputation; and many students came from some distance. These men, who lived in private homes in the neighborhood of the College, also increased in number. Finally in 1937 it was decided to erect a residence hall on the campus. A campaign for funds was launched and ground was broken for the new building on December 16, 1938. When the Fall term of 1939 began the building was ready for use, and it was formally dedicated on the feast of St. Thomas Aquinas, March 7, 1940, and named "Aquinas Hall". Father McDermott, Provincial, blessed the new dormitory; Father Chandler, Dean, was the speaker of the occasion; the Solemn Mass was celebrated by Father Dillon, President, assisted by Father Galliher, Registrar, and Father Masterson, Treasurer.

Aquinas Hall was built to accommodate 180 students, two to a room, and with suites for eleven faculty members; another suite was reserved for a student infirmary. On the first floor to the right of the entrance is the lounge, a beautiful room with walnut panels reaching almost to the ceiling, and a large fireplace in the east wall. Beyond this room, in the south wing is the College chapel, with three altars inside the sanctuary, and six others in alcoves along the walls. To the left of the entrance is the dining room made to seat 200, and beyond this in the north wing is the kitchen—at the time it was finished, the most modern institutional kitchen in New England. The living quarters for the students and faculty are on the three upper floors. Each room has running water and built-in closet space, and is large enough for two single beds, two desks and chairs and two lounge chairs.

World War II threatened the very existence of the College, taking the students in great numbers. But the College facilities were placed at the disposal of the Government for the education and training of soldiers under the Army Specialized Training Program. Unit 1188 was assigned to the College, and, with Major Howard B. Smith, U. S. A., in command, it arrived in July 1943—500 strong. The curriculum was designed as basic engineering training. It included Mathematics, Physics, Chemistry, History, Geography, and English. Aquinas Hall was turned into a barracks, the soldier-students having exclusive use of the whole building with the exception of the chapel, which was shared by soldier and civilian students. The lounge room was converted into a large lecture hall, the walnut panels being covered with ply-wood. Five soldiers were assigned to a room with two double-deck beds and one single bed. Meals were served cafeteria style. The lawn to the rear of Aquinas Hall was the assembly ground for roll-call, and in general the campus took on new life, though strange to the scene. The tramp of marching feet could be heard as the soldiers went by "sections" to their classes in Harkins Hall. Their own band played for the weekly Saturday afternoon review. Their own orchestra played for their monthly dances. In their physical education program a basketball league was organized, and it brought a nostalgic faculty and shrunken student body to watch and cheer the action. After two and one-half terms, during which time the College made many new friends from many States, the Government drastically curtailed the Program and on March 19, 1944 the soldiers left the College.

In the meantime the regular College courses were continued, the two programs running together, and some members of the faculty did double duty, teaching both soldier- and civilian-classes.

With the War came many calls for extra service on the part of faculty members. Father Dillon was in charge of the Welfare Division of State Council of Defence. It was while serving in this capacity that his health broke, which prompted the expression that he was as truly a casualty of World War II as he was a veteran of World War I. Father Hickey was Gas Consultant to the State Council of Defence. He prepared himself by taking a two weeks' training course at the Army Chemical Warfare School at Edgewood Arsenal, Maryland, and returned to Rhode Island better equipped to do the job. One of the problems faced in this part of the preparedness program was that of educating the public. So, in the chemistry laboratory at the College samples of the poison war gases were made and arranged in "sniff sets". The purpose was to acquaint the public, or at least the Air Raid Wardens, with the various gases, identifying them by their respective odors. Thirty-two such sets were made and kept charged. They were presented to instructors in gas defence, and one set was sent to the Army for use in North Africa. Another set was in use in Detroit. Requests for them came from all over the country. This work was unique and at the same time very successful; and in recognition of it the Rhode Island College of Pharmacy and Allied Sciences conferred on Father Hickey the honorary degree of Doctor of Science in October 1944.

Members of the faculty served in every branch of Civilian Defence. Some of the faculty served in various other ways, occasionally helping with religious services in the nearby military posts where a shortage of chaplains sometimes occurred. More than half the faculty donated blood to the Red Cross, several donating more than once. Thirteen are among those serving in uniform—six lay men and seven Dominicans who are chaplains in the combat zones as well as at home.

