THE MOST REVEREND RUSSELL J. McVINNEY, D.D., LL.D.
Fifth Bishop of the Diocese of Providence

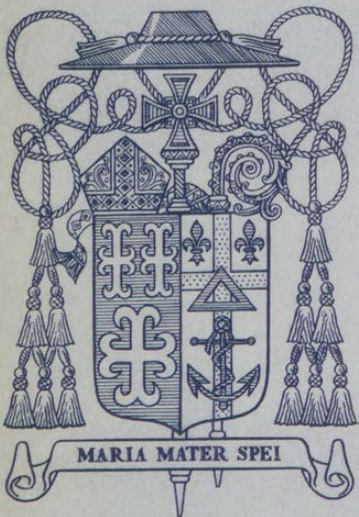

As the faithful shepherd of the diocese in which our College is located, you have been our inspiring spiritual leader. You have fulfilled both our moral and intellectual needs in these chaotic times of uncertainty and turmoil.

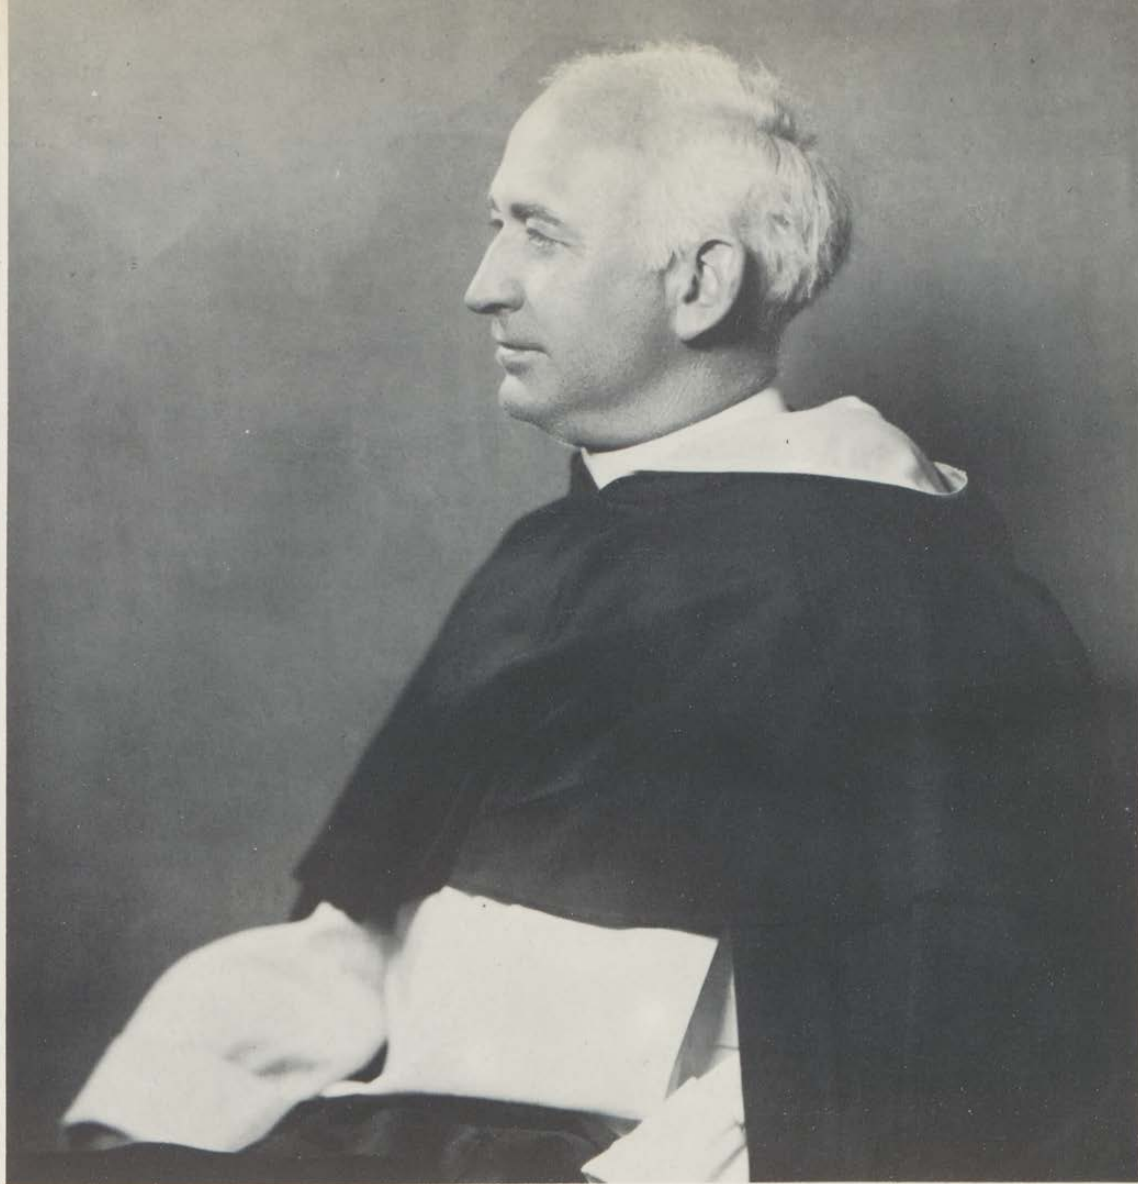

We know well your beneficent solicitude for the welfare of your entire flock, and especially the fatherly interest you have shown for the youth entrusted to your care.

We, who have received so much of moral education here as well as the intellectual, recognize you as a strong and loyal patron of Catholic education.

It is indeed an honor and a privilege to have this opportunity to acknowledge our indebtedness to you for the innumerable advantages we have enjoyed in pursuing our education at the very source of truth and wisdom.

May Almighty God in His divine providence grant you many years in your glorious priestly office and the grace to carry out the duties of your divine charge.

THE VERY REVEREND TERENCE S. McDERMOTT, O.P., S.T.M., LL.D., K.M.
President, Providence College Corporation

This true and outstanding son of Saint Dominic has been unceasing in his guidance of Providence College, which is a project of his province.

Our faculty has been blessed with having an outstanding spiritual and temporal leader throughout the years in which he has been Provincial.

We, the students, who have benefited so much from the high ideals of honor, knowledge, and truth which our teachers have shown us, realize that if it were not for the efforts of his fatherly care for them, we would not have such a truly exemplary staff of Dominican Fathers.

His constant interest in the varied activities of our College has been shown by his many appearances at dedication ceremonies here on the campus and at other exercises.

It is our earnest hope that the students who will follow us here will continue to benefit from his tutelage and prosper under his guidance.

THE VERY REVEREND ROBERT J. SLAVIN, O.P., S.T.M., PH.D., SC.D., LL.D., D.H.L.
President, Providence College

College graduates of today have had their vocabulary increased by the ever-new adjectives used to describe the uncertainty which the present holds for the future. Escape into fear and cynicism would be easy. I am confident that you face the future as a challenge. At other times in the history of our country young men had to face a difficult future. These very difficulties can give birth to greatness if you show yourselves to be men of faith, of courage, of hope.

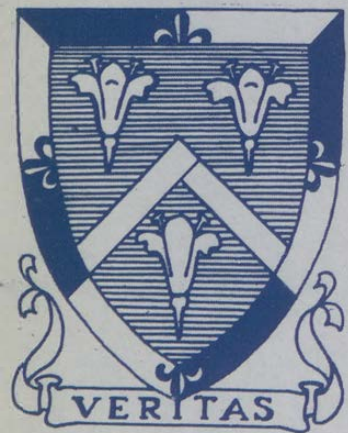

It must be clear to you that threats to your future happiness cannot be met by military armaments alone. You recognize the importance of spiritual arms as the answer to those who say young men of today have no horizons of happiness to envision.

Our country, our world, our people need the stability and courage you can give by bringing God and His truths, as well as His commandments, into your lives. Spiritual alertness and moral living are antidotes to the fear and irresponsibility surrounding you.

Your task for the future, while full of challenge, is one you should accept with gladness by reason of the education you have received at Providence College. With the torch of truth in your hands, with God by your side, who can darken your footsteps, who can be against you!

May Almighty God and Mary Immaculate, His Mother and yours, grant you for the days of life which lie before you Their Wisdom, Their Protection and Their Benediction!

ROBERT J. SLAVIN, O.P.

r religious activities

Although many students of various religious faiths are in welcomed attendance, Providence College is a Catholic institution, and therefore many Catholic exercises are held during the year for the benefit of the students. These exercises are under the direction of the Chaplain, the Rev. Charles H. McKenna, O.P.

Throughout the year students take advantage of the large chapel located in the right wing of Aquinas Hall, the smaller one in Harkins Hall, and the beautiful grotto, scene of the daily devotions held during the months of May and October.

Among the outstanding religious events held at the college are: the annual Mass of the Holy Ghost, celebrated by the local bishop at the opening of the calendar year; the Family Hour; the annual retreat, held during Holy Week; First Friday devotions; and the Marriage Forum, which gains popularity each year among the students and friends of P. C.

IN AMERICAN COLLEGES AND UNIVERSITIES

Seventeen P. C. seniors were honored with acceptance into the 1953-54 ranks of "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities." The honored students represented most of the fields of campus endeavor; ranging from drama, student government and territorial groups to publications and athletics. The seniors were nominated because of their scholarship—a 2.5 academic quotient was required—service to the school, leadership ability, personality, and promise of future usefulness to business and society. The students elected to Who's Who, which lists America's most outstanding college students, received mention in the book which is sent to leading companies throughout the United States.

The purpose of the National Federation of Catholic College Students is to unite all students at Catholic colleges and universities throughout the country. Because of the extent of its jurisdiction, it is divided into geographical sections, with Providence College a member of the New England Region. It conducts its operations through a system of thirteen regional and national commissions, each handling a specific phase of Federation work, such as radio, mariology and forensics. The annual Intercollegiate Dance and the Overseas Service Program's fund-drive and tag day for needy foreign students are the highlights of the Federation's on-campus activities.

