Pucksters Finish Playoffs; Best Record in the U.S.A.

Assistant Director, Public Information*

"Hockey Fever" spread through the Providence College campus during March as the men's hockey team played in both the ECAC and NCAA playoffs, advancing all the way to the NCAA "Final Four" tournament held in Grand Forks, North Dakota.

The team began its quest for a national title against Yale in two ECAC quarterfinal games, held at Schneider Arena on March 4 and 5. In the first game, goals by senior co-captain Mike Bolstad and freshman Artie Yeomelakis, led the Friars to a 2-1 victory over the Bulldogs. On Saturday, the team repeated its performance of the previous evening, with goals by senior co-captain Steve Anderson and sophomore Paul Guay. That 2-1 victory advanced PC into the ECAC semifinal/final series held at the Boston Garden on March 11 and 12. The one bleak spot of the Yale series came in the first game, when senior co-captain Mike Bolstad suffered a season-ending knee injury.

Art Building Named Hunt-Cavanagh Hall

More than 100 people gathered in the art gallery on May 16, marking the dedication of the art building in honor of the late Rev. Lawrence M. Hunt, O.P., founder and former chairman of the department of art and art history, and Mr. John F. Cavanagh, Jr., liturgical artist and founder of the world's largest altar bread manufacturing company.

"Hunt-Cavanagh Hall," located on the former Chapin Hospital property which the college acquired in 1974, houses studios for design, painting, printmaking, drawing, photography and sculpture, as well as a main gallery.

Fr. Hunt, a native of Richmond, VA, was graduated from the Catholic University of America in Washington, D.C., where he earned his doctorate in architecture in 1928. Ordained a Dominican priest in 1935, he joined the PC faculty the following year as professor of art and mathematics.

Through Fr. Hunt's continuous efforts, the department of art and art history was founded in 1970. He served as first chairman of the department, a position he held until 1978. Fr. Hunt continued to serve the department as assistant chairman and professor of art history, until the time of his death in July, 1980.

John F. Cavanagh, Jr., a Providence native and a 1935 alumnus of the college, has used his talents as a liturgical artist to design religious artifacts for churches and chapels throughout the country. He completed post graduate studies at Rhode Island School of Design and worked as a designer and draftsman for Gorham Manufacturing Company.

During World War II he formed Cavanagh Co., religious goods manufacturing firm now located in Greenville, RI. As the company grew, it became internationally recognized as the largest manufacturer of altar bread.

UPDATE

Loyalty Fund Closes In On Goal

As the closing date of June 30th approaches, the 82-83 Loyalty Fund is pushing ever closer to its goal of $850,000.00. The most recent status report of May 5th shows the Fund yielding 9,311 commitments totalling 852,662 in pledges, of which $671,472 has been realized in cash. At the same time last year, the 81-82 Fund drive had amassed 8,584 pledges totalling $781,861 in pledges and $616,658 paid on the pledges received.

Campaign Chairman, Maurice C. Paradis '58, was both delighted and cautiously optimistic over the results to-date indicating, "though our progress is encouraging, the final weeks of the 82-83 Fund will be crucial both to the overall success of the Fund and in providing the dollars PC needs to continue its tremendous work."

Chairman Paradis also noted his great pleasure in the success of the class solicitation phase of the Loyalty Fund. "I'm truly gratified by the increase in obtaining 1,300 pledges totalling $58,729.00 which was an increase of 210 pledges and $14,287.00 over last year's class phonathons. Hopefully, the dedication and enthusiasm of our class volunteers will carry over to the members of our alumni and college family and our final solicitation letter and payment reminder mailing will yield a greater response than ever before."

Vice-President for Development Bill Nero also voiced his pleasure in the results to-date, noting "though there is still much to be accomplished before our June 30th closing date, our Fund's progress is on target, our goal is in sight and I'm confident our loyal alumni, faculty and staff, parents and friends will once again come through with the necessary gifts and payments in pledges to make our 82-83 Fund a rousing success."

Bill was also complimentary of the Fund's volunteers stating "the dedication and efforts of our Fund leaders and volunteers at every level - class, regional, and special gifts - continue to improve each year. They are among the major reasons why our annual fund is so successful and why Providence is one of the few colleges to be a finalist in the national CASE awards competition-consecutively each year-since 1970.