During the twenty-five years of Providence College's history the campus has been honored with many distinguished visitors. As the only Catholic institution of higher learning in Rhode Island, it has entertained many high ranking leaders. On September 30, 1919, less than two weeks after the beginning of the first scholastic year, the College was honored with a visit of the great philosopher and ecclesiastic, Desiré Cardinal Mercier, Archbishop of Malines and Patriot Primate of Belgium. Bishop Harkins delivered the official welcome of the College to the cardinal. While in Providence, the cardinal was given the "freedom of the City", an honor never before accorded an individual. He received, in addition to several other honors, the Degree of Doctor of Laws, honoris causa, from Brown University.

Other prominent persons who visited the College included General Amando Diaz, famed Italian general of World War I, who came to the College in December 1921 and was the recipient of the College's first honorary degree. The Most Reverend Pietro Fumasoni-Biondi, Apostolic Delegate, addressed the students on November 5, 1924. The Most Reverend John T. McNicholas, O.P., Archbishop of Cincinnati, spoke to the student body on April 23, 1926. Dr. Frederick J. Kinsman, former Episcopal bishop of Delaware, was the speaker at the fifth commencement exercises in 1927. The Very Reverend Martin Stanislaus Gillet, O.P., Master General of the Order of Preachers, visited the College on September 29, 1930, while on his official visitation of the Dominican Provinces in the United States.

Gilbert Keith Chesterton, celebrated literary critic and author, was entertained at the College on December 11, 1930. Dr. George N. Schuster, then editor of Commonweal, gave the commencement address in 1932. Richard Dana Skinner, noted editor, spoke at the commencement in 1933. Mr. Padraic Colum, Irish playwright and author, addressed the Blackfriars Guild on November 18, 1935, after the Guild's presentation of one of Mr. Colum's plays. The College conferred the degree of Doctor of Laws on President Manuel L. Quezon in 1942, but he was represented by Sergio Osmena, who is now president of the Philippines. Bishop Paul Yu-Pin, Vicar Apostolic of Nanking, China, visited the College in 1938 and in 1944; at the latter visit he received the honorary LL.D. from the College.

On October 16, 1940, when the first registration for Selective Service took place, there was a well organized social program at the College. Each of the classes was organized with its respective officers; but there were also territorial clubs, with members from the various neighborhoods near Providence, banded together for social purposes. There was a club for students from the Blackstone Valley, Fall River, Kent County, New Bedford, New Haven, Newport, and Woonsocket.

Extra-curricular activities, besides athletics, found expression in the following organizations:

- Albertus Magnus Club—composed of Pre-medical juniors and seniors;
- Aquino Literary Society—Italian letters and arts;
- Antoninus Society—discussion of social and economic questions;
- Carolan Club—succeeded the Campus Club for resident students;
- Debating Union;
- Friars Club—the hospitality group;
- Lacordaire Society—debating club among the Dominican pre-ecclesiastical students;
- Monogram Society—athletes who had earned the College letter;
- Phi Chi—students majoring in physics and chemistry;
- Philharmonic Society—band, orchestra, and glee club;

Philomusian Society—Dominican pre-ecclesiastical students;
Philosophy Club—for Philosophy majors;
Pyramid Players—theatrical productions;
Ski Club—actually took a couple of trips;
Student Forum—religious discussion group.

The members of the Alumni Association of the College have carved a place in the history of New England, and, to quote the late Father Dillon, in his talk beginning the second twenty-five years of the College on September 19, 1944, "the College has changed the whole psychology of the State of Rhode Island and Providence Plantations." This has been done through the men who have passed through the College. Everyone knows that Governor J. Howard McGrath is a member of the Class of '26. Father Dillon was a member of the 1924 class; and Father Foley was in the Class of 1927. Providence College men of outstanding achievement are found in every profession and in the business world.

The College through its Extension School has made an impression even on the parochial schools of the metropolitan community of Providence, because the teaching Sisters were the first to attend the Summer classes and the Saturday morning classes.