The Student Congress is the hub around which all other extra-curricular organizations revolve. As the student governing body, it exercises jurisdiction over all student affairs, and is charged with safeguarding the extra- and co-curricular interests of those students who constitute Providence College. It prevents conflicts between events by maintaining and requiring all campus organizations to strictly abide by a social calendar. Thus no club may sponsor an event until its details have met with congressional sanction.

Although not yet six years old, it has already made many memorable contributions to P. C. The student parking area, the recent renovation of the student lounge, the annual Family Hour, the revival of "Beanies," a masterful solution of the thorny class ring question, and bringing the college into the National Federation of Catholic College Students, illustrate the many accomplishments of our Student Congress.

This club is unique in that it selects its limited membership in a descending ratio from several classes. Final approval is at the discretion of the dean. Since 1928 its members have served as the official hosts of the college, offering a congenial welcome to visitors and insuring all guests of an enjoyable and beneficial stay at the college, always living up to their motto, "to welcome the coming, speed the parting guest." This club is primarily concerned with increasing school spirit. It continually conducts "pep" rallies and informal dances to heighten our athletic teams' esprit d' corps.

A prepossessing appellation is the Alembic, the name of the Providence College literary quarterly. This publication features original student-written short stories, essays, plays, poems, and other articles.

"It is through communication that one reveals his personality and develops his character," taken from the Alembic's first issue well explains the aim of this Friar magazine. It is the third oldest campus activity.

As its title suggests, all material submitted receives a verbal distillation through constructive criticism. The finished product represents a satisfying accomplishment for the author, as well as a source of reading enjoyment for his fellow students. Headed by an elected editor, this magazine is managed by the students under the guidance of a faculty advisor.

WDOM, the Call Letters of the Friars, identifies the campus radio station at this college. It operates eight hours a day, five days per week, presenting a musical, dramatic, athletic and educational broadcasting format. The station, now operating with limited facilities in the basement of Aquinas Hall, will soon acquire a more powerful transmitter.

THE COWL

"An All-American Publication"

Providence College has one of the seven best undergraduate weeklies in the United States. For the first time in its sixteen year history, the Cowl was awarded an "All-American" honor rating by the Associated Collegiate Press this year. Last year's editions were used as the basis for judgment. Columns, editorials and features of the highest calibre, complete coverage of campus activities by masterfully written and edited news stories, and the finest of typography are necessary to acquire this coveted award.

The inspiring leadership of James J. Marshall, '53 and the hard work of his skilled staff from the class of 1954 are commonly and rightfully regarded as responsible for this meritorious achievement. The Cowl is managed in its entirety by students, who have done much to foster school spirit with such famous "extras" as the St. Thomas Day and Commencement supplements, as well as special editions on the day of an important athletic contest. It is a member of the Catholic Press Association, the Collegiate Press, and a charter member of the Rhode Island Intercollegiate Press Association, as well as the Associated Collegiate Press. Many of its past editors have gained prominence in the profession of journalism.

Man is born into society with certain essential needs that can be satisfied only in group associations. Realizing this fact, the Blackstone Valley Club was formed with a two-fold purpose in mind: to provide the opportunity for each Providence College student from the north-central section of Rhode Island to better know and appreciate his fellow students through the medium of social intercourse, while at the same time cultivating those spiritual and ethical qualities associated with a Christian gentleman.

As there are nearly as many students from Cranston attending Providence College as there are from Providence, it is not surprising that the Cranston Club is one of the largest regional clubs at P. C. This club possesses a generous policy to invite the entire Friar student body to its social functions. This lack of chauvinism has resulted in these functions being so well attended that the major ones are held in the spacious Ledge-mont Country Club.

This society, comprising pre-ecclesiastical students who aspire to be added to the rolls of sainted Dominic's holy order, may rightfully boast of being the oldest student organization on campus. It was founded by the Silver Jubilee Class to engender a brotherly comradeship among the future Dominicans, all residents of Guzman Hall. The present day Philomusians can point with justifiable pride to a long line of former dwellers in their dorm who have gone forth to follow in the hallowed footsteps of the founder of the Order.

The main objective of the Johannine Society is to foster a better understanding of history and world affairs among its members. This club emphasizes lectures by its own members instead of by outsiders. They were given on an average of one every three weeks this year, and have ranged from a science major's talk on the present uses of atomic power to another on the battle of Santiago. The club membership is also varied, coming from all college departments. A large number of this year's lectures dealt with current events.

This club inculcates in honor rated members of the college corps of cadets those qualities of comradeship, responsibility and military knowledge so vital to the effectiveness of any officer.

It aims at readying the cadets for the demanding and manifold duties of an army officer. It does this through a series of field trips to nearby military installations and by lectures on many aspects of army life by prominent militarists from throughout the first army area.

In the club's three years of operation it has made a substantial contribution to college life by adding to the campus social calendar the annual Military Ball now one of the most popular extra-curricular events for all cadets.

While some clubs are curricular, and others territorial, a Sailing Club is mostly seasonal. The majority of its nautical activities are conducted in the Fall and Spring. With General Winter's frosty advent, its members devote themselves to boat construction, fund raising and lectures on the intricacies of small-craft handling.

When the ice departs from the local pond, the Friar fleet of various boats sets forth upon its waters for a period of intensive training in preparation for participation in the Spring season's intercollegiate sailing tournaments. The Sailing Club is presently being considered for membership in the Intercollegiate Dinghy Racing Association.

As is written in the preamble to the club's constitution, "a more challenging sport than skiing cannot be found. It offers the torrid speed of race, combined with the feeling of flying through space, almost touching the stars as you maneuver down the jagged slope of a majestic mountain." Possessing sufficient courage to learn the art of laughing at nature when armed with a pair of skis is the only requirement for entrance into this celestial cabal, which sponsors several weekend jaunts to northern New England ski runs yearly.

The intervening miles have not kept Hartford from being well represented at Providence College. The Hartford Club's leading social attraction is the annual Easter Dance held during the spring respite and always well attended by students from as far afield as New York and New Jersey. The Club also has a prominent hand in the Intercollegiate Ball held every Thanksgiving in Hartford for all Catholic College students in the area.

Now in its senior year, this club was formed to fulfill a long recognized need for a closer fraternal association among Friar students residing in the nearby metropolitan Providence area. Its social calendar is based on three events which have even now grown to be bright spots on the Providence College social season. These are a Communion Breakfast on Palm Sunday, at which some prominent member of our faculty addresses both students and their friends; a formal dance at the fashionable Wayland Manor, to which only accredited club members may go; and a semi-formal dance at the pavillion in Roger Williams Park.

The Glee Club sings pretty for the girls

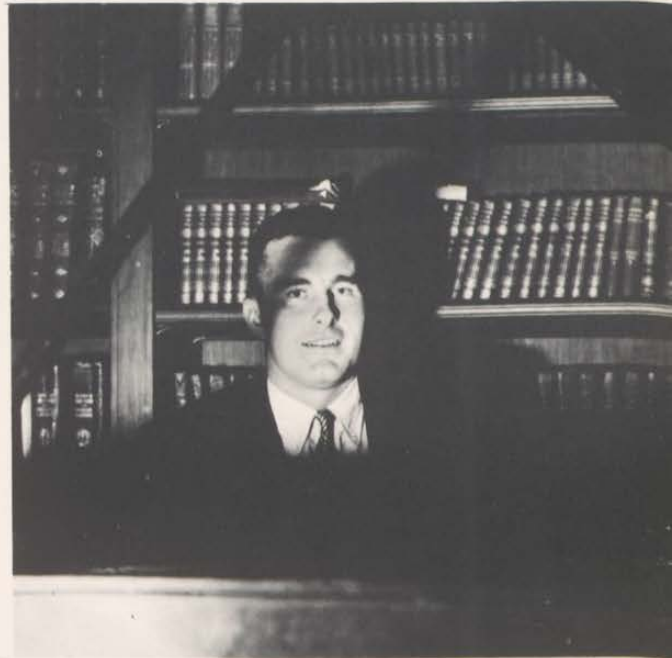

The Glee Club has long been one of the outstanding assets of Providence College by worthily representing Friardom's cultural attainments throughout all New England, and sometimes as far south as the nation's capital. Its yearly program includes many joint appearances with groups from other colleges. Seldom indeed are our vocalists surpassed by their colleagues. The excellence of their musical achievements is attested to by the favorable press reviews they invariably receive.

A signal but richly deserved honor was bestowed upon our Glee Club this year when it was selected to appear on the Catholic Hour, a nationally heard program with one of the highest "hooper ratings" in the United States. The broadcasts originated in Aquinas Hall. That the club possesses an excellently melodious style of blended voices and instruments is further proved by its appearances on the Montanto program. This program consists of weekly recitals by the nation's finest vocal groups.

The Elm City, long renowned as a center of education and culture in Southern New England, is well represented by a large and active body on the campus. Heading a long and diversified list of activities is their annual New Year's Eve party, one of the season's largest off-campus functions.

The New Haven Club, whose origin dates back to the earliest days of Providence College, is well steeped in tradition and campus prominence. It is the envy of many other sectional clubs in that it has been very successful in uniting all Friar students from its area into a firm fraternal brotherhood.

Extremely enthusiastic and frequently victorious softball and basketball teams in the Dorm League are this club's pride and joy. Many of its social functions are centered around the schedules of these two teams. Informal social hours are held to spark them on to victory in crucial contests, while more formal celebrations mark the winning of a League championship. As well as these unscheduled events, there are two traditional highlights on its agenda. The annual Boston Ball is held during the Christmas vacation at one of the better hotels in metropolitan Boston, while the yearly father-son Communion Breakfast is held at the College.

Like all infants, the newest addition to the roster of P. C.'s territorial clubs is small in numbers. An uncompromising enthusiasm compensates for this, however, and its members have spread the name of Providence College throughout the "wild west of Worcester County" in its two years of activity.

