In the span of recorded history, the vague concept of "the Gentleman" has assumed as many different shapes and forms as has civilization itself.

The Greek gentleman strived for intellectual excellence and only secondarily regarded the manly virtues of bravery in war, stamina on the gaming fields, and competence in the every day mechanics of life.

The Romans, reversing the order of things, relegated sheer intellectualism to a subordinate position; the lawmaker's lexicon, the architect's plumb, the soldier's sword — these were the formal causes of Rome.

The High Middle Ages produced a race which synthesized the Greek and Roman ideals, seeking to sublimate them to a nobler one. This was the Christian concept of the brotherhood of man under the Fatherhood of God. It was the perfect knight who most closely approached Cardinal Newman's description of a gentleman: "One who never inflicts pain."

Succeeding generations mistook the accidents of knighthood for the essence. Nobility of soul and purpose was therefore perverted to an effeminate code of conduct characterized by superficiality and bombast. Even today this misconception persists in our adulation of the dashing playboy.

Providence College, incorporating the philosophy and theology of St. Thomas into its program of liberal education, inculcates in the student a sense of nobility, grounded on virtue informed by Charity. The Thomistic Gentleman is morally, socially, and intellectually, a fully developed man, embodying the ideals of previous ages. Possession of truth concerning God and creation, freedom from the domination of the mundane, ability to serve society and self—these are the traits of . . .

The tragedy of our age is that it worships at the altar of the machine. At the inception of our materialistic civilization, progress was thought to be the messiah which would finally realize the Golden Age of Man. Its failure in this matter has been an irreconcilable blow to the morale of our century. The moderns have come to realize that progress is a treadmill; as old ills are dispensed with, new ones come to the fore and the earth is substantially unchanged. The suicidal character of the race for the ultimate in nuclear weapons has made the heralds of Man's coming of age the soothsayers of his extinction.

Man's faith in man has come to nothing, and the Godless are faced with a cul de sac. To those who have God, therefore, belongs the mission of saving the world from this cancerous nihilism. They are the steadfast ones, for they are agitated by a force which is beyond man. They draw upon the resources of God for their strength.

While it is fashionable for the atheistic intellectual to lament the terrible misfortune of having to live in such an atmosphere of destruction, the Catholic college graduate finds that he is the one who must lead the world, by the solid example of positive action placed in the trust of God, into a realization of the duties of man to his Creator.

There is no better environment for the training of the young Catholic in his most essential task than Providence College. The name itself represents the Paternal Interest of God in His creatures. The diocese in which the College is located is governed by a Bishop whose coat of arms invokes "Mary, Mother of Hope." The state in which the school is situated has "Hope" for its motto. This is the incubus of the Providence College graduate, an atmosphere exuding the confidence that the future is taken care of by the Almighty Himself. There is no better place for the fulfillment of the Catholic educational aim: the orientation of the complete man to the life he must lead.

This edition of the Veritas is dedicated to the Class of 1955 with the confidence that they will in every way epitomize the Catholic ideal, and in doing so quickly become the exemplars which their floundering fellow men may well emulate.

The Most Reverend Russell J. McVinney, D.D., LL.D.
Fifth Bishop of the Diocese of Providence

IN the years that you have governed the Diocese of Providence, you have left an indelible impression upon us as a truly liberal educator, a genuine friend of Providence College, and an outstanding member of the Catholic hierarchy.

Your interest in the College has been a vital factor in its inestimable success as an advocate of Truth; your solicitude toward the student body has been our encouragement in the struggle to develop into true Christian gentlemen, exemplars of Providence College. You have given us a deep insight into the problems which our generation must face in a world clouded by doubt, despair, and cynicism—the daughters of faithlessness.

We are most grateful to you for the wise guidance you have given us in the moral and intellectual spheres. We consider ourselves fortunate to have been entrusted to the care of such an exemplary Apostle of the Church.

We thank God for this blessing and pray that He may continue to inspire you with wisdom and may bless your future with success.

AS President of the Corporation of Providence College, you have indirectly but forcibly exercised your influence upon us.

Through your astute leadership the College has prospered from its humble origins into an institution of considerable stature, highly respected for the excellence of its instruction.

Under your direction, Providence College has expanded its facilities, enabling it to reach an ever-broadening circle.

The same success which characterizes all your endeavors was again in evidence when you held the position of Vicar General of the Order of Friars Preachers.

The high ideals of Truth and Faith which have been inculcated in us here have aroused a feeling that we shall never be able to repay you for your beneficence.

Our ardent prayer, therefore, is that God may assume our tremendous debt by rewarding you with even more success in your position of capital importance.

The Very Reverend Terence McDermott, O.P., S.T.M., LL.D., K.M.

President, Providence College Corporation

The Very Reverend Robert J. Slavin, O.P., S.T.M., Ph.D., LL. D., D.H.L., D.Sc.

President, Providence College

AS President of Providence College, you are deeply concerned with the cultivation of the intellectual, social, and moral virtues in us, your students.

You have manifested this consideration for us in the formulation of decisions which are ever ordained to the welfare of your students.

Your frequent appearances at our campus activities have made us all the more aware of your paternal interest in our well-being.

Now we must leave our College to go out into the world and face the formidable challenge of the future. We leave with the knowledge and the wisdom which will make us equal to the challenge.

We have been well equipped by the incomparable faculty which you govern.

We hope that the fruition of their labors, and yours, will be seen in the future, as the graduates of the Class of 1955 attain their places in the City, State, and Nation as outstanding citizens, loyal alumni, and, above all, as exemplary Christians.

Several thousand years Ago, in a world which Writhed only on a
Smaller scale compared
To ours, there lived
A man named Aristotle,
A robed, bewhiskered man:
A genius, a pagan . . .
The hands of time
Wound slowly on and
There were two other men:
The first was Dominic,
The second Thomas . . .
Dominic set the rule
And Thomas arranged the Matter and set it to the Form of the old,
Bewhiskered man . . .
In doing so these three Formed the heritage of
The men to whom we Owe so much today . . .

Once they walked and learned
Near the sunny Parthenon
In the Grecian shade . . .
Later they sat on marble steps
And Forum-wise observed
The plumb-line's swing . . .
Then in roaming bands
Midst revelry imbibed stern
Trivium and Quadrivium . . .
Added was the powdered wig,
The dance master's foppery,
Silly boots and needle—sword . . .
Then 'twixt rush of steam
And naughty atom tweaked
There emerged our Graduate:
Bolstered in numbers, data,
Test tubes and facts,
Schooled in wisdom's way
Of all that's gone before,
Devoted in purpose to
Self and neighbor and God:
The man complete . . .

The autumn sun sets in crimson splendor, framing the halcyon scene of the Providence College campus. I can look out from my room in Aquinas Hall and appreciate the sights that I have grown to love over the years: traditional, dignified Harkins Hall guarding the main approach to the campus; the grotto, sequestered in a remote corner and injecting a reverent note into the hushed Fall atmosphere; the tortuous paths, snaking their white way to the various buildings . . . There is much of Providence College that is immutable; yet, there is evidence of change. New buildings dot the campus where once there were but grass, and trees, and shrubbery . . . P.C. has been the center of much activity in our stay here, and we are proud to have been responsible for much of it . . . The history of the Class of 1955 is an imposing one. It is a testimonial to the diligence of this body.

We entered Providence College on September 19, 1951, a day memorable for the endless forms that had to be filled out, our first meeting with the President of the College, and the physical, where we made our first acquaintances under rather embarrassing circumstances . . . Our first impression of the School was somewhat like that of one entering the Service: lines and waiting, lines and more waiting . . . It was hard to disabuse us of this opinion since we found ourselves, at the end of those interminable lines, being distributed uniforms. To our relief, we discovered that we were conscripted for Tuesday afternoons only; we were spanking new cadets of the equally new Reserve Officers' Training Corps . . . The first few weeks were a time of adjustment and orientation, but already we were beginning to absorb a little class spirit and "esprit de corps."

We saw class unity and "esprit de corps" carried to extremes in the upper-class elections. More than once were we approached by the local Huey Longs and pressured for our vote until we could intrude ourselves into the diatribe and explain that we were not eligible to vote. We didn't have to wear beanies then and it made things quite confusing for the amateur politicians... Our own class was beginning to stir from its stupor, and names like Charlie Gnys and John Bowab were linked with the COWL. Tom Coyne took up the drum major's baton in the R.O.T.C. band, and Ken Kerr caught the eye of Frosh Coach Hal Martin... We saw for the first time the buoyant effect on school spirit of a Friar victory over the Rams as our harriers ended a string of Ram victories... And we swelled with pride at choosing "Ike" as the next President in a poll conducted by the COWL.

A blood-mobile from Newport, hearing that we were red-blooded Americans, came to drain away 650 quarts of the precious stuff . . . A far-reaching decision was made by the Athletic Office when they decided to field an informal hockey team. Drawing from the plethora of schoolboy stars like Tom McAleer and Ray Farrell, the Providence College hockey team was destined for great things . . . There are sad notes in any history, and for us, they were the passing of the Reverends John J. Kennedy, O.P., former professor of philosophy here at the College, and Walter R. Farrell, O.P., author of The Companion to the Summa. The knowledge which they left us is a most treasured legacy . . . Word from Rome: the Very Reverend Terrence McDermott was elected to his sixth term as Provincial of the Dominican Fathers of St. Joseph's Province.

Nobody would admit starting the blaze in the Business Building just before Christmas. It seems the boiler went amiss one day and a minor conflagration resulted. It was rumored that a few belligerent students were ready to slip a few pails of gasoline into the bucket brigade if the Aquinas Volunteers were called out to help save the IBM's. As it turned out, the boys only had a two-day respite before Mr. Breen and Co. had things shipshape again and ready for business... As the finals rolled around there wasn't much happening on the campus, save for the muttering of voices against this professor or that. It was under the desk lamps we went till the wee hours of the morn, snapping our way through countless packs of cigarettes in a last-ditch academic marathon and hoping against hope...

The Very Reverend Robert J. Slavin brought more renown upon himself and the College by qualifying for the highest degree that can be conferred upon a member of the Dominican Order, that of Master and Doctor of Sacred Theology... Christmas was in the air and the boys, impelled by the universal and dread disease, lackoffundia, grudgingly went off to work for the duration of the Christmas recess... When we returned, it was finally our turn at playing politician. Fifteen aspirants stuck their heads out, hoping that it would not fall under the axe of popular opinion. The favored four won handily, and our officers for the year were: Dave Reynolds, President; Tom Callahan, Vice-President; Len Kiernan, Secretary; and Harold Higgins, Treasurer... The Rev. Stephen Jurasko, Dean of Men, steered the Carolan Club to a rousing success in its annual Dorm Weekend. One hundred couples had the time of their lives in the three-day festivities.

Along about April 15th or so, the Medical Research Department at P.C. was granted $10,000 by the Damon Runyon Memorial Foundation for the study and possible cure of cancer. Maybe someday the white-coated men of Albertus will be able to say that they played an important part in the tracking down and destruction of this agent of the Grim Reaper . . . The R.O.T.C. held its first Ball at the Sheraton Biltmore, and we had a view of more "brass" than we could find in Waterbury. Some of it was in uniform and some of it came wearing tails. The latter group included such prominent dignitaries as Walter Reynolds, Mayor of Providence, and a group of his political associates. The affair was a tremendous success. This was due in no small way to the fact that we all had our uniforms on and felt pretty doggone proud of ourselves . . .

The month of May saw the Pyramid Players come up with their annual musical comedy, this one entitled Foiled Again. It was a satirical version of the stage presentation of the early part of the century, complete with villain and hero, boos and hisses. The result of a good deal of hard work was a really entertaining bit of histrionics... We began to hear the name "McCarthy" on the radio and in news reports, but it didn't mean much, or so we thought... Most of us took the attitude of the weather broadcaster who came up with this little gem one night: "There is a cold front moving down from the Northeast. Rain is expected in the New England States tomorrow. Elsewhere it should be fair, so just ignore the hot air masses over Washington..." Through a poll conducted by the Cowl, the Friarmen chose Sarah Vaughn and Billy Eckstine as the top vocalists of '51.