The Alumni are represented in great numbers in the Armed Forces, as the College Service Flag clearly shows: 2100 blue stars and 32 gold stars in January 1945. They are found in every branch of the Service, and in every quarter of the globe in this global war. Not only about the men in the Armed Forces, but of all the Alumni can be said, in the words of the Alma Mater, "Thy sons shall thee with noble deeds adorn."

NEW WING TO HARKINS HALL was added in Fall of 1928, which practically doubled the original facilities. Auditorium and cafeteria on ground floor; second floor, class rooms and biology laboratories; third floor, library and chemistry laboratory; fourth floor, faculty living quarters.

THE COLLEGE LIBRARY—third floor, Harkins Hall—view showing periodical cabinet, a section of the law library and reference shelves. The Library is exceptional for its Thomistic, Dominican, and Rhode Island Law collections. There are approximately 35,000 volumes and 125 periodicals in the library.

THE AUDITORIUM—ground floor of Harkins Hall—a miniature Madison Square Garden, serving as gymnasium, assembly room, ballroom, and theatre.

The Diploma of Providence College

The official College diploma, adopted in 1941, is copied from the most famous and venerable manuscript in the Order of Friars Preachers, the liturgical book of 1000 pages, Prototype of Blessed Humbert of Romans, Master General of the Order from 1254 to 1263.

The caption "Collegium Providentiense" is supported by the extended arm of a friar, just as it appears on the contents page of the Prototype. This indicates that the College is conducted and upheld by the Dominican Fathers. In this friar very ancient and very modern symbolism meet, since it also stands for the symbol by which the College is popularly known, as in athletics, "The Friars."

The lettering and illumination of the diploma are taken from various alphabets throughout the Prototype, but the blue and red of the diploma are the colors in which the whole contents page of the Prototype is finished. The long tendrils of the C and P in the caption extend at times in a most graceful manner along the entire margin of the medieval manuscript.

The technical work was made possible by Father Hinnebusch's photography and research; Mr. Robert Barrie of St. Andrew's Studios, Providence, produced the artistic composition; because the text is modeled after medieval diplomas and because of the specialization of higher studies outside of the field of the classics, it seems fitting to present the following translation:

PROVIDENCE COLLEGE

Greeting In The Lord To All Those Who Are About To Inspect The Documents At Hand

Our ancestors, among many other considerations, wisely determined in the beginning that all those who, in public palaces of learning, proved themselves worthy lovers of wisdom, should be ordered and proclaimed Bachelors, or Masters, or even Doctors. In order that this could be done lawfully in our College also, the State of Rhode Island, through a charter granted to us on the 14th day of February in the year 1917, has opportunely established it. To the roster of those who have merited this honor there ought to be added by every good right

(NAME)

For he, after having given the proper number of years to the prescribed studies, and having passed satisfactorily both oral and written examinations, has been judged by the votes of the Faculty of the aforesaid College worthy of the dress which accompanies the title and rights of a Bachelor. We, therefore, approving their decision, have ordered and proclaimed this praiseworthy man and we have decorated him with each and all the rights, privileges, and prerogatives which all those enjoy who have attained this same degree in any other college. Lest there be wanting a testament of the newly acquired dignity, we have given to him public documents to have and to hold, subscribed by our own hand

Given at Providence on this ( DATE )

January, 1945

The January, 1945, class enjoys a unique place in the annals of the College for several reasons. It was the first class to have completed its entire course of College studies under the war-time expediency of acceleration, having entered the College in June, 1942, with approximately 100 members. The fact that only four of these remained to finish their studies tells more than volumes of print. The total number of six graduates is the smallest class to be graduated from the College in its quarter-century of existence—one of these is a returned veteran; another lost a year of study because of illness.

The other members of that June, 1942, Freshman class are scattered to the four points of the compass. Where they are now is a story we'd like to tell, but practically impossible of accomplishment because of the vicissitudes of the world at war. With respect we mention one member, president of his class in the sophomore year, John Burke, of Newport, who died by accidental drowning in August, 1943. May he rest in peace.