Since only actual payments received by June 30th can be included in the 82-83 Fund Report, pledgors are once again encouraged to complete their pledges as soon as possible.

Tuition Increase

College President Thomas R. Peterson, O.P., has announced a tuition increase of $550 and a $250 increase for room and board, effective in September.

These increases bring the yearly tuition rate to $5,828 and the total cost of room and board to $3,350.

In a letter to the student body, Fr. Peterson explained that in order to keep tuition costs down, a budget panel comprised of representatives of the administration, faculty and student body, trimmed over three million dollars from the original 1983-84 budget requests.

To help offset the recent cuts in government spending for education, Fr. Peterson noted that the college's funding for next year's student financial aid has been increased above the amount of last year's allocation. He emphasized that "the college will continue to make every effort to provide as much financial assistance as possible to our students."

history, presided over the ceremony, and Rev. Thomas D. Rover, O.P., associate professor of religious studies, gave the dedication address.

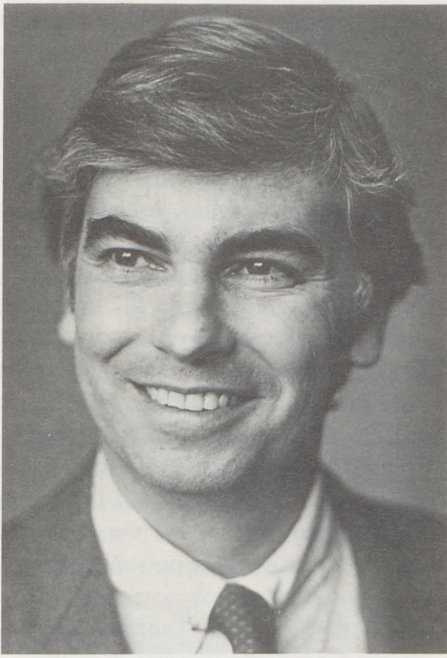

Reflecting upon the value of the visual arts in a liberal arts college, Fr. Rover stated, "Each age sketches its own image, molds its own plastic forms, throws up its own temples and fortresses and villas and public buildings. Each age traces its own values and dreams on the walls of caves or with fingers of stone and steel against the sky-line of a great city. Each age constructs its own time-capsule, stuffing it with artifacts fine or useful, for all the world to see and for all time, provided the work endures.

"To know these artifacts is to know the age that shaped them . . . and no finer instrument exists for enlarging the mind than the succession of visual images that enable us to traverse a world different in shape and purpose, older in time than the world we live in.

"As for the world we live in," he continued, "the task of an art department is to inspire and guide the student toward the work of stuffing our own time-capsule with artifacts of our own making. Thus the two-fold power and dignity of this enterprise: the task and the privilege of discerning the past, plus the task and the privilege of imaging the present. And we know how the mature artist unifies these two impulses as he learns from the past while bringing forth his own vision of the world around him.

"Between the unseen beauty of God and the as-yet-unfinished beauty of things stands the artist. Brush or hammer in hand, or bent over his wheel, or peering through the exposing lens he tries to capture one shape, one shadow, and fix it against the wall, adding to the beauty of things the beauty of the work as a way of imitating the beauty of God," Fr. Rover concluded.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the adjoining printmaking studio.

Sen. Christopher Dodd '66 Address Graduates

United States Senator Christopher J. Dodd (D-CT) delivered the principal address and received an honorary Doctor of Laws degree at Providence College's 65th commencement exercises held on May 23 at the Providence Civic Center. A 1966 alumnus of the college, Dodd served three terms as Democratic congressman from Norwich, CT, before winning his current seat in 1980.

A total of 803 undergraduates received baccalaureates, while there were 107 degrees for graduates of the School of Continuing Education and 148 graduate degree recipients.

In addition to Senator Dodd, honorary degrees were conferred upon:

- Boston Red Sox star Carl Yastrzemski, who is currently in his 23rd and final season and is the only American league player ever with more than 400 home runs and 3,000 hits. The Red Sox captain received an honorary Doctor of Physical Education degree.
- Max Alperin, community leader, philanthropist, and retired president of Brewster Industries Corporation, Doctor of Humanitarian Service;
- Most Reverend James Aloysius Hickey, Archbishop of Washington, D.C. and chancellor of the Catholic University of America, Doctor of Religious Education;
- Daniel P. Nugent, president and chief executive officer of ITT Grinnell Corporation, Doctor of Humane Letters;
- Kenneth R. Walker, '57, associate professor of education at Rhode Island College and nationally-known schoolboy basketball referee, Doctor of Social Science.