Packing up to leave when our exams were finally over was a funny experience. It only seemed like yesterday that we had arrived and fallen in with a bunch of guys whom we had never seen before in our lives. Here we were—gravely shaking hands and parting like lifelong brothers . . . We left for the hometown at the end of May and most of us began to punch a clock for the summer in return for those long green photographs of "George" and the boys who lived in the White House. You see, we intended to return in September and it seems that Father Fennel and the entire administration had some foolish idea about paying for staying—materialists, all . . . So ended our first year and the thirty-fourth of the institution on Smith Hill. More than a few of us waited for that little white card to see if we would be around for the thirty-fifth . . .

The summer went by quickly, as most vacations seem to do, and early September found us rolling back to Providence from all points of the compass... We discovered that the administration had pulled a fast one on the boys in the Dorm. Just when we thought we had the Dean of Men in Aquinas "figured," somebody stabbed our plans in the back by putting Father Edward M. Casey in "2D" on the second floor. It didn't take us long to "figure" Father Casey and find him to be one of the best friends we had, as well as an outstanding man and exemplary priest... Then it was October and politics reared its ugly head. It got so you couldn't get a guy to pass you the salt unless you promised to vote for him and swear to his worthiness over your mashed potatoes. When the votes were counted on election day, the "4-4-U" Party was wearing the victory smiles...

On the 15th of the month, Mr. Gilbane and Co., with a great clanking and roaring, started construction on the new Gymnasium behind Donnley Hall. The price tag: a shade over $2,000,000. We were not to see the finished product until 1955, but it was certainly worth waiting for . . . In the swirling midst of Autumn leaves and the dusky glow of the harvest moon, we found the Soph Hop close upon us. John Bowab and Paul Ascioffa were appointed by President of the class Len Riley to make all those big and little arrangements which would insure the success of the event. They worked hard, and our hopes were very definitely not in vain. We had a visitor from the sports world that year too. The King of the Ring, Rocky Marciano, dropped in to see us and a few of the boys had a chance to find out what it's like to get into a "bull session" with a champ . . .

Early in January a fellow by the name of Jean Vincent had put his third play, entitled The Angelic Doctor, on Broadway. There wasn't much doubt in our minds that "the big city" would be seeing more of the works of our Father Larnen. There was another writer in our midst, too. The Reverend John Kenny had come up with a book called The Principles of Modern Ethics and in the first ten days of sale, ten thousand copies were sold, solid proof that P.C. men make good... About one hundred delegates from the N.F.C.S.S. invaded the sacred grounds on Smith Hill on February 11th and took over for three days as they held their regional meeting. They renovated the lounge in Harkins and it looked real nice. This was in March and a few of the more worldly-minded suggested that we smuggle in a roulette wheel to liven things up...

The campus disc-jockeys and Ed Murrows moved their crystal sets deep into the murky depths of Aquinas Hall near the middle of March and WDOM had a new location. Nobody would listen to them when they complained about being hidden away in the cellar like secret agents until they opened a program one night by whispering, "Hello, America, this is the Paris Underground..." The boys in the Dorm got a money-saving break when "Father Ed" had a washer-dryer Laundromat installed next to the Penguin Room. We all went into sadistic hysterics at the moaning and weeping of the Juniors who had just gotten their shots for summer Camp. It didn't seem so awfully funny a year later. Fathers John Sullivan and Paul Doane took us in tow at the end of March for the Retreat. God bless 'em both. They gave us all a wonderful spiritual uplift . . .

It was May 10th and the lads had done it again. The Pyramid Players livened up our entertainment world with their presentation of Moonglow. The Baron and his boys really had it when it came to musical comedy. Father Cannon took his Choraleers down to Yale's home grounds in New Haven to wind up their season of song and brought down the house with their renditions. The Martinmen were getting close to the wire in their diamond battles, too. Hal and the weatherman couldn't get together on too many occasions, and as a result, the won-lost column didn't impress many people. The bright side showed itself through, in the personages of Messrs. Romberg and Howe. Gas-house Dick was the man to watch and it didn't take rival hurlers long to realize this fact. P.S.—Somebody else you may have missed—shortstop Jimmy White, shades of Hans Wagner!

The R.O.T.C. men looked razor sharp on 13 May 1953 (as the Army would write it) when they strutted their stuff at Mt. Pleasant Stadium. Fifteen cadets received various awards for high standings, while many of the marchers' parents and friends applauded the official military review. Ben Fleck was awarded top prize in the Camera Club salon for his picture entitled "Study of a Billiard Player." Jim Marshal won the Cowl title of Senior of the Year and it couldn't have gone to a nicer guy. He left somebody in '54 with a real record to match. . .

It seemed that before we could take a deep breath, the end of our Sophomore year at P.C. was at hand. Here was the summer vacation again and half of our college career was over. We were already aware, for the most part, of the benefits we had received in four short semesters.

Our academic year as Juniors began on September 20, 1954. To our way of thinking, that was the time when they would separate the men from the boys. It was going to be rough . . . We had something on our side, though; the Very Reverend Robert J. Slavin, O.P., had been appointed to his third term as President of the College. It took a Papal dispensation to keep him here, but we still had a good leader for the coming campaign and that's all we cared about . . . The beanie-clad Freshmen made their appearance on the campus for the first time in many moons; another tradition was revived in Friartown . . . Harry Coates and the P.C. harriers took a trip up the Hudson and made the Black Knights look like a bunch of lackeys by defeating them 27-30 . . . For the first time in its sixteen-year history, the Cowl received the coveted "All America" award, one of seven in the entire country.

Off campus, another product of "White Robe" education bulled his way to the top. Gabe Paul, General Manager of the Cincinnati Redlegs, announced the appointment of former Friar backstop George "Birdie" Tebbetts to the managerial post of this ball club . . . Back on Smith Hill, the people in the Debating Club, with a minimum of haggling, paradoxically enough, had chosen Gene Voll to lead them as their Prexy during the 1953-1954 season . . . This year also, the powers-that-be standardized the class ring . . . and news from the Military Science Department: Gone were the days when heated discussions on the "six-by-six" and the "Duck" enlivened our spare moments. The Pentagon decided to substitute a General Military Program for the existing Transportation unit, and the "troops" envisioned a career in the infantry come graduation.

Again the Red Cross was out for blood. The standing joke had the blood types listed as A, B, AB, O, and 100 proof . . . Toward the end of November, the strains of "The Wearin' of the Green" were to be heard emanating from the gym in Harkins as "The Earl of Shannon" began his tenure as Frosh basketball coach. The Earl kept his boys hustling, and Vin was actually seen to smile at the prospect of getting the promising Freshmen "upstairs" when they became Sophomores . . . December and January went by the boards without too much notice by the class of 1955. Most of their time was spent in worrying about exams. The magic number was four, "Four more months till the end of the year." There was one non-academic piece of machinery pumping away at full tilt about this time: the "sub-fleet," the second team of Cuddymen, had been promoted and were blazing hot.

The business genius of the Class was manifested by the tremendously successful Raffle devised to defray the expenses of the Junior Prom. The prizes included everything from a semester's tuition to a free ticket to the dance. As the lads were heard to say, "When we do something, we don't fool around!" The poker tables at Las Vegas were seen to blush with envy as the $1,000.00 returns were disclosed . . . Come February 10, we were again benefitted by generous patrons as the New England College Fund, an institution founded to lighten the load of the independent colleges in New England, recognized the College's contribution in the educational realm with a substantial donation . . . In the middle of February, the soft strains of "Danny Boy" disappeared from the campus with the retirement of our campus cop, Peter J. Dolan. He kept us "fresh kids" in line for six years.

The end of the month was here and the Dorm took it as a signal to resume its social activities: A Father and Son Weekend was sponsored by the Carolan Club, and both generations responded by enjoying themselves enormously. It was a gratifying experience to see the Dads meeting each other and getting acquainted with the faculty members to whom their sons are entrusted . . . The medical researchers received a substantial grant from the American Heart Association for the purpose of studying the metabolism of sterols and cancerous growths. To the uninformed, it would seem that there was more research going on here at Smith Hill than at Oak Ridge. There is just one vital difference, up here they are out to save lives . . . Another indication of passing years: the Class of 1955 received their class rings. It would not be long now.

March 2 was the date, and those who could find breathing space in the Veteran's Auditorium here in Providence, heard our own P. C. Septones singing with Dorothy Collins and Snookie Lanson, stars of the "Hit Parade." They were doing their bit in the annual Charity Drive put on for the benefit of the St. Vincent de Paul Society . . . It was March too that saw typewriter tyrants put the 1954 edition of the VERITAS to bed with hopes that it would be accepted as a job well done. Their fondest hopes were realized . . . Father Slavin, Governor Roberts, and other notables inaugurated the P. C. chapter of Alpha Epsilon Delta, the national premedical Honor Society. This was just another bit of evidence that the College was moving towards that degree of recognition which it deserves. The scientists from Albertus Magnus were wined and dined for their fine work.

The big social weekend of the Junior year began on April 30. It was the date of the Junior Prom, and over two hundred couples were jammed into the ballroom of the Sheraton-Biltmore Hotel to dance to the music of Elliot Lawrence and his Orchestra . . . In early May, it was announced by Father Dore that Providence College would return to the five-day week. Grins pervaded the faces of all those hard-working students enrolled in "Sacktime 102." To quote Frank "Samuel Taylor Coleridge" Bruckberger, "Ah Sleep! It is a gentle thing, beloved from pole to pole . . ." The last event of real interest to the students was the defeat of the Bruin nine right in their own backyard. Carl Buniva and Pete Drury were the heroes as the victory was acclaimed as one of the high spots of the year . . . The R.O.T.C. Cadets meanwhile were getting ready for summer camp, buying tennis racquets, golf clubs, etc.

It's a bit difficult to begin this last chapter of the history. There are a great many reasons why this is so, but just for the record, I'd like to enumerate a few of them for you. First and foremost, it is the last chapter and as such, it brings to an abrupt halt the chronicle of the four most memorable years of our lives. And then, it is an extremely difficult task to do justice to all in describing the activities of the people you have lived with and come to know so well when you are limited to so few pages . . . The salient points only can be covered, and any deletions are attributable to the necessary limitations of a brief history . . . To begin with, we returned to the hallowed halls of Providence on September 14, and from then until about the middle of October, the boys gathered at "Bradley Hall" to tell war stories and to discuss the rugged conditions at A. P. Hill.

Come the end of the month, Rene Fortin found himself Editor of the VERITAS . . . He may look older and a bit stooped by the time you read this, but there was a time when he looked young and strong . . . The Army kept things rolling when they made Joe Reilly Colonel of the R.O.T.C. unit up here . . . Father McKenna was at it again, organizing something that was to be known as the "Progress Fund," . . . The by-word of the drive was "A better Providence College for a better community." The clock was turned back fifteen years or so to the battle of Britain and cries of "Flying squadrons, scramble" rang across the campus after the 6:15 chow in Aquinas Hall. Led by Flight Lieutenant Dick Elston, the Spitfires and Hurricanes (beat-up Fords, Chevvy's, and Plymouths) thundered down the runway to do battle in an admirable display of loyalty. They were the few to whom the future students will owe so much.

We still couldn't get away from politics this year, but we didn't really mind. The class needed four men, good and true, for its representation and we got them. That man Joe Reilly was in the news again, this time as President of the Senior Class. His fellow officers were Ralph Coppa, Vice-President; Ed Scanlon, Secretary; and John Higgins, the all important Treasurer . . . The hockey team came to life on December 12, as they dealt a 5-2 defeat to the Bruins in a game which had us in hysterics . . . The hockey team, with its periodic successes, stood in bold relief from the basketball team, which was experiencing a mediocre season . . . Semester exams in January had all the Seniors in agony; for many, they were the ones which would, for all practical purposes, determine whether they would graduate on schedule. Surmounting this obstacle would leave but one more hurdle, and we could not afford a slip.

But meanwhile, there were more immediate problems. The Rams administered the coup-de-grâce to a floundering basketball team; but the future looks brighter. Freshman stars like Holmes, Jenkins, Tirico, and Canestari made us envious of the under-classmen who would be around to witness their successes. And the Gym which has been long coming is nearing completion. There is a feeling of kinship between us and the Gym, for it first began to be taken seriously when we arrived, and we have watched it grow from a pit to a steel skeleton to a hollow shell to a completely equipped and modern Gym. John Bowab has been weaned away from his job in the "snake pit" and Jim Renzi is in a frenzy as the new Cowl editor. In his spare time, Jim puts on his other cap and worries about plans for the Junior Prom and this year's presentation of the Pyramid Players.