The Underclassmen

In the entire day-school enrollment there are at this time approximately one hundred fifty students. One says "approximately" advisedly, since the Military has its eyes on the same age group as does any college, and students enroll in classes only to be in the Service by the end of the next trimester. Some twenty returned veterans are among the student body. At the present time there are students in each of the eight terms, and with the trimester system in operation, they require only two and two-thirds years to complete the four-year college course. Since January 1942 the College has been in "continuous session" with an accelerated schedule of three terms each calendar year.

There is one student in the second-term Junior class; the other classes are pictured below.

Sports --- 1919-1944

No school could ever inaugurate its administration of athletics with more humble beginnings than the Friars of Providence College did just twenty-five years ago. The school in 1920 was an infant in years but a giant in aspirations. Through the ever-growing clamors of under-graduates, an Athletic Association was formed, having as its director Fr. Ambrose Howley, O.P. The task ahead was one of great difficulties and almost insurmountable obstacles. Here was a school attempting to put up an athletic battle with other established colleges and having but 75 students of little or no athletic experience, lacking a suitable playing field, and having a trying job of it in its efforts to convince colleges of established reputation to add Providence to their athletic programs.

BASEBALL.

With Patrick (Paddy) Duffy as coach, and John McCaffrey (class of '23) as captain, the first game of Friar diamond history took place on April 1, 1921, at Davis Park. The opponent was La Salle Academy. Captain McCaffrey pitched the initial victory. Allowing but three hits and striking out 12 men, McCaffrey beat La Salle, 3 to 2. It was only three years later that the most exciting game of Providence College history took place at Andrews Field against Brown University. Soon after becoming the new coach of the Friar "9", Jack Flynn discovered the greatest pitcher turned out by any Friar club. This great athlete was Charley Reynolds, and he was Coach Flynn's choice to oppose Elmer Duggan of Brown on that memorable day of June 7, 1924. The game went on for over five hours, with the Friars finally winning it in their half of the twentieth inning by the score of 1 to 0. So good was the twirling of Reynolds that even Duggan's 29 strikeouts couldn't claim the victory of the longest game in intercollegiate baseball history. The most perfect game ever pitched by a Friar hurler was turned in by a Jewish boy named Wineapple on May 2, 1928. Shutting out Lowell Textile, 9 to 0, Wineapple faced only 30 men, three more than the minimum. Three free passes marred the perfect game as the Textile hitters failed to collect a single hit in their nine innings of futile swinging.

The year 1934 saw the "Rockne of College Baseball" die at the age of 52. For ten years, this great mentor of the diamond, Jack Flynn, brought to the glories of the Friars the total of 151 ball games out of a possible 208. His three championship clubs of 1928, 1931, and 1932 amassed the total of 53 victories with but nine losses. Because of his ability to convert mediocre teams into winning ball clubs, Flynn earned the name "Miracle Man of College Baseball" which was given to him by many sports writers of New England. His successful method of having a hustling nine-man team without aces, was the envy of rival coaches. Of the major sports at the College, it was Jack Flynn's baseball that put the name "Friar" in among the leading contenders for college supremacy in the athletic world. (A memorial to Jack Flynn has been erected by the Alumni in Aquinas Hall lounge.)

One of Flynn's proteges, George "Birdie" Tebbets, '34, was regular catcher for the Detroit Tigers before he entered the Army, where he is now physical education instructor and personnel officer.

The name of Donat Brochu, '40, will long be remembered in Friar Baseball, not merely because he lost the sight of one eye when struck by a hard-hit ball at third base, but especially because he came back to the team after hospitalization to play outfield. He was elected "honorary captain" for the remainder of his college days.

FOOTBALL

1921 saw the first football team at Providence College. Boston College was the first collegiate opponent; the game was played in Boston and resulted in a victory for the Eagles, 25-0. To Fred Huggins, the first coach, and at present an Army captain, goes the honor of planting the seeds for future Providence College achievements on the football field. The first football game played on Hendricken Field was with the team from the New London Submarine Base on October 21, 1922. The Field was formally dedicated on November 11, 1922, in a game with Boston University.