It specializes in informal social gatherings on weekends and calendar holidays. Its membership has a happy habit of laughing at distances, and gaily gallops all over the Bay State to attend athletic events of both P. C. teams and those from its home area of south central Massachusetts. These activities, some held in conjunction with the Western Mass. Club, are planned at biweekly meetings held in the largest room in Harkins Hall.

In the two brief years of its existence, this club has risen to become one of the most active co-curricular organizations at college. Composed of embryonic attorneys, it has contrived to combine a large and still growing social calendar with a full quota of lectures by prominent persons in the legal profession.

This club is now completing a register of Providence College alumni who are currently practicing attorneys. It is intended to use this list as a reservoir of assistance both to help club members gain admission into the law school of their choice, and to aid them in obtaining entrance into their chosen field.

The dove of peace descended upon the Science Majors' ivory tower fifteen years ago when the rival factions of the Biology and Photomicrographic Clubs united to form the Albertus Magnus Club. Thus the senior and junior pre-medical students united under the aegis of St. Albert the Great, famed Dominican scientist.

Its purpose is to promote a spiritual and social fraternity among Friardom's future bearers of the Caduceus. It also aims at rendering its members fully cognizant of their duty to apply Thomistic principles to their profession. These ends are realized through social hours, picnics and monthly meetings featuring lectures by noted physicians.

The Ship and Scales Club exists to render easy the transition from college life to the world of business. It is comprised of senior Business majors, alumni in that field, and prominent local Catholic businessmen.

Its purpose is three-fold: to promote the virtues of Justice and Charity in the business world, to supplement its members' college education with lectures on important business topics, and to foster the spirit of good fellowship among Friar businessmen. This co-curricular activity achieves its end at monthly meetings, where its members learn of opportunities in the world of business.

This event affords prospective science students the opportunity to view at close range the manifold advantages offered to them by Providence College, whose undergraduate School of Science is regarded as one of New England's finest. Such a place of prominence does this affair hold in the college calendar that it boasts both the President of the College and the Professor of Military Science as its feature speakers. As Napoleon was defeated on the fields of Harrow and Eton so will the forces of Satanic Machiavellianism meet their match upon encountering those Friars who have earned the college letter in varsity sports, and who make up the Monogram Club. This club instills in its members an adherence to sportsmanship that will endure no matter how strong may be the temptation to place success above justice.

Not only do these men make themselves known to all as formidable foes in varsity sports, but they exemplify also the college tradition, "a gentleman always." Little can be added to the praise offered by other colleges for the conduct of these men on and off the fields of play. The club provides college letters for its members and is the sponsor of the annual Varsity Hop. This hop is one of the oldest items on the Friar social agenda.

The Waterbury Club does not believe in letting any grass grow under its feet. Hardly have the incoming freshmen arrived at the college than those from Waterbury and its environs are gathered and treated to an informal acquaintance dance. The purpose of both this dance and the sponsoring club is to form a firm fraternal bond of spiritual and social unity among Providence College students from the Waterbury area. Club members regard their Christmas dance as the apex of their social activities. This semi-formal dinner dance is one of the most popular ones conducted by a Friar sectional club. Many students from New York and New Jersey as well as New England attended this year's, which was held at the Copper Kettle.

From this quaint and picturesque seafaring town comes a strong and loyal contingent. True to the spirit of their hardy forebears, some daily brave the wrath of the elements in pursuit of a common ideal: Veritas.

Their club has joined with its alumni brethren in the establishment and maintenance of a sizeable scholarship fund for students from their area who wish to attend this institution. In keeping with their city's well known interest in the fine arts, the islanders last year donated to our ROTC band the latter's present colorful helmets, scarves and leggings.

Some people like to watch plays; others would rather act in them. Needless to say, the inclinations of the College Pyramid Players lie with the latter group. Their propensity for grease-paint, footlights and the many other necessary concomitants of a successful theatrical production is amply justified by their proven dramatic talents and the ability to delight even the most critical of audiences: their own classmates.

This year the Players laid a new offering on Thespis' altar—the Friar Follies. This innovation consists of short dramatizations by various campus organizations. Of the twenty-six submitted this year, the ten best were presented to a more-than-capacity audience. The traditional theatre-in-the-round and spring musical have continued to be enthusiastically received by the entire student body.

The rugged coastal town of New Bedford, with its colorful and glorious history, is proudly acknowledged by these sons of the sea as their home town. Although "The Whalers" are comparatively few, quantitatively speaking, they have a full quota of social activities, most of which are conducted in New Bedford.

These affairs are noted for their successful combination of New England's traditional conservatism with the gaiety usually attributed to college men. The highlight of the year's activities is the annual "Blubber Ball" held at the New Bedford Country Club, at which everyone has a "whale of a time."

In the natural order of things, the gentlemen from Woonsocket are next to last alphabetically. Spiritually, however, the club is surpassed by few, each year with its father-son Communion Breakfast which serves to reaffirm the ultimate aim of the club: the fostering of spiritual and fraternal friendship among Friar students and alumni in Northern Rhode Island. Other highlights of the Woonsocketeers are the traditionally well-attended Christmas and Easter dinner-dances. This club has done much to advance the name of Providence College in its area by inviting students from other Catholic colleges to these dances.

The fleet footsters of Friardom pivot their social affairs on the three seasons of the academic year. Pumpkins, cider and many another delectable fruit of the farm constitute the horn of plenty found at the tracksters' Harvest Festival; mistletoe and Rudolph the Red-nosed Reindeer formed an Arctic motif for their Christmas Cotillion this year, while their annual Spring Dance has often heralded a highly successful series of end-of-season athletic engagements. This club, composed of members of both the varsity and freshman track and cross-country teams and their friends, surrounds these high-spots with a schedule of sports nights and excursions to track and field meets. It keeps its past and present membership informed of its activities through its monthly journal, "The Relay."

When Providence College men go in for anything, "the sky's the limit." This statement is borne out both figuratively and literally by the small but enthusiastic group known as the "Flying Friars." Not only do they receive instruction in aeronautical theory, but they put it into practice by using their own plane on flights all over southern New England.

In addition to these adventures in the azure, the club conducts innumerable other activities. These include: a series of monthly lectures on some phase of theoretical or applied aeronautics; and many others held in conjunction with the local Civil Air Patrol. A large number of its members are members of the Air Force Reserve.

The integration of Thomistic philosophy with economic principles is the primary aim of the St. Antoninus Club, composed of junior and senior Economics majors. It does this by a critical examination and evaluation of contemporary economic thought arrived at by an interchange of opinions among its members.

The club's modus operandi is the monthly discussion group, which analyze a particular aspect of current economic affairs to determine which principles are in play, how they are operating and their probable consequences. Here each member is given the opportunity to both formulate and express his own notions concerning the social science of economics.

"The 'negative's' argument is very weak"

Who has the most of what Demosthenes had but not the pebbles? The Barristers, Friarhood's golden-tongued orators, who sometimes outdo Churchill, have mastered an art which requires long hours of preparation, constant practice in presentation, and rapid thinking in the debate itself. They have carried the name and fame of Providence College throughout the region by their debates with other New England colleges, and through their annual forensic tournament held here in May.

The monetary Leonard Award for outstanding proficiency in oratorical competition has always been bestowed upon a Barrister. In addition, the debaters have their own prize for forensic achievement. This trophy, the Ellen Keily Medal, is one of P. C.'s oldest awards.

The Taunton Club symbolizes the common bond of fellowship which typifies the congeniality of those Friars who dwell just over the Bay State border. Reorganized this year after a lapse of two years, its members are enthusiastically building their club into a highly active organization. Its chief functions this year were several dances at the Weir House, and a Christmas project displayed in the New England famous Taunton Green. The Taunton Club is now making a definite and favorable impression on the off-campus lives of the students from that city.

The Western Mass occupies the unique position of being a westernmost P. C. regional club. Its purpose is to give Friar students from any part of the Bay State west of Worcester a feeling of unity. Because of its large domain, the realization of its aim is comparatively difficult. It has solved this problem by having its monthly meetings here at the college, so that all the members may attend them.