We smiled smugly as the Juniors got squeamish at the thought of summer camp; we had been through the mill and we felt salty. Marriage plans were being made by several and a few had already taken the big step. A few days' absence and everyone would jump to conclusions. Ray Farrell and Gene Hagan acquired their mates and that distant look in the eyes of others was a sign that there were more nuptials in the offing . . . One of the more exciting facets of campus life in February was the impending birth of Jim Cote's heir. A pool was organized and half the people on campus had a personal interest in the hour of arrival. Jim was not worried about the money, however. . . . Harry Higgins and Dan Lynch moved to the front line of the aspirin brigade when they were chosen as heads of the Class Gift Committee . . .

There was concern all over the school about the way Ike's golf was going to pot because of the exigencies of international affairs, so we sent Ronnie Quinn down to Augusta to see if he could straighten out the President's game . . . There was a package affair for us the weekend of February 4, 5, and 6: the Carolan Club and the R.O.T.C. combined efforts to sponsor the biggest weekend of the school year. With the Military Ball and the Dorm Weekend taking place simultaneously, the City relived Hurricanes "Carol" and "Edna" all over again . . . A quick post-script to the history: Dave Reilly and Ralph Gentile have been appointed Co-Chairmen of our Commencement Ball which was set for June 2 . . . It seems that our time for the month of May has already been accounted for, what with all this talk of picnics, dances, balls. Then too, I heard something about final exams, which we must somehow fit into the rigid schedule.

The Hockey team was feted February 15th at the Narragansett Hotel at a celebration held in honor of the first varsity Hockey representatives of Providence College. With a few games left, the team broke even against tough competition. The political scientists were agog with speculation as the news was released that Malenkov had resigned. The Kremlin was under new ownership and we wondered about the repercussions . . . And there was nasty business going on at Formosa and we wondered about that too . . . On the lighter side, John Valva scored again as he followed his interview for the Cowl with Liberace with another more timely one, with Debbie and Eddie. They had come to Providence for the St. Vincent de Paul Concert. The Glee Club Dominotes maintained their reputations as "bon vivants" when they departed for an engagement in Albany . . .

Amid clouds of cigarette smoke, entombed in countless reams of crumpled copy paper, and to the anguished organic rumbling of Rene Fortin's ulcers, the 1955 Veritas, in a feverish race against the calendar, was beginning to emerge from a litter of coffee-stained photographs. Mr. Fortin was clamoring for the history and his strident yelps brought about a premature halt to this tome. There is much that has to be left unsaid, and this last semester must be abandoned, though it will undoubtedly be one of intense excitement. Yet, the memory of those involved can be entrusted to retain the epochal events of the last semester: Cap and Gown Day, the Senior Picnic, the Commencement Ball, Baccalaureate Sunday and Commencement Day, these are incidents of such dramatic and personal significance that they would probably suffer by being formalized in writing.

The Liturgy Club aims to make the students participants in the Sacramental life of the Church. The members, through lectures and discussions, achieve an understanding of the Mass, the Sacraments, and the prayers of the Church, enabling them to take a more active part in their religion.

This year, the members of the club received instruction on how to make spiritual use of the feast days and Sundays of the liturgical year.

The highlight of the club's activity was the Liturgical Workshop held here at the College and participated in by students from several other colleges. The subject of the discussions was the liturgical apostolate of St. Pius X, the great sponsor of the liturgical movement.

Students participate in the Red Mass.

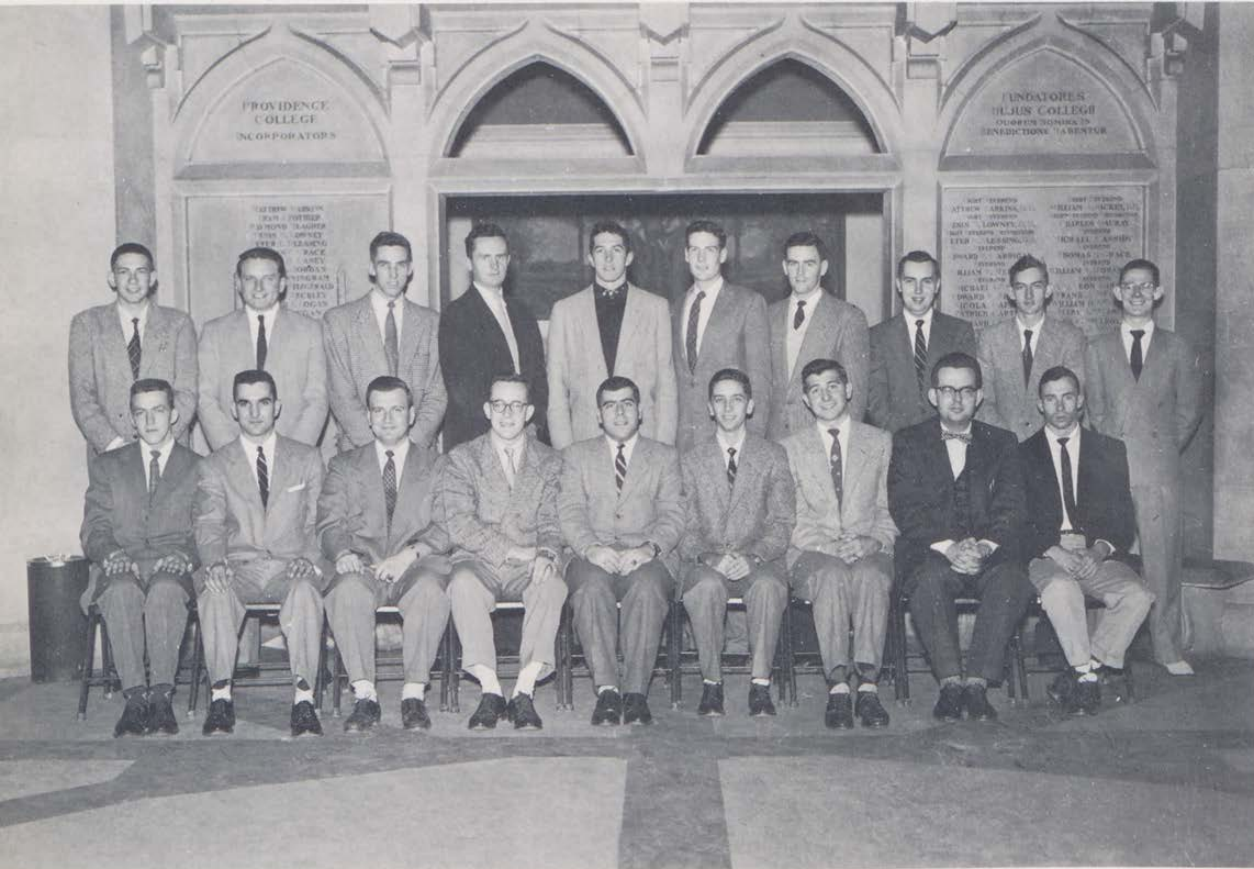

A consideration of the whole man, and his complete preparation for entrance into the world of his fellowmen, this is the aim of Providence College. Besides the beakers and the slide-rules, the Shakespeare and the Horace, the laughter and the cheering, there is another, an entirely more vital aspect in the life of a Providence College student. As the following pages will all too well testify, the soma of the P.C. undergraduate is well cared for. The principal, often unnoticed, but primary aim of a Catholic education is the adequate care of the student's psyche. It is the inculcation and awareness of the Ultimate End which shall always remain of primary importance at Providence College.

From the annual Mass of the Holy Ghost in September, to the last Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament the day he leaves for home, the Providence College student is provided with a maximum of opportunities for the advancement and betterment of his soul.

A conglomeration of intellectuals.

Acceptance into Delta Epsilon Sigma represents the attainment of a goal coveted by all Catholic college students. Its significance lies in the fact that membership is limited to those students who have distinguished themselves as academic and intellectual leaders during their years at college. No more than ten percent of a graduating class may receive the D.E.S. key in any given year.

The D.E.S. was formed in 1938 to fill an ever increasing need for a national Catholic honor society in the United States. Many of its members are now among the outstanding laymen of the Church.

Providence College's Theta Chapter is one of the organization's largest, oldest, and most respected affiliates.

The Rhode Island Alpha Chapter of the National Premedical Honor Society, Alpha Epsilon Delta, was inaugurated at Providence College in 1954. Membership in the society is awarded to premedical students in recognition of superior scholastic achievements.

The A.E.D. performs a threefold function: it encourages excellence in premedical scholarship; it serves to stimulate an appreciation of the importance of a premedical education; and lastly, it promotes cooperation and establishes contacts between medical and premedical students and educators in developing an improved program of premedical education.

Founded at the University of Alabama in 1926, the A.E.D. has over twelve thousand members in sixty-four accredited colleges and universities throughout the country.

WHO'S WHO

In American Colleges and Universities

PAUL J. ASCIOLLA
Bristol, R. I.

Primary requisites for membership in "Who's Who" are a high scholastic record and service to the College. Candidates are nominated by a special Committee of the Student Congress, seconded by that body as a whole, and referred to the Dean of Men for final approval. One outstanding advantage of being selected for membership in this group is the recognition and preferment which is accorded its members by employers.

Kenneth Caldwell, President

"Come, follow me," said our Lord to the rich youth, but he was not willing. The call which he spurned has been answered by those men who reside in Guzman Hall, and who make up the Philomusian Society.

The Society's main purpose is the government of Guzman Hall. It also fosters intellectual, social, and athletic activities. Its members are a congenial group whose genuine degree of fellowship is exceeded only by their singleness of purpose.

Under the guidance of Father McDermott, the men of the Philomusian Society pursue their years of study and spiritual preparation in our midst. They are a true credit to themselves, their College, and their calling, which may one day bring some of them back to P.C. as professors.

"Calling Tokyo . . . Come in Zanzibar . . . Hello Bangor . . . do you read us??? This is Providence College operating on a frequency of 14,000 kilocycles."

And so the name of the College will soon be traveling the airways of the world when the Amateur Radio Club sets up its transmitter and begins operating. While it might not cause the Voice of America to start laying off employees, the station will be powerful enough to make contact with all parts of the globe. It will also accommodate anyone who wishes to have short wave messages relayed from anywhere to anywhere.

The purpose of the infant club is to train students who hope to join the fraternity of "hams," and to give valuable experience to prospective army radio corpsmen.

LIFE IN HARKINS

There you are enjoying that wonderful weed and all of a sudden there's a hand on your shoulder . . . "Fifty cents, please!" How does Father Prout get around so? —And the Student Lounge! Great dripping gobs of raw crow! How does Father Prout know when to come in, especially when I've got a straight? And then there's the bells—ringing, ringing, ringing, and ringing.

"Father Prout has been sighted. Let's look innocent."

There was a new wrinkle in the Library this year: Father Hogan installed "clickers" for the enforcement of silence . . . Oh! the clicking and the clicking and the awful agonizing clicking! Hordes of mysterious little men who whisk away your coffee before you're done . . . Oh! The whisking and the snatching and the whisking . . .

R.O.T.C.