Mal Brown Club Bestows Annual Recognition Awards

About 150 people attended the Mal Brown Club's annual awards banquet held on April 30 in Raymond Hall Dining Room.

This year, the recipient of the organization's highest accolade, the "Mal Brown Award," was Edward F. Donnelly, Sr., a member of the Class of 1932. Donnelly, an active member of the PC Alumni Association since his graduation, has served on the organization's executive boards at both the national and local levels.

Prior to his retirement, the Providence resident served as teacher, counselor, principal and supervisor in the Providence Public School System. He also served as a member of the graduate school faculties at PC, URI, and RIC. The past president of a number of state educational societies, Donnelly is currently a member of the Knights of Columbus.

Another member of the Class of 1932, Bernard J. Buonanno, was honored with the "Dr. William McDonnell Award". The Award, named in honor of the late Dr. William McDonnell '36, is presented annually to those individuals who give of themselves to further the cause of Providence College.

While being very active in alumni affairs at PC, Buonanno also served for 38 years in the Providence Public School System as teacher, counselor, assistant principal, principal, supervisor, director of guidance and placement, and assistant superintendent for pupil personnel services.

The "Very Reverend Vincent C. Dore, O.P., Award" was presented to the Reverend Thomas H. McBrien, O.P., for his continued contributions and service to the College. Since he joined the PC faculty in 1949, Father McBrien has served as chaplain, assistant to the vice president for development, and since 1974, as dean of undergraduate studies.

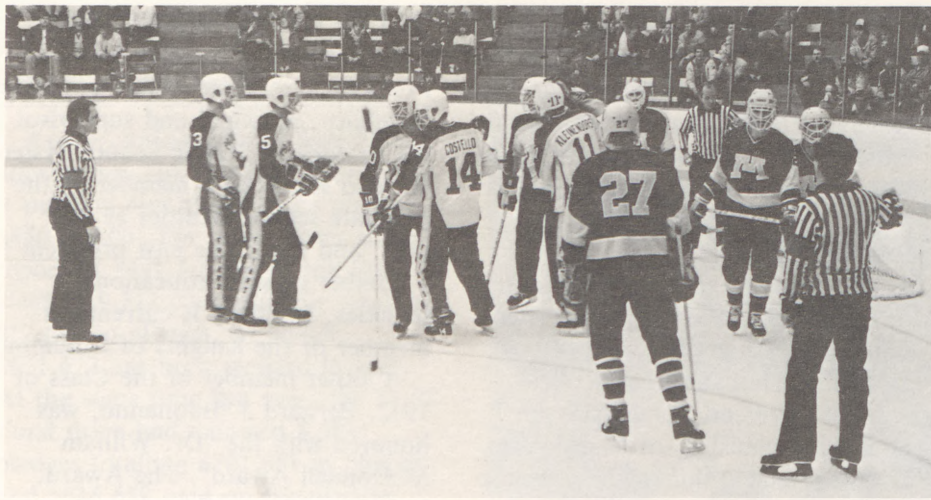

A native of Attleboro, MA and a member of the Class of 1941, Father McBrien will celebrate his 35th anniversary as a Dominican priest in June.

Also honored were senior student-athletes, Judith H. VanSchelt and Brian J. Davies. VanSchelt, a resident of Windsor Locks, CT, was given the "Helen Bert Award" in recognition of her academic excellence while participating as a varsity athlete on both the softball and field hockey teams.

Davies, a resident of Manhasset, NY and a member of the lacrosse team, was presented the "Joseph V. MacAndrew Award". It is given each year to the male senior varsity athlete with the highest academic average.