With the coming of Archie Golembeski to Smith Hill, the Friar "11" began to show real signs of going places in the "pigskin" world. Teams such as Fordham, Army, Colgate, and Holy Cross sought games with the young college of Providence. Rarely did the Friars ever meet a team equal to itself, and often the teams they played maintained a powerful reputation for football might. Defeats many times exceeded victories but the spirit was always firm as a rock. Probably the greatest example of Friar perseverance is in connection with their rivalry with Holy Cross. Never has a Providence club ever humbled the Crusaders on the gridiron. The defeats were often overwhelming, but in 1937 under Coach McGee, a very fortunate "break" for the Crusaders deprived the Friars of at least a tie ballgame. With no score in the game, a Holy Cross back fumbled the ball only to have his teammate pick it up for the first and final score of the afternoon.

Although fielding a team with few wins in '37, Joe McGee was paid a high tribute by the President of Providence College. Father Dillon declared at a dinner for the athletes of the College that "There have been three phases in Providence College football. Fred Huggins planted the seed, Archie Golembeski watered it and Joe McGee developed it to a worthy place in sports." With McGee resigning his post in 1938, Hugh Devore, a former Notre Damer, came to take over the coaching assignment at Providence. All the years of hard work and waiting were beginning to bear fruit under Devore until World War II forced the postponing of football for the duration. To many, the most exciting game played under Devore's leadership was against Rhode Island State. Both teams gave and took that whole night of 1941, and when the smoke had cleared, the scoreboard flashed a scoreless tie. Games with Rhode Island bring more interest to both student bodies than just the sixty minutes of bone-bruising football. It is quite a feat to have a P. C. under-graduate steal the ram mascot from the State campus. In 1934, this tradition reached its greatest peak when the students of State became so irritated over the loss of their pet, that they kidnaped a few Friar students until the ram was returned to them after the game.

Albert "Hank" Soar, who was on the team that beat Boston College in 1934, wound up playing professional football with the New York Giants; he was followed by Charley Avedesian, '41, a few years later.

The mere mention of Friar football history simultaneously brings to mind the name of Malcolm (Mal) Brown. With the reputation of being the greatest all-round athlete of Amherst High School, Mal came to Providence College. In 1927, he played at halfback for Golembeski, and although he failed to capture many football headlines, he did capture the admiration and respect of all his teammates and that of his coach. Mal was also very popular with the student body, and after his graduation, he returned as a trainer for the athletes. His work and associations with the College led him to embrace the faith.

During the baseball games out on Hendricken Field, he could be heard shouting to the Friar infield "Get two, make one shuah!" In 1939, an epidemic of typhoid afflicted the college, and Mal fell victim to this disease. Complications set in and the addition of pneumonia resulted in the death of this beloved figure. So high were his sporting characteristics that an annual "Mal Brown Award" is presented by Edward P. Conaty, '33, to the Friar athlete whose all-round ability, sportsmanship, and courage make him outstanding.

BASKETBALL

Through the efforts of Fathers Howley and J. T. Fitzgerald, the first Providence College basketball team was organized in 1921. With no court to practice on, the team was disbanded after three successive losses. In 1928, a new wing was added to the school, and an auditorium provided. That very same year, Coach Al McClellan brought his boys up to the New England Championship with 17 wins out of 20. Eddie Wineapple with 278 points finished second for the Eastern basketball scoring mark, and made the N. E. All-American basketball team. "Good teams were to represent P. C. in future years of court battle, but although none was a championship club, several of them placed candidates on the N. E. All-American team. Johnny Krieger got the honor in 1929, Eddie Koslowski and Dick Brachen both got it in 1933, and Leo Davin was awarded it in 1936.

The new fast-breaking system was instituted at Harkins Hall by Coach Ed Crotty in 1939. This system turned out successful teams in 1940, 1941 and 1942. The last pre-war team of 1942-43 turned in a record of 15 wins against 5 losses. Entrance into service of key men was a prime factor in the loss of part of the five games. Probably the most thrilling game of that season was played with Rhode Island State at the Auditorium. The lead changed hands for the greater part of the night. With one minute to go, the score was knotted at 54-54. As the 4500 fans stood breathlessly, a Ram player who had failed to score all night, tossed in the winning basket with only 9 seconds to go. After that game, Zabek, the backbone in the Friar offense, left for the Armed Forces. Before the season had ended, the majority of the Crottymen were inducted into the military. Many of them will return after the war to carry on the spirited tradition of Friar basketball.