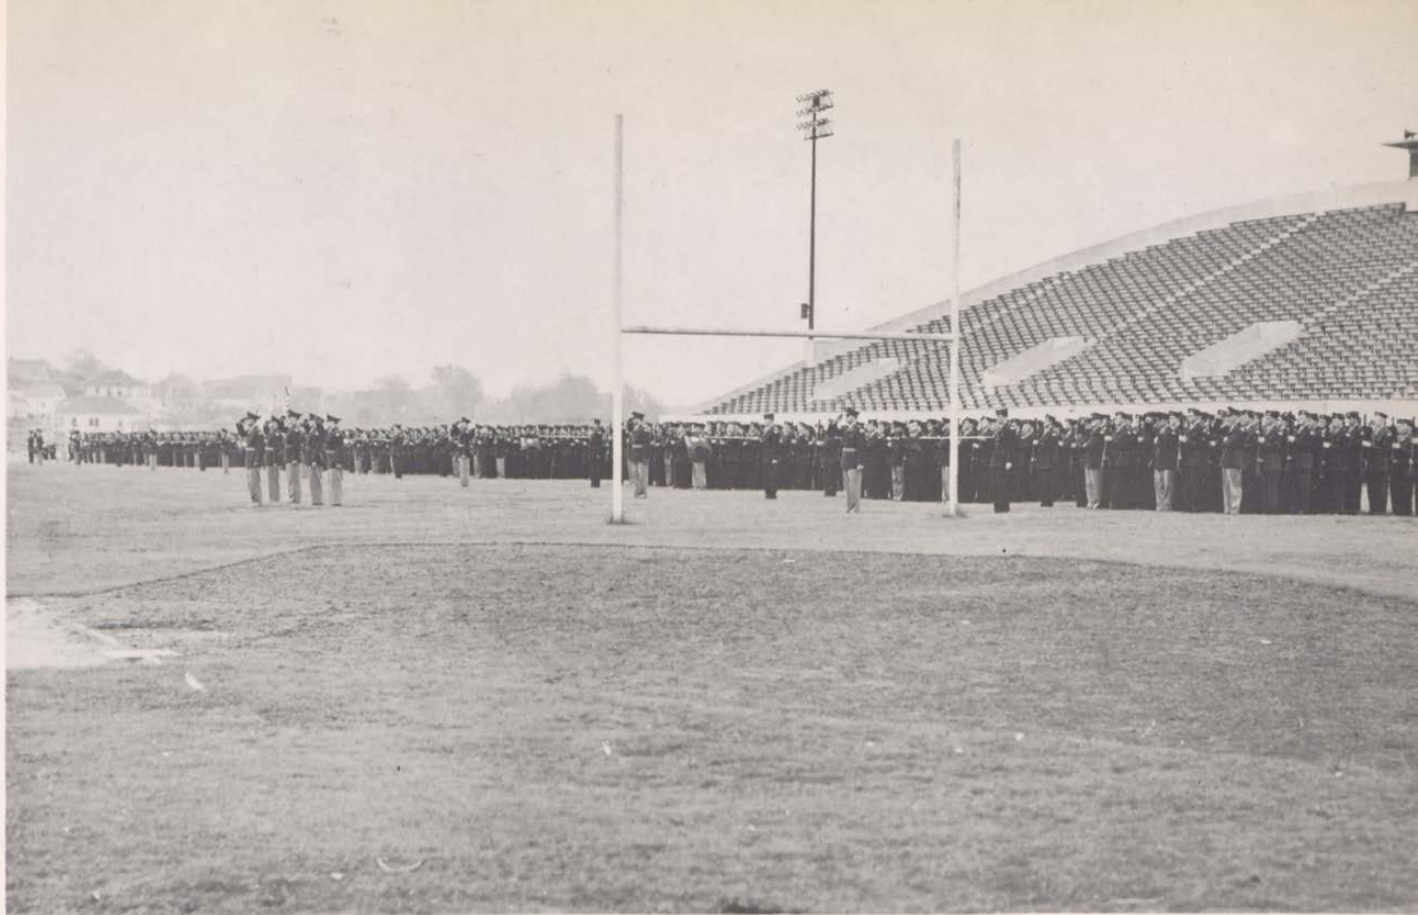

The club's most popular social event is its St. Patrick's Day "Shamrock Social" dance, with the music running the gauntlet from Irish jigs to Virginia Reels. It also sponsors a spirited hockey team which is well known in local puckster circles.

At the conclusion of a compulsory two-year basic course a student may, if properly qualified by the advance board and physical examination, enter the two-year advance course where, upon completion of the necessary requirements, he is commissioned in the Army or Marines as a 2nd Lieutenant. Some of the requirements are: attendance at classes and drill periods, and a six-week training period at Fort Eustis, Virginia.

The history of the Pawtuxet Valley Friars reflects the sociological pattern of the past fifteen years. Hardly had its founders established it as an active club when World War II caused them to exchange the "Battle of the Books" for a more vicious one. War's end found some of these men home again, but no further toward a degree than a half decade before. Their union as sons of Alma Mater made easier the reassumption of their academic burdens. The veterans even before enrolling reorganized their club at Providence College.

It is the established policy of the club to assist in the conduct of paper drives, rummage sales and other endeavors intended to aid charitable causes in its home area.

Fully cognizant of the fact that some of the finest moments of life are derived from mutuality and comradeship, the Carolan Club was formed to offer the resident student the ultimate in social enjoyment and spiritual maturity.

Dancing, lectures, movies and a highly organized system of intra-mural athletics comprise the social calendar of the largest group on campus. It offers the student a large amount of both cultural and physical relaxation. The summit of the social season is reached in February with the annual Dorm Week-end, perennially a thoroughly enjoyable combination of dancing, frivolity and good cheer.

The Metropolitan Club's domain is fairly well known. It extends from the rural pastures of Long Island up the Great White Way through Manhattan's jungle of asphalt and glass. As the Gothamites number over seven million, it is not extraordinary that a continuous stream should flow from the Hudson to Harkins Hall.

Nearly all of its activities are held in New York City. These include a New Year's Eve party with Times Square serving as an appropriate backdrop, and a spring formal dinner-dance at which a prominent New York dignitary usually addresses both students and graduates of the college.

"Point that end at the thing you want a picture of, and push this," is the way the uninitiated regard photography. This is sheer lunacy to Daguerre's disciples of the Camera Club, who are diligently striving to make photography as much a science as astrophysics. At almost every social affair of the year, Friar Foto can be seen taking a picture that will soon become a treasured memento to those wise enough to avail themselves of its craftsmanlike service. Another function of the Camera Club is to bring some welcome cheer into the lives of local home-bound invalids; ten teams of Cine-Friars show "movies for the home-bound" twice per month. It also does the three publications' photographic work.

The hills and mills of Fall River have sent a steady stream of scholars to Providence College. Their club conducts many engaging spiritual and social functions for its members, the most notable being its first semester Communion Breakfast, a Christmas Dance and a Spring Clambake.

The last is traditionally the scene of a friendly but spirited rivalry with the club's fellow Friars from their twin city of New Bedford. The highspot of the clambake is a contest to determine which organization can consume more clamcakes. An ingeniously wrapped pint jar of aspirin tablets is awarded to the victorious club.

CLASS HISTORY

The human memory being an unreliable faculty at best, we must resort, at times like these, to a Class History, although the usual foreboding prologue may be dispensed with. . .

We stumbled through freshman week and checked the want ads. . . There must be an easier way to earn a living. . . Somebody told them we were coming, and the enrollment dropped by 195. . . The basketball team distinguished itself in an unusual manner, bursting forth with three co-captains. . . Friar Boy III, wondering what the place was coming to, choked on a bone at the ripe old age of twelve, but Friar Boy IV was on hand to succeed to the throne. . .

First news of note upon return from the Holidays was along the social order; Charlie Spivak to be Junior Prom maestro. . . By that time we had already staggered through the first session of that horrible period known 'round the scholastic world as "exams". . . Retirement of campus policeman, Charles Devron, left the institution without a law-enforcing agency, but parking tickets continued to appear mysteriously on offending vehicles. . . The Mile Relay team brought honor to the campus by becoming junior champs of the nation in that event. . . And the Student Congress beat Joe McCarthy to the punch when they set up a committee to investigate the class ring situation. . .

Fr. McKenna's big business venture, the Penny Sale, was held at the Auditorium, and proved to be the last one during our stay. . . Varsity basketballers went as far as the first round at Kansas City before losing out in the NAIB tourney. . . Stockholders withdrew their backing from "South Pacific" as "Guys 'N' Ivy" opened on the Harkins Hall stage. . . Three men we were to become so well acquainted with, Colonels Moss and Stark, and the then-Lieutenant Kamaras, were appointed to the ROTC staff. . . Fr. Mahler traced the history of the academic garments they wore in a speech to 398 seniors invested with cap and gown. . .

Col. Moss arrived on campus to set up the ROTC unit, and those Tuesday afternoons of peace and quiet were soon to become a happy memory. . . And our freshman year passed into the archives. We were still callow youths, but youths with a little polish and showing some promise, whether good or bad. The wonderment of college was gone, and in its wake flowed the more practical realism tempered and guided by our first introduction to theology and St. Thomas Aquinas, who was to become an old friend before the four years had fled. More and more of our students were becoming cops in Khaki, as the UN sent the biggest police force in history to that Asiatic peninsula with the cities that no one could pronounce. . .

The Penny Sale produced quite a few pennies, but not enough nickels and dimes, so Fr. McKenna borrowed a leaf from Archbishop Cushing's book, and turned to discarded newspapers as a source of revenue. Students now scavenged in their basements for old gazettes, which were rapidly taking on the value of Guttenburg Bibles in the eyes of the beaming chaplain. . . Bowing to increased draft calls, the powers-that-be in the NCAA allowed freshmen to participate in varsity sports. . . Banners, placards and noise featured the election campaigns for campus politicians, and Pete Drury was the people's choice for the second year in a row. . .

Fr. McKenna urged students toward proper observances of all Souls and All Saints Days, and rumors were flying that the faculty was forming a rifle team. Students began checking the good Fathers for concealed weapons. . . Ralph Stuart was featured at the Sophomore Hop, as the social season began in earnest for the now well-initiated class of '54. . . Shakespeare-quoting Harry Coate's harriers were again dominating the local scene. . . College Barrymores played their part in a mock air raid demonstration in the city, but their smiling visages in local tabloids belied their tragic roles. . . Students showed clairvoyance in choosing Eisenhower the man most likely to succeed in '52. . .

Harkins Gym looked like a Chapin annex as the bloodmobile moved in and ultimately rattled away with 650 pints of the life-giving fluid. . . Female voices brightened Stalag 17 for a night, as 125 couples made the Autumn Festival an unqualified success. . . The College mourned the deaths of Frs. Farrell and Kennedy. Fr. Kennedy was a former professor on the Hill, while Fr. Farrell authored the familiar Companion to the Summa. . . Arctic weather froze the ROTC honor guard into impressive attention as Gen. Helmick visited the campus. Unfortunately, they thawed out before the next review. . .

Hank McQueeney performed a feat he was to duplicate for the next two seasons, as he scored the Friars' first point in basketball. . . The Degree of Doctor and Master of Sacred Theology, one of the most difficult to attain in the field of education and the highest in the Dominican Order, was conferred upon our President, Fr. Slavin. . . Enough equipment to handle the Chicago Fire roared through the campus as a defective boiler made an abortive attempt to reduce the business building. Although the guilty boiler was left in sorry condition, damage to the building was slight, much to the chagrin of some business students. . .