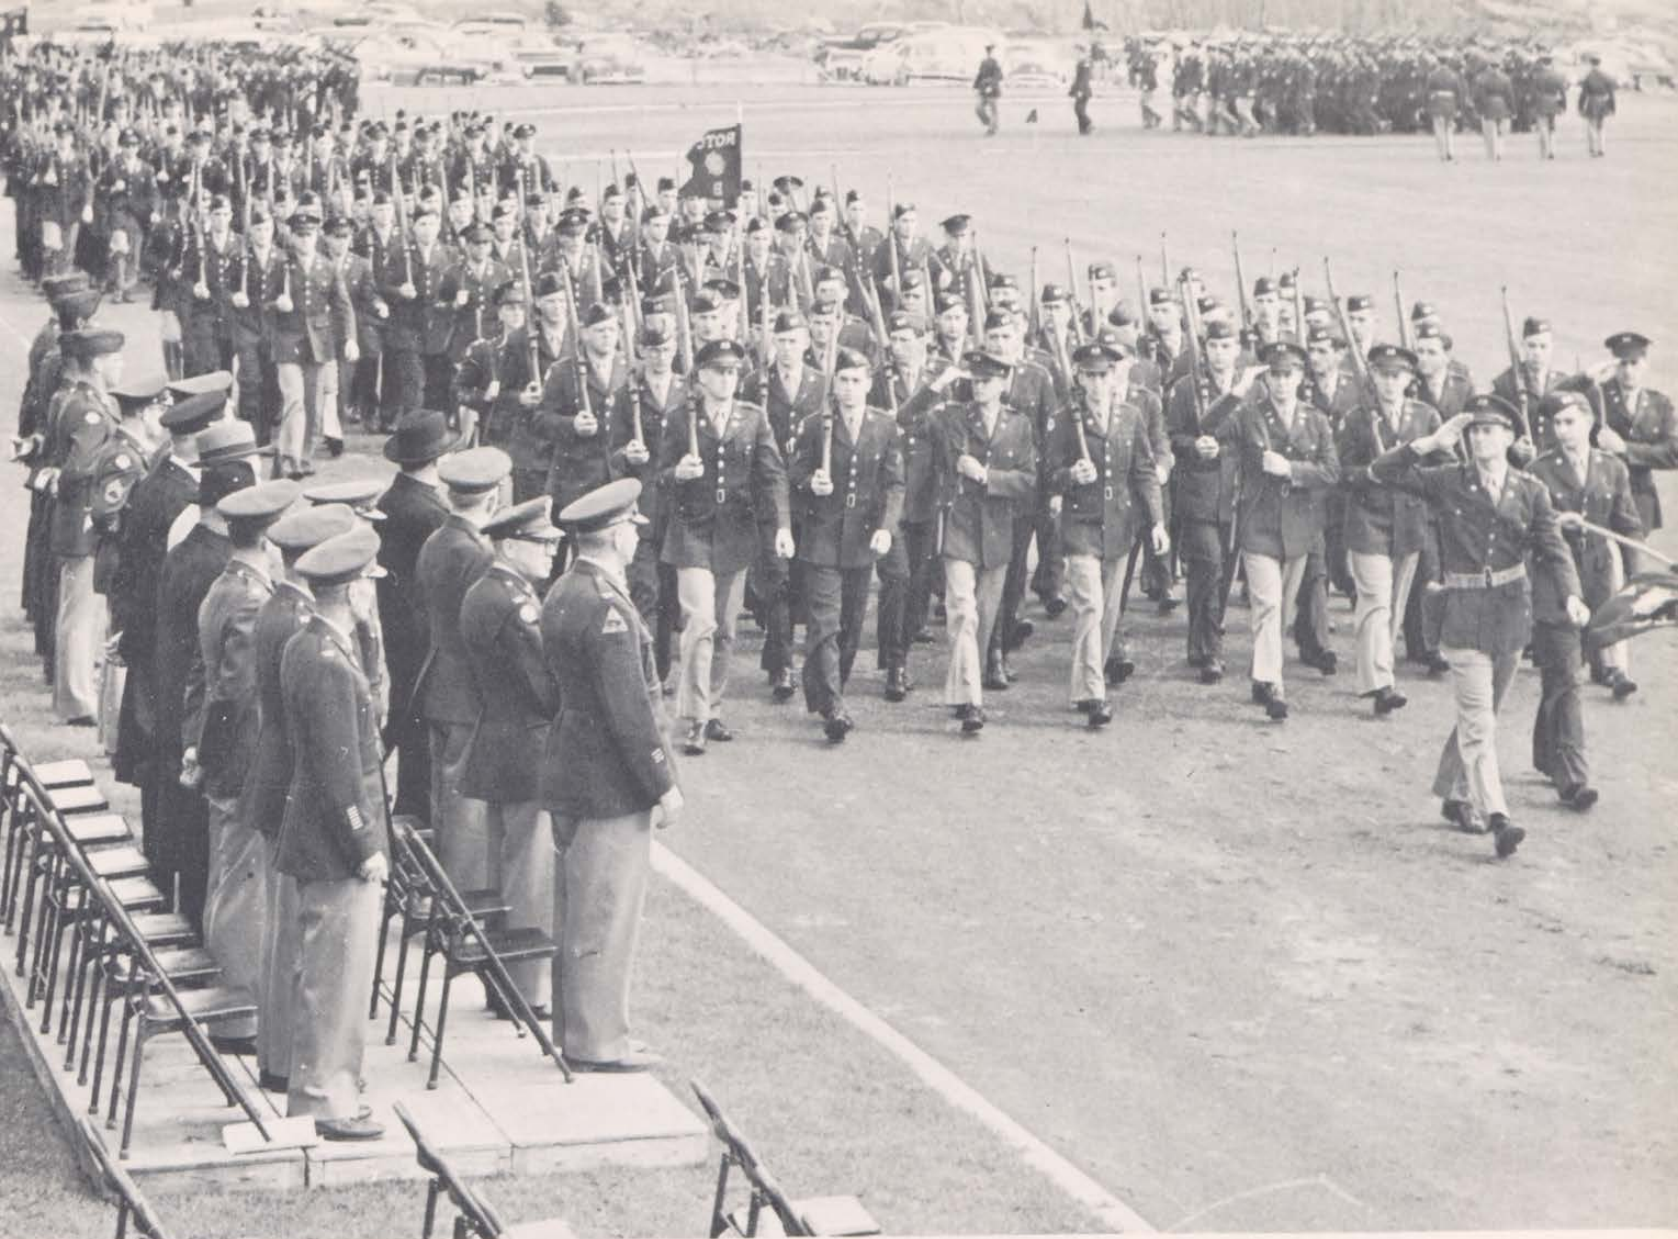

The Reserve Officers' Training Corps at Providence College began its existence four years ago, right after the outbreak of the Korean "Police Action." A contract was signed between the Administration and the Department of the Army. Ever since that day, the aspect of the Military has become an integral part of the average student's life here at P. C. In his freshman and sophomore years, a student, if he is physically qualified, is required to enroll in the two year basic course of the R.O.T.C. At the end of his sophomore year, a student who so wishes, and who has maintained a sufficiently high average, goes on to the advanced course, from which, upon graduation, he receives a commission. Instruction includes all the elements of Military Science and Tactics. Under the direction of Col. Roy P. Moss, PMS&T, and a very able staff, the budding crop of future officers is shepherded along the path of Military wisdom. Highspot of the year is the annual Dress Review held at Mt. Pleasant Stadium.

R.O.T.C. BAND

As the strident, polyphonic strains of the "General's March" echo down the sunny slopes of Smith Hill, we are all aware of the wonderful existence of the Providence College R.O.T.C. Band. The sight of the green uniforms, the spanking rows of white helmets and yellow scarves never fails to bring a joyous tingle to the spines of young and old alike. There is nothing like the rattle of the drum and the keening of the fife! The Band provides the music for all official R.O.T.C. functions and when paired with the distinguished Drill Team wins top honors consistently, both for itself and for the school. Father Georges can well be proud of his boys. It's hard work and well worth it.

Under the supervision and competent direction of a member of the teaching staff and the Senior R.O.T.C. Officers, this club functions in an atmosphere of conviviality and friendship.

Membership requirements are based on an honor rating, comradeship, responsibility, and military knowledge.

Through their social activities—The Military Ball and the Stag Dinner, and their hearty participation in military affairs, the members assimilate valuable information towards their future military service.

The National Federation of Catholic College Students is a bond of spiritual and social unity which embodies students from the various Catholic colleges and universities throughout the nation.

It is divided into geographical sections so that it might more capably administer to such a large jurisdiction, Providence College being a member of the New England region. There are thirteen national and regional commissions, each handling a specific phase of work, such as Mariology, radio, and forensics.

The Annual Intercollegiate Dance and the Overseas Service Program's fund-drive and tag day for needy foreign students are two of the Federation's well-supported campus activities.

The Monogram Club is an esoteric group; since it is composed of our varsity athletes, who come into contact with the representatives of other colleges, membership is limited only to those who meet the requirements of proficiency on the athletic field and exhibit the estimable quality of sportsmanship.

This group, which proudly wears the College letter, enriches the prestige of Providence College in no small way: it annually sponsors the Varsity Hop and the perennially popular student boxing bouts.

The object of the club is to breed a species of gentleman-athlete whose will to win does not preclude his ability to lose graciously. The proof of its success is the admiration in which the athletes are held on Smith Hill.

The Club's most popular project, the boxing bouts.

No, not from the chilly, desolate garrets, not from the ill-lighted smoky bistros and picturesque Benefit Streets, but from the more orthodox and more intellectual ranks of the student body do we draw our gems of literary wit.

Said works are diluted, tempered, sifted, and sometimes censored by the older and more experienced. Then, off they go to the printer, and the result, appearing four times a year is the black and white covered Alembic, a finished product reminding the staff of many full ash trays and expanding the erstwhile chests of the lucky "Ernest Hummingbirds" who, thanks to the hearty and prodigious efforts of their pens, have been accorded the very worth-while honor of seeing their work in print.

The standard of programming featured by our national radio networks is so far below the intellectual level of the average Providence College man that he must turn to WDOM.

WDOM features music, news, sports, and programs of an educational nature. Unfortunately, the only persons who are able to partake of this wealth of entertainment are the residents of the dormitory. It seems that WDOM has continued to have transmitting difficulties. Soon these difficulties will be remedied, for a new transmitter is in the process of being installed, and a greater audience will be able to hear WDOM's loud, clear voice. Until that time, those of us who are not fortunate enough to live in the dormitory will have to be content with the mediocre programming of N.B.C. and C.B.S.

The Cowl's history is one of success. Since its inception twenty years ago, it has won award after award for excellence in its class. Last year, it was singled out as one of the seven best undergraduate publications by the American Collegiate Press Association.

The real tribute to the Cowl, however, is the warm reception which is accorded to it every Wednesday. The "fresh" Cowls are deposited at strategic points on campus, and every Providence man has at one time or another gotten caught up in the surge toward the papers. It is a source of constant gratification for the editors to see the students drop all civilized instincts in favor of a dog-eat-dog attitude for the sake of his paper.

The Cowl is entirely a student organization, a magnificent training ground for the prospective journalist. It is a hard-hitting impartial observer of campus activities, generous in its praise, unrelenting in its criticism. It fulfills a vital role as the voice of the student.

THE VERITAS

Two weeks before the deadline (this is traditional, no sooner and no later), a heretofore cocksure editor glances at the layout and declares a state of emergency. With a dictatorial air, he begins booming out the commands that set the staff working at a frenetic pace: the typists type, the photographers photograph, and the editors edit. The atmosphere is one of impending disaster and everyone is conscious of, and terrified by, the ominous deadline. The days roll by, the deadline is by-passed, and there is a threat that heads will roll. The top echelon is acutely conscious of what was the deadline and formulates a new one daily.

Eventually, after many threatening letters from the publishers, and the transmission of that threat down the Veritas hierarchy to the meanest lackey, the 1955 Veritas is sent to press.

The "grass widows" of the staff are the happiest people concerned since their sweethearts can now emerge from the cloister.

If Hippocrates were alive today, he would smile benignly upon the Albertus Magnus Club of Providence College. Whether the members would smile back at him after a four-hour lab is mere conjecture, though.

But enough of this phantasy. The fine results of the club in its projects are in the realm of reality. The club, by sponsoring a variety of social events, and events of a more serious nature, offers our embryo healers a welcome respite from their tedious studies. It also co-sponsors Science Day in conjunction with the Phi-Chi Club to introduce high-school seniors from the entire area to the science department of the school, its facilities, and its projects.

In addition, its members, through speakers who have already made their mark in the professional world, get a valuable insight into problems they will have to face upon graduation.

In a world which is constantly inflamed and torn by political, social, and religious strife, there are many pointedly pressing problems confronting the average man. This is especially so if this average man happens to be a Catholic. The dilemmas which face the Catholic college graduate are as perplexing as they are numerous, personal, and economic.

The raison d'etre of the St. Antoninus Club is the airing and solution of these problems.

Composed of Junior and Senior Economics Majors, the Club meets monthly under the wise direction of Father Quirk. A prominent guest speaker is always invited for the entertainment and enlightenment of the members and to answer any and all questions posed.

April 30, 1954 was a balmy Spring day in an otherwise blustery week. The Juniors and their dates, decked out in the finest of their fineries, strutted to the Sheraton-Biltmore's pre-tentious ball room for the dance of the year.