OTHER SPORTS

Providence College has always wanted a well-rounded sports program. Besides the major games of baseball, football, and basketball, teams were formed in tennis, golf, hockey, and track. But of these minor sports, tennis had the longest "run." In the spring of 1931, the first team was formed with Allyn F. Sullivan as captain, and William F. Keenan as manager. The first contest was with Brown at the Thayer Street courts. (Brown had a good team that year!)

In 1933 a lanky freshman who had been making local tennis history enrolled at P. C. He was Francis Fitzpatrick. When he was at the College the tennis team made its mark in sports history, and Frank made his mark in other amateur competition, gaining the singles semi-finals in the intercollegiate tournament. In Varsity competition he won 17 singles matches, 17 doubles matches, losing only 4 singles and one doubles. He was captain in 1937.

The lawn in front of Aquinas Hall took the space occupied by the tennis courts on the Friar campus, and tennis has not yet returned to the scene.

Several times boxing tournaments have been exhibited at Harkins Hall under the auspices of the Athletic Association. Members of the student body have participated in the art of fisticuffs for the further glory of Providence College. Many of them have had their profiles battered but none murmured, as their efforts were held successful by the large audiences which attended the boxing shows. Intermural sports activities have increased greatly since the coming of war. During the stay of the Army Specialized Training Program a keen sense of intra-group competition was displayed both by service men and civilian students. The departure of the Army men left much to be remembered in their athletic achievements.

THE FUTURE OF FRIAR SPORTS

The future of athletics at the College hinges around the construction of a gymnasium for which funds have been collected during the current year. To Father Begley, Athletic Director since 1941, will go the task of guiding our efforts in that direction. He will, however, merely be building upon the foundation laid by his predecessors: Father Howley, first Director; Father Baeszler succeeded him in 1926; then came Father Schmidt, 1933-1938; Father Quinn held the post for two years, and Father Dore for one and one-half.

PRESIDENT ENCOURAGES WORK OF COWL STAFF

Says Extra-Curricular Activities Complete
College Training

OUTLINES PLANS

Commends Enterprise
as Promoter of College Spirit

Dr. L. C. McCarthy, O.P., President of Providence College, honors us with this message on the first day of the COWL'S appearance:

"It was with no little interest that I learned some few weeks ago of the intention of several students to edit a college weekly under the direction of Father Perrotta. It is with a corresponding satisfaction that I welcome its appearance today.

"The COWL will serve several useful purposes at the college. Being less formal than the ALEMBO and more dignified than the TIE-UP and SNAP-PEP, it will be a practice-field not only for the young men who have journalistic aspirations but for all those who expect to use the press as a means for exercising greater personal or professional influence.

"Educators for the most part agree that initiations into what are termed extra-curricular activities are made most effectively during under-graduate days. This is particularly true of public speaking, debating and writing for publication. How often have we not heard men and women who have achieved notable success in business or in the professions declare regretfully that their efforts are restricted and their accomplishments abbreviated because they are unable to serve a larger public either through the written or through the spoken word! With advancing years and increased prestige, they experience more and more reluctance to make the mistakes of beginners; and in consequence they either refuse to employ these techniques or use them quite sparingly.

"It is principally with the hope of preventing such conditions from obtaining in the lives of Providence College graduates that opportunities are afforded for these activities, and students are constantly encouraged to become active participants.

"The COWL may serve another purpose which is scarcely less important than that of developing writers. It may and it should foster college spirit. There is something ennobling in any loyalty that is properly placed; for loyalty implies a mental attitude that is both generous and cooperative. It indicates a willingness to identify oneself with a group and to assume responsibility for group action. From one point of view, it is an enlargement of one's personality; and from another, it is a subor-

STATE PROUD OF COACH KEANEY

Coach Frank Keaney, Rhode Island State's Athletic Director, is in complete charge of all sports at that institution. An Alumnus of Bates College, where his record is an incentive to those who follow, he is known, loved and respected throughout eastern collegiate circles. As coach at Woonsocket High, he produced his most illustrious pupil, Joe McGee. During his sixteen years at Kings-ton, he has endeared himself to his associates. Genial and patient, relentless and confident,—a lover of sports,—a student of the game,—a keen strategist, and strict disciplinarian. The Friars are proud to combat the charges of this builder of men.