Hockey

For their ECAC semifinal game, the Friars were pitted against the Saints of St. Lawrence University. With only 26 seconds ticked off the opening clock, senior co-captain Kurt Kleinendorst slid the puck past St. Lawrence's goaltender Gray Weicker, for what turned out to be the game-winning goal. For the next 59 minutes and 34 seconds, neither team could get the puck in the net, leaving PC with the first 1-0 victory in the history of the ECAC tournament and a chance to play Harvard for the ECAC crown. Credit for the win, however, actually goes to junior goaltender Mario Proulx who finished the game with a remarkable 44 saves.

On Saturday evening, Friar fans packed the Garden as they had the night before, hoping for a repeat of their team's 1981 triumph. For the first twenty minutes, both teams went scoreless.

Then, in the second period, Harvard took advantage of a power play after senior co-captain Randy Velischek was called for holding at 5:16. With only four seconds left on Velischek's penalty, the Crimson's Ken Code slid the puck past goaltender Mario Proulx for a 1-0 lead. Not giving in, the Friars came back and tied the game as Randy Velischek turned the tables on Harvard and scored a power play goal of his own at 17:30, ending the period in a one-all tie. The Friars' offense, which had been in neutral for the entire weekend, collapsed in the third period. Harvard came on the ice and scored three unanswered goals, the last one coming at 19:12 on an empty Providence net. The defeat was an especially disappointing one, since Harvard was the same team that had spoiled PC's number one ranking in the college polls during February.

In the week following the ECAC playoffs, things again looked up for the Friars as they were invited, for the second time in three years, to play in the NCAA Division I Collegiate Hockey Playoffs, and were given the home ice advantage for their quarterfinal match-up against the University of Minnesota at Duluth. The games, played on March 18 and 19, were carried on television by the local CBS affiliate, WLNE-TV, Channel 6.

In the opening game of the "total goals" series, PC took advantage of costly Minnesota-Duluth mistakes, scoring three power play goals on route to a 7-3 thrashing of the visiting Bulldogs. The Friars started off slow, as the first period ended with a UMD lead of 3-2 that included Friar power play goals by Kurt Kleinendorst and junior Gates Orlando. Then, in the second period, things got rolling for PC, as Randy Velischek tied the game with a power play goal at 1:06, followed by teammate Kurt Kleinendorst who added two more goals for a hat-trick, as the period ended with a 5-3 PC lead. In the third period, sophomore defenseman Peter Taglianetti and sophomore forward Dave Wilkie added two more insurance goals, for the final 7-3 tally.

On Saturday evening, the Friars' effectively had a 4-0 lead going into the game because of the "total goals" set up of the series. In the first period, PC again capitalized on UMD mistakes as Kurt Kleinendorst scored a power play goal at 6:08 of the period. Gates Orlando, who had been recovering from a shoulder injury suffered late in the regular season, came back and scored at 7:30, giving PC a 2-0 lead. Before the period ended, Minnesota-Duluth's Gregg Moore returned the power play advantage to UMD with a goal at 15:22, following a call for tripping against senior Jim Rushin. The only goal of the second period came at 14:25, when senior co-captain Steve Anderson, playing shorthanded, scored on a break away for what turned out to be the game winning goal. A third period power play goal by UMD's Tom Kurvers came too late as the Friars won the game 3-2, for a series winning total of 10 goals. The victory, which sent Schneider Arena into a frenzy, advanced the team to the NCAA "Final Four" for the first time in 19 years.

Immediately following that game, Grand Forks, North Dakota, became household words on the PC campus as maps were pulled out from everywhere to find out "where the heck is Grand Forks?" The answer was found all too soon as those who rushed to transport both the team and its fans discovered it was in the middle of nowhere. However, through the diligence of some very hard-working people - John Marinatto, Bob Poll, Fr. John Peterson, Joe Solomon '84 and others - PC was able to send about 200 people to "nowhere". Two busloads of students, parents and friends left the campus on Tuesday evening for an amazing 38-hour bus ride to Grand Forks. (The team had flown out on Monday to practice for their Thursday night match-up with the University of Wisconsin.) A few others flew out on Thursday to complete the Friar entourage.