Enthralled with "Howdy Doody," the extension school offered a course in TV production. . . Twenty-six wives received PHT Degrees at the Fifth Annual Family Hour. . . Fred Waring moved over as the Glee Club recorded sessions for radio airings. . . 300 revelers crowded Harkins for the Second Annual Intercollegiate Dance, as we enjoyed more "annual" affairs than the Biltmore ballroom. . . Members stayed away from Student Congress meetings in droves, hampering our highest legislative body's efforts. . . Jim Wille re-introduced Station WDOM to campus listeners, but Bing Crosby regretfully turned down a guest shot. . . However, two years later, underworld figures scurried for cover as the Student Congress brought "Boss" Wille's station under investigation. . .

The sixth edition of the highly popular marriage forums got underway. . . Our Friars checked the Rams in a heart-stopping thriller at the Auditorium. . . 295 students proved that the mid-year exams weren't so bad after all by winning nomination to the Deans List. But, the rest of us didn't believe it. . . Cuddymen journeyed to Troy for the National Catholics, but Lemoyne of Syracuse spoiled the trip. . . Hemingway worked frantically to get something on the market as Dan Sullivan of the bookstore published an article on advertising. . . Vin Cuddy was as happy as Humphrey Bogart finding a water hole in the Sahara, as his charges turned the usually burning sands of the Marvel Gym into an oasis and trampled Brown. . .

Jimmy Schlimm became the first Friar in history to score over a thousand points, but Bobby Moran set his sights on the mark while blasting Schlimm's single-season record. Bobby ultimately entered the Hall of Fame on Schlimm's heels as he went over the thousand mark in the Boston Garden two years later. . . With a soulful look toward the good old days when a student walked ten miles through the snow to get to school, the Student Congress tackled the parking problem which was becoming more complicated by the week. There were too many Fords in too many futures, or so it seemed. . .

Henry Griffin took over the reins at the Alembic, but Saturday Evening Post sales remained constant. . . Fr. Slavin, long renowned for his brilliant oratory, succeeded the Rt. Rev. Fulton Sheen on the Catholic Hour. . . Pete Louthis failed to find any future Marcianos in his boxing smoker, but participants provided a lively evening at the well attended bouts. . . The Damon Runyon Cancer Fund announced a ten thousand dollar grant to the College for research purposes; an additional credit for the highly rated science department. . . Dick Rondeau, former Dartmouth hockey immortal, was appointed hockey coach as the sport advanced smartly toward the big time. . . Thusly, did the iceman cometh to P.C. . . .

Athletic Director, Fr. Begley, reported the renewal of the Mal Brown Award after ten years of dormancy. Mal was the beloved trainer who died while most of us were still learning multiplication. . . Seniors marched to the Grotto for their caps and gowns, and, with exams coming up, we again fell to wondering if we would ever achieve such eminence. . . Archbishop Cushing of Boston agreed to do the honors at graduation while receiving a Doctor of Sacred Theology Degree. . . Time magazine having completed their selections long ago, the Cowl disagreed, naming George Murphy "Man of the Year". . .

Two were down and two were left to go when we returned with the battle half won. . . Enrollment read 1,300. Sure were a lot of people we didn't know yet. . . Prodigal son, Fr. Edward M. Casey, returned to Providence after a twenty year absence. Fr. Casey took over the Dean of Men's position at Aquinas Hall and proved an excellent selection, finding the students a good deal easier to cope with than the Chinese Reds, his recent landlords. . . The extension school offered a series of lectures on sports in conjunction with the Athletic Department. . . Hero of the French resistance movement, Fr. Raymond L. Bruckberger, visited the campus. In addition to his priestly duties, the versatile Father recovered from serious wounds suffered as France fell to the Germans and later produced an award-winning moving picture, in addition to authoring several books. He loafed in his free time. . . The protective efforts of Officer Peter J. Dolan, Providence's "Clancy the Cop," received overdue recognition in a Cowl article. . . Spirited campaigning again marked campus elections, and senior candidate Al Lamy topped all previous efforts by bringing in recording star, Sunny Gale, to sing his way to victory. . .

Rocky Marciano, reigning heavyweight king, took the campus by storm, as over five hundred persons jammed Harkins Hall for his appearance under the Sports Night program. Commemorating the event, the Cowl shook the journalistic world with an unprecedented picture-dominated issue, the entire front page being devoted to shots of the champion and the crowd. . . Student interest reached the fever pitch as excavation for the proposed gym began, but long abandonment of the hole upon completion led to rumors that it was in reality to be the world's largest bath tub. . . The bloodmobile returned with fond hopes of needling more than a few of us. . .

Our class, small though it was, boasted one of the largest Junior Prom committees in history. One hundred third year men claimed legitimate membership, and the other guy just didn't read the bulletin board. . . The Cowl marked fifteen years of publication with an epic issue containing ten pages of recollections. . . A rousing rally and motorcade got the Friars on the road to another basketball season, and they reciprocated nobly with a win over Gorham State. . . Local Ben Hurs were grounded, as car thieves invaded the premises and made off with two chariots within a week. . . The autos were recovered, however, as Officer Dolan shunned J. Banner headlines in the local gazette, "Willie Butterfield to Charm Prom Prancers," and dance chairman, Jim Wille, threatened to sue. Made the whole thing sound like a square dance. . . Fr. Larnen of the faculty watched his third play, the "Angelic Doctor," hit Broadway, the mecca of all theatrical endeavors, and superiors of the Order braced themselves for a rush of play-writing aspirants. . . Fr. Kenny's new text, "The Principles of Medical Ethics," enjoyed wide circulation both here and abroad. . . A Boston paper called Bobby Moran the most underrated basketball player in New England. . . On the social scene, the Carolan Club's Dorm Weekend, completely renovated, was an overwhelming success, and the Cadet Officers Honor Club defied superstition by holding their Second Annual Military Ball on the thirteenth. While we watched enthralled, our staggering Friar basketball team walloped Rhody by the incredible margin of 92-66. That one will stand as a pleasant memory forever. . . Class President, Dick Horne, signed the contract for our class rings, and the next day everyone began haunting the bookstore in hopeful anticipation. . . Harry Coates, the school's veteran track mentor, was cited by the Coach's Association for his great work in the sport. . .

The Most Rev. G. Van Velsen, O.P. appeared on campus for a short visit, leaving his interesting little diocese of some 12,000 square miles in the hands of the African natives. . . He compared Africa to the U. S. of 200 years ago, when our forefathers coped with the last of the Mohicans instead of Mau Maus. . . Station personnel packed the transmitter on their backs, as WDOM surrendered its lofty perch atop the science building and moved into the Dorm Basement. . . The Students Lounge in Harkins enjoyed a land-office business upon reopening after a "face-lifting." A few weeks later it was the same old place, only the dirt was prettier. . . After receiving many complaints from over-burdened mothers, an automatic washer was installed at Aquinas Hall, and the students were welcomed at home again during vacation time. . .

Fathers Sullivan and Doane officiated at the Annual Retreat prior to the Easter respite. . . Refusing to be denied, progress in the guise of a helicopter visited the campus, but was searched for possible escapees before departing. . . Business majors donned their shorts and embarked for Bermuda for the Easter holidays. . . Joe Friday of "Dragnet" was called in to investigate the disappearance of Friar Boy IV, after campus sleuths proved utter failures. . . Bill Quinn and Bob Grenier led the baseball team in another campaign. . .

Mrs. Robert Secor was elected Queen as we festive Juniors celebrated our getting that far, at the Biltmore. The Prom was memorable indeed! Col. Moss dispelled the fears of cadets in an article in the Cowl, but we were scared again the next day anyway. . . Irving Berlin went back to work as "Moonglow," the Pyramid Players' annual spring effort, held forth in Harkins Hall. . . Paul Lareau was sentenced to be Editor of the Yearbook. . . Archbishop Cicognani, the Apostolic Delegate, was named speaker at the 35th senior commencement. . . Jim Marshall, Cowl Editor, was accorded "Senior of the Year" award by the Cowl, and campus gossips were set to talking. . .

Then, a few happy ex-juniors enjoyed a leisurely vacation, but there were those of us that went to Summer Camp. Summer Camp! Six glorious, action packed weeks in scenic Virginia, close by historic Lee Hall. Lee Hall—Two Gas stations, a bus stop and a Dairy Queen. We learned first hand why the travel posters didn't mention Fort Eustis, palatial home of the Transportation Corps. But, it wasn't too bad; the temperature went down to a hundred once. . . And good old A Company, P. C.'s finest, came back with more honors than the Fighting 69th. . . But, even if you didn't enjoy yourself, there was always the money. . .

Bishop McVinney cautioned students "not to ignore God" while speaking to us at the annual Mass of the Holy Ghost commemorating the opening of another school year. . . We returned without a thing to worry about but the draft, our commissions, and getting the marks to graduate. . . An ancient custom was revived, and freshmen donned those little marks of their office known as "beanies". . . The sophomores pulled a "Russian Election," as only four students ran for the four available positions. . . Interest in the campaign ran rampant. . . George "Birdie" Tebbetts, who chased many a foul ball out on Hendricken Field, was named to take over Rogers Hornsby's managerial post at Cincinnati, graveyard of many a managerial hope. . .

The Cowl was rated "All American" for the first time in its history. . . Fr. McCarthy lectured over a nation-wide hookup. . . Political campaigns on campus were marked by their serenity. . . Douglas Hyde, former editor of the London Daily Worker, who saw the light, spoke to the students in Albertus Magnus Auditorium. . . It rained every day but Tuesday, as the Military Science Department managed to fit in all scheduled drill periods to the delight of all cadets concerned. . . In their annual release, the Cowl announced that gym construction would begin shortly. Students yawned, but the administration had the last laugh as the story turned out to be true. . .