Hockey Team to Be Formed By Students

Activity Long Sought Here to Become Reality if Plans
Materialize

A group of hockey adherents in the College are making plans to form a team that will play in the inter-collegiate ranks during the coming winter months. While no decisive forward step has yet been taken it appears that a team will be ready to take the ice within a fortnight.

There are many capable hockey players in the student ranks who have been playing for the past few years in the Amateur Hockey leagues throughout the state. Without a doubt they will be able to produce amazingly good results under the colors of the Black and White. Despite the fact that the team will not be sponsored by the athletic association they are assured of the cooperation of the student body and of the association to some extent.

dination of self to a larger whole. There are, it is true, loyalties which are more important than loyalty to college. Such are loyalty to family, to country and to God. Fortunately, these are not mutually exclusive; and they all leave room for the expression of a reasonable interest in and devotion to the welfare of an Alma Mater.

With regard to the precise and most acceptable forms in which college spirit should manifest itself, the contributors to the COWL may and undoubtedly will, as the occasion arises, enlighten its readers. But so long as it promotes a sympathetic, benevolent spirit in the student body itself and strengthens their loyalty to the aims and purpose of Providence College, it will accomplish a noteworthy service."

McGee Hopeful For Victory

Praises Student Cooperation
And Reviews Past Two Seasons as Coach

In reviewing the past two seasons since my appointment as head coach of football, I must first express my sincere appreciation and thanks for the exceptionally fine cooperation and support that has been accorded me. It has been very gratifying to know that everyone actively connected with Providence College, including the faculty, student body, athletic association, the players themselves, and the many friends of the college, has been behind me in my every endeavor. I am most certainly pleased that I have this opportunity to publicly acknowledge this fact. I hope that this spirit continues, for without it I can accomplish nothing. We must all keep our shoulders to the wheel, and although there will be discouragements and defeats along the line I am sure we will accomplish our aim.

Last Year
Now to trace the past two seasons since my appointment. At the beginning of the 1934 season a squad of about thirty reported, and in that group but four were regulars on the varsity the year preceding. At first sight, the prospects were none too bright. But it proved to be an ideal set-up. A squad of green, inexperienced, sophomore players meant that I could start at the bottom and build for the future. To my way of thinking, this was better than taking over a squad of experienced players. With valuable aid from my assistant coaches I spent the entire season teaching fundamentals and sound football theories, concentrating for the most part on defensive football. No intricate formations or plays were attempted.

After losing to Holy Cross 25-0—a defeat not wholly unexpected as it was the first college game for most of the members of the first team—we defeated C.C.N.Y. 19-6; lost to Springfield 14-13; defeated Boston College

Football Players Not Mere Robots

Game Develops Men; All Is Not
Glory on Gridiron

The fundamental benefit to be derived from football is the development of better men. The spirit of competitive rivalry, the struggle for victory, and the desire of men to become superior, are merely motives in themselves, each contributing to the production of a more efficient man.

Every man who appears in uniform today has earned that right through long hours of practice, privation and preparation. Perhaps he is a hard charging lineman, an accurate passer, or a side-stepping, swivel-hipped back; or then again he may be doomed to remain on the sidelines, uncheered, unheralded, unnoticed and unsung.

And of those men who parade before us today, some are endowed with greater ability than others; some have reached the peak of their collegiate career and some are yet in-the-making. But whether they are brilliant or obscure, regular or substitute, all have learned to be prompt, obedient and self-reliant, all are well-schooled in the essentials of cooperative action, and clean living. All are better men.

Our sincerest sympathy to—

William Beck, '24, on the death of his wife.

John P. Condon, '39, on the death of his mother.

Paul O'Neill, '38, on the death of his mother.

Requiescant in Pace.

Both Teams Confident As Game Time Nears

COLOR PREVALENT

Hank Soar and Mudge Renew Old Rivalry In Classic

Excitement that has been held somewhat in restraint for the past two weeks will let loose in a reverberating crescendo of noise when the agile toe of some Providence College or Rhode Island State grider sends the ball scudding through the air for the opening kickoff of today's game which promises to decide the collegiate football supremacy of Rhode Island. Considerable interest was added to the contest back in the early fall when a fighting State eleven vanquished their ancient Brown rival for the first time in a long extended series of tradition-filled games.