Thus, the stage was set for the smallest (enrollment 3500) and fourth seeded school in the tournament to take on the largest (enrollment

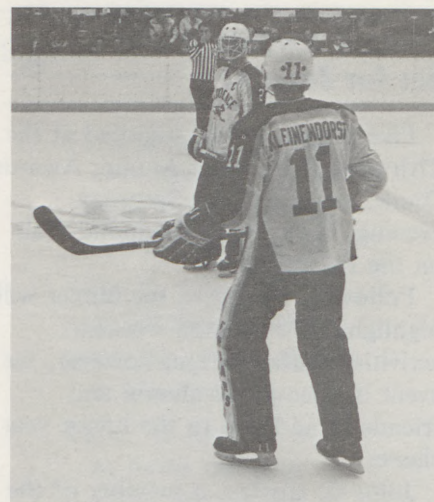

Minnesota's new "North Star"

50,000) and top-seeded school in the tournament, before 5,500 screaming fans. The game, which was televised in the Providence area by Channel 6, started off slowly as neither team could get the puck in the net for the first twenty minutes of play. Then, in the opening minute of the second period, Wisconsin's Paul Houck, on a power play, slid one past goaltender Mario Proulx for a 1-0 Badger lead. Later during the period, Kurt Kleinendorst broke away on Badger goaltender Marc Behrend, but his shot went wide, leaving the score at 1-0, where it remained until the final minute of play. Hoping to tie the game, Coach Lou Lamoriello pulled goaltender Mario Proulx from the game, but, instead, Wisconsin's Jim Johannson shot on PC's empty net, giving the Badgers a final 2-0 win. It was an extremely tough loss for the team - to come so close to a chance for the national title - yet the season was not over.

On Saturday afternoon, PC was pitted against another western conference team, the University of Minnesota, who had lost their playoff game to Harvard on Friday night. Once again, Friar fans packed the University of North Dakota's (the host school) Winter Sports Center to cheer on their team in a game that would decide third place. In the first period, goals by Minnesota's Wally Chapman and PC's Kurt Kleinendorst left the score tied at one apiece as the final buzzer for the period sounded. Then, in the second period, the Friars put it in overdrive as they scored three unanswered goals one each by senior Jim Rushin, freshman Artie Yeomelakis and sophomore Steve Rooney. Minnesota added two more goals in the third period, but it was to no avail, as PC clinched the third place spot in the nation with a 4-3 victory. Once again, however, it was Friar goaltending that saved the victory as freshman Chris Terreri, replacing the ailing Mario Proulx, did a spectacular job in the net, stopping an amazing 52 shots on goal, including a new NCAA single period, tournament record of 24 saves in the third period.

So ended the season of the finest team ever to don the Friar hockey uniform. Their record (33-10-0, .767) was the best in the country and the best in PC history. Their 33 victories were also the most wins ever accumulated by an Eastern college. Their 9-0 mark for the month of November set a new collegiate record and they finished the regular season with the best record in the ECAC

On to the Olympics!

(16-5-0). In addition, they won the Schooner Cup tournament in Halifax, Nova Scotia during December and, of course, placed second in the ECAC's and third in the NCAA's during March. Coach Lou Lamoriello best summed up this season's team when he was asked which player he couldn't have done it without and he responded, "If I could answer that we wouldn't have been the team we were."

Editor's Note: While many jokes were made about the location of the NCAA "Final Four" tournament, it turned out to be an excellent and well-run event. The people of Grand Forks and the University of North Dakota were extremely friendly and helpful to all of those who attended the games. Their hospitality was warmly appreciated by both the players and fans of Providence College hockey and the memories of the trip will not soon be forgotten.

Alumni Awards Dinner Set for June 11

Five people will be honored at the 27th annual National Alumni Awards Dinner scheduled for Saturday evening, June 11, in Raymond Hall on the PC campus.

Following tradition, the dinner will highlight class reunion weekend activities at the college; however, the event is open to all alumni and friends in addition to the honor year classes.

John G. Coffey, a member of the golden anniversary class of 1933, will receive the Exemplary Citizenship Award in recognition of his illustrious 46-year career as an attorney and former member of the Rhode Island House and Senate.

William Wayland, a silver anniversary alumnus, will be the recipient of the Personal Achievement Award. He began his prominent career in business as a Director of Industrial Relations for Chrysler Corporation in the U.S. and England and then joined the Schering-Plough Corporation in a similar executive post. A resident of New Jersey, he is now Vice President of A. Johnson and Company Inc. and serves as regional co-chairman for the PC Loyalty Fund.