Suspensions of faculty plotting were voiced around the campus, as quarterly marks dipped below par. Immediate denials were forthcoming. . . ROTC checks supplemented weekly incomes of the local proletariat. Our role of collegiate Napoleons was reaping rewards at last. . . Capt. Kamaras' classic warning over the loud speaker to an errant cadet in the Fall Review to stop picking his nose, reduced the whole affair to an unmilitary shambles. . . Tommy Lewis' mad dash off the Alabama bench in the Cotton Bowl game with Rice recalled memories of an old Friar stalwart, John Barnini, performing a like feat when football was more than a topic of conversation at P. C. . . .

While President Eisenhower was rejecting appeals by the Rosenbergs, the Senior Class was rejecting all other candidates in favor of Dick Havens, who couldn't even fall back on the old "Better Junior Prom" platform, staunch favorite of the previous year's politicians. . . Earl Shannon, former All American at, of all places, the University of Rhode Island, was named assistant basketball coach, succeeding Hal Martin, who was to devote all his energies to baseball and teaching economics. . . The college ROTC program went Branch General, and everybody asked each other what that meant. . . Somebody offered the solution that it was a synonym for "infantry." . . .

The Friars tangled with Rio Grande and fabled Bevo Francis before a packed house in the Boston Garden, and put on a good show while losing, 89-87. . . The Bloodmobile pulled in once again and left with more pints than a party-giver on New Year's Eve. . . An enthusiastic audience greeted the first "Friar Follies," and proved that Fred Allen didn't kill vaudeville. . . We then enjoyed our long Christmas vacation and rested our weary bones by working twelve hours a day in the post office. . . But January arrived with all the speed of a dentist appointment, and we all came happily back to the new rink in the rear of Aquinas Hall. . .

We also returned to the cheery prospect of our last session with mid-year exams. . . The basketball team had more troubles than Washington at Valley Forge, but snapped out of the doldrums after exams with the immortal "sub-fleet" leading the way. . . Dick Horne and Jules Paolino were named Commencement Ball Heads. . . But, we ran out of midnight oil to fill the hurricane lamps, the deadline arrived as we knew it would, and the history comes to a jarring halt a few months short of graduation and a few words short of epic length. . . But you can remember what went on during those last twilight hours, so this thing is complete anyway. . .

*“If I should lose,
Let me stand by the road and cheer
As the winners go by . . .”
But rarely did we stand by the road,
For the Friar
Often wore the laurel wreath,
And rarely was the Black and White banner
Not aloft.*

PROVIDENCE COLLEGE GYMNASIUM

Athletic Council

The exterior of proposed Athletic Building is contemporary style, red brick Indiana limestone trim and will blend harmoniously with other buildings on the campus. Long glass front on the south side floods the Cafeteria with light and makes an attractive approach from the campus side.

The basement floor serves as a student center with its own separate entrance, comprising of cafeteria, soda bar, lounge, recreation, post office and barber shop. Remainder ground floor—rifle ranges, steam room, storage, squash courts and golf cage.

Main amphitheater accommodates sixteen hundred in permanent seats and twenty-five hundred additional in folding bleachers.

For basketball three cross courts are provided and one championship court.

Surrounding the playing area and utilizing the space under the seating is arranged a series of offices, coaches rooms, student health exercise rooms, lockers, showers, space for visiting teams, equipment storage and other spaces.

The main entrance into the building is on the west side and leads to large lobby with ticket offices. It and the adjacent corridors are designed to accommodate large crowds and to facilitate their entrance and exit.

Above the lobby and accessible by two large staircases are a large lounge, a lecture room, alumni office and R.O.T.C. office.

The amphitheater is flanked by circulating corridors feeding into the seating tiers at convenient points.

The great arch trusses over the amphitheater will have a clear span of 150 feet and provide lofty ceiling and making it possible to throw daylight into the arena from each end. The overall dimensions of the building are 190 feet by 235 feet and the arena will be 45 feet high at the center from the basketball floor.

April 8th was the day, Quonset Point was the site, and the sailors from Davisville, R. I. were the victims in the 1953 Friars' first diamond victory. Don Podziewski and Bill Mullins combined for eleven strikeouts to hold the Navy down 7-5 in a five inning contest. With Jerry Romberg, Bob Grenier, and "Beaver" Power gathering the only P. C. hits, the game was left mainly to the moundsmen.

Two days later the Friars returned to Davisville but this time they encountered a different foe; the Quonset Flyers. However, after a first inning which provided the Martinmen with 5 runs on 4 hits against a single run for the Flyers, the clouds opened and the rains came.

Homecoming day at Providence College was on April 15th. Big "Mo" Mullins, hero of the day, pitched the Friar forces to a very definite 9-1 win over U. R. I. On the mound for the entire contest, "Mo" fanned 13, allowed only one free pass, and gave up 6 hits.

Hal Martin's Friars first tasted the bitterness of defeat when they met the Rams again, two days later, down in Kingston. The final score was 4-0. DeMasi, Negriz and Abbruzzi scored the Ram tallies in the second, third, fourth and eighth frames. Negriz did yeoman work in shutting out the Friars

On April 21st, P. C.'s top hurler, Mullins, with the able assistance of his able teammates, did stellar work in leading the Friars to an impressive 16-6, 7 inning rout of the Lowell Textile forces from Lowell, Mass. On the mound for the last six innings, "Mo" fanned 11, walked 4 and gave up three hits for two runs. Besides his proficient mound work, he tallied three runs and made two hits in two official trips. Ryder and Grenier were the other power houses with three for four and two for five, respectively.

Boston College finally caught Coach Hal Martin's forces on April 24th at Hendricken Field and set them back with a 7-4 defeat. The Boston boys scored three in the second and two in the third and topped off the whole affair with two in the ninth on Cisternelli's two run homer. P. C., led by Dick Howe, who had three hits in four trips, staged a spirited four run rally in the famed "last of the ninth" but fell short and went down to their second defeat in six encounters.

Boston University, not to be outdone by their neighbors from across the city, nosed out Providence 6-5 on April 28th at Weston, Mass. Mullins, giving up five runs on four hits, was thrown for his second loss. A rally in the sixth started when Kelley singled. Romberg sacrificed Kelley to second, and on the opposing pitcher's error, all hands were safe. Kelley later came home on the same pitcher's second error and Mullins sacrificed Romberg in to score. B. U., however, managed to curb the rally a run short of a tie.

April 29th came and Coach Hal Martin's forces were still unable to get back into the win column. The boys from Springfield College gave the Friars their second jolt in five days when they held them to the lower end of a 6-5 score. All five P. C. runs occurred in the fifth when Grenier reached on an error, Kelley singled, Romberg blasted one past third, Power reached on an error and O'Neil walked. Howe forced O'Neil in with the fifth run but Springfield nipped Hank McQueeney in a double play from pitcher to second to first.

On May 2nd, Providence College played the only tie game of its entire seventeen game schedule. Through the hitting of McQueeney, White, Howe, Grenier, and Jack Reynolds, P. C. used six hits for seven runs while Springfield made seven for seven.

Holding a 2-4-1 record, Providence increased its win number by one with a 6-2 defeat of the University of Conn. on May 6th at the latter's field. Mullins struck out eight and allowed only two runs as the Friars came back to grab their third win in eight encounters by a 6-2 score. White, Howe, Ryder, Reynolds and McQueeney were all big guns in the hitting and scoring departments.

On May 7th, P. C. finally came back to the 500 mark with a thrilling 4-3, fourteen inning decision over Bates College in Lewiston, Maine. Lefty Peter Drury came on in the third to pitch eleven and two-third innings, giving up six hits and three walks while fanning a total of fifteen opposing batters. Doubles by Romberg and Ryder, Howe's single and one of three Bates errors gave P. C. their four runs.

Anxious for victory, the Friars tangled with another Maine foe on the following day. This time their victim was Gorham State, and the score was 8-1. Howe's three tallies in the first, fifth and ninth innings, along with Ryder's prolific three for four provided the P. C. punch. Carl Buniva, with ten strikeouts, and a single walk against him, was the winning pitcher.

Sporting a 5-4-1 record, Hal Martin led his victory minded forces to Manchester, N. H. on May 9th where they trounced a St. Anselm's aggregation 12-4. Mullins replaced Podziewski in the second to finish out the contest while giving up four hits for two runs and striking out six. McQueeney was the hero of the day when, in the Friars' half of the eighth with two men out and the bases loaded, he smashed out a long grand slammer. The other Providence scores were two in the third, seventh and ninth and one in the fifth.

The high riding Friars returned to Hendricken Field on May 11th and barely nosed out their traditional rivals, Brown University, 2-1. Power led off the third with a double, advanced on Howe's single and tagged up and scored on Ryder's fly ball. Brown, however, tied the game up in the fifth. It remained then for Howe to come through with the deciding hit. In the top of the ninth, Kelley walked, was sacrificed to second by Buniva, moved to third on a wild pitch and came home on Howe's single.

Providence College entertained Clark University on May 14th and led by Grenier's potent bat, gained their eighth win of the campaign. Grenier smashed out four hits in four trips including a ninth inning homer with the bases empty. P. C. tallied once in the second but Clark equalled it in the top of the fourth. P. C. went ahead 3-1 in their half of the fourth and tallied one more in the fifth. In the sixth, Howe, Grenier, Drury and Power put their big bats to good use in providing four runs. The final tally came in the ninth. Drury, the winning hurler, had fifteen strikeouts to his credit.

A FAMILIAR VIEW for the third base section; another Providence man rounding in to score

Providence met its fifth defeat at the hands of a most worthy opponent. Holy Cross, the 1952 National Intercollegiate Champions, defeated the Friars 7-1 at Fitton Field in Worcester on May 16th. Dobler tallied the single P.C. run in the top of the sixth when he walked, advanced to second on Whites single, took third on Howe's sacrifice and scored on Ryder's single to left. The mound staff of Mullins, O'Neil, and Buniva yielded five hits for four earned runs. Ronnie Perry, Crusader moundsman, did yeoman work in setting down the first fifteen Friars to face him. The Crusaders pushed two runs over in the first, four in the second and a single one in the eighth.