Since the lazy days of early September both squads have been slowly, but expertly, drilled to a peak by the respective coaching staffs for this contest which undoubtedly will be replete with thrills and sensational plays. It would be unfair to prognosticate concerning the outcome, for both teams are tense, and in traditional rivalries of this kind previous records can be tossed to the winds for they are to be discounted.

There are many interesting angles to today's game. Frank Keaney will match his tricky and colorful offense against Joe McGee's passing and power attack. Bobby Mudge, clever State fullback, and Hank Soar, Friar halfback of Eastern fame, have been rivals for state honors in the past and if both are at their peak today the assembled spectators are in for a real football treat. Omer Landry, diminutive quarterback, and Johnny Mantenuo, State halfback, the rival captains, will be out there playing in their last collegiate game. Both will be striving to have their club on top when the final whistle spells doom to a great hour of play.

An ominous note might be mentioned here in the fact that the Friars, though unusually adept in the passing game as an offensive weapon, have manifested a glaring weakness on pass defense, a department of play in which the Kingston lads are either very hot, or cold.

Sports followers adhere to the fact that the Black and White gridmen will prove to be too strong for their smaller but faster opponents. This may be true, but we expect a stirring fight to the finish.

Our advice is, follow the ball.

ALUMNI LOYALTY FUND DRIVE OPENS, October 24, 1944, with Leo Reardon, '28, presenting Father Dillon with twenty-eight 25-dollar Bonds. William M. Hoban, '24, Chairman of Drive, and Dr. James Colgan, '24, Alumni President, look on.

LOYALTY FUND DRIVE CLOSES—dinner in P. C. Cafeteria, January 25, 1945. At the head table, Dr. O'Neill, '24, Father McLaughlin, Tom Monahan, '28, new Alumni President; Bill Hoban, '24, Father Foley, '27, Governor McGrath, '26, Dr. Colgan, '24, Fred Langton, '28, Lou FitzGerald, '34, Walt Gibbons, '39, Coach Crotty. Father Foley rises to speak.

THE COWL took the place of the mimeographed weekly Tie-Up, and the Alembic, a monthly literary student publication, became a quarterly. Alembic and Cowl suspended publication with the shrinkage of the student body.

The VERITAS first saw the light of day in 1928 with Dan Nash as editor-in-chief. The Alembic, up to that time, had carried the names and histories of the graduates. But the Depression made it necessary to suspend further publications until 1937 when E. Riley Hughes edited the revived yearbook; this book contains a rather detailed chronicle of events from 1919. Since 1937 each graduating class has had its VERITAS in spite of World War II, although it has not been possible to maintain the standard of First Class Honor Rating, of the National Scholastic Press Association, won in 1941 and May 1942. As noted on Page 64, the 1944 VERITAS was a make-shift, but socially it was the most successful since the whole graduating class constituted the staff, with the class officers serving as editorial board. The list of books and their editors follows:

- 1928—Daniel A. Nash
- 1937—E. Riley Hughes
- 1938—John A. Graham and Daniel J. O'Connor
- 1939—Michael A. Coyne
- 1940—Raymond J. Dixon
- 1941—Ira T. Williams
- 1942 May—M. Joseph McLaughlin

GREETINGS:

And a cordial invitation to stop at New York's newest hotel, the Abbey, when next you visit New York.

Managed by a Rhode Islander, John J. Jennings, the Abbey was the "home away from home" for more than 8,000 residents of "Rhody" last year.

You'll find, as these 8,000 did, that the Abbey, located on West 51st Street at Radio City, is comfortable, economical, and convenient. May we act as your New York hosts?

A Mark of Quality

Wherever New England men of good taste gather you'll find the Kennedy label in great evidence. For years this mark has been their guiding star in the selection of their clothing. It represents the accumulation of years of experience outfitting men and young men with the clothing they want at prices they want to pay. It's in the light of this experience that New England men, in ever increasing numbers, come to Kennedy's.