Swirling and swooning to the music of Elliot Lawrence, and intoxicated by the enchanting strains of the immortal melodies, the Juniors fluoresced with "joie-de-vivre."

This exuberance was carried over into the next day as a fabulous jazz concert was staged for those with a more modern penchant.

Probing into the realm of funded debts and self-liquidating debts and trend lines, it is highly conceivable that one will encounter a Ship and Scales Club member.

This highly popular club boasts that it has virtually all of the Business majors in its enrollment. Its purpose is to supplement the ordinary College curriculum by presenting speakers who have actually embraced the business world, and having them impart the knowledge they have gleaned from their experience.

Furthermore, in the discussions which inevitably arise whenever young men are grouped together, one is exposed to the interplay of ideas and theories, which makes for the development and orientation of the future business man.

Here is an organization which strives through the participation and research of its members to revitalize the average student's interest in the fascinating science of History. Not an easy task, assuredly, but then the calibre of the organization is more than equal to the task.

Under the watchfully wise eye of Father Forster, a member of the P. C. History Department, the Club holds bi-monthly meetings. These meetings consist of stimulating historical lectures. The talks are given either by a famous guest expert or by a member of the Club who delivers a research paper upon which he has spent many hours of hard work. In such troubled times as these it might pay us to follow the Club members and take a brief look into the exciting past.

The Pyramid Players of P. C. were organized in June, 1926, due to the earnest wishes of the students to create and participate in original productions. These young Thespians, besides gaining invaluable personal experience, have broadened immeasurably the scope of collegiate activities on the campus.

All composition, direction, and stage-setting are accomplished through the talent, perseverance, and hard work of its members. In this way alone, the Pyramid Players easily become one of the most distinguished and vitally active clubs on the campus.

Last year's president, Charles Gnys, wrote and directed Rome! Sweet Rome! with music by Frank Barone, a smashing success.

If the Players can equal the musical comedy presented by last year's group, they will have reached a zenith in collegiate dramatics. Here is a club which labors to provide social entertainment for others—a rather unique claim to fame for a college organization.

In recent years a swarm of camera bugs has descended on the College. They are visible at all campus activities, clicking busily away, recording for posterity (and sometimes for their own prosperity), the events of the various organizations. They do the photographic work for the school's three publications, and it is to them that we are indebted for the pictures which will soon be treasured mementos.

P. C. men are not the only ones who benefit from the work of the Camera Club. In cooperation with the Community Chest, the club members brighten the lives of shut-in invalids by showing "movies for the home-bound" twice a month. In this way, they truly comfort the sick while acting as ambassadors of good will for the school.

The Spiked Shoe Club runs through plans for its next dance.

Though the sport of Track is still a young one here at P. C., it is evident that it shall enjoy a long life with such an organization as the Spiked Shoe Club to focus interest upon it.

The club is composed of members of the Freshman and Varsity cross-country and indoor Track teams. However, you do not have to wear cleats and pound the boards to be a member. The only requirement is an avid interest and a keen relish for the oldest of sports.

Social activities are started off in the Fall with a semi-formal dance to which all students are invited. In Lent, there follows a Communion Breakfast with a distinguished speaker present for the entertainment and enlightenment of the members.

This organization can quite easily be called the most select one on campus. It chooses its members in a descending ratio from all classes, the final "Yes" or "No" being up to the Dean.

The Friars' Club annually sponsors the Friars' Formal, a lavish affair, which was held this year in Aquinas Hall.

Organized in 1928, the club serves as a host in all the social and athletic events held on campus, living up admirably to its motto, "Welcome the coming and speed the parting guest."

It is difficult to enumerate all the varied activities of the Providence College Student Congress. They range from listening to the alibis of squirming Freshmen who neglected to wear their beanies to the prompt enactment of legislation which is beneficial to the entire student body.

Basically, the Student Congress is the essential hub around which revolves each and every facet of the undergraduate's life. The fellow who collects tickets at dances, the lad who tells you where to vote and what you are voting for, the man who enforces the wearing of the beanies,—this is the Student Congress in action.

The task is enormous. The Student Congress is wonderfully equal to it.

Personal advancement in the fields of Mathematics, Chemistry, and Physics are not the only activities of the Phi Chi Club, however; each year it sponsors its High School Science Day. The purpose of this event is to give prospective science students a look at the many advantages offered them by a School of Science which is rated as one of New England's finest and most up to date. Composed of upper-classmen, this club is a credit to its school.

The Barristers are the official debating society of the College. The society is open to all members of the four classes who are interested in public speaking and forensic competition in general. Throughout the year the Barristers engage in intercollegiate competition, both tournament style and individual debates, with many different colleges and universities in the East. Each year a debating topic is chosen by the National Forensic Association. This year's topic: Resolved: "that the U.S. should extend diplomatic recognition to Communist China."

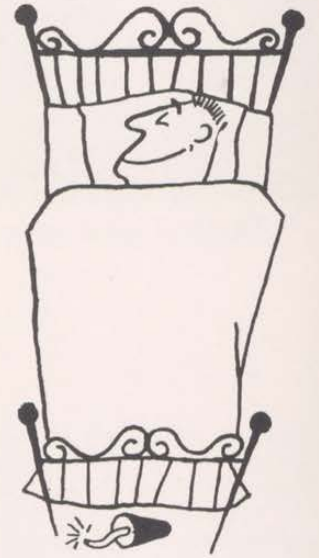

Though usually small in number, the Barristers, through many hours of hard work, regularly compile a very enviable record, thus bringing praise to their school and to their eminent organization.

Aquinas pastime

A more common one.

This is the abode and habitat of the resident student, who by his very nature requires a place to eat, sleep, and recreate. Take a good-sized building, about twenty-three priests, three hundred-odd students, and a lot of imagination; the resulting picture is Aquinas Hall. The place is always a bee hive of activity. From the almost audible grinding of minds to the ghostly footsteps of the "Phantom Whistler" in the halls late at night, the place literally jumps with dramatic action. "The Whistler" was apprehended this year, by the way, but we are confident that another will soon rise to take his place . . . Presided over by the benevolent and wise Father Casey, Aquinas Hall is the happy home of all those who live, work, and play in it.

The opposition consists of seventeen nautical giants to be encountered in eleven tournaments.

When our sailors aren't stirring up a silvery froth, the club members give classes in the art of sailing to teach the interested students the intricacies of small craft handling. During the winter months, they devote their time to fund-raising activities in order to acquire the necessary wherewithal to keep the fleet shipshape. Though the Sailing Club is a small group, it is an active one.

The Carolan Club, drawing entirely upon the vast Dorm population for its membership, is easily the largest extra-curricular group on campus.

Under the supervision of Father Casey, the Club sponsors the Autumn Festival, which is a prelude to even greater things in the form of the Carolan Weekend. Among the events crammed into the exciting weekend are a formal dinner-dance, a jazz concert, a basketball game and a Communion Breakfast.

The Carolan Club also stages informal dances, movies, and lectures as part of its program to brighten the life of the resident student.

If there is any one organization on the campus which serves to spread the name of P. C. throughout the East, it is surely the Glee Club. From Washington to Maine, the Providence College Songsters thrill audience after audience with choral selections both secular and religious. Their ever-favorable press notices and widespread acclaim give apt testimony to their proficiency.

High spot of the Club schedule is the annual trip to New York and Washington, D.C. Under the brilliant direction of Father Cannon and spearheaded by the tricky singing of the Dominotes, the Glee Club maintains its high standards year after year.

"Mother of Truth, we proudly pledge to thee . . ."

A full octave of Dominotes.

The large number of students enrolled as Political Science majors here at the College is an indication of the importance of the St. Thomas More Club. This club serves the twofold purpose of giving its members a valuable insight into the field of law, while helping them to establish relations with distinguished attorneys, who give periodic lectures during the year. Past members, now in graduate school, have only begun to realize the benefits which they have derived from it.

It is for these reasons that the St. Thomas More Club, though only three years old, has already reached maturity and is well established on campus. The highlight of its social calendar was an informal dance held at the Roger Williams Chateau.

"De Facto, Eddy, but never, never, DE JURE."

Fancy footwork with a legal twist.

SOPHOMORE HOP

The Sophs swirl under spiraling streamers.

Four couples find a quiet corner.

The theme of this year's Sophomore Hop was "Winter Carnival." And winter it was! The interior of Harkin's Auditorium was magically transformed into a winter wonderland. There was nothing "cold" or "icy" about the ensuing festivities, however.

Dee Francis and his orchestra held court in the auditorium. For those who might tire of Dee's dreamily dulcet music, there was Arnold Sarazen and his "crazy" ivories in the gaily decorated lounge. With a large turnout, the affair was a huge success.

A listener swoons to the crazy rhythm (or is it the coffee?)

Water, water, everywhere, but the P.C. mermen still can't locate that swimming pool in Alumni Hall. And they desperately need a batch of H₂O on the campus.

Medics and pedagogues inform us that natation is a noble exercise which develops brain, brawn, and bullion, being an important part of physical education in colleges, schools, clubs and social life generally. So, here's hoping.

Meanwhile, if you want to learn the secret of the billowy muscles and intellectual wizardry of the swimming stars who brighten the halls of P.C., look to the stimulating waters of the Wanskuck pool. The team did not engage in inter-collegiate competition this year, but expects to do so next year, having secretly developed a string of frogmen whose splashes will be heard around the world.

One of the newest and most valuable additions to our ever-growing number of campus organizations is the Sociology Club. Composed wholly of Sociology Majors whose avid interest in their chosen field is in itself extremely praiseworthy, the club functions under the estimable and very skillful direction of Rev. William R. Clark, O.P., and the members themselves are commanded by President John Durant.

The activities of the Sociology Club are distinct in that the club holds no dances, parties, or socials. Moreover, the Sociology Club concerns itself with a study of man's treatment of man. Lectures and discussions are interspersed with field trips to various charitable institutions.

A quirk of sociological fate gets a mild laugh.

The long-range view of the club is varsity standing. At present, however, the club is handicapped by the lack of courts; therefore, its immediate objective is recognition as an informal sport and the privilege to represent the College in intercollegiate competition. Its hopeful attitude is typical of the growing spirit of the undergraduate body.

The anticipated construction of tennis courts in conjunction with the building of the new gymnasium seems to have rekindled interest in tennis on campus.

As a result, the recently formed club sponsors a tournament in the Spring open to all students. The favorable response indicates that the construction of tennis courts will be the stimulus needed for the increased prosperity of the club.

The Providence College Golf Club has blazed a path of divots throughout the Eastern links. But for our golfers this has proven to be the path to glory. Though it was only recently organized, the team has already won the respect of various colleges in New England. Its members are widely feared as being among the most formidable foes ever to be met in a college tournament.

During the winter the club meets monthly, probably to practice putting on Bob Paul's parlor rug. When they aren't playing as a team, the members sharpen up their game in informal competition. The most notable of these informal matches took place in Georgia, when Ronnie Quinn scored 68 to beat a man from Washington, D.C. (Ike, if you haven't heard.)

AUTUMN FESTIVAL

Jack relaxes behind the palms.

"It's three o'clock in the morning . . ."

When the Harvest Moon peeps over the roof of Aquinas Hall and the witches and goblins flit through the late Autumn sky, then it is the annual occasion of the Autumn Festival. This year's dance was an overwhelming success. The revelers, over two hundred of them, danced dreamily to the strains of Ralph Stewart's Orchestra in the main floor lounge. For those who called themselves "moondoggers," there were the "gone" strains of Frankie Barone's combo in the Penguin Room. The "long-hair squares" and the "real-gone cats" all agreed that the Autumn Festival was one of the best campus dances of the year.

"See! I told you I was on the Committee!"

Souza syncopates.

"What? No Napkins?"

Hilarious antics at the intermission.

The Farmers' Festival is by far the zaniest event on campus. Sponsored by the Senior Class, it is an occasion for the fracturing of the myth of the "dignified Senior."

The featured guests of this year's event were a flock of sheep. The sole blemish on an otherwise perfect affair was their contemptuous attitude to the proceedings. In all fairness to them, this may be ascribable to the fact that they didn't want to horn in.

Eddie Zack's boys provided the musical accompaniment for that most strenuous of all indoor sports, square dancing. And speaking of "squares," Frank Barone and his boys were featured in the intermission hilarities.