P. C. closed out its 1953 campaign on May 20th here at Hendricken Field. Capitalizing on three big innings, the Friars scored twice in the third and fifth and five in the fourth for a 9-3 win over Springfield College, to equal the season's series. Ryder with three for four, Howe with three for five and McQueeney with two for five, wielded the most potent bats. Reynolds led off the big fourth with a long double to center, Romberg walked, Power reached on an error, to load the bases. White walked, forcing in Reynolds. Ryder doubled in Romberg and Power and McQueeney singled scoring Ryder.

Thus Providence College completed a very successful 1953 varsity baseball season with a 9-5-1 record. Coach Hal Martin is to be commended for his excellent coaching and all the players deserve due credit for their truly impressive baseball accomplishment.

With the December first opener only a month away, Coach Vin Cuddy sounded the clarion for his 1953-54 edition of the annual Friar basketball production. Cuddy lacked the basic ingredient of the usual success formula, height, but he was gifted with a fast, experienced array, well tested in intercollegiate combat.

The curtain raiser was the first half of an appealing doubleheader dedicating the new Keaney Gymnasium at the University of Rhode Island, with P. C. doing their share of the honors against arch-rival, Brown. Displaying a fairly strong defense, plus a marked disregard for the old Brown nemesis, the relaxed Friars buried the Bruins in routine fashion, 75-61. Providence opened an early gap, maintained it, and coasted in the late going. Hank McQueeney, for four years the Friars' showman and crowd-pleaser, was the key figure in the destruction.

Though the easy victory over Brown came as a bit of a surprise, the subsequent 86-68 rout of Assumption was not so startling. The game with the outmanned Greyhounds was played in Woonsocket with the proceeds going to the building fund of the tornado-ravaged Worcester school.

The following evening at the Boston Garden the Black and White banner was raised against Rio Grande and their fabulous fisherman, Bevo Francis, highest scorer in collegiate annals. While the well-protected Francis was in the process of tying the Garden scoring mark with his 41 points and Newt Oliver was putting on his usual side-line show, the underpublicized Friars played one of the outstanding games of the season, ultimately bowing, 89-87. Although the Boston press chose to ignore it, Bobby Moran's 26 points against the Redmen's floating defense was probably the highlight of the evening. The inspired play of Jack Durkin was another key factor in the near-upset, although it was clearly a team effort.

After a quick nap and a bite to eat, our slightly reeling warriors headed for Manchester, N. H. and their third game of the weekend. Playing past their endurance, but suffering from a visible letdown, the Friars dropped another heartbreaker, St. Anselm's enjoying the victor's role, 70-69.

Then our fortunes began to sink. A technical foul in the waning moments against Fairfield presented P. C. with a 71-69 victory in a poorly played encounter at Mont Pleasant. Three days later the boys were disposed of easily in the 11th Corps Armory in Brooklyn by a tall, talented St. Francis crew, 85-63. This loss was far from a disgrace, St. Francis being an Eastern power, but it seemed to signal the Friar collapse. Against Seton Hall, which wasn't too sharp itself, the best the locals could muster was 46 points, 23 shy of the Pirates' total. Still reeling, they were floored the following night by Upsala, 82-64.

After a Christmas visit to their respective locales, the Smith Hill vagabonds congregated once again and embarked for Waterbury, Conn. with high hopes of a repeat victory against Fairfield. But the fired-up Stags found the sluggish and disorganized Friar attack a perfect foil and soon reduced the goings to a farce. The count was 72-64.

In a complete about face, Providence destroyed the perfect record of the Boston College Eagles before an overflow crowd at Mount Pleasant. While the faithful kept up a sustained roar of encouragement the Friars scrambled to a 63-58 victory over the taller visitors on the strength of a remarkable team effort under the back boards, where B. C. found themselves denied throughout the evening. Reserve Larry Collamore led the rebounding assault.

Back to their old tricks again in the following game, P. C. was overcome easily by a predominately freshman AIC squad 65-57. Inclement weather almost forced cancellation of the tilt, but unfortunately, the roads from Springfield proved passable.

Then came the long-threatened shakeup. After an inadequate show against Springfield, during which the hapless Friars stumbled through the motions in losing 72-54, Cuddy shook the local gentry by benching his first seven, with the exception of the irreplaceable Moran. The Providence Fourth Estate promptly christened the new crew the "Sub Fleet," and the name clung for the rest of the season. While the once-regulars sat on the sidelines in an attempt to regain their shattered confidence, Bill Quinlan, Ted Tedesco, Walter Malecki, Don Moran, Larry Collamore, Charlie Aquavia and Gus Westerhuis battled their way to a one point win over St. Anselms. Cuddy reserved his veterans as a steadying influence in the highly popular victory. With the Fleet still performing the bulk of the chores, P. C. annihilated RPI, 94-71.

In their second Garden appearance of the season, the Friars moved to an early lead in the first half against St. Anselm's, but dissipated their advantage in the second canto. The Hawks tied things up in the closing seconds and won easily in overtime, 62-54.

But the victory train was only momentarily delayed, not derailed as was earlier feared. On Feb. 9th at the Mount Pleasant gym, Providence College shook the Plantations for the second year in a row by crushing Rhode Island, 101-81. Superlatives were exhausted in the description of this one, and the major share of the laurels fell on the shoulders of sophomore Teddy Tedesco, whose thirty-one point contribution completely reduced the stunned Rams. Old Faithful, Capt. Bobby Moran, quietly chipped in with twenty points of his own to help seal things. So once again, the Rams were on the receiving end of the outstanding performance of the season.

With the Rhody victory serving as a needed stimulant, P. C. disposed of three Maine colleges without any undue difficulty. Featured on their successful invasion of the bobsled circuit were wins over Gorham State, Colby and Bates by 92-67, 72-59, and 80-68, respectively. Tedesco continued to dominate Friar scoring, and his star was just climbing above the horizon when he suffered a severe ankle sprain in the Bates game thus forcing only spot duty thereafter. His loss was a near crippling blow.

basketball in the 81-51 rout of Clark. Three days later the Friars ruined another Springfield Homecoming as they raced to their sixth win in a row by an 89-61 margin.

Vin Cuddy next displayed his wares in the dimly lit confines of the inadequate Boston College gym. While millions celebrated George Washington's birthday, the Eagles fought off the determined Friars, 86-83, in an extremely well played game. Providence turned in a fine hustling performance, and though it was in a losing cause, suffered no loss of prestige. Bobby Moran waged a personal attack against the Eagles in the second half and emerged with twenty-six points.

Showing entirely different form than they displayed at Kingston, Brown gained some measure of revenge for the previous debacle with a 68-64 win at the Marvel Gym. Some last minute clutch shooting by their record-breaking captain, Lou Murgio, gained them the verdict, but Providence showed plenty of heart in defeat, turning in a vastly improved performance. Some remarkable third quarter shooting by Tommy Mullins kept the Friars in contention in the thrill-packed meeting.

Upsala motored up from New Jersey and the Friars waited in ambush. Unloosening all their heavy artillery in an awesome barrage, they gained more than adequate revenge over the startled Vikings, winning handily, 88-66.

But without Tedesco's new found spark to ignite the flame, Providence wasn't up to it in the final two. Although staging several spurts of scoring in their second appearance in the Keaney Gym, the boys didn't get the breaks and were finally vanquished by the improved Rams. In the windup at Mount Pleasant Brown came out on top again in a monotonous encounter, easily handling the over-pressing Friars. While the Bruins were relaxed and confident, the Friars were tense, as their play clearly indicated, and fell once again in the over-played "Beat Brown" crusade.

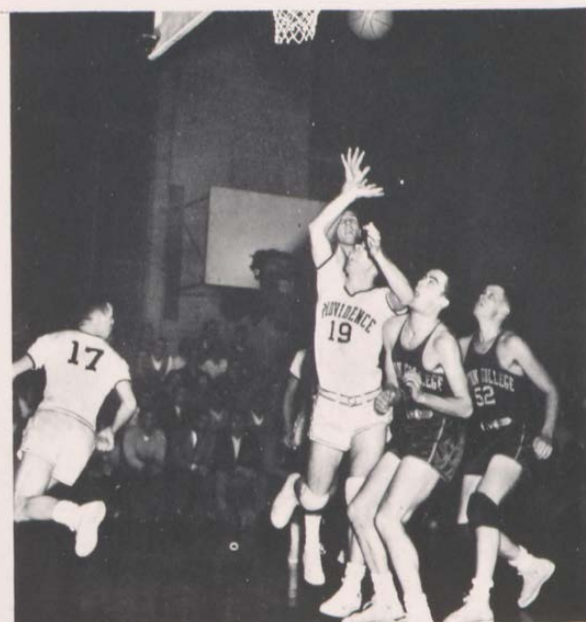

The season was highlighted, perhaps, by Coach Vin Cuddy's courageous mid-season gamble with his untried bench. The rejuvenation was remarkable, and a major share of the credit must go to the young Friar mentor for making the move in the first place.

Tributes are in store also for the departing warriors; Charlie Aquavia, Phil Lynch, Bill Quinlan, Tommy Mullins, Jack Durkin, Jack Reynolds, Hank McQueeney and Bob Moran. Little Charlie, the shortest Friar of them all, provided the spark on more than one occasion. Phil Lynch humbled many a high-scorer with his great defensive play, the best seen in this area. Bill Quinlan produced more than his share of points while seeing spot duty. Tommy was the Hawk, the hustler, and a prolific scorer. Durkin used his remarkable spring to advantage outrebounding many a taller foe. Reynolds rarely drew an opponent less than two inches taller than he, but his defensive work was outstanding. Hank will be among the last forgotten. Few have so captured the imagination of Providence fans. His appeal was tremendous, and he drew raves for his ball handling.

Enough can never be said for Moran, the greatest of them all. The quiet, personable court magician rewrote the Providence College record book, shattering old marks with every point he scored in the latter half of his senior year. Ballplayers like Bobby Moran come along once in a generation, but tribute must also be paid to him as a perfect exemplar of a Catholic gentleman. He has established himself as a P. C. immortal, and his name will be brought to mind every time the Black and White banner is unfurled.