This year the Faculty-Staff Award will be a unique dual honor citing the Deasy brothers who have thus far collectively given 48 years of outstanding and dedicated service as members of the PC faculty. Robert Deasy '53 is associate professor of history and Richard Deasy '51 is an associate professor of history and director of the social studies program.

Dr. Adolph Motta '43 and his wife, Mary, will be the recipients of the Distinguished Alumni Service Award, marking the first time that a husband and wife have been jointly honored by the Alumni Association. The Motta's are being cited in appreciation for over a decade of volunteer service on behalf of Providence College. Dr. Motta was a founder of the Southern Florida Alumni Club and continues to serve as a regional chairman for the Loyalty Fund. He and Mrs. Motta, at

Candidates Selected for National Alumni Election

Ballots for the 1983-84 Alumni Association election will soon be mailed to all alumni on 'active' status (Loyalty Fund contributors). Included with each ballot will be a sheet with brief biographical sketches of each candidate and a pre-addressed envelope for returning the ballot prior to the June 25th deadline.

The Alumni Association By-Laws provide for the Vice President to serve a one-year term and then automatically succeed to the presidency the following year. Accordingly this year's Vice President, Vincent Callahan '52 of Windsor, CT, will be the new President of the National Alumni Association as of July 1, 1983.

The other officer positions will be decided by the election and the candidates for the one-year term are:

Vice President: Robert Paci '64, an attorney and executive director of the Governor's Construction Implementation Team in Rhode Island vs Robert Mathieu '50, a health care management specialist and director of policy and programs for the State of Rhode Island.

Secretary: Richard DeBlasio '56, president of R. A. DeBlasio Insurance in Cranston, RI vs James McLean '60, vice president and general manager of Faneuil Hall Marketplace Inc. in Boston.

Treasurer: Margaret McGetrick '80, an investment specialist with the Common Fund in Fairfield, CT, vs Kathleen Caldwell Taddei '75, an attorney and trust officer for Citizens Bank in Providence, RI.

Three of the nine class group representative positions on the Alumni Board come up for election this year. The candidates for these 3-year posts are:

their own expense, have hosted over a dozen annual receptions bringing together alumni in Southern Florida to promote support for the college.

Tickets for the Awards Dinner are $13 per person and can be obtained from the Alumni Office.

Representative for 1948-52: Joseph Ungaro '52, vice president and executive director of Westchester Rockland Newspapers in White Plains, NY, vs James Penler '52, president of Paragon Tours Inc., based in New Bedford, MA.

Representative for 1968-72: Robert Van Amburgh '69, a principal and supervisor of social studies for the Albany, NY, School System, vs David Martinelli '72, president of Cazco Inc. of Johnston, RI.

Representative for 1978-82: Maureen Rodgers '78, a unit claim manager for Allstate Insurance in Rhode Island, vs Michael Murray '79, controller of RICOM Construction Products of Rhode Island.

Ballots will be machine counted on June 27th and the election results will be announced on June 30th at the final meeting of the 1982-83 Alumni Board of Governors.

Congratulations to . . .

May and June is 'Awards' season when the major alumni area clubs annually recognize outstanding PC grads in their region. The programs all involve a reception or dinner and most use the proceeds to fund scholarship programs.

This year's list of area club award winners included:

MARTIN SHUGRUE, JR. '62, senior vice president of Pan American World Airways, Inc., was the recipient of the New York Area Alumni Club Award for Personal Achievement. The dinner, which was preceded by the Club's annual Ascension Day Mass, was held in the Rainbow Room of Rockefeller Center on May 12, 1983.

THOMAS CAHILL '57, executive vice president of First Bank of New Haven was presented the Veritas Award of the New Haven Area Alumni Club on May 10th at a dinner at the Laurel View Country Club in Hamden, CT.

JOHN FANNING '38, recently-retired chairman of the National Labor Relations Board, received a special award of appreciation from the Washington Area Alumni Club at a May 14th reception at the International Club in Washington, D.C.

VINCENT CALLAHAN '52 and WILLIAM DAVIS '52 were co-recipients of the Friar Award of the Hartford Area Alumni Chapter of PC. The dinner took place at the Wampanoag Country Club in West Hartford, CT.