Studied sloppiness is the theme of the Farmers' Festival.

"Caleb" Barone, "Marmaduke" Ascioffa, and "Rastus" Melucci fracture the audience with "C'est si bon."

The B.V.C. claims to be the "most active regional group on campus." A glance at the social calendar proves this to be more than idle propaganda. From amongst its various activities it is difficult to single out one event as being the most important. Certainly one of the highlights is its annual dinner dance, which is attended yearly by a large number of couples, and is, like all the club's activities, a perennial success.

BASEBALL

As the March winds howled on Smith Hill, the 1954 edition of the Friar Baseball Team took wing to the sunny South, preferring to encounter the physical onslaughts of service teams rather than those of the harsh New England Spring.

At Norfolk, the Friars frolicked to a 13-1 victory over the Norfolk Training Station. This game produced a galaxy of stars: Gerry Romberg, who smashed a grand slam homer, Fred O'Neill, and Tom McAleer were the brightest among them.

Again the next day, the Friars sank the Sailors, this time by the smaller margin of 9-3. Howe and McQueeney provided strong support for the fine pitching jobs of Buniva and Drury, who contributed four hits apiece to the impressive Friar total.

At Fort Eustis, the Friars were treated rather inhospitably by a fellow Rhode Islander as the Fort Eustis Wheels rolled to a 7-4 win. Moore, Ryder, and Howe hit often, but not enough to inspire their teammates.

The Friars hit well the following day, but very generous pitching allowed the Southerners to garner an 11-10 victory.

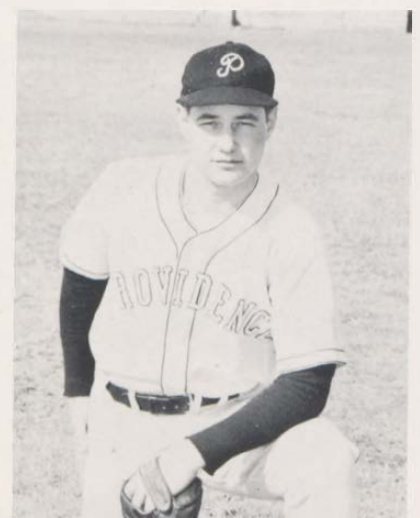

Back in the North, the Friars engaged their traditional rival, Yale, only to lose by the slim margin of 3-2. The Ivy Leaguers barely staved off a desperate ninth-inning rally when Woods,

Gerry Romberg, Captain

Romberg, and Moore gave the Yale fans a bad case of the shakes.

John O'Neill was the whole story in the conquest of Lowell Textile. He allowed but two hits and struck out fifteen. The lads from Lowell were whitewashed 2-0.

The Friars' winning ways were brought to a swift conclusion at Springfield. American International collected eighteen hits to score a 10-4 victory. Three Friar pitchers were of little use in stemming the International tide.

The Boston College Eagles got off to an early lead at Alumni Field, and despite Howe, Ryder, and McQueeney, nursed it throughout the contest. Final score: B.C. 5, P.C. 3.

Ronnie Cote of Holy Cross continued the Jesuitical domination of our boys as he very ungraciously cut them off with four hits and no runs. Fred O'Neill was reached, meanwhile, for four runs. This was one of the best played ball games of the year for the Cross as many hits were cut off by their crisp fielding.

The Rams of R.I.U. were the victims of a reversal of form. This time the Friars were on the throwing end of a four-hitter executed by Tom McAleer. Tom's mates gave him excellent defensive support while they came back with eleven hits for a 7-0 win. Bob Woods, with a 4-4 day, was the most outstanding star in an all-star cast.

At Kingston, the Rams, led by Dave Stenhouse's two-hit pitching, jumped on Fred O'Neill for five big runs. Fielding gems by Art Aloisio and Hank McQueeney were disregarded in the general gloom of the day. Dick Howe and Gerry Romberg were the only Friars to connect for two hits.

Providence returned to the victory side with a 6-0 trouncing of Clark University. Pete Drury pitched his best game, allowing only four hits, and Dave Kelly had a perfect day.

Carl Buniva emerged from the Brown game somewhat of a campus hero when he displayed great clutch pitching to lead his team to a 4-2 triumph. On the other hand, our side took advantage of its many scoring opportunities; Bob Reall, Ed Ryder, and Bobby Woods were our top men with two hits apiece.

Springfield continued its jinx over the boys from P.C. when they went down in a 4-3 contest. O'Neill and McAleer worked well in a game they should not have lost. A theft of home decided the issue. Both Art Aloisio and Gerry Romberg got two hits. Bob Woods furnished more grief for Hal Martin when he was injured and lost for the rest of the season.

The Bruins, bigger and fiercer than ever, struck fear into the hearts of the Friars. P.C. fell apart defensively with Fred O'Neill the victim. The five P.C. errors outnumbered the four hits they squeezed out of Harry Josephson. Providence was severely drubbed 5-0.

Carl Buniva wound up his college career in fine fashion by hurling the Friars to a 2-0 win over Springfield. His two-hit pitching was backed up by the irreproachable support of his teammates. O'Connell was the only man to get more than one hit in this hotly contested battle.

In the final game of the season, the Boston boys exploded on Fred O'Neill in the sixth for four runs, a lead which was defended closely by a strong Boston pitcher. The final score of the game was 7-2.

Looking over the entire season, the high spot of which was the 4-2 victory over Brown. The team's record was seven wins, ten defeats, and no ties. Considering the season's early and very exhausting Southern junket and some very stiff opposition, the boys, who played hard, and Hal Martin, who worked harder, rate a hearty slap on the back.

BASKETBALL

The boarding-house reach, peculiar to Dorm students, is put to good use by Ralph Tedesco.

From the very start, Vin Cuddy's job was a difficult one. The team was young and relatively inexperienced, Captain Kenny Kerr being the only senior. That important element, height, was lacking in the squad as a whole. Furthermore, the first few practice sessions revealed a defensive weakness, and for the past several years, opponents had been stopping our offense by stopping our one reliable scorer. Finally, the schedule included fourteen games in enemy territory as against only twelve at home, a definite psychological handicap.

But the team showed an amazing spirit—a willingness to learn—and the old tutor began to use his magic. To make up for the deficiency in height, Vin infused a spirit of hustle into the men. He quickly set about tightening up the defense, and improved the Friars' rebounding. He developed a variable offense and spread the scoring assignment among several players. At the end of the six weeks of practise, the Cuddy-men looked good and their coach was optimistic.

The season's opener was played against Assumption College at P.C.'s "home away from home," the Mt. Pleasant Gym. The Friars racked up 83 points while holding the men from Worcester to 71. Mike Pascale led the team with 23, while Ted Tedesco and Don Moran each chipped in 17. Kerr played an excellent floor game, while John Ritch turned in some excellent rebounding work.

The Friars showed a tendency to be sporadic and occasionally indecisive, but this was generally considered the result of their inexperience, a condition which, it was felt, would improve with time.

ever, a technical foul assessed to Pascale was enough to carry New York over the hump. They built up a five-point lead which they maintained to the end of the game. Pascale again led the Friar attack with 21 points, while Ritch and Moran contributed 13.

Again in New York, Brooklyn to be exact, the Friars were meted out another defeat, this time by the St. Francis five. The Providence crew was unable to get untracked in the first half and they watched their opponents jump away to a 17-point lead. The Cuddymen rebounded in the second half, but it was a case of too little, too late.

New York became established as a definitely hostile environment as Seton Hall treated their guests very ungraciously. The only glimmer in the dark picture was the fine defensive play of Frank Williams, a freshly promoted substitute. Pascale and Kerr led the Friar scorers with 17 and 14 respectively. New York was a nice place . . . to get away from.

The next game on the schedule was hardly to be classified as a breather. Nationally recognized Holy Cross is never to be taken lightly, and with the team in its present slump, Vin had good reason to fear a debacle. The embarrass-

Taking to the road, the team met and bowed to St. Anselm's by a 94-82 score in a thrilling and well-played game. The Hawks used their superior height to advantage, wearing down our rebounders. The scoring among the Friars was evenly divided as Ritch scored 18, and Pascale, Moran, and Kerr netted 16 each.

The New York Athletic Club was the next team on the schedule. After jumping to a 16-15 lead in the first period, the Cuddymen experienced a rough second quarter and fell irretrievably behind. Roaring back with a vengeance, Providence whittled the lead down to two points with only two minutes left in the game. How-ing result of the engagement was 101-47. Awed and beaten from the start, the P.C. five floundered through their worst game of the season to date. Not one man hit double figures.

Adelphi was the next stop on the itinerary. The game was a see-saw affair and the Friars were in the running until the last five minutes, when Adelphi pulled ahead to win 77-71. John Ritch with 24, Pascale with 15, and Kerr with 13 again monopolized the Friar scoring honors.

Greedy fingers grope for the elusive spheroid.

"Look, fellows! There it is!"

The protracted losing streak was snapped with a 77-71 victory over Rensselaer Polytechnical Institute. Ken Kerr was the steadying influence on the team, while Moran scored 19, and Pascale 17 to lead the scorers. Big John Ritch sprained his ankle early in the second half, but managed to score ten points before his departure.

The P.C. quintet could not stand prosperity, dropping their next one to American International College, 82-70. Missing their rebounder, Ritch, who was still out because of the ankle injury, the Friars stayed within striking distance but could never overhaul A.I.C. Pascale and Moran paced the attack, while Grady, in his first starting assignment, took up some of the slack caused by Ritch's injury with a 14-point effort.

The bathos of the season had not been reached yet. Boston College smashed P.C. in a particularly one-sided ball game. Pascale scored 20 points, but it took the entire Friar quintet to match that total in the 65-40 loss.

The team picked itself up off the floor, and played a driving, scrambling game against Springfield to win 56-54. John Ritch climaxed the electrifying contest with a game-winning hook from the corner with two seconds remaining. Grady, Collamore, Ritch, and Willoughby did fine rebounding work. With the exception of Pascale, who scored 25, the Friar scoring was well divided.

For a Dorm Weekend crowd, the Providence boys turned in a winning effort over their arch-rivals, Brown. It was a close game and the Friars won it only by virtue of their hustle and determination to win. Kerr fouled out with three minutes remaining in the game and he was replaced by the only substitute of the evening, Don Moran. It was Moran who, along with Williams, converted the foul shots which secured the victory. The victory was a team win, Ritch, Kerr, Tedesco, and Williams all being indispensable to the cause.

The winning streak was kept alive at the expense of Merrimack College. After a close first half, the Friars frolicked to a 79-56 victory. Again, the most significant thing about the victory was the fact that it was a solid team performance. Williams continued to captivate the imagination of the gallery while Pascale was tops in scoring.

In their next effort, the Cuddymen topped Fairfield University, 65-57, for their fourth straight win. Ken Kerr and Ritch had undisputed control of the backboards, while Tedesco and Pascale took care of the offensive end. Again Coach Cuddy stuck to a winning combination and used only seven players in the contest.

For the first time in three years, the Rhode Island Rams were able to humble the Friars on a Providence court. Falling off in the quality of their play, Kerr and Co. allowed the Rams more than their share of the rebounds; meanwhile, the invaders were bottling up our scorers, notably in the second half.

That ended up, as far as our coverage of it is concerned, an undeniably rough season. But it is good to remember that it is a young team, and they improved discernibly as the season progressed. If one factor must be singled out, it was their ability to play as a unit that was responsible for the improvement.

Then too, Teddy Tedesco, who had been so sensational in his sophomore year, was in a scoring slump the better part of the season and only recently began to show his old form. The newcomers, Pascale, Williams, and Ritch, needed only the seasoning of actual competition to reach a winning stride.

Next year, the Friars will be playing in the new gym, and it is hoped that they will be able to christen it with many more victories.

TRACK

Under the superb direction of Harry Coates, "the world's greatest track coach," the indoor track team underwent a period of rigorous training, for which the old master is renowned. By the time January 15 rolled around, the boys were in fine condition. On that date, the season began at Boston with the K. of C. meet. The Friars were hampered by bad luck, one member of the relay team slipping off the boards while making a game effort to pass his opponent. P.C. finished third, behind Yale and M.I.T.