With eight seniors gone, Cuddy will inherit a club short on experience but long on potential. Led by their hustling captain, Kenny Kerr, one of the few in the school's history to play four years of varsity ball, the young Friars could really go places. Kerr will be ably abetted by Donny Moran and Teddy Tedesco, both of whom showed considerable ability in the latter half of the season. With some height on the way from this year's freshman club, things don't look too dark at all.

Entering their third season of competition, the varsity hockey team engaged in the most difficult schedule of its brief history. Under the tutelage of Coach Dick Rondeau, the Friar skaters faced the top teams in the East.

Following a month of preparation they faced off against a tough and more experienced Boston College team. When the smoke cleared from the arena ice, we found that B. C. was the victor 8-5; however, the greatest loss in that game was the injury of the two top Friars, John "Rosco" Sweeney and Ed Monahan. After this unfortunate start the team faced the toughest team on their schedule, Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute. The Engineers who boast of many Canadian stars outscored the Friars 14-3. The team did very well in the first two periods holding down the Engineers but in the third period seven goals slipped by the Friar goalie Eddie Hornstein. In the following game Harvard visited Providence and returned to Cambridge with a 10-1 victory. The problem in this game was the Friars' "immobile defense"; but coach Rondeau had this remedied in time for the next contest.

On December 22, the team visited Northeastern University and were topped 5-4. The Huskies were a speedy group but it was only because "Dame Fortune" smiled on them in a sudden death period that they emerged victorious.

After a long holiday lay-off the sextet faced an aggressive Bruin club from across the city. For the first two periods the contest could have gone either way. With Sweeney and Monahan back in playing condition, Capt. Bob Reall led this top line to three scores. However, fatigue caught up with the Friar de-

Because of his superb play in the last period the Brown Bear was held down. Reall, and Ed Monahan scored in that order to win the game for Providence College. Crawford played excellently and held back the Tiger's attack. To prove their accomplishment the "icemen" went to West Springfield and conquered American International College 6-1. Again Bob Reall was the workhorse of the team as he led them through the fray. In their second game against Brown the team couldn't get started and were put down 9-1.

Before a cheering dorm-weekend crowd a confident Friar sextet faced off against Springfield College. As the game carried on, however, the team realized they were up against a fighting unit. It wasn't until the last five minutes that it was decided for then Springfield netted two quick goals which the Friars couldn't recover. The final score on the big arena clock was Springfield 9, Providence 7. On that Saturday afternoon Reall and Monahan scored five of the P. C. tallies. On the thirteenth of February the squad traveled to Worcester and took Holy Cross 8-2. The Crusaders scored first but the Black and White had scored eight times before the home team could score again. P. C.'s greatest asset in this game was freshman goalie Ralph Lane who guarded the nets expertly. The following night, over in Springfield, the Gymnasts again upset the team. The Friars led them for the first two periods and at the beginning of the third frame P. C. was ahead 4-2. Then the boom was lowered and Springfield scored six goals in the final period.

The outlook for next year with no losses in sight from graduation is very good. The same team will be playing the same schedule and we are confident they will compile an impressive record.

With the advent of balmy breezes Harry Coates' charges repaired once again to Hendricken Field, where the breezes were more appropriately gales. Moving to more sedate fields across the city, the Friars came out on the short end of a bear-baiting contest, losing to the Brown Bruin. Dean Slocum, however, captured both the low and high hurdles, Mike Baccari won a blue ribbon in the javelin and finished second in the discus, and Wee Willie Hennigan wore the laurel in the two mile. It wasn't a happy afternoon. Another journey proved fruitless when our lads treked to Fitton Field, lair of the Holy Cross Crusader. Dick Lee captured the two mile run, Chris Lohner took second place in his personal battle with Cross's Murphy, followed by teammate Hennigan, while Slocum dominated the hurdles. Kingston proved to be the boys' Dunkirk. They were outclassed completely by the Rams, with Mike Baccari's performance in the javelin the only bright spot in a dismal picture.

With the psychological advantage that they were running "indoor" track, the Coatesmen spent the long winter out on the Hendricken boards. With Dave Kehoe as their captain, the team tucked a practice meet with Harvard under their collective belts and moved into the Boston Garden for the K of C meet. The frosh two mile relayers roared through the haze to place first. Despite an outstanding performance by Pete Wallack, the varsity fared none too well.

At the tag end of the campaign a milestone was reached, as the runners trounced Massachusetts at Hendricken. It was the first dual meet victory for our indoor representatives in their brief, but illustrious, history. Only the problem of downing the Eagle remained, as Boston College was to be the sole remaining visitor to Smith Hill. Unfortunately, the deadline got here before B. C.

CROSS COUNTRY

Now in their fourth year of competition, the team continued to battle the toughest teams in the East. A week after the beginning of classes, the hill and dalers left for West Point to joust with the Black Knights of the Hudson. When the dust had settled from the mountain, the Cadets had been unhorsed 27-30; the first time this trick had been pulled on their course in a number of years. Chris Lohner led the assault followed by Pete Wallack, Joe Madden in fifth spot, Bill Hennigan seventh, and Connie Sullivan twelfth, to round out the scoring. The following week, a determined Harvard club waylaid the Friars on the rolling hills of Boston's Franklin Park by the score of 26-29. The Coatesmen came back swinging, however, as they KO'd the Coast Guard at New London. Hennigan, winning his first of the season, led the team in a near sweep. Two days later the Friars locked horns with the Rhode Island Ram at Providence. On that sunny Friday it was the second in a row for both P. C. and Bill Hennigan.

Back to Boston and Franklin Park went the Harriers to rout Boston College by a perfect score. Holy Cross fared no better on Mt. St. James, as they too were taken into camp. Madden broke into the win column by leading the romp. Boston University and its highly vaunted John Kelly were the victims as the Friars made it five in a row. Kelly won, but that was all for B. U. as Providence gained the next five places. The arch rivals across the city were the next to fall to the pounding feet of the high-flying Coatesmen. All Brown had was the course; the Black and White took home all the points. The Friars made a respectable showing in the New England's despite the loss of Bill Hennigan, who was recuperating from an appendectomy. The Freshmen captured some glory by returning the Frosh Crown to Providence. Thus the team closed out a very successful season with a record of 7 victories and 1 defeat in dual competition.

The Providence College Rifle Club, like the hero of Dragnet, has followed the philosophy "when you are in a hole, shoot your way out." Two years ago when the team was organized, competitive firing left them in the deep freeze of the New England League. A year later with hundreds of hours of practice and an average number of winning matches found them caught in the middle of the standing. The 1953-54 season has been a different story. With twenty-eight wins against four losses, they have been one of the pace-setters in national competition. New equipment, new talent, and the will to win have helped the Friar Firemen shoot their way out of the hole and up to the top.

Local sports writers delved for new phrases, as P. C. came up with a swimming team. While not exactly causing Yale to practice far into the night, our lads performed nobly enough in their early endeavors. Failing in their efforts to locate a pool on campus, the natators were forced to employ the services of the Wanskuck pool.

Second place was the order of the day against Quonset, with Friar Boy just missing on five occasions. One of our local frog men, Brady by name, performed the dubious feat of swimming into the pool wall. He finished the race in the hospital, where five stitches were required to close the wound. Before the deadline arrived, the Friars had been edged by LaSalle, Holy Cross and Quonset.

Bring the ball with you, buddy, it's necessary

"If this guy would only stop hanging on my elbow . . ."

Under the direction of Pete Louthis, the ever-popular football league enjoyed a great deal of success in the '53 season. Action began early in October and continued with student interest throughout the month of November with Hendricken Field being the site of all contests.

The league was well balanced as Guzman, Blackstone Valley, Carolyn Yanks, and Junior Arts vied for the top honors. Senior Arts, once again held as pre-season favorites, saw their hopes of a flag edged by heart-breaking one-point losses.

The eighth annual "Finger Bowl" contest between the intramural champions of Brown University and Providence College was held at Brown's field and when the dust of battle had died away, the Bruin Bear had emerged victorious.

Thus ended the intramural football season which, as ever, was successful in fulfilling the purpose for which it was organized, i.e., to give a greater number of the student body the opportunity to participate in some form of organized competition.

"Come to Poppa," says Fred O'Neil as he tries a rebound

The Intramural Basketball League, with two day and one evening division, witnessed many thrilling and interesting games in the '53-'54 season. After completion of heavy schedules, the teams which emerged as outstanding in their respective classes were Junior Arts, Senior Arts, Senior Business, Junior Biology, Biltmore A. C., Guzman, and the Whalers. The winner of the League playoffs was given opportunity to battle the best which Brown had to offer from their own intramural system. As in football, the best the Friars had to offer was not quite enough as, despite a torrid second-half comeback, the Bruins won by a few points.

By displaying continual championship caliber through the season, Cordon, Mahoney, Podziewski, Price, and Marry were named as the Dorm League All Star first team. D'Onofrio, Grady, Calderado, McCarthy, and Carr were placed on the second team. Another excellent season was ended.

Pete Louthis, Coach

Louthis chats with two leather-slingers after a brief workout

Under the experienced eye of Pete Louthis, forty-five hopeful souls transformed staid Harkins Hall into a local version of Stillman's Gym, as they accepted Pete's generous offer to tutor them in the manly art of self defense. With a proposed smoker in sight, they began work early in February, to condition themselves to the rigors of pugilistic endeavor.

Conditioning was a major part of the program. With the advent of warm weather, the boys moved outdoors for the traditional road work. In addition, Pete, a former professional, taught them the more intricate phases of ring work.

"Hold that right block until you spot an opening, then . . ."

Distortions are fun!

... but a good college annual must reflect a true picture of the tempo, activities and life of each individual campus and class.

Capturing this atmosphere in plan and design and preserving it with sparkling reproduction has made Comet a leading producer of fine annuals for more than three decades.