Competing at Washington, D. C., the Friar two-mile relay team finished first, defeating St. Joseph's, Roanoke, and Albright. The squad, composed of Dean Slocum, Bernie Dandy, Joe Madden, and Gerry Farley, led all the way, winning their event for the second year in a row.

In Boston once again, the team met Northeastern and was defeated in eight out of ten events. P.C.'s only victories were those by Boucher, who ran the two-mile, and Fahey, whose broad jump of 21' 1 1/8" won that contest. Tom Lacey of the Huskies was the only double winner of the day, as he took the mile and the hundred-yard dash. The final score was Northeastern 69, Providence College 30.

Events scheduled to take place after this writing are the annual New England A.A.U. indoor track and field championship, in which P.C. has entered twenty-seven men, a meet with the University of Massachusetts, another, sponsored by the I.C. 4-A, and the final K. of C. meet in New York.

One of the season's highlights, as far as track enthusiasts are concerned, was the naming of Harry Cotes to the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics' Hall of Fame, an award he has well earned by his achievements at Seton Hall, Villanova and P.C.

The Friars' cross-country team cockily took on as their first rivals the mighty, well-conditioned West Point Cadets, and were punished for their presumption by a solid 20-38 thumping. Rod Boucher, who took third place, was the only Friar to finish in the money.

The need for conditioning was emphasized, and after two weeks of gruelling roadwork, the Friars took the track against Manhattan, and swept on to a 23-32 win. Boucher and Wallack ran one-two, while the Friars took five of the first seven places.

After resounding defeats at the hands of U.R.I. and Harvard, the Coatesmen garnered three straight wins against B.U., Holy Cross, and Brown University. This last was most satisfying as eight Friars crossed the finish line ahead of the first Bruin.

In the New Englands, the Friars, who especially wanted to win this big one, were only able to finish third. It was a severe disappointment for the weary harriers.

In retrospect, Sophomore Rod Boucher was the bread-and-butter man of the squad. In every meet, he was at least the first Providence man to reach the tape. The supporting cast included the hard-working Captain, Bernie Dandley, Pete Wallack, Joe Madden, Gerry Farley, Mike McDonough, Dick Skalko, and Ed Nelson.

The freshmen too deserve mention. Spearheaded by Billy Hanlon, they took second in the New Englands, indicating that they will have to be reckoned with in the future. HOCKEY

At the time, it seemed like a polite, banquet-type compliment, nice to hear but not to be taken seriously. It was expressed by Ed Jeremiah, Dartmouth's hockey coach, at an athletic dinner sponsored by the Friars' Club in April of '53. Ed guaranteed that his former protege, Dick Rondeau, would turn out a big-time team within a few years. This was said when hockey at Providence College was but a year old. Then some of us recalled what another hockey coach, R.P.I.'s Ned Harkness, had said in reference to P.C.'s pucksters at the Coaches' Convention in Boston: "I never saw a young hockey club fight so hard and courageously as those kids from Providence College." We began to wonder.

The next season we watched closely, and the more we saw, the surer we were that Messrs. Jeremiah and Harkness had not been talking through their hats. Considering their lack of experience and the gargantuan-like opposition, the P.C. six turned in a very creditable performance.

Then Father Schneider announced that this had been the last time hockey would be played on an informal basis at the College. We had received an invitation to join a new loop which was being formed. Next year, the Friars would be of Varsity status.

The 1954 season finally arrived. The team had visions of fighting its way to the top bracket of New England hockey circles. The outlook was bright with the return of virtually the entire squad and the addition of Tom Army, a P.C. mainstay who had returned from the service.

Coach Rondeau worked his men hard; they practised every day for four weeks without a letup. He took them to Boston where they engaged in a preseason scrimmage with B.U. with gratifying results. Dick was determined to justify his former boss' confidence in him.

The justification was to come sooner than anyone expected, for the season's opener proved that our skaters could handle themselves with the powerful teams in the area. The perennially powerful B.C. six really had to extend themselves to win. The final score was 4-2, and the fourth goal was scored when Rondeau put six men on the ice in an attempt to tie the score. Praise for the Rondeau men was found in all the Boston papers, and one sportswriter called them "the finest small-college hockey team in New England."

There was, however, a dismal foreboding of future difficulties in the afterglow of the victory. Goalie Phil Crawford was obliged to turn away 33 shots which had infiltrated the Friar defense. We had an Achilles heel.

The first victory for a Varsity P.C. hockey team came the following night as the Friars downed Tufts, 9-7. Those seven points registered by Tufts were another indication of our team's defensive weakness. But it was offset by the second line of Monahan, Gorman, and Reall who scored five goals. McCrink upheld the reputation of the first line with one goal and two assists.

Just before the Christmas recess, the Friars were due to engage their intra-city rival, Brown. Their morale was high as they entered the contest, and even higher when they emerged from it with a 5-2 win, an amazing upset. It was a wild and woolly first period that clinched it. Before six minutes had elapsed, Reall and Sweeney scored two goals within thirteen seconds of each other. Then McDonough followed up with one to make it 3-0. The Bears, after a single goal in the first period, were held scoreless until 19:04 of the third, seconds before the final buzzer. Crawford's thirteen saves in the second demoralized the Bruins.

The glow of this victory was snuffed out by one Mr. Cleary, a busy little center from Harvard. His six goals alone were sufficient to humiliate the Rondeau men, while he assisted in two others, showing the way through the porous Providence defenses. Somehow, there were two Crimson goals in which he was not involved. Friar scorers were limited to three goals in the second period. When they left Boston Garden that night, the boys were a dejected group.

The next game was with Tufts, and the Jumboes aimed their attack directly at our vulnerable heel, slipping twelve goals by our red-faced defenders. Our men reciprocated by scoring heavily themselves, but their eleven points were not enough to avert a one-point reverse.

The piercing pain which such a loss always inflicts upon a team was felt again by the pucksters in their next game, played against Yale just after the Christmas recess. The Friars jumped to a first-period lead on the strength of Ed Monahan's two goals and one more contributed by McCrink and Sweeney, but from then on, only Gorman could penetrate the Yale defenses. Monick scored three goals, two of them unassisted, to clinch it for the men from New Haven.

The same Ivy League parsimony was exhibited at Princeton. The Friars had nothing to show for the night's exertions save one solitary goal and injured pride. Both teams were scoreless in the hard-fought first period, though our men had eleven tries at goalie Van Alstyne and four of the Tigers drew penalties in their anxiety to win. The Tigers came roaring back in the second period with six goals, while the best the Friars could do was to avert a shutout as McDonough tallied on a pass from Army.

Back on home ice, the Friars strutted before the home folk, racking up a 7-1 win over Northeastern. The ever-improving Friar defense and the fine goal-tending of Crawford throttled the Northeastern offense. Ed Monahan and Tom Army with two goals each were the home town heroes that night.

After an exam-engendered hiatus, the Friars journeyed to Springfield for a game with A.I.C. Before a minute had elapsed, Army had put the team out in front with an assist from McCrink. The Friars went on to score five more times, while restricting the opposition to one goal per period. The combination of McDonough, Monahan, and Reall led the attack.

The return engagement with the Bruins was highly embarrassing to the Friars. The vengeful Ivy Leaguers unleashed a savage attack which resulted in 10 goals. Keefe and Tutless were the foulest villains of them all, at least according to the Providence College viewpoint, scoring three goals each and assisting in two. Rod Gorman and Captain Bob Reall did their best to spark the team in a hopeless cause.

Three nights later, P.C. got back into the winning column at the expense of Springfield. In the middle of the first period, after Ed Turcotte scored, assisted by Hobin and Ferry, the whole team caught fire, netting three more in the next three minutes. Monahan, who scored five goals and assisted in a sixth, was easily the top performer of the night. In the Friar cage for his first full game, Ed Hornstein turned in a splendid effort.

The final game of the home season saw Providence taking the ice against Norwich. The visitors, imposing on our hospitality, penetrated our defense to score two in a row. But the Friars came back fighting, and Rod Gorman's goal was followed up by Bernie McCrink's to even it off. From then on, it was Providence all the way, as the Rondeaumen racked up three more, while Norwich was able only to score once in the last period. Army, Sweeney, McCrink, Monahan, Gorman, and Reall all earned laurels for their fine playing, while Hornstein turned in another top performance as goalie.

This victory gave the team a 6-6 record for the season against some of the strongest opposition in the East. Two of these defeats were by a single point, and could easily have gone the other way. The Friars scored heavily in all but one game, and as the season wore on, the defense showed a continual improvement. The team Rondeau turned out this year has earned the lavish praise of the fans and the respect of its opponents.

The outlook for next year is one of greatest optimism. Vacancies created by the graduation of Reall, McAleer, and Reilly will be filled by several former New England schoolboy hockey-ists from the presently undefeated Freshmen. The prediction is that they will surpass the amazing achievements of this year's team.

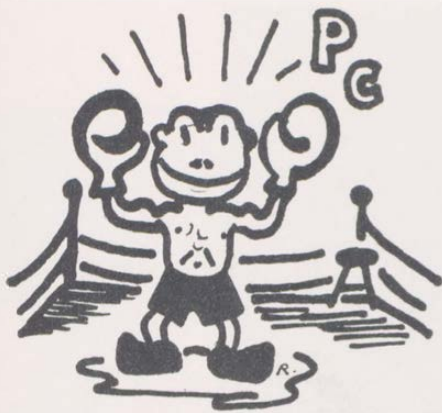

It has become increasingly clear that Dick Rondeau has, in the space of a few short years, made Providence College a first-rate hockey power. All eyes in this hockey-conscious area are turned to him.

BOXING

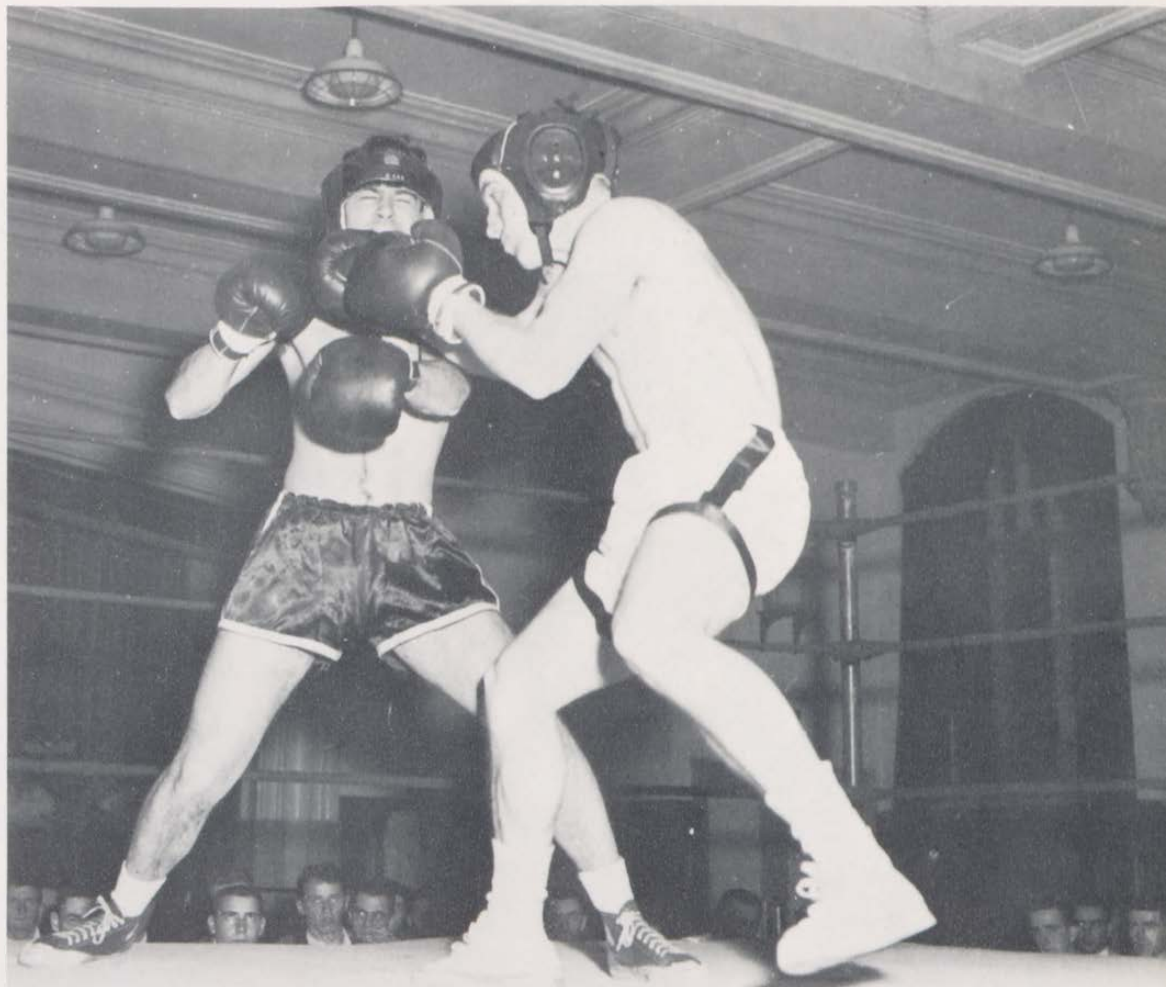

Several times each Spring, the semi-professional gamblers from the student lounge are seen to migrate in a body to the gym of Harkins Hall, where playing cards and poker chips are exchanged for notebooks and pencils, and our card sharks become cigar-chewing bookies. The occasions of these mass migrations are the boxing bouts sponsored by the Monogram Club. The bouts provide P.C.'s pugilists with a legal outlet for the pent-up wrath incurred by three quarters of concentrated study.

Decapitated by a thudding right.

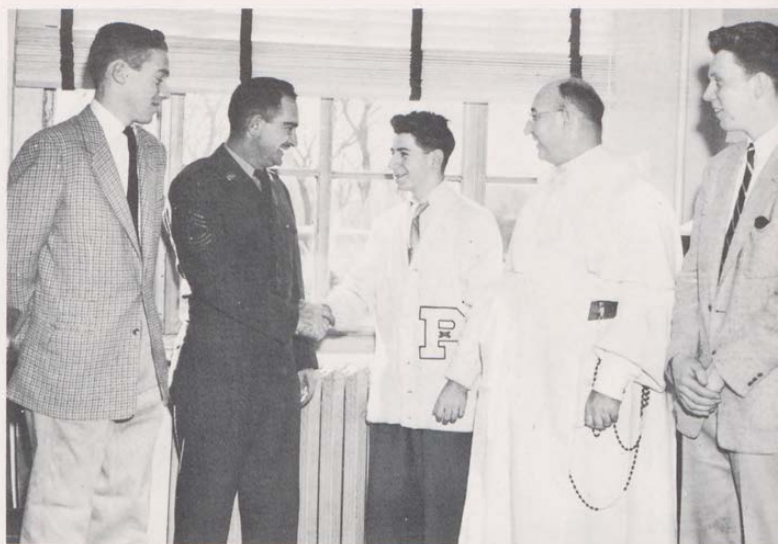

"The back of me hand to you!"

RIFLE TEAM

The Providence College Varsity Rifle Team, coached by the very capable Sgt. Oliver V. Allen, once again finished a truly fine season. Although the team originated but four years ago with the coming of the R.O.T.C. to Providence College, they have already skyrocketed to national prominence. The first year saw a disorganized group of aspiring marksmen beaten in every encounter. The following two seasons they floundered about, losing some, winning others.

With the dawn of last season, however, they began blasting former antagonists such as Brown, Harvard, Boston College, and Yale. Regular practice, new equipment, and new talent were mainly responsible for this vast improvement. The incentive of a brand-new home in the Gymnasium should prove to be quite a determining factor in the performance of next year's team.

Guy greets the new Rifle Coach.

The marksmen zero in.

M/Sgt. Oliver Allen,
Coach.

Guy LaBrosse, Cap-

First Row, left to right: G. Foley, M/Sgt. G. Lawson, G. LaBrosse, Captain; 1st Sgt. O. Allen, Coach; J. Asbury, J. Janitz, J. Stapleton. Second Row: L. Desormeaux, G. Raymond, W. Parkinson, J. Morrissey, P. Soucy, R. Mazzotta, A. Plunkett.

Firing in the New England Rifle League this year, the nimrods won themselves a high and honored perch in the standings. Here is the rugged schedule of the 1955 P.C. team:

Jan. 7	Trinity College	Postal
Jan. 14	Worcester Poly	Away
Jan. 28	Boston College	Postal
Feb. 4	Yale and Brown	Home
Feb. 8	Harvard	Postal
Feb. 12	B.U. and Conn.	Away
Feb. 19	R.I.U.	Away
Feb. 26	Coast Guard	Home
Mar. 5	N.E. Sectionals	Boston
Mar. 12	Brown and R.I.U.	Providence

Stape looks incredulous. He missed the target altogether!

"You should see me when I shoot with my eyes open!"

Students from the various concentrations are afforded an opportunity to attain some measure of athletic recognition by displaying their prowess in the intramural leagues. Those who have envisioned themselves staring on the gridiron, heroes of cheering thousands, can transpose their fanciful exploits into reality by joining either of two hard-fighting loops.

Champions in their respective leagues were the Junior and Senior Arts teams. The Seniors, after polishing off their younger colleagues in the playoffs, went on to whip Brown in the annual Finger Bowl contest at Hendricken Field where the loudest of the cheering fans was Director Pete Louthis.

So fast a league is this, that action cannot be accurately recorded by the camera's lens.

Two spectators salute Ryan's fine effort.

A publicity-conscious gridder is oblivious of the flying tackle being leveled at him.

INTRAMURAL FOOTBALL

INTRAMURAL BASKETBALL

Jim tries to break up the nifty bit of prestidigitiation.

Intramural basketball is played in four leagues. For the Dorm students, there are the National and American circuits, while the day-hops have organized a morning and afternoon league.

First place in the 11:30 Dayhop loop was clinched by the Freshman Social Science team when it edged out Soph Business in a rubber match. Senior Social Science was the winner in the 12:30 league, while the Soph Chemistry took second honors. Playoffs scheduled after this writing determined which one of the teams would represent the College against Brown in the annual City Championship game.

The toss, the tap, and the excitement starts.

The defense is caught napping . . . a sure two-pointer.

DORM-LEAGUE BASKETBALL

Among the lads from Aquinas, the race was hot and heavy. Pre-tourney favorites in the National League were the Hartford Hilltoppers, four of their starters being among the top ten scorers. It was this team which handed the only setback to another strong contender, Guzman Hall. The highest individual scorer was Guzman Hall's Joe Lion who averaged 22.1 points per game.

On the other side of the fence, the Sophomore Duces piled up an 8-0 record in the American. In this loop, Don Gleason and Joe Ferriter were on top with averages of 27.6 and 24.8 points respectively.

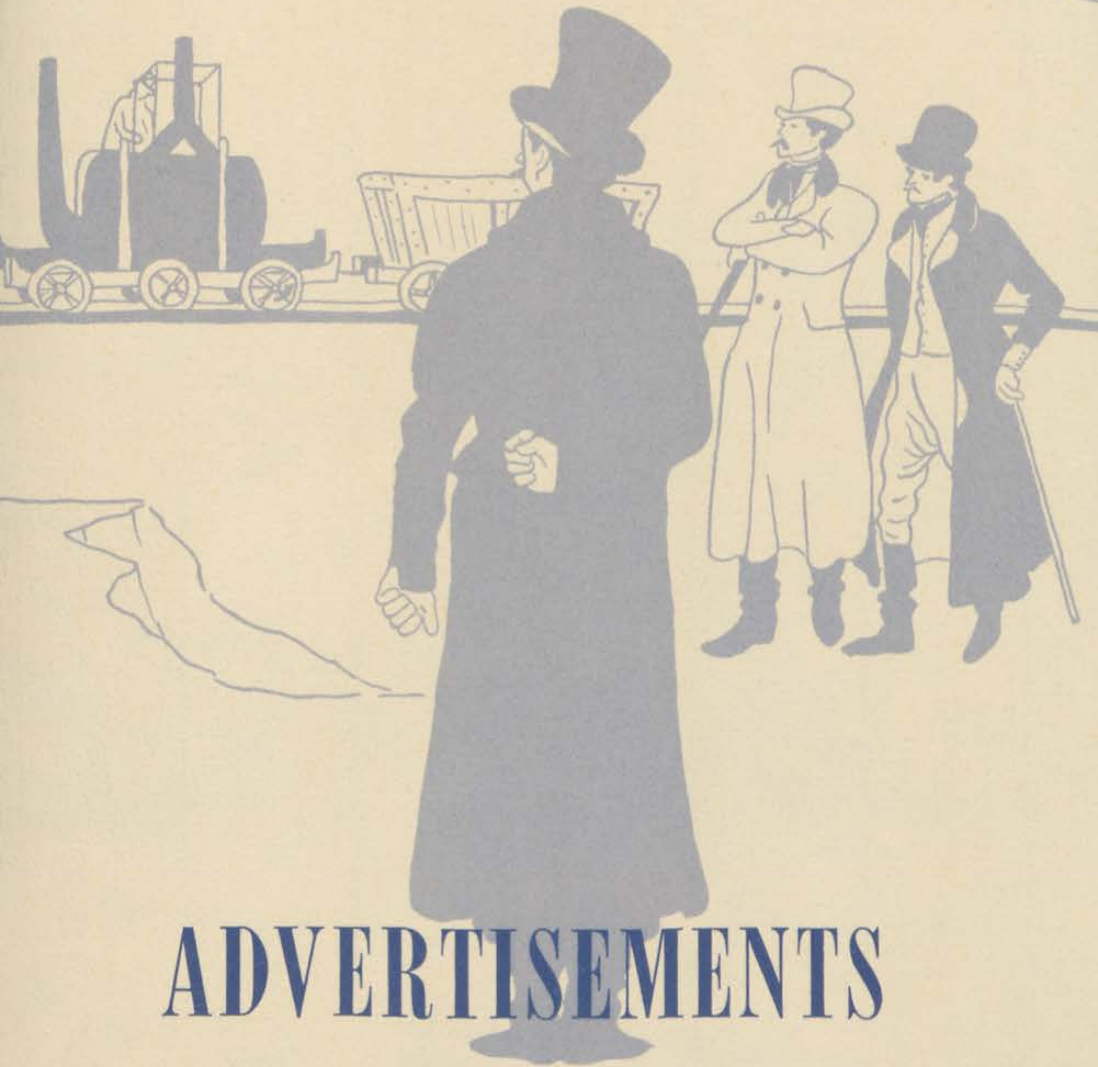

Two equally determined contestants.

There won't be no rebound, Bob

Well, the games do get a little rough at times.

CORBY'S

The cadence of our years
Is the clashing of the gears
In the shrill cacophony
Of this metallic century . . .
(the voracious giant,
commerce,
must be sated. Our economy with blatant spiel hawks its wares as noisily as they were produced;
but these decibels are welcome
ones for they bespeak prosperity)
The Age of Steel!
Never so real
The fondest hopes of man,
Who knows no denial:
Cities skyward spiral
As far as the eye can scan . . .
The seas, the skies, now man's domain . . .
The forces of nature under rein . . .
All this in our life's span.
The fish-monger
Or the plowman
Of the remote historic day
Could only say
As well we ought:
What hath God wrought?

THE OFFER

To keep you in contact with your classmates;
To make new friends among men of similar backgrounds
Who are, or will be, leaders in all walks of life;
To give you the opportunity to help
In furthering the cause of higher education;
To cooperate with others for common ends
And enjoy the stimulation of loyal comradeship;
To feel behind you in whatever task you undertake
The resources of the College and all its far-flung Alumni;
To continue your development in the practical application
Of the basic ideas of St. Thomas Aquinas—
This is the offer of your Alumni Association.

PROGRESS FUND OFFICE

TO THE SENIORS

Heartiest Congratulations on your Commencement! May the future for each of you be favored with continued success and abundant happiness.

TO ALL THE STUDENTS

I wish publicly to express profound gratitude for the generous cooperation of the entire student body which made our Progress Fund so successful. Because of your efforts, the benefits which you have enjoyed as students will be available in even greater measure to those who come after you.

In the confusion invariably attendant upon the production of a yearbook, it is not always possible to express one's gratitude immediately and properly to benefactors. Nevertheless, we are conscious of the vital part many people have played in the production of the 1955 VERITAS. To them we are sincerely grateful.
